SCIENCE FINDS FUEL THAT MAY CHANGE WORLD

It Beats Gasoline 3,000,000 to 1.

New York, May 4 [Special].—Pioneering physicists at Columbia university have separated into pure form a natural substance so powerful that one pound of it will give off as much energy as 3,000,000 pounds of gasoline or 5,000,000 pounds of coal.

This discovery, which is discussed in the current issue of the Physical Review, official publication of American physicists, has brought from scientists the cautious forecast that if the substance can really be harnessed, a revolution in power greater than the introduction of the steam engine impends.

"One Step Remains."

Prof. John R. Dunning, who headed the Columbia team whose research led to experimental proof of the potency of the newly isolated substance, was said to have told a colleague that only one step remains before its use will be available to man. That step is the improvement of methods of extracting it from ores. Other physicists agreed with Dunning.

In the beginning only infinitesimal amounts were available. In two months' time these amounts increased 200 fold.

Tentatively the name U-235 has been given to the substance, which is a close relative of uranium. It is reckoned that a ten pound chunk of it would drive an ocean liner around the world many times, and that a piece the size of a man's hand would enable a submarine to cross any body of water in the world, including the Pacific ocean. Not much of it would be required to fly an airplane around the earth.

The report stressed the ease with which U-235 can be made to give off its tremendous energy. All that is necessary, it was said, was to put some of it in a tank and supply it with a constant stream of cold water.

Minnesota Successful First.

Until a few months ago, not even a drop of this substance had been extracted into pure form. Scientists were skeptical whether it could be done. Toward the end of February a minute fraction of a gram was isolated at the University of Minnesota physics laboratory, under direction of Prof. Alfred O. Nier.

This sample was sent to Columbia, where Prof. Dunning, Dr. E. T. Booth, and Dr. Aristid V. Grosse tested it in the university's 150 ton cyclotron [atom smasher]. It worked well, but the scale of the experiment was small, and only after much larger quantities had been extracted did the experimenters become satisfied with the prospects.

They now entertain the hope that in short time a way will be found to isolate the material in pounds instead of millionths of a gram. It is known that large manufacturing companies are interested in the experiments and that research men for General Electric have separated a bit of it and got results similar to those at Columbia.

Possible War Factor.

One reason that makes the physicists reluctant to talk is the possibility that practical use of U-235 might sway the balance of power in the European war to the side that has it. It is said that many German scientists have been assigned to work on the problem of extraction exclusively. It is believed, however, that the Americans are ahead now and that the United States government will get the first practical plans for using U-235. As an explosive, it is figured one pound of this substance would be equal to 15,000 tons of TNT.

In scientific language, U-235 is an isotope, or chemical twin, of ordinary uranium. Its characteristics were described even before its isolation by Dr. Niels Bohr, a Dane and Nobel prize winner in physics.

U. of C. EXPERT CONCURS.

Prof. Samuel K. Allison of the science physics department at the University of Chicago said last night that the new discovery may be far reaching. The power available from the new source, Uranium 235, he asserted, would be a million times that available from a similar weight of coal.

Utilization of the new power is still a technical problem, requiring a new kind of engineering to find a way to control this new power safely, he added. Prof. A. J. Dempster of the University of Chicago, he pointed out, discovered Uranium 235.

JUBILANT NAZIS ENVISION HITLER ON BRITISH SOIL

Hail Report of Two Warships Sunk.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 4.—Jubilant and chock full of confidence in Germany's future, Nazi leaders tonight were painting world shaking pictures of events soon to come as a result of the Nazi announcement of triumphs of the German air force over the British navy.

These included the sinking by aerial bombs of a British battleship and a cruiser and the damaging of seven other British ships off the west coast of Norway yesterday.

As a result of the triumphs the Nazis foresaw and predicted:

That the day is not far off when Adolf Hitler will land on English soil—the first foreign conqueror to set foot there since William I. in 1066.

Picks Peace Treaty Town.

That the European war will end with a peace to be signed at Munster in Westphalia, a spot said to have been selected by Hitler himself. It was there in 1648 that Germany accepted the terms of the treaty of Westphalia which ended the 30 years' war.

That Mussolini soon will throw the weight of Italy into the scales of war on the side of Germany.

Messages from Greece said that that country is honeycombed with emissaries from Italy and Germany, much as Norway and Denmark were honeycombed with German soldiers acting as tourists before the Scandinavian invasion began on April 9.

Strong German forces are stationed along the southeastern border of former Austria, foreign tourists who have returned from that area say. The taking of photographs at Innsbruck or other tourist towns in Austria is forbidden.

Call It Black Day for British.

This is the blackest day in the history of the British navy, Germans asserted, in discussing their air force victory claims, because the airplane has been proved superior to the battleship.

[Informed British sources in London described the German claims to the sinking of a battleship and other war vessels by air bombers as "of the fantastic character to which the public is fast becoming accustomed."]

"For some time we have been waiting for an opportunity to prove to the world that even a battleship can be sunk by air raiders," said one prominent Nazi today.

"We are simply amazed, ourselves, that the experiment succeeded without so much as a single loss for us.

New Stage of Air Warfare.

"In our fondest dreams we did not think it possible that the job could be completed in less than three minutes without the loss of a plane."

Military circles in Berlin said the sinking of the battleship "initiates a new stage of aerial warfare against England. The German air force is superior to even the most powerful units of the British grand fleet. Many military experts thruout the rest of the world will have to revise their ideas."

TRIUMPH FOR GOERING

BERLIN, May 4 (AP).—Air Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, bemedalled man of the hour of the Norwegian blitzkrieg, proudly announced today the feat which he and Adolf Hitler had charged the German airforce in Norway to achieve at any cost—the sinking of a British battleship by air bombardment.

In all, formal Nazi statements said, nine British warships on transports were sunk or badly damaged during a day of attacks by bombers and battleplanes off Namsos and Narvik, western Norway, yesterday, while the British fleet was transferring allied troops who have abandoned central Norway.

Sunk in Three Minutes.

Besides the battleship, the British losses were stated to include a heavy cruiser of the class of the 8,250 ton York, "sunk in 30 minutes" by heavy bombs; a second cruiser and two destroyers bombed and damaged, and a 12,000 ton transport sunk, all off Namsos, plus a battle cruiser, a cruiser,

French Stop Nazi Attack on Wide Front

PARIS, May 4 (AP).—The British-French high command reported tonight that a German surprise attack against the center of the 100 mile active section of the western front had been thrown back in disorder.

The Germans attacked on what was described officially as a wide front. They were caught in strong barbed wire entanglements by French heavy artillery fire and then swept by fire from machine guns and automatic rifles placed at strategic points. Military observers said the attackers were thrown into confusion and forced to retreat.

Terrain Is Difficult.

This section of the front, where the valleys of the Blies and Saar rivers join, is one of the most difficult countrysides on the western front for ground operations. Far in front of the Maginot line the French have erected strong advance post positions taking advantage of the thickly wooded slopes and rock strewn valleys.

The German attack, launched before dawn, is understood to have covered the whole valley area in almost the exact center of that part of the western front that extends west from the Rhine river to Luxemburg.

Big Guns 'ncrease Fire.

Artillery fire has been increasing since yesterday along the sector between the Rhine and the Moselle. However, military observers warned against attaching undue importance either to the cannonading or to the Nazis' surprise attack.

The artillery fire, apparently heaviest in the Blies valley east of the sector where the Germans attacked, covered the area between the Blies and the Vosges mountains as well as the Moselle valley, some 50 miles to the west.

Million Parisians Still Gone from Their Homes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 4.—More than 1,000,000 Parisians still are absent from their homes, altho many families have returned to the capital from places of refuge in the provinces during the last months, according to statistics just published in connection with the forthcoming distribution of ration cards. Only 1,860,000 persons have registered for cards in Paris. The normal population is 2,900,000.

JULES VERNE EVEN IMAGINED A HITLER, OLD VOLUME REVEALS

PARIS, May 4.—A writer in the newspaper Petit Parisien has dug up an old volume in which Jules Verne, who imagined the airplane, the submarine and other once fabulous monstrosities of this age, went so far as to imagine a Hitler.

The novel is called "The Five Hundred Millions of the Begum." In it Verne describes a German theorizer who becomes the terror of the world, called Herr Schulze. Herr Schulze is a professor who, beginning with a racial theory, goes on to create a system resembling the Nazi reich in most of its details.

He builds a city that becomes an immense arsenal for machines of destruction. One of these is a long-range gun that shoots gas shells. He hopes to turn it against France and put an end to what he calls a degenerate race. In the end Herr Schulze falls a victim to his own invention and is killed in an experiment. His whole system crumbles upon the announcement of his death.

BLAST OF RIFLE POWDER ROCKS DU PONT PLANT

Penns Grove, N. J., May 4 (AP).—Two tons of rifle powder exploded early today in a building of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company at nearby Carney's Point. The blast shook this south Jersey area for miles, but caused no serious injuries or property damage. Two workmen in another building 150 feet distant suffered from shock and were treated at a hospital.

A company spokesman said the powder blew up in what is known as a rifle glazing barrel. The barrel was located in a one story galvanized iron building. The cause of the explosion was not immediately determined, but a spokesman for the company said, "We are certain there was no sabotage connected with the explosion."

Three small narrow gauge railway cars loaded with powder that had just been processed caught fire and burned near by. The company said each car contained approximately 4,000 pounds of powder.

Slovakia's Food Problem Grows, Hungary Hears

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 4.—The acuteness of the food problem in Slovakia is increasing daily, according to information here. The government is able to supply the population with necessary victuals only with great difficulty, it was said, and the cost of living is increasing disastrously.

4,700 Women Simply Eat Up Their Welcome

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 4.—Some 4,700 Democratic women departed the capital tonight, leaving in their wake a large corps of woebegone congressmen who uttered piteous moans about the havoc worked upon their pocketbooks.

The suffering among senators and representatives was brought on because they incautiously invited delegates to the so-called National Institute of Government to attend free breakfasts. The convention was sponsored by the women's division of the Democratic national committee.

Only 500 delegates had been expected to attend the convention, which opened last Thursday. Instead, almost 5,000 women descended upon Washington.

Noted As Trenchermen.

The prospect was horrifying. Women who engage actively in politics are noted for their buxom stature and healthy appetites. Some legislators quietly left town for the Kentucky Derby or for social relaxation in New York or Atlantic City. Their colleagues characterized the truants as cowards and prepared for the blow.

Tie had not long to wait. Pennsylvania congressmen received a note from Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, sister of Senator Joe Guffey of Pennsylvania, that they were to kick in $25 each for a breakfast that was to be given in the name of Senator Guffey, with the contributors unmentioned.

Tough on Ohio Scot.

The eight Democratic congressmen and one senator from Ohio were called upon to contribute $10 each. In this connection, genuine pathos was registered by Representative Robert Crosser. [Crosser was born in Scotland.]

There are only six Democratic congressmen from Michigan. Three hundred women showed up at the convention from that state. A hasty calculation produced the sorrowful report that the Michigan statesmen would have to contribute $50 each.

Wisconsin women Democrats were in a dilemma. There were 40 of them, and Wisconsin hasn't a single Democratic congressman or senator. Mrs. George A. Givan, Democratic national committeewoman from Wisconsin, advertised for a Democrat who would preside at the breakfast if the guests footed the bill.

Chicago Horse Beats Bimelech by 1½ Lengths

BY HOWARD BARRY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—Gallahadion, a 35 to 1 shot owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago, won the 66th Kentucky Derby this afternoon in one of the major upsets of American sport. With Jockey Carroll Bierman driving hard, Gallahadion came up along the rail in midstretch, got to the front 110 yards from the finish, and drew out to a lead of a length and a half as he crossed the finish line.

Mrs. Ethel V. Mars.

Edward R. Bradley's Bimelech, the dark bay colt which never before had been beaten, came home second with a margin of a nose over Dit, owned by Arnold Hanger. He had gone to the post at odds of 2 to 5. Behind Dit came Charles S. Howard's Mioland, Charles T. Fisher's Sirocco, Joseph E. Widener's Roman, Harold Clark's Royal Man and W. L. Brann's Pictor.

Starts His Move.

As the field sped into the final 220 yards of the race, Gallahadion started his brilliant display of finishing power. When he made his move, Bimelech was three lengths in front of him and closely followed by Roman and Dit.

The crowd of 85,000 watched, transfixed, as Gallahadion sped up along the rail. They watched, with consternation, as Bimelech was unable to meet the sudden challenge of a once lightly regarded horse which now made so bold as to mar this day which had been reserved for Bimelech. Neither could Roman, the early pace setter, nor Dit do anything about it.

A sixteenth from home—110 yards—Gallahadion and Bimelech were locked head and head in a struggle for supremacy. The brilliant orange colors of Mrs. Mars' Milky Way farm were flashing in the sunlight as Gallahadion came on and on. Desperately, Jockey Freddy Smith urged on Bimelech, but he failed to deliver. Inch by inch, Jockey Bierman drove Gallahadion away from the pride of the Kentucky blue grass country. And then Gallahadion was clear—drawing away to victory. Across the finish line he flashed, bringing his owner the most highly cherished honor on the American turf.

Charge to Finish Line.

Until those last heart breaking 220 yards—heart breaking for the confident Kentuckians who had eyes for no one but Bimelech—the race had followed its expected pattern. Roman had set the pace for more than three-quarters of a mile. Then Jockey Smith called on Bimelech and the dark bay colt closed with Roman, while Dit did likewise. Almost head and head the three raced into the home stretch, a quarter of a mile from the finish.

Bimelech was running in the middle, Roman on the rail, and Dit on the outside. Gallahadion was three lengths behind. Moving as a team, the three leaders charged on thru the dust flecked sunshine. And then came Gallahadion!

Over a track that was fast but rather dull, the winner ran the mile

LINK STATE AID TO THEFT RING; TWO ARRESTED

Bureau Clerk Tells Workings of Plot.

Springfield, Ill., May 4 [Special].—State investigators have uncovered an automobile theft ring which operated with aid from inside the supposedly well-guarded state automobile department, it was disclosed today.

Officials admitted that licenses and certificates of title for stolen cars had been issued to members of the ring. A statehouse employé has been discharged and two alleged auto thieves with whom he associated are under arrest. Four stolen automobiles have been recovered.

Look for Federal Violations.

Altho the case has been in the hands of state detectives, federal agents have been watching it closely to learn if it involves violations of the federal law prohibiting interstate transportation of stolen automobiles.

The state employé dismissed is William McHard of Aledo, who has worked for 6½ years in the "look-up" bureau of the license department. No legal action has been taken against him, but his two associates, Merle C. Jobe and William T. Crowley, alias George Ross, are in jail at Quincy on charges of automobile theft.

The investigation which led to discovery of the theft ring was begun several weeks ago when it was learned that files were missing from the secretary of state's office where numbers of motor vehicle licenses, auto bodies and motor blocks are kept in a complicated system.

State Employes Questioned.

Don Forsyth, general supervisor of the automobile department, said that when he told Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes of the missing files, he instructed that "I get every one involved in it and let the chips fall where they may."

The matter was turned over to T. P. Sullivan, director of the state department of investigation and identification. With his assistants, Frank Figueria and Sam Malone, Sullivan began work on the case.

All state employés who worked in the files division were questioned. McHard confessed he was responsible for the missing files, officials reported. They said he told the following story:

Last September he received a telephone call at work and was asked to meet two friends in a tavern near the statehouse when he finished work.

Use Friend's Name.

In the tavern McHard met two men, later identified as Jobe and Crowley, who told him they were acquainted with a friend of his in Aledo.

The men told him they were in the stolen automobile racket and offered him $15 for each license and title he could obtain for them. McHard accepted their offer. He obtained titles to two vehicles for them, which enabled them to get licenses for the cars. Later he supplied licenses and titles for cars upon mailed requests from the pair.

Several days after the original meeting, the men again contacted McHard and told him Quincy police had raided their place of business and that they had destroyed data which they had received from the state department files.

Removes File Cards.

McHard returned to the statehouse, stripped the cards pertaining to the three automobiles from seven different files, and took them to the two men. They offered him money for this work, but he refused it, telling them he was "thru with the business."

The state employé's description of Jobe and Crowley led to their arrest by department of investigation agents last Thursday morning.

Night Traffic on Danube Banned by Rumania, Report

LONDON, May 5 [Sunday] (AP).—A Reuters [British news agen y] dispatch from Bucharest early today said all traffic on the Danube river at night had been forbidden by the Rumanian air and marine ministry. Reuters said the decision was taken as a precaution against possible acts of sabotage against the Carnavoda bridge across the Danube linking Rumania with its Dobruja territory and against the pipeline at Constanta.

Hail Announcement of 2 Warships Sunk.

An official announcement said the battleship, one of the 30,000 ton Queen Elizabeth class, was sunk in three minute soff Namsos yesterday without the loss of a single German plane.

DNB, the official German news agency, expressed its belief tonight that all hands aboard the battleship—probably about 1,100—were lost.

Rescue Efforts Late.

This report said other ships of the attacked fleet hastened to the spot where the battleship sank, but "were too late to be of any help.

"German airplanes circling over the spot for a long time could establish that not even a boat or a member of the crew was moving amidst the wreckage," the agency added.

The successful attack on the battleship marked a new high in Goering's meteoric career. Men who know him say he has waited for weeks for just this test as conclusive proof that the German air force can accomplish any task set for it.

Five Ships in Class.

There are five battleships of the Queen Elizabeth class: the Warspite, flagship of Vice Admiral William Jock Whitworth, which on April 13 led the British fleet which smashed into Narvik fjord and sank seven destroyers; the Queen Elizabeth, Valiant, Barham, and Malaya, all of approximately 30,000 tons, and carrying complements of 1,100 men.

Britain has admitted the loss of no capital ships to air action; it has, however, conceded the sinking of the sloop Bittern and the destroyer Gurkha by air bombs since the start of the Norwegian compaign, and damage to various other vessels.

Berlin's brief announcement of the British battleship's destruction said it was proceeding on a westerly course off Namsos yesterday afternoon when the German dive bombers swooped down on !t, dropping heavy bombs.

Flames Shoot High.

"It was hit between the forward turrets," said the communique. "Half a minute after the bombs hit, shooting flames flared 500 meters [1,640 feet] high amidst great clouds of smoke. After the clouds disappeared there was nothing more of the ship to be seen except débris."

A single bomb, German experts said, must have hit a powder magazine on the warship, altho others were dropped. The impression was that the battleship was shielding the departure of British troops from Namsos. They embarked Thursday night.

No sooner had the power diver unit reported the feat to Goering than he hurried to the reich's chancellery to tell Adolf Hitler about it. The two decided, then, to withhold the news until Saturday noon "to see whether Churchill [British first lord of the admiralty] will have the courage to admit this terrific loss."

Churchill, however, said nothing.

Narvik Attack Repulsed.

The army today said German forces holding arctic Narvik had repulsed attacks from the British and French, and that the situation was unchanged.

At Andalsnes, south of Trondheim, also abandoned by the British, one Norwegian general, 127 officers and 2,500 men were said to have surrendered, and "pacification is proceeding thruout Norway."

"An enemy freighter" was reported damaged by bombers in Solberg fjord, north of Narvik, and "an enemy submarine" was announced as sunk by a German U-boat after it had been bombed by a German plane, at ar. undisclosed location.

Germans Claim Great Sea Victory

BRITAIN'S NAVAL LOSSES TOTAL 98, NAZIS CLAIM

BERLIN, May 4 (AP).—Germany has claimed that at least 98 British naval ships have been "sunk, destroyed or set afire" by German air and naval action and mines in the eight month period from Sept. 3, 1939 to May 3, 1940, an unofficial compilation showed tonight.

The list, drawn up from army communiques and DNB [official German news agency] summaries and including developments which were reported today, follows:

Two battleships, including the Royal Oak.

The airplane carrier Courageous.

At least 17 destroyers.

Twenty-four troop transports.

Twenty-two submarines.

The summary does not include warships claimed to have been put out of action by damages. The authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships gives Great Britain's naval strength as of September, 1939 [completed ships only] as 15 capital ships [battleships and battlecruisers], six aircraft carriers, 15 heavy cruisers, 43 other cruisers, 6 antiaircraft ships, 179 destroyers, 57 submarines, and 26 motor torpedo boats.

GERMANY TELLS HOW NORSE GUNS SANK BLUECHER

BERLIN, May 4.—DNB, the official German news agency, tonight for the first time issued details of the sinking of the cruiser Bluecher on April 9 in the Oslo fjord.

Loaded with troops that were to take Oslo, the Bluecher advanced cautiously in the early morning along the fjord. At the Oskarborg fortress heavy batteries of Norwegian artillery suddenly opened fire at less than 1,500 feet.

The Bluecher was hit badly in numerous places, but is said to have succeeded in silencing the Oskarsborg guns. Fire broke out on the warship soon afterward, however, and while the vessel moved slowly further up the channel another fort opened fire, sinking her.

DUTCH SEIZE 21 TO AVERT BLOW BY '5TH COLUMN'

Nazi Parliament Member Taken in Roundup.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AMSTERDAM, the Netherlands, May 4.—Twenty-one persons, including a member of the lower chamber of parliament mere taken into custody in Holland today in a roundup of "fifth column" elements. Premier Derek Jan De Geer announced the arrests in a broadcast to the nation and the Dutch East Indies.

Among those arrested is Rost Van Tonningen, 46 years old, member of a prominent old family. He is a member of the lower house of parliament, editor of the Nazi paper the Nationale Dagblad ,and in 1931 as the League of Nations high commissioner from Austria.

The leader of the Nazi party here, Anton Mussert, was not molested. The premier, obviously to avoid offending Germany, explained that personal activities solely were responsible for the arrests and that party affiliations were not considered. The roundup was made under martial law empowering the commander in chief of the army, Gen. H. G. Winkelmann, to take into custody any person suspected of working against the best interests of defense measures.

Neutrality Defended.

Altho their identity was not disclosed, the other prisoners are said to be secondary figures in the communist, Anti-Semitic, Nazi, and other parties. The premier did not define the activities to which the government objected but said they were dangerous to public safety and to the country's neutrality policy. This policy, he declared, demands that citizens be pro-Netherlands before anything else.

The country, he asserted, "will resist every violation of its territory."

Belgium Arrests Two.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, May 4 (AP).—Two Flemish Nationalists were arrested today at Hasselt under a new government decree against persons propagating "indiscipline or demoralization" in the army.

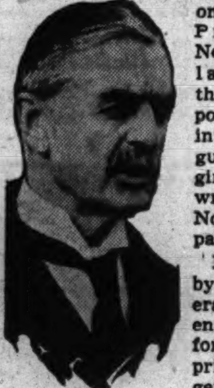
CHAMBERLAIN'S CABINET FIGHTS OUSTER DRIVE

Faces 'Resign' Outcry in Commons Tuesday.

LONDON, May 4 (AP). — Acutely aware that military disaster has unseated more than one government, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain tonight threw his waning political strength into the task of guiding his régime thru the wreckage of the Norwegian campaign.



Neville Chamberlain.

Biting criticism by Laborites, Liberals, and insurgent Conservatives forced the aging prime minister to get ready for a real battle in the house of commons on Tuesday. He faces an outcry of "resign" as penalty for the failure in Norway.

The demand for the resignations of Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon, and Air Minister Sir Samuel Hoare, as voiced by Herbert Morrison, powerful Labor party spokesman, was piled on top of bitter criticism of "complacency" and "oversatisfaction" on the part of the government. Combined, the attacks are expected to take the form of a drive to overthrow the present government.

While details of the abandoned British-French attempt to take Trondheim from the Germans filtered into newspapers thru unofficial military sources, Englishmen, bitter as only they can be when an enemy mocks Britain, told the government, "Get on with the war or get out."

Morrison, Clement R. Attlee, leader of the Labor party opposition in the house of commons, and Emanuel Shinwell, Laborite M. P., each struck at the government in speeches today.

Even more significant in the eyes of political observers was obvious unrest in Chamberlain's own Conservative party and its affiliates. Many parliament members who support the government went back to their constituencies over the week-end to hear the grumbling of restless and vaguely suspicious voters.

Three Leaders Blamed.

Morrison, in an address before the labor regional conference, declared that Chamberlain, Simon, and Hoare were "primarily responsible for the relative weakness of our war effort."

While urging them "to consider whether their best service would not be by way of resignation," he prophesied that commons will demand it be told "a lot about Norway."

Attlee asserted that the government will be forced to "satisfy the country that everything possible was done" in the Norwegian campaign.

Unrest among younger Conservatives such as Richard K. Law, member of parliament and son of Bonar Law, was regarded as particularly significant. It was said it may indicate a defection of part of the Conservative majority.

Well informed quarters revealed details of the British-French unsuccessful attempts to capture Trondheim, Norway. They said territorial troops, similar in training and equipment to the United States national guard were the spearhead of British-French troops in the first landings in Norway.

Marriage Thwarted

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Joyce Matthews, actress, who was denied marriage license yesterday in Washington, D. C., because she is under 21. She and her fiance, Gomzalo Gomez of Venezuela, said they would try again.

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—Gomzalo Gomez, son of the former dictator of Venezuela, and Miss Joyce Mathews, 20 year old New York actress, failed twice today in attempts to obtain a marriage license in Virginia. Turned down by marriage license clerks at Leesburg and Berryville because of her youth, they finally gave up and took a train for New York, saying they would apply there for a license Monday.

NORSE REFUGEES GORGE ON FOOD LEFT BY BRITISH Flock to Namsos After Army's Retreat.

IN THE STEINKJER REGION, Norway, May 5, Sunday (AP).—Thousands of starving war refugees descended upon the hilly regions around Namsos Friday and Saturday and helped themselves to large stores of food left by the British and French before the hasty allied withdrawal.

Upon learning that the allies were gone these civilian victims of the war made a holiday of it, eating and drinking as much as they could and then carting away as big a load as they could to their homes. It was a strange procession of vehicles of every description imaginable, stacked high with everything from beef to the equivalent of hard tack.

Break Casks of Wine.

Thruout the region from Overhalla west to Namsos—where the allies kept their plentiful stores—there were poignant scenes as the hungry civilians clawed ravenously at the boxes of foodstuffs.

Friday Col. O. B. Getz, acting Norwegian commander in the Trondelag province area made public letters he received at 11 p. m. Thursday night from Maj. Gen. Carton de Wiart, director of British forces in central Norway, and Gen. Audet, in charge of French troops.

With Great Regret.

Gen. de Wiart's letter read in part:

"Dear Col. Getz:

"It is with great regret that I must let you know that we must withdraw from this area and everyone feels it deeply."

ITALIANS WARN EMPIRES: WE'RE READY TO FIGHT

Watch Fleet Movements in Mediterranean.

ROME, May 4 (AP).—Concentration of British and French warships in the Mediterranean, with at least seven battleships reported among the combined squadrons, tonight caused Italy to issue the bluntly-worded warning that she would repulse any offensive action in "mare nostrum" [our sea].

The warning came from Premier Mussolini's mouthpiece, Virginio Gayda, who wrote in his Il Giornale d'Italia that if the empires' concentration of naval power in the Mediterranean signifies an attempt "at an offensive undertaking" it will find Italy's reaction "prompt and strong."

Tonight the official gazette disclosed that the war ministry has been given an extra 8,000,000,000 lire [$400,000,000] for "extraordinary expense."

Says Area Is Quiet.

Gayda declared the Mediterranean is keeping "completely quiet," but that the Italian nation does not yet really understand "exactly what particular design inspired the joint decision of England and France to reinforce their war fleet in the Mediterranean."

Italian newspapers suddenly gave prominence to the official Italian report of British and French naval movements, issued after the battle fleet had reached Alexandria, Egypt, near the Suez canal.

The Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera warned that British naval supremacy is not enough to dominate a theater of war when the enemy possesses good air and naval bases along with "aggressive spirit."

Sees Nazis Invading Britain.

Giovanni Ansaldo, newspaper writer who often speaks for Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, today predicted Germany eventually would invade British territory.

Writing in Ciano's newspaper, Il Telegrafo of Leghorn, Ansaldo spoke of British fear of a German offensive into British territory and said that what Italians knew of the German forces and of their "will to win" made them "believe ever more firmly that there will be one."

Tension High in Greece.

ATHENS, Greece, May 4 (AP).—The reported arrival of British naval reinforcements in the Aegean sea off Salonika kept tension high in Greece tonight as all of southeastern Europe watched anxiously for developments in the Mediterranean.

The naval additions brought home to residents of Salonika the fact that their seaport town would be a strategically valuable base for either side in case of war here.

While watching the movements of the British war vessels, Greece took steps to protect Salonika from the north. A major portion of the 10 classes of reserves called up for training will be sent to the Albanian frontier, whence Italy conceivably might launch a drive if she enters the war.

Blackout for Egypt.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, May 4 (AP).—General war exercises, featured by a week's blackout of all Egypt starting May 7 and mock air raids and desert battles were ordered today coincident with scheduled arrival of further British and French battle-fleet units.

Newly installed coastal defense batteries were tested today and declared satisfactory. Strict measures were taken to guard the harbor, strategically situated at one of the mouths of the Nile and near the Suez canal.

Germans Driven Back

Arrows point to sector of the western front where a German attack was repulsed Friday night, according to French communique.

The rectangle in this general map of the front along the German-French border designates the area shown in detail in the upper drawing.

Weakened Garrison There Fights from Hills.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 4 (AP).—A German push northward toward Narvik, along hazardous mountain trails and fjords exposed to the guns of the British and French fleet, was predicted by military experts in Stockholm tonight.

This forecast was made while the massive German army machine, already numbering around 100,000 and being strengthened daily, overran central Norway, precipitously abandoned to the invaders by Britain and France.

Unconfirmed reports said British naval units were bombarding Arctic Narvik, but informed Swedish observers believed the German army would take advantage of the offensive momentum developed in central Norway to drive to the rescue of several thousand Nazis trapped between allied land and sea forces at Narvik.

Force Greatly Weakened.

Refugees arriving in Sweden from Narvik said a German force greatly weakened by three weeks of fighting and a lack of supplies was clinging tenaciously to positions in the hills above Narvik while allied land units were slowly closing in around the Arctic ore port.

The Germans in central Norway are separated from their beleaguered comrades and the allied besiegers at Narvik by a long and narrow stretch of mountains flanking a fjord indented coastal strip.

Experts said the Germans could push with little difficulty 100 miles northward of Namsos to Mosjoen. But from Mosjoen to Narvik, the experts believed, the German advance would be extremely hazardous, as it would involve traversing difficult country, expose the Germans to allied attacks from the sea and necessitate ferrying across a network of fjords and lagoons.

Resistance at Standstill.

These Swedish experts thought it would be easy for the allies, if they complete occupation of the Narvik area, to block any German attempts to drive to the Arctic port provided the allies maintain a sufficient and active naval force off the coast north of Mosjoen.

Norwegian resistance in central Norway came to a virtual standstill today after Col. O. B. Getz, acting commander of Norwegian forces in this area, issued an order saying that the fight against the Germans was finished.

Disorganized and dispirited Norwegian units continued to offer scattered resistance, but Swedish reports said the Norwegians lacked arms.

A dispatch from the Swedish-Norwegian border said 130 Norwegians fought off a German force for hours near Roros yesterday but were eventually forced to retreat in the face of a powerful German onslaught.

ITALIAN PRESS GIBES AT PITTMAN'S BOAST OF BRITISH VICTORY

ROME, May 4 (AP).—Senator Key Pittman, chairman of the United States senate foreign relations committee, was one of the targets tonight of Italian press gibes on Britain's Norwegian "defeat."

Il Resto del Carlino of Bologna carried the Nevada Democrat's picture, noted that he had prophesied Germany's expulsion from Norway within 30 days, and said that instead the British had "fled."

Senator Pittman, it said, was "Leon Blum's rival" as a prophet, without explaining this reference to the former premier of France.

[In an address to the Reno Young Democrats' club, broadcast nationally April 16, Senator Pittman said: "I do not believe Germany will be able to hold Norway and am of the opinion German forces will be driven out of Norway within 30 days."]

Duel Is Off; Hungarian Foes' Dispute Cleared Up

BUDAPEST, Hungary, May 4 (AP).—The "affair of honor" between Hungary's minister of the interior Ferenc Keresztes-Fischer and Kalman Hubay, fuehrer of the Hungarian Nazi party, was reported settled today without a duel. Intermediaries were said to have cleared up the dispute arising from a debate in parliament on May 2 over the arrest and prosecution of a Nazi deputy.

FRANCE, MIGHTY ON LAND, GROWS STRONG ON SEA

Completes Battleships Ahead of Schedule.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 4.—France is first and foremost a military nation, but since the great war French interest in naval affairs has widened. During the last 20 years no pains have been spared to modernize the naval material, using all the latest developments.

A very high proportion of the ships now in service are of up to date design. Beginning with the big destroyers of the Chacal class, built under the 1922 program, a new hull was produced which, it is claimed, offers the minimum of resistance at high speeds.

A whole series of superdestroyers followed the Chacal type. Tho the hull remained virtually the same, in size, speed and armament there was a steady increase until in the latest ships the displacement approaches 3,000 tons with a main armament of 8 5.5 inch guns and a designed horsepower of 90,000.

All these vessels have proved themselves capable of great speed. For example, the figure reached on trials by Le Terrible, of 2,569 tons launched in 1933, was 45 knots, the highest speed ever attained by a destroyer.

Cruiser design has advanced on equally progressive lines from the Duguay-Trouin, laid down in 1922, to the De Grasse, now building; while the two battleships, Dunkerque and Strasbourg, which were completed in 1937 and 1938, respectively, have been remarkably successful.

Designed for the avowed purpose of being able to hunt down and destroy the German pocket battleships, these fine ships have a displacement of 26,500 tons and mount eight 13 inch and sixteen 5.1 inch guns. Their turbine engines of 100,000 shaft horse power were designed for a speed of 29.5 knots, but on trials this was exceeded by a couple of knots.

First of Its Class.

When the Richelieu goes into commission shortly, it will be the first of a class of 35,000 ton battleships which are practically improved and enlarged Dunkerques. The Richelieu is armed with eight 15 inch and fifteen 6 inch guns and has turbine engines of 155,000 horse power, which should give her a speed of well over 30 knots.

The Jean-Bart, the second ship of the class, was laid down in January, 1937. She was launched only last month. Originally, she was to have been ready by the spring or the summer of 1941. The fact that she is actually approaching completion shows with what vigor the French naval shipyards have been tackling their tasks. These new battleships are the biggest by far France ever has built.

A third battleship, the Clemenceau, has been under construction for more than 12 months, and a fourth, the Gascogne, will follow. The French minister of marine, Cesar Campinchi, has disclosed that work on them has been pressed forward so rapidly that they will be ready for sea duty 10 months ahead of schedule.

Strength Last September.

When the war began last September the main strength of the French navy comprised seven battleships, one aircraft carrier, 19 cruisers, 59 destroyers, 78 submarines, and 12 seagoing torpedo boats, besides numerous escort vessels, mine sweepers, patrol vessels, submarine chasers . . . [here the censor deleted 31 words].

French warships nearing completion or under construction in January were stated by Campinchi to number nearly 150. This total included two aircraft carriers of 18,000 tons, three 8,000 ton cruisers, 29 destroyers and big torpedo boats, 23 submarines and a large number of escort and patrol vessels, submarine chasers and motor torpedo boats, besides the battleships already described.

CHAMELEON PHOTOS.

The series of high-speed photomicrographs of a chameleon catching a fly, which appear in The Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science in the Graphic section of today's Tribune, were taken by Leon Keinigsberg of Chicago. This credit was inadvertently omitted from the pictures.

SEE TUG OF WAR BETWEEN ITALY AND ROOSEVELT

French Call U. S. Moves in Rome Helpful.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, May 4.—President Roosevelt's intervention in the European war with representations to Rome continued today to hold the chief place in the French press and in diplomatic interest.

It is considered here that Mr. Roosevelt is lending the same tangible aid to the British and French that the Italians are giving in another way to Germany. Italy and the United States, in other words, are having a tug of war on the sidelines to assist their respective protagonists and back up their bets.

Le Temps again tonight devotes its leading article to Roosevelt interference in the Mediterranean under the heading, "The Mediterranean and the American Initiative," and it does not hesitate to describe Roosevelt's action in Rome as a "demarche."

["Demarche" in general diplomatic usage means a representation made or a position taken by a government on a certain matter. Shaded meanings of the term are: [1] An approach or mode of procedure; [2] a declaration of intention of ultimatum; [3] a change in plan; [4] sidestep. It all depends upon the way the term is used.]

Vital Repercussions Forecast.

In the present circumstances, Le Temps says, the demarche has importance far surpassing a simple request for information and is bound to have vital repercussions in international diplomacy. While stressing that the secret of American Ambassador William Phillips' conversations with Premier Benito Mussolini and Count Galeazzo Ciano, foreign minister, has been well kept both in Washington, D. C., and in Rome, Le Temps says it is significant that they took place on special instructions from Roosevelt at the moment when the repercussions of military events in Norway began to make themselves felt and tension was becoming noticeable in the Mediterranean.

Le Temps considers it clear that Roosevelt was impelled to make his demarche by an alarming report that Italy was about to enter the war on Germany's side.

"It was natural in these circumstances," Le Temps says, "that Roosevelt should wish to know exactly what modifications Italy's position had undergone since Sumner Welles, American undersecretary of state, made his recent European tour. But what happened immediately after Phillips' interview with Mussolini tends to confirm that the American demarche had a much wider scope and was not merely of an informative character.

"More Than a Request."

"The fact that Phillips conferred lengthily the following day with Foreign Minister Ciano while Prince Ascanio Colonna in Washington was conferring with Cordell Hull, American secretary of state, with whom he was later received by President Roosevelt, indicates that these conversations contained more than a request for enlightenment regarding Italy's policy."

According to Le Temps, it appears that Mussolini and Ciano gave Phillips assurances that Italy was not planning to modify its position of nonbelligerency "for the moment." It is understood here that the assurances of the Italian statesmen were more or less directly the result of the secret communication made to them by Roosevelt.

British Guns Roar at Plane Flying Over Thames Estuary

LONDON, May 4 (AP).—Heavy anti-aircraft fire was heard tonight in the Thames estuary. Fighter planes sped out to sea. No air raid warnings were sounded either in this area east of London or the Shetland Islands off Scotland, where a high flying German plane was seen earlier in the evening. The firing in the Thames estuary lasted 20 minutes.

LIGGETT VERDICT RECALLS SLAIN EDITOR'S FIGHT

Minnesota Crime-Politics Link Exposed.

The persecution, assault, and machine gun murder of Walter W. Liggett, crusading editor who revealed alleged criminal alliances of Minnesota Farmer-Labor politicians with the underworld, were recalled yesterday by the victory won by his widow, Mrs. Edith Liggett.

Driven from Minneapolis by fear that she would share her husband's fate if she remained, Mrs. Liggett is supporting herself and her two children in New York City. There she saw the conviction Friday night of Clarence A. Hathaway, communist leader, on a charge of criminal libel against her and the memory of her husband. Hathaway may be sentenced to one year in prison.

Basis of Action.

Hathaway, editor of the Daily Worker, communist organ, and the Comprodaily Publishing company, former publisher of the newspaper, were found guilty of libel in an article which stated in part that Mrs. Liggett was presenting a "disgusting spectacle in selling the corpse [of her husband] limb by limb to the highest bidder." The publishing company faces a fine not exceeding $500.

Two civil verdicts had been returned previously against Hathaway. In 1938 Mrs. Liggett was awarded a verdict of $25,000 damages against him and the company, but it was vacated on technical grounds. A year ago a retrial gave her an award of $2,500. The judgment never has been paid.

The widow, a small woman 40 years old, said she will continue to fight to defend her husband's memory and to carry out his aims.

Slaying on Dec. 9, 1935.

Liggett was a courteous, well mannered man of impressive appearance, 6 feet 4 inches tall, with a shock of curly gray hair, light blue eyes, and a smoldering personality. He was shot to death on Dec. 9, 1935, behind his Minneapolis home.

A newspaper man for about 30 years, Liggett, in his typically small town print shop, published a little paper called The Midwest American. He was murdered at the height of a campaign he had started six months earlier for the prosecution of liquor, vice, and gambling racketeers he declared were protected by Minneapolis officialdom.

Mrs. Liggett placed responsibility for the murder directly at the door of Floyd B. Olson, then Minnesota's Farmer-Labor governor. Olson, who died in 1936, was regarded as having the special favor of President Roosevelt. When Roosevelt was in Minnesota on a trip he put his arm around Olson and invited him to come to Washington and help him run the New Deal.

Widow Blamed Olson.

"The murder of my husband would not have been committed without the permission of Gov. Olson," the widow testified in court. "He either ordered it or permitted it."

When he was county attorney of Hennepin county [Minneapolis], Olson had put out of business two weekly newspapers unfriendly to him. One of these papers, operated by J. M. Near and Howard Guilford, protested, and with the aid of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE carried the case to the United States Supreme court, where the ruling obtained by Olson was set aside. This was in 1930 and 1931.

In 1934 Guilford, then operating a press clipping service, announced that he would begin a series of radio talks in which he would "tell the whole story of Floyd Olson's connection with the Twin Cities underworld."

Guilford was slain by gangsters on Sept. 6, 1934, before he could carry out his plan. Once before, after he had been shot and seriously wounded, the police arrested Harry Jaffa, employed by "the syndicate," and "Irish" Gottlieb, who were later released without charges being placed against them. Guilford's murder brought even less police activity, despite the fact that witnesses told private investigators that Jaffa again had been one of the gunmen.

Liggett's battle against political racketeers was posed against this Guilford's assassination, Liggett began publishing his own weekly paper, replete with articles telling about graft among the Farmer-Labor politicians.

At first, according to Liggett's widow, the radical political machine tried to put him out of business thru intimidation, boycotts, pressure on advertising accounts to persuade them to withdraw, and interference with circulation.

Keeps Up His Attacks.

But Liggett kept hammering home his attacks on the politicians. He was beaten up. This did not soften his journalism. Then he was arrested on charges of sex irregularities, charges which he maintained were the result of a political frameup. He was acquitted by a jury in a few minutes.

Week after week, the crusading editor continued to pound away at the Minneapolis syndicate and the Farmer-Labor state administration.

Several months earlier Liggett, familiar with Guilford's tragic case, had written to THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE predicting that an unknown but dire fate of some sort awaited him.

"I have been marked for destruction by the powerful and unscrupulous Olson All-Party gang because ever since last September my paper has been publishing devastating exposés of the corruption and favoritism and dishonesty of the present state administration," Liggett wrote.

Decides to Take Action.

Encouraged by the verdict freeing him from the infamous sex charge, Liggett decided that the time was ripe to appear before the state legislature.

Week after week, for 22 weeks, his paper contained ten reasons for the impeachment of Gov. Olson. On Dec. 6 he announced that he would deliver his charges before the Minnesota house of representatives on Dec. 10.

But on Dec. 9, the night he was to prepare his speech, he was riddled with machine gun bullets. He had parked his automobile in the alley at the rear of his apartment. His wife and his daughter, Marda, 10 years old, were in the car.

The machine gun barked and the gunman and his driver sped away from the scene—but not before, Mrs. Liggett said later, she recognized the killer's "leering face" in the car window.

She Names the Assassin.

That face, she told neighbors and police who arrived on the scene, belonged to Isadore [Kid Cann] Blumenfeld, ex-bootlegger employed in the Minneapolis "syndicate." Cann was a prominent figure in the bootleg era whom Liggett had repeatedly assailed in connection with his campaign against organized crime and vice.

Mrs. Liggett declared that the afternoon of the murder Liggett had been threatened by Meyer Schuldburg, head of a liquor concern employing Cann. She said that Schuldburg spoke so loudly over the telephone that she could hear Cann's name mentioned.

Cann sauntered into a police station two hours after the shooting and told police that he had an ironclad alibi. Mrs. Liggett came to the station and identified him as the killer. He was indicted.

In court she repeated her identification and testified that Liggett had been killed to prevent his appearance before the legislature.

Her Story at Trial.

"My husband had an edition of his paper out with 10 reasons listed therein why Olson should be impeached," she added. "That edition was in the mail the night of the killing and Walter was to go before the legislature with evidence to back up his reasons the next day."

The defense called manicurists, barbers, and friends of Blumenfeld who averred that he had been in a downtown barber shop at the time of the slaying. Cross-examination showed discrepancies in their testimony.

Four Minneapolis city policemen then appeared for the defense. They asserted that when they first arrived at the scene of the murder Mrs. Liggett had blamed either Blumenfeld or "Gov. Olson's mob" without deciding which was actually responsible.

After four hours of deliberation the jury acquitted Blumenfeld.

The Widow's Comment.

"Beyond lying wholeheartedly for their lifelong associate, Blumenfeld, the Minneapolis police force has done nothing," the widow commented. "Murder of an enemy of Floyd B. Olson is hardly a crime in Minneapolis."

Demands were made to Homer Cummings [then attorney general] in Washington, D. C., to send operatives to Minneapolis. To these Cummings' assistant, Joseph Keenan, replied:

"We cannot assume an investigative jurisdiction which does not belong to us."

With the aid of THE TRIBUNE, the citizenry was aroused to demand that efforts be continued to deal out justice to Liggett's murderer.

Action Finally Results.

Fifteen state policemen and six Minneapolis detectives were ordered to carry on a full time investigation until the slaying was solved, authorities announced. The Minnesota legislature voted $5,000 in reward money for a solution.

Against the accusation of Liggett's widow, Gov. Olson defended himself by pleading that he never wished the editor any harm and adding:

"If every man in public office is to be held responsible for the safety of his defamers we will have to maintain a large standing army."

The widow made a spirited retort in which she said:

"It is the duty of any governor to see that the safety of every citizen is protected. By a curious coincidence, in Minnesota the men who are opposing the governor are in danger."

"Heat" On, but Not for Long.

What the underworld termed the "heat" from the murder clamped the lid on Minneapolis for a week. Then the bolder operators opened their places again. The chief of the syndicate was "Big Ed" Morgan, who attained his power because of his control of the political fix.

Less than an hour after the acquittal of Blumenfeld, Morgan called a meeting in a Minneapolis hotel. He was reported to have shouted this boast at his men:

"Well, we beat this rap. It wasn't toc tough. I'll show you that we'll beat all the raps. It'll be just as I told you mugs—we can take care of everything."

It was reported that members of the jury panel from which were drawn the four women and eight men who acquitted Blumenfeld were warned to "vote for acquittal if you get on that jury." But an investigation got nowhere.

Morgan was a close friend of Olson for years.

Widow Leaves Minneapolis.

Mrs. Liggett, a newspaper woman in her own right, sold her husband's printing equipment and moved to New York. For a time she lived in Brooklyn with her mother and brother but later struck out for herself. With the revenue from her writings she has been able to support herself, her daughter, and her son, Wallace.

This did not end her Minneapolis troubles. A magazine containing an article by her titled "Murder in Minneapolis" was barred from sale on newsstands in that city. County Attorney Ed Goff of Hennepin county warned dealers that they could be prosecuted for defamation if they distributed the magazine.

Citizens rankling at the reputation of Minneapolis recall the kidnap-killing of the Rev. K. B. Birkeland in 1925, and how the state closed every avenue of prosecution to his family by obtaining a no-bill from the grand jury. They also remember the 1927 murder of John Winkler, a bootlegger, by a gunman now employed by "the syndicate." There was a no-bill in that case, also.

COMMUNIST EDITOR PLANS APPEAL FROM CONVICTION FOR LIBEL

New York, May 4 [Special].—Communists were considerably dismayed today at the prospect that another of their leading lights may be placed behind prison bars.

They were worrying about the fate of larence Hathaway, editor of the communist Daily Worker, who last night was found guilty of criminal libel. He faces a maximum jail term of one year and a fine of $500. Hathaway based his hopes of remaining out of prison on an appeal.

Hathaway and the Comprodaily Publishing company, publisher of the Daily Worker, were found guilty after a three weeks' trial. Another defendant, Hyman Colodny, business manager of the Worker, was acquitted.

Complainant in the case was Mrs. Edith Liggett, widow of Walter Liggett, crusading editor who was slain in Minneapolis. Mrs. Liggett wrote a series of articles continuing the crusade her husband began. The Daily Worker attacked these articles. In previous litigation, Mrs. Liggett won a civil verdict of $2,672, which remains unpaid. A hearing on this case is scheduled for Monday.

RISE OF SCALISE IS TRACED TO HIS PALS IN POLITICS

Revelations Uncovered by Dewey's Office.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 4.—Powerful political connections enjoyed by George Scalise, ex-convict panderer and former czar of the Building Service Employés' International union, have been uncovered in the investigation into his operations.

This was learned today as the office of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey continued its inquiry into the affairs of the labor boss. A week ago Dewey's office obtained Scalise's indictment for extortion. State's Attorney Thomas Courtney in Chicago charged after an examination of the union records that Scalise had been withdrawing huge sums collected from the scrubwomen, porters, janitors, and elevator operators under his sway.

Charges Bring Resignation.

Scalise resigned as president of the international after the executive board voted to suspend him. A new president will be elected this coming week by the union convention at Atlantic City.

Following the Scalise trail, investigators have found that he profited by influential political backing in his meteoric rise from a convicted felon to the undisputed chief of 70,000 workers thruout the country. The bulk of this support came from his lifelong association with Little Augie Carfano, or Pisano, as he is known in the underworld.

Little Augie, a former bootlegger, gambler, race track hanger-on, and industrial racketeer, is the son-in-law of Tammany Leader Jimmy Kelly.

Got His Start in "Paradise."

Six years ago Kelly ran a night spot called the Paradise in Brooklyn where Scalise got his start. This resort was a rendezvous for Scalise, Pisano, Joe Adonis, and other underworld figures in Brooklyn.

Adonis is the leader of the notorious gang organized by the late Frankie Uale, victim of a gang assassination 10 years ago, and Pisano is one of his right-hand men. In addition, Adonis holds considerable political power with the Brooklyn Democratic machine.

Various investigations into the office of Brooklyn's former district attorney, William F. X. Geoghan, disclosed that Adonis was a friend of the prosecutor.

Prior to his sudden emergence into the affairs of the building service union in 1935, Scalise organized the Car Washers and Polishers Union of Brooklyn. The real power behind the union was Pisano.

Goon Squads Employed.

This union sent out goon squads to puncture tires and slash upholstery in automobiles housed by recalcitrant garage owners. At one time there was a brief flareup of an investigation of the hoodlumism by District Attorney Geoghan, but nothing ever came of it.

Scalise went on to bigger things.

Another Tammany leader who has been a close crony of the fallen labor boss is Al Marinelli, who occupied the important post of clerk of New York county. Marinelli resigned under fire two years ago when Dewey exposed him as a pal of gangsters, thieves, and dope peddlers.

Friend of Vice King.

Marinelli was the bosom companion of Charles [Lucky] Luciano, vice king whom Dewey sent to the penitentiary for 30 years. In fact, Marinelli and Luciano occupied a suite together in a Chicago hotel in the summer of 1932 when they attended the Democratic national convention which named Franklin D. Roosevelt for President.

A chummy picture of Mayor Fiorello La Guardia and Scalise was taken after the settlement of the New York elevator strike in 1936. Friends of the mayor insist, however, that he was never hooked up with Scalise in any way.

WOMAN HELD AFTER STILL BLAST.

Police held Mrs. Catherine Opyt, 29 years old, for questioning yesterday. She was seized when she entered a bungalow at 8415 Oglesby avenue after an explosion and fire caused by a 200 gallon alcohol still in the basement.

Gangsters and Ousted Politician Linked to Scalise

Pipe Ignites His Clothing; Retired Farmer, 80, Dies

Rochester, Ind., May 4 [Special].—Stephen McCay, 80 years old, a retired farmer, burned to death early today when his wagon house caught fire. The blaze was discovered by a neighbor. McCay had fallen asleep while smoking his pipe, allowing the burning tobacco to fall on his clothing and ignite it. On two previous occasions McCay's wagon houses were burned after he fell asleep while smoking. He leaves a son, Guy McCay, of Indianapolis, and two brothers, Jasper McCay and Thomas McCay of this city.

Gift Packages to Poland Duty Free, Germans Say

The German consulate here announced yesterday that gift packages addressed to persons in Poland are being admitted free of duty. The packages may not exceed 11.11 pounds and may contain foodstuffs, clothing, or household articles.

COURT IMPOUNDS UNION'S RECORDS IN SCALISE PROBE

Records of the withdrawal of an estimated 1½ million dollars from union funds on order of George Scalise, ousted boss of the Building Service Employés' International union, were ordered impounded yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court.

The April grand jury, finishing its term of service, reported to Judge Prystalski it had not finished its inquiry into what Scalise did with the money.

The joint investigation of Scalise's operations here and in New York will be interrupted temporarily by the national convention of the union which opens tomorrow in Atlantic City, N. J.

A COURT DECIDES SCALISE MAY TRY UNION OFFICIALS

Foe Will Fight Him at Convention.

San Francisco, Cal., May 4 [Special].—A writ sought by Charles Hardy, suspended local president of the Building Service Employés International union, and his two sons, to prevent their trial by the union's international executive board on charges of misappropriation of union funds, was denied today by the California Supreme court.

Deposed by Scalise.

The Supreme court's ruling was the latest development in a bitter fight that began here last December when George Scalise, international president, ordered the Hardys deposed from union offices and the San Francisco locals turned over to Meyer Lewis, west coast representative of the American Federation of Labor.

Scalise, an ex-convict who is himself now charged with misuse of union funds and with extortion from New York employers, charged Hardy and his sons, Charles Jr. and George, with misappropriating $40,000 collected from janitors and matrons employed at last year's Golden Gate International exposition.

Trio Denies Charges.

They denied the charges and declared that a demand made by them for an accounting of international funds had resulted in the suspension.

The senior Hardy, who is fourth international vice president of the union, is on his way to its international convention, which opens at Atlantic City on Monday.

He announced that he would be a candidate for the job of international president, left open when Scalise resigned last Saturday following his arrest in New York.

HOWE LOCKED UP AFTER THREAT TO 'GET' PROSECUTOR

John Howe Jr., suspended state highway policeman convicted Thursday of a 10 year old armed robbery, has been free on bond pending hearing on a motion for a new trial. Yesterday he took a taxicab to the Criminal Courts building and went to the police room on the second floor.

"My mother is dying," Howe said thickly. "We had the priest for her. If she dies I'm going to get Crowley."

Sergt. Bert Gray approached Howe, who smelled of whisky and was swaying uncertainly. His suspicions confirmed, Gray put Howe under arrest and had him taken to the Brighton Park police station to sober up.

The Crowley referred to by Howe is Wilbert F. Crowley, first assistant state's attorney. Police telephoned Howe's mother, Mrs. Charlotte Howe, 8034 Hermitage avenue. She said she was nervous because of Howe's trial but not otherwise ill. Howe is facing a possible sentence of one year to life in prison.

New York, May 4 [Special].—The honeymoon that never happened is going to cost some $65,000 and—by order of Supreme court—the bill is going to be paid by Christine Fischer, the stage beauty who fell in love with an oil executive, but never became his bride.

Justice Isidor Wasservogel terminated the bitter battle between the actress and the estate of the late Robert L. Hague, Standard Oil marine superintendent, by ruling that Christine must foot the bills.

FORMER CHICAGO MAN HELD GUILTY IN OMAHA FRAUD

Omaha, Neb., May 4 [Special].—L. S. Holmes, former Chicago real estate salesman, was found guilty by a federal court jury today on all 18 counts of an indictment arising from bankruptcy of the First Mortgage Acceptance corporation. He was charged with conspiracy, violation of the National security act and 16 counts of mail fraud.

If a new trial motion is overruled, Holmes will appear for sentencing May 14 with George M. Hauser, secretary-treasurer of the F. M. A. C., and J. W. McCormack, Chicago real estate man who received $300,000 for mortgages sold to the company. They pleaded nolo contendere. Holmes, who was president of F. M. A. C., is liable to sentences totaling 87 years and fines totaling $18,000.

The acceptance corporation was organized here in 1931. The company used investors' money to buy up mortgages, most of them on lots in two additions to Cicero, Ill. The mortgages generally were bought for considerably less than face value, and the company showed a "profit" by entering them on the books at face value. Dividend payments were kept up, it was charged, by using money brought in by new investors.

McCormack sent Holmes here in 1929 to sell lots in Cicero. The depression hit, the lots didn't sell, and the F. M. A. C., was formed.

Never before have we made as sensational an offer as this. A brand new 120 bass accordion of exceptional merit plus 18 full months (1½ years) of instructions—all on our convenient purchase plan. No MONEY DOWN and you can take up to 3 YEARS TO PAY. Just pay the usual small weekly payments and you own the instrument outright. Remember, this is not a beginner instrument, but a professional model. This offer for a limited time only. Act quickly!

Mr. Baker Comes To Town

WITH GREAT BARGAINS IN SUPERB 18TH CENTURY REPRODUCTIONS

BAKER FURNITURE, INC., makers of "Manor House," "Baker," and "Milling Road" reproductions, have sold us a year's collection of one-only samples, models, odd pieces and surplus stock.

MR. BAKER'S ANTIQUE MODELS, bought in England and France and used as models, are now for sale in our Antique Department and reduced 40, 50 and 60% from his original purchase prices. 39.75, 49.50, 89.50 and 109.00 are representative prices. Less than any one could import antiques of this character.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

FAMED DESIGNER ACCEPTS POST ON NEW OPERA BOARD

Lauds Scenic Equipment of Chicago Plant.

Robert Edmond Jones, one of America's foremost scenic designers, accepted an invitation yesterday to serve on the advisory committee of the reorganized Chicago opera.

Robert Edmond Jones.

His acceptance followed a two day tour of the opera house which he termed one of the four greatest theatrical plants in the world. He said its electrical equipment is unrivaled anywhere.

"You would only find such a magnificent achievement in a city such as Chicago which, unlike most operatic centers, is in no sense jaded," he said. "It's wonderful to think of bringing to life the full beauty of which this scenic and electrical equipment is capable."

The first use Jones would like to make of the opera house's electrical equipment, he said, is to give the opera what he called "a great orchestra of light." In this the extensive use of lights, playing under the direction of the conductor, would create, he said, "a visual orchestra whose mood producing effect would parallel that of the orchestra of sound."

This would be most effective, he said, when the scenery was simple and the costumes dramatic. They then would depend for their best effect upon the play of lights upon them, giving to the opera what Hollywood and the legitimate stage already have achieved—glamor.

Jones believes also that the operatic stage needs to have its theatrical standards bolstered. "I am convinced that application of the modern production technique will result in a rebirth of opera as true entertainment," he said.

Jones began his career as a portrait painter, switched to the violin, and became interested in vaudeville while at Harvard. He went to Europe, where the so-called "new stagecraft" was at its height, and decided to try it in America. From the outset he was successful.

TEST YOUR HORSE SENSE

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answer which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers in part 2, page 8.

1. In the usual three minute long distance telephone call, the number of words that can ordinarily be spoken without undue haste is 225 450 750 900
2. The length of an ordinary building brick is usually 6 inches 8 inches 10 inches 12 inches
3. The average piano has how many white keys 36 44 52 72
4. A "coop" usually houses Sheep Cows Dogs Chickens
5. Of the two sisters who were friends of Jesus, which was the concientious housekeeper Hannah Esther Martha Rachel
6. You are entitled to one point for each correct completion of the phrases below. They refer to groups of creatures.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—The last question counts five points.]

Hundreds of Houses Fall; Storm Batters Chungking

CHUNGKING, China, May 4 (AP).—Several hundred houses in the city's crowded downtown district collapsed this morning at the height of a storm. There was no immediate report on casualties.

SYMPHONY FUND DRIVE CUTS ITS DEFICIT TO $10,000

Only $10,000 now is needed to wipe out the remnants of the $127,000 deficit of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Edward L. Ryerson, president of the Orchestral association, said yesterday. The campaign for funds, which opened in April as the symphony announced its 50th anniversary, probably will continue thru May 15, Ryerson said. If the total $127,000 deficit [the smallest deficit of any of the 16 large symphony orchestras in the United States] is cleared, the symphony will be enabled to open its golden anniversary program on a stable basis.

TRAFFIC STUDENT OUTLINES AUTO SAFETY PROGRAM

Urges Roadway 'Spikes' to Enforce Stoplights.

A new traffic safety system for Chicago, designed to reduce automobile accidents thru increased protection for pedestrians, was proposed here yesterday by Francis X. Sauchelli of New York, author, health teacher, and student of traffic problems.

The system calls for issuance of police safety cards to motorists, establishment of pedestrian crossings in the middle of blocks, and construction of mechanical devices to halt cars when lights are against them.

The police safety cards would be issued when licenses were purchased. The driver would get three cards—white, yellow, and red, the white one to be displayed on the windshield immediately.

Violator Would Lose Card.

After a traffic violation this card would be taken by police and the driver would have to place his yellow card on the windshield. A second violation would result in the loss of the yellow card and forced display of the red card.

On a third violation the motorist would lose driving privileges for at least three months and at the end of that period would be eligible for a new set of cards. Should he commit additional violations, resulting in the loss of the second set, driving privileges would be suspended for six months and if, after that period, a third set of cards was lost thru violations, the motorist would lose his driving privileges for at least a year. Minor offenses, such as illegal parking, would not cause loss of cards. Sauchelli also urged the fingerprinting of drivers and a citizens' campaign to assure reporting of all traffic violations.

Middle Crossings Urged.

Pedestrian crossings in the middle of blocks instead of at corners would also aid in eliminating accidents, Sauchelli said. This would not prohibit crossing at intersections, but such crossings would be at the pedestrian's risk, and any accident in the middle of the block would be prima facie evidence that the driver was at fault, he said. Traffic would stop at these midblock crossings when corner lights were against it.

The mechanical devices to halt cars would be synchronized with the red lights. Such a device would consist of a series of pointed steel members, similar to a harrow, which would rise from the pavement with the red lights, so that if a car did not stop, its tires would be punctured. The system could be arranged, Sauchelli said, so that these devices would not operate in an emergency when the street had to be cleared for ambulances, fire apparatus, and police cars.

MAY 10 SET FOR TRIAL OF BARRETT RECOUNT SUIT

Bloomington, Ill., May 4 [Special]. —Circuit Judge William C. Radliff today set May 10 for a hearing on the suit brought by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, charging that he was unlawfully deprived of 31,500 ballots in the April primary election and asking for a recount of six counties.

Barrett contended in his petition, filed April 30, that an accurate count would show he had defeated John C. Martin, Democratic congressman at large, for the Democratic nomination for state auditor. The state canvassing board adjudged Martin the winner by 17,815 votes.

Attorneys for Martin said they will file a motion next Monday questioning jurisdiction of the McLean County Circuit court, and that they also will attack Barrett's petition as defective.

Reroute Trolleys for Work on Harrison Street Span

While the Harrison street bridge is closed for repairs during the next two weeks, surface lines cars will be rerouted over the Van Buren and Polk street bridges. Harrison street cars will be operated over Van Buren street between Wells and Clinton streets. Roosevelt-Downtown cars will avoid the closed bridge by operating over Polk street between Wells and Canal street. The new routing goes into effect at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow.

ROCKFORD CHIEF OF POLICE QUITS AFTER 50 YEARS

Rockford, Ill., May 4 [Special].—A thousand Rockford residents gathered tonight at a banquet in honor of August E. Bargren, the city's chief of police, who will retire tomorrow after 50 years on the force.

August E. Bargren.

At the banquet, it was announced that a $5,000 trust fund had been raised for Bargren by public subscriptions. From it, he will receive payments of $150 a month.

Bargren is believed to be the country's oldest police chief in the point of service. He was first appointed head of the department in 1894. Now 77 years old, he has served under 11 Rockford mayors. The city council has voted that upon his retirement, Bargren will become honorary chief for the rest of his life.

Assistant Chief Charles Manson will become chief.

BATAVIA POLICE CHIEF CRASHES IN CHASE; KILLED

Auto Hits a Tree as He Pursues Speeder.

Police Chief John S. Alberovskey of Batavia, Kane county, was killed last night when his automobile crashed into a tree as he was pursuing a speeder. The accident occurred in Batavia road, four miles east of Batavia, in Du Page county. The chief was traveling 70 miles an hour at the time. The chase had started in Batavia. The speeder escaped.

Alberovskey, who was 59 years old, had been chief since 1926, serving under three Batavia administrations. He settled in Batavia in 1908, coming from Austria where he had been an army officer. His widow, Winnie, and a son, Francis, an enlisted man with the Pacific fleet, survive.

Boy Hitching Ride Killed.

Chester Godlewski, 13 years old, 1616 Wabansia avenue, was killed at Marshfield and Wabansia avenues. He jumped from the rear end of a slowly moving ice truck, expecting to alight on the pavement. Instead he landed on the fender of an automobile alongside, lost his footing, and fell to the street. Millard Gross, 6737 Oglesby avenue, was the automobile driver.

Edward Zukowski, 21, of 4020 Nelson street, a painter, was killed and three others were injured when their automobile crashed into a tree at Austin avenue and Higgins road. Witnesses said the car, driven by Clarence Littwin, 21, of 4141 Oakdale avenue, was traveling a zig-zag course at high speed.

Woman, Hit by Car, Dies.

Mrs. Harriet Bierack, 35, of 5636 Kenmore avenue, died in Passavant hospital of injuries incurred Wednesday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Donald Jones, 20, of 1615 Gregory street in Lake Shore drive near Division street.

Chicago had 15 fewer traffic deaths last month than in April, 1939, according to George W. Fleming, secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee. Deaths decreased from 57 to 42. Accidents for the month declined from 1,856 to 1,712.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 287 persons had been killed in auto accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 219 were killed in Chicago, where 7,087 were injured in traffic in the same period.

WEIGH CONTEMPT CASE AGAINST 2 IN GAMBLING PROBE

Judge Charles E. Woodward of the federal District court yesterday took under advisement replies to government briefs asking that both Attorney William Goldstein, former attorney for William R. Skidmore, reputed gambling boss, and Stuart S. Brown, former partner in a currency exchange, be cited for contempt of court.

The government had charged that Goldstein attempted to obstruct justice by placing in the currency exchange empty binders to support Brown's testimony before the federal grand jury that he had destroyed certain records pertaining to the exchange and had left only the binders. The exchange allegedly was used as a clearing house for gambling checks. The government also alleged that Brown actually had not destroyed the records.

Attorney Leslie Salter, for Goldstein, and Attorney Edward Fisher, for Brown, denied the government charges. Goldstein already is under indictment for alleged perjury in connection with his grand jury testimony.

EX-SENATOR REED LIKENS NLRB ACTS TO RACKETEERING

Declares Agency Should Be Abolished at Once.

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—James A. Reed, former Democratic senator from Missouri, denounced national labor board tactics today as "the sort of thing engaged in by racketeers."

Reed told the special house committee investigating the board that the agency ought to be "abolished overnight" if even one-tenth of the committee's charges against it were true. The witness testified he never had read "such a catalog of improper, unjudicial, unfair rulings and acts" as those attributed to the board in the committee's report recommending sweeping changes in the national labor relations act.

Boycotts Without Hearings.

During a recital of the experiences of his wife's firm, the Donnelly Garment company of Kansas City, Mo., with both the board and the International Ladies Garment Workers' union, Reed referred to instances cited in the committee report to show that the board helped institute boycotts against companies as "a process of condemnation without a hearing."

"A man or a board that will do that thing," the Missourian asserted, "furnishes the indubitable evidence that it is prejudicial, motivated by vindictive motives and is utterly unfit to sit as a judicial tribunal anywhere under the American flag."

Declaring that lawyers had been hired to prevent amendment of the labor relations act and that they had lobbied for the purpose, Reed added: "If that's part of the New Deal, they would better perform a surgical operation and cut out the cancer."

Aids Picked for Their Views.

After hearing N. Barr Miller, a review attorney for the board who said he never had practiced law, testify he had suggested changes which were made in the trial examiner's report on the Donnelly case, Reed declared it appeared to him the board had employed "amateurs."

"Henry Ford can build up for 40 or 50 years a tremendous business," Reed said, "and pay wages higher than others, but he can be haled before utterly inexperienced and incompetent people—boys just out of law school and girls just out of colleges, carefully selected for their views and their prejudices."

HOTBED OF REDS

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Washington, D. C., May 4.—Summing up disclosures thus far made by the Smith committee in its investigation of the administration of the Wagner labor act, Committee Counsel Edward M. Toland today declared the evidence is conclusive that the National Labor Relations board has become a repository for radicals entertaining profoundly subversive theories of government.

Toland said an overwhelming case had been made in favor of the amendments proposed by Chairman Howard W. Smith [D., Va.] which call for the abolition of the present board and the substitution o fa new setup, with a distinct separation of the prosecuting and judicial functions of the board.

Philosophies Sought Out.

The committee counsel was asked to summarize some of the highlights of the inquiry. In replying, he emphasized that the board, although an administrative body, performs a function that primarily is judicial. The investigation therefore had been directed, he said, not only toward what the board did, but how it did it; and to determine, if possible, the views and philosophy of its members and agents.

"The investigation thus far discloses numerous instances which go to the very roots of this matter of judicial impartiality," Toland declared. "In this connection it should be noted that the board at various times endeavored to urge the procurement division of the treasury department to withhold government contracts from companies alleged to be violating the Wagner act even before they had been formally adjudged violators.

Seek to Cut Off Loans.

"The board also entered into negotiations with the Reconstruction Finance corporation in order that alleged violators of the Wagner act might be refused government loans.

"One member of the board assisted a striking union in its attempt to boycott a certain manufacturer before charges had been filed with the board. This same member even participated in a subsequent decision adjudging this same company to be in violation of the Wagner act after charges had been filed.

"The board has even gone so far in its interpretation of its remedial powers as to order respondents to 're-instate' with back pay employés who never before had worked for them.

Power to "Invent" Remedies.

"The chairman of the board [J. Warren Madden] in attempting to defend the board's position in such cases stated that the board had the power to 'invent' remedies not specifically provided within the act in order to effectuate what it considered to be the purposes of the act.

"The words of the chairman with respect to this 'reinstatement' of employés who never had been employés are significant'; it seems to me that that little prefix 're' in reinstatement is too slight and too accidental a matter of verbiage to control the whole spirit and purpose of this statute.'"

Toland summed up briefly the committee's investigation into four divisions of the board: The trial examiner and the review divisions, the administrative office in Washington under the direction of Secretary Nathan Witt, and the bureau of economic research under David Saposs, Russian-born economist whose writings have been assailed as containing communistic sentiments.

"The duties of the trial examiner are purely judicial," said Toland. "He presides over hearings, takes the evidence, builds the record, and then makes recommendations in the form of intermediate reports to the board, containing findings of fact and conclusions of law.

"The exercise of this function is one which calls for the highest judicial attitude and independence, yet testimony showed some of these trial examiners to be in communication with the board attorneys prosecuting the charges before them, with regional directors of the board, and with the administrative officials of the board in Washington. All this was unknown to respondents [employers].

"Statements such as 'the case is in the bag' and 'it is a nice question, but can be decided, I think, in favor of the C. I. O. union' were made in communications during the pendency of cases. The chief trial examiner admitted to have declared once that he had 'two strikes on the respondent in every case that starts.'

Tells Director's Threat.

"A regional director told a respondent that he would 'get' him. A field examiner said to a hesitant prospective board witness, 'By God, you swear it and I will prove it.' These remarks are an indication of a state of mind having a decided bearing upon the question of fairness and impartiality on the part of agents sworn to uphold the constitution of the United States in the performance of their duties.

"The review attorneys actually write the decisions of the board. Because the function of this division is so important, it was felt that particular attention had to be paid to the competency and conduct of these review attorneys. Testimony showed that tho all are lawyers, they are for the most part young and with very little, if any, actual legal experience.

"Significant is the fact that a qualification for some of these employés, as well as the trial examiners, which the board deems worthy of consideration is the 'right viewpoint' or proper 'social consciousness.' One of these review attorneys was referred to in a letter of recommendation as having 'a liberal point of view [I should say turned left].'"

One highlight of the committee hearings was the appearance of Saposs, head of the division of economic research, Toland said. He quoted from Saposs' writings, including an article in which he referred to Karl Marx and Frederick Engels as "profound social diagnosticians" and called upon the middle class and workers to "rise" against "capitalism with its poverty, misery, and economic insecurity."

"This is the man who plays a large part in formulating board policies," Toland commented. "This division which he heads is a source of much off-the-record material."

Modernized Designs

Who ever heard of a square milk pail? Yet there is such an article among the hundreds of exhibits at the Midwest Industrial Designers exhibition, which opened yesterday in the Art Center, 410 South Michigan avenue.

The square milk pail, as many other revolutionized farm implements, home equipment, tools, and machines, has reasons for existing. It is easier to carry. It is easier to hold between the knees when milking. Its rounded corners pour a neat, small stream, and it is simple to wash because it can be laid on its side.

The theory of utility and simplicity is the basis of the new field of art, industrial designing.

DEWEY RIPS INTO NEW DEAL'S FARM POLICY BUNGLING

Quotes Roosevelt Speech Confessing Failure.

Marshalltown, Ia., May 4 [Special]. —District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of New York, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, today characterized as "a tragic confession of failure" President Roosevelt's statement yesterday that presidential and congressional candidates ought to stop voicing blanket condemnation of the New Deal's acts and specify their own programs for aiding the nation.

Speaking to a crowd of more than 5,000, Dewey prefaced a prepared farm speech with his criticism of President Roosevelt. He charged that the President had "confessed he had lost control of the government because he could not balance the budget," and cited Republican administrations elected since 1938 to show that the Republican party had the answer to "budget balancing" thru sound government.

Urges People to Seize Reins.

"I want to talk about the extraordinary utterance made by the President of the United States yesterday from the portico of the White House," Dewey started. "It is a tragic confession of failure made by the head of the government of the strongest nation on earth. He confessed that he had lost control of the government because he could not balance the budget—that the administration has permitted the affairs of this country to get out of hand.

"When such a confession is made it is high time for the people of this country to take affairs into their own hands and put in an administration which can keep control of the affairs of government.

Demands Free Enterprise.

"The President says he cannot balance the budget. Of course he can't—nobody can balance the New Deal budget. Nobody can balance the budget of this nation until the country has an administration which believes in free enterprise for the 130,000,000 in this nation and gives them the green light to go ahead.

"Nobody can balance a New Deal budget so long as job grabbing politicians are allowed to increase the federal pay roll—a pay roll which you people are carrying on your backs today, a pay roll which has increased from 570,000 in 1932 to almost 1,000,000 today.

"In terms that even the New Dealers can understand, I will show you how Republican administrations elected since 1938 have succeeded. The difference is between honeyed words and performances.

"The New Deal record is one of seven years of promises and seven years of willful failure to perform those promises."

Cites G. O. P. Successes.

The New York prosecutor then pointed to Republican victories in 1938 which resulted in the election of Republican governors and administrations in Massachusetts, Minnesota, Oregon, Kansas, Colorado, and Iowa. In each state, he said, the Republicans thru sound government have wiped out budget deficits inherited from Democratic administrations and placed the states on a pay as you go basis.

"The Republicans have shown they can do it, but the New Deal is forced to admit that it can't." he continued. "The people have seen the result of the Republican administrations in those states. Let the New Dealers come and learn from these Republican states. These Republican administrations are showing the people of this nation how to do what the President says he can't do."

Assails Farm Policies.

Continuing his prepared text, Dewey, who brought his campaign for Republican national convention delegates to the heart of the nation's corn belt, charged that the New Deal's farm program represents a "masterpiece of bungling."

"What is the sense of telling the farmer in Iowa to plant less corn while pursuing policies which encourage the farmer in other states to plant more? But these Washington planners do not permit economic facts to interfere with their uneconomic experiments.

"The most revealing figures are those which show the results of the New Deal's vaunted efforts to establish parity of farm prices.

"On March 15, 1940, the parity price of corn was 82 cents a bushel, while the actual price was 56 cents a bushel. With all the New Deal tinkering the price of corn remains 32 per cent below parity.

"On March 15, 1940, the parity price of hogs was $9.24 per hundred weight, while the actual price was $4.87 per hundred weight. With all the New Deal tinkering the price of hogs remains 47 per cent below parity.

Seven Years' Income Falls.

"Let us make one more test. Compare the total farm income of the seven lean years of the New Deal with the farm income of the last seven Republican years. In the New Deal years, with the rest of the world recovering, farm cash income, including government payments, averaged less than 7¾ billion dollars a year. In the Republican years, despite the world-wide depression during three of those seven years, farm cash income averaged over 9 billion dollars a year. In spite of all the money the New Deal has spent on farm payments the farmer was better off during the Republican years by over a billion and a quarter dollars a year.

"The New Deal has spent billions of dollars, has tried experiment after experiment, but it has utterly failed to find a solution to the farm problem. It has failed in this as in so many other things, because it has been unable to see our national economic problem as a whole. While it has been trying to patch things up in one direction it has been tearing down in another.

"The basis for the solution is not to be found in agriculture alone.

"The real trouble lies in the long-continued failure to put our economic machine back to work.

"The next administration must take adequate measures to accomplish some of the things the present administration has failed to accomplish."

INVESTIGATORS CLEAR DEWEY BACKERS IN MARYLAND PRIMARY

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP). — Chairman Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.] disclosed today that the senate campaign investigating committee had found "very little" basis for complaints against Thomas E. Dewey's campaign for Maryland's 16 delegates to the Republican national convention.

Gillette did not specify the nature of the complaints received by the committee, but other members reported they charged improper expenditures. Gillette said that "preliminary reports" indicate very little substantial fact to support the charges.

The delegates will be chosen at a primary Monday, and Dewey is the only Republican entered. Gillette also disclosed that the committee had ordered investigators into New Jersey to study complaints of political activity by WPA employés.

TAFT DENOUNCES THE NEW DEAL AS INEPT BUSYBODY

Its Meddling Is Perilous, Senator Warns.

Montpelier, Vt., May 4 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, declared tonight that the New Deal had become a "busybody," and maintained that its "meddling policy" was one which would destroy the independence of congress, the courts, the states, and the rights of individuals.

"Like every meddler with other people's affairs, it has left its own proper business in complete confusion," he said in an address prepared for Vermont's Young Republican convention.

Seven Kinds of Interference.

Taft outlined seven types of what he called governmental intrusion, tcpping them off with the statement that "finally, the executive is apparently animated by a strong desire to meddle in European affairs."

He said he had no criticism of measures taken since the war began, but added that the President's speeches before that time made clear his belief "that we should interfere in Europe." Taft quoted Mr. Roosevelt as having said in one talk:

"There are many methods short of war, but stronger and more effective than mere words, of bringing home to aggressor governments the aggregate sentiments of our own people."

Analyzes This Meaning.

The President, said Taft, "can only have intended to propose that this country employ economic sanctions or embargoes against a nation it does not like, while at the same time assisting those it does like by loans and other material assistance.

"In spite of the fact that no active steps have been proposed, nothing the President has said since then contradicts his apparent desire to meddle in Europe."

Turning to domestic "meddling," Taft asserted: "Surely the federal government can be an umpire without playing the game, a policeman without trying to run every home. Surely, where federal legislation is needed we can pass it in the form of laws with which men can comply without hanging around marble offices in Washington, trying to locate the right burocratic official to consult."

"By the People."

He said the nation must "return to a government by the people instead of government by braintrusters and burocrats."

Earlier in the day the senator visited Leland and Gray seminary in Townshend—an institution which had his great-grandfather, Peter Taft, as its first president—and the West Townsend home of his grandfather, Alphonso Taft. He traveled between the two communities over flooded, almost impassable roads.

Beating Back to G.O.P.

Map showing 24th congressional district (black) which edged back toward the Republican column in the April 9 primaries.

24TH DIST. EDGING BACK TO ROLE OF GOP STRONGHOLD

Republicans Gain 15 Pct. Over 1938 Vote.

Harrisburg, Ill., May 4 [Special].—In the 19 elections since the present Illinois congressional districts were established, the 24th has elected Republican congressmen 11 times and Democrats 8 times. Local sages say it is going back into the Republican column this year.

The 11 counties in this district cast 32,300 Republican ballots in the primary last month. This is less than it cast in 1936, but 15.5 per cent more than were cast in 1938. But the analysts believe a more correct picture is obtained by a study of the congressional figures in the successive primaries.

Democrat In by 29 Votes.

When, after 16 years of Republicanism, the district elected a Democratic congressman, Claude V. Parsons, in 1930, he won by 29 votes. He reached his peak in 1936 when he was reelected by 12,932. In 1938, the most recent election, he won by 1,744. In this year's primary Parsons received 24,925 Democratic votes and J. V. Heidinger, the Republican nominee, 20,864 votes.

This district, which contains more counties than any other in the state, gave the following totals to the winners in the primary:

Thomas E. Dewey, President	26,781
James V. Heidinger, congressman	20,864
Arthur R. Clark, convention delegate	10,709
A. B. Anderson, convention delegate	10,545
Wayland Brooks, senator	20,049
Dwight H. Green, governor	16,267
Hugh W. Cross, lieutenant governor	12,94!
Justus L. Johnson, secretary of state	7,947
Arthur C. Lueder, auditor	2,666
Warren Wright, treasurer	11,863
George F. Barrett, attorney general	6,110
William G. Stratton, congress at large	11,313
Stephen A. Day, congress at large	6,897

Johnson, Lueder, and Barrett were not the high men in their races in the district, but were nominated in the state as a whole.

In the presidential preference, Thomas E. Dewey received 26,781. In that test of sentiment in 1936 the late Senator William E. Borah carried the district, receiving 16,199 while his opponent, Frank Knox, received 11,977.

DR. COOK, FAMED FOR NORTH POLE CLAIM, STRICKEN

Port Chester, N. Y., May 4 (AP).—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, 77 year old Arctic explorer, suffered a cerebral hemorrhage last night and was taken to United hospital. His condition today was described as "fair."

Dr. Cook, whose claim to discovery of the north pole precipitated a long and spectacular controversy with the late Admiral Robert E. Peary, had been a guest for two weeks at the home of Ralph S. Von Ahlefeldt of Larchmont. Von Ahlefeldt was a leader in the fight to vindicate Dr. Cook's claim that he discovered the north pole on April 21, 1908, a year before Admiral Peary reached the top of the world.

The National Geographic society, after studying the data submitted by the rival explorers, eventually accepted Admiral Peary as the discoverer of the pole. Dr. Cook lives at Toms River, N. J.

H. G. James to Be U. of I. Commencement Speaker

Urbana, Ill., May 4 [Special].—A son of a former president of the University of Illinois will deliver the 69th annual University of Illinois commencement address at exercises to be held Monday, June 10, it was announced today. He is Herman G. James, president of Ohio university. Mr. James is a son of the late Edmund Janes James, president of the University of Illinois from 1904 to 1920. He was graduated from the University of Illinois with the class of 1906.

CAMP NATIONAL POSTURE WEEK—May 6th-11th

Poor posture makes you look heavy, ungraceful. It affects your health too because your system cannot function properly when vital organs are crowded out of place and bones are thrown out of alignment.

You gain height when you stand erect. As shoulders lift, the chest goes into proper position. You breathe freely, gain new energy. Many women find that Camp Supports help improve their posture.

STAND UP AND LIVE!

Good posture improves appearance, aids health and beauty. And now comes National Posture Week . . . time to consider your own posture and do something about it. Visit a Camp dealer this week. Consult personally with an expertly trained corsetiere and let her show you how the scientific support of a Camp garment will give you a new feeling of fitness and comfort. For more than 30 years, Camp Supports have helped women to enjoy better posture, to look better and feel better. If you have difficulty in maintaining good posture, if you are overweight or underweight, suffer from backache or fatigue, a Camp Support will help give you more energy to enjoy your daily activities. Of course, in cases where you suspect that some specific condition is causing trouble, consult your physician. But in any event, go this week to the store that carries Camp Supports. See for yourself how much one can mean to you.

Designed along life lines Camp Supports help keep organs, bones and muscles in position; aid good posture and general well being. Light in weight; available in beautiful fabrics. A Camp Support lifts you up, wards off fatigue.

Camp Supports are made by the sponsors of the famous Transparent Woman Exhibit now on view at the Museum of Science and Industry, Rockefeller Plaza. See it when in New York.

Physicians recommend Camp Supports for general wear as well as for maternity, postoperative and other needs.

Corsetieres know the comfort women enjoy from wearing a Camp Support. Camp garments are fitted by trained experts.

SIX COUNTY TAX BODIES CUT DEBT BY TEN MILLIONS

Current Obligations Rise, but Bond Total Dips.

The six major governments in Cook county reduced their debts by more than 10 million dollars in the year ended March 31. The governments are the city, school board, park district, sanitary district, county, and forest preserve district.

Quarterly figures show the total bonded, or long term, debts of the governments were reduced by more than 25 million dollars to $360,309,463 on March 31, compared with $385,567,996 a year earlier. However, the current, or floating debts increased by more than 5 millions during the year to $26,409,231, and the total tax anticipation warrants outstanding increased more than 10 millions, to $113,863,939.

Back Tax Collections Decline.

Tax officials attributed the rise in current obligations to a decline in collections of delinquent taxes for prior years. While current tax collections have been about on a par with current receipts for the previous year, they said, total tax receipts have dwindled because receipts for the early 1930s have fallen sharply.

A substantial drop in debts is expected in the second quarter of 1940 because of an anticipated pickup in tax receipts. Taxpayers will probably make the usual rush to meet the June 1 deadline, when personal property taxes and the first instalment of real estate taxes are due.

City Makes Large Debt Cut.

In the year ended March 31 the city made the largest debt cut, reducing its bonds and warrants outstanding 18 million dollars. Its current debts, however, increased $1,350,000. The school board's total debt increased by about 4½ millions because of an increase in warrants. The board sold 5 million dollars in 1940 warrants in March, whereas in 1939 it sold no 1939 warrants until April.

The park district also issued warrants earlier this year than last, and the resulting 7 million dollar increase in warrants for the year ended March 31 more than offset the 5 million cut in bonded debt, making the total debt higher. The county's increase in debt resulted chiefly from a $3,200,000 judgment due the city for the county's share of municipal court costs. Cuts in total debts were made for the year by the sanitary and forest preserve districts despite increases in warrants outstanding.

Compare Outstanding Debt.

The following tabulation compares total debts of each of the six governments on March 31, 1940, with their debts a year earlier:

TOTAL DEBT.

	Mar. 31, '40.	Mar. 31, 1939.

PSYCHOLOGISTS TURN UP SOME MENTAL TIDBITS

The 15th annual meeting of the Midwestern Psychological association turned up some interesting tidbits yesterday before it ended at the University of Chicago. For example:

1. Human infants are smarter than adult monkeys.

2. A housewife whose pie crust is terrible may still run an excellent household.

3. Dull persons are more apt to be divorced than are their smarter fellowmen.

These conclusions were reached after exhaustive surveys by leading midwestern psychologists.

BEAUTY SHOP STENCH BOMBED.

A stench bomb was thrown thru the window of a beauty and barber shop at 6317 Grand avenue yesterday. Samuel Raviola, proprietor, told police his shop was nonunion but that he had had no labor trouble.

[ADVERTISMENT]

Flush Poisons From Kidneys and Stop Getting Up Nights

Be Healthier, Happier—Sleep Sound

When you can get for 35 cents a safe, efficient and harmless stimulant and diuretic that should flush from your kidneys the waste matter, poisons and acid that are now doing you harm, why continue to break your restful sleep by getting up thru the night?

Don't be an EASY MARK and accept a substitute—Get Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—the original—the genuine right from Haarlem in Holland. Look for the Gold Medal on the box—35 cents.

Other symptoms of weak kidneys and irritated bladder may be backache, puffy eyes, shifting pains, burning or scanty passage.

HIT-RUNNER SUED FOR $10,000 IN DEATH OF GIRL, 5

A suit asking maximum damages of $10,000 was filed in Superior court yesterday by Jacob C. Frank against Walter H. Bradshaw, a north side butcher. The suit is an outgrowth of the death of Frank's daughter, Beverly Joan, 5, last Feb. 29.

On April 19 Bradshaw was acquitted by a Criminal court jury, which tried him on a charge of concealing an infant. Bradshaw's car struck the girl near her home at 1402 George stree' She was found dead in the garage behind Bradshaw's home at 3644 North Oakley avenue. The state sought to prove the girl was alive when Bradshaw placed her in the garage. He still faces trial on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident.

The damage suit relates the circumstances of the accident and charges Bradshaw with carelessness and failure to take the girl to a hospital.

70,000 REGULARS READY TO MAKE BLITZKRIEG TEST

Streamlined Corps Move Toward Battle Today.

Shreveport, La., May 4 [Special].—American armed forces totaling 70,000 regulars will begin moving toward this area tomorrow for a million dollar a day test of the nation's defense against the blitzkrieg tactics now being used on European battlefields.

The maneuvers, costing about $28,000,000, constitute the greatest peacetime war show in American history. The war department has described them as the high point in regular army training. Developments on European battlefields have turned the eyes of Americans to these significant war games in an effort to gauge the effectiveness of this country's army under similar situations.

Lessons learned from the thrusts of the highly mobilized German army into Poland and Norway, and those of the Italian columns into Ethiopia will be tested against an American background of cutover pine land, valleys, and rivers.

Terrain Called Ideal.

Army men have termed the battlefield, a vast section of western Louisiana and eastern Texas, as probably the most ideal terrain in the nation for the problem at hand.

From May 11 thru May 25 a blue force made up of the 40,000 men of the 4th corps, operating in Louisiana, will engage an invading red force of 30,000 soldiers of the 9th corps, which will move in from Texas across the Sabine river. Regular army units from 33 states are in the maneuvers.

Probably the largest civilian corps ever organized to take part in American war games has been turned into an aircraft warning system in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas. American Legionnaires will be the backbone of this civilian group of 9,000 persons who will report on the movements of invading airplanes.

Bombers Are in Readiness.

Big bombers already are in readiness here for the word that will send them in roaring waves with orders to "destroy" highway and railway bridges on the lower Mississippi river and the central gulf coast.

Most of the participating units have been in the field since last December undergoing intensive training, as a result of which they have attained a high state of efficiency.

The 4th corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, recently completed corps exercises in the area of Fort Benning, Ga., its headquarters. The 9th corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. Walter Krueger, has been engaged in field exercises in east Texas.

Study Corps' March.

The 4th corps' move, beginning tomorrow, from the Fort Benning reservation to the scene of the combat is being studied closely by war department observers and staff officers. The movement will give the army its first opportunity to test men and motors in the rapid shift of an army corps to a distant area.

From the conflicts abroad, military strategists have found that the shuttling of men and supplies by trucks permits the streamlined, triangular division to march 45 miles a day for long periods, against 15 miles for the last world war type of square division.

The new, more highly mobile triangular division needs less manpower—about 11,000 as against 22,000 or more in the world war type division—and has three infantry regiments instead of four with a redisposition of artillery and supporting units.

The division—there are two or more to a corps—contains practically all of the various arms.

1 Killed and Two Trapped in Cavein at Coal Mine

Mahanoy City, Pa., May 4 (AP).—A cavein at a small slope coal mine at Nicholas, two miles west of here, today killed one man and entombed two. Joseph Malikowsky of Gilberton was crushed by tons of earth that blocked the passageway. Rescue workers recovered his body. Cut off from safety were Charles Broderick and John Lawson, both of Nicholas. Rescue workers estimated it will take 15 hours to reach them.

Biggest War Game Starts Today

Arrows indicate movements of some 70,000 soldiers of the 4th corps and 9th corps area who will test ability of American army to resist blitzkrieg tactics now being used on European battlefields. The maneuvers will be started today.

BLASTS OFFICIAL MEDDLING AS PRELUDE TO WAR

Rep. Halleck Warns of Dangers.

Provocative speech in high official circles and partisan expressions by inexperienced diplomats and meddling roving ambassadors are dangers which may lead America into Europe's war, Congressman Charles A. Halleck [R., Ind.] asserted last night in a radio speech in Chicago.

In his plea to keep America at peace, Congressman Halleck, whose home is in Rensselaer, Jasper county, said that our frontier is not on the Rhine—as President Roosevelt once asserted—but at every river and crossroad thruout this nation.

Points to Effects of Last War.

"We can stay out of foreign conflict," he said, "by a steadfast determination that we shall not be drawn into it. We will stay out by keeping our heads and not permitting foreign propaganda, official meddling, or even congressional oratory, to distort our better judgment.

"We tried once at heavy cost to make the world safe for democracy. No visible result of that effort is discernible today. Our plain path of duty in 1940 is to make democracy safe in America."

Huge Costs Cited.

Halleck said that our involvement in a foreign war would cost tremendously more than it did in 1917 and 1918, in addition to the lives lost and the peril to our form of government.

"The federal government today is spending on a scale almost identical—in fact, slightly larger—with the rate of England's disbursements as shown by the latest figures from London," the congressman continued. "Until the new increased British budget was announced last week, incredible as it may seem, we were spending a million dollars a day more than England, which is at war.

"Federal spending from Washington last year and this will reach a total of 19 billion dollars. During our two war years, 1917 and 1918, federal expenditures amounted to 15 billions."

COL. C. H. BONESTEEL NAMED STAFF CHIEF FOR 6TH CORPS AREA

Col. Charles H. Bonesteel, who is on duty in Hawaii, has been detailed for duty in Chicago as chief of staff of the 6th corps area and 2d army, Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford announced yesterday.

Col. Bonesteel.

Col. Bonesteel has been selected for appointment as brigadier general, effective on Sept. 1. He comes from an army family. He is a graduate of West Point, as were his father, grandfather and son, all officers in the regular army.

In the world war Col. Bonesteel served in France with the 7th division. For the last two years he has been in command of the 19th infantry at Schofield barracks, Hawaiian Islands.

2 from Chicagoland Join Ambulance Unit in France

Mrs. Max Newman, 5499 Hyde Park boulevard, received word yesterday from her son, Robert H. Newman, that he and William B. T. Mock of Evanston have joined the American volunteer ambulance section of the Polish army in France. Newman said he had been made a commissioned officer. Mock is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry E. Mock, 1616 Forest place, Evanston. He and Newman served with the American volunteer ambulance corps in Finland.

LAWTON NAMED CHIEF OF ILLINOIS NATIONAL GUARD

Successor Praises Record of Gen. Keehn.

Brig. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton of the 58th field artillery brigade yesterday was appointed major general in command of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard. The appointment, effective May 16, was announced by Gov. Horner's office in Springfield.

Gen. Lawton.

Gen. Lawton is a Chicago attorney and a veteran of the world war. He succeeds Maj. Gen. Roy D. Keehn, commander of the Guard for 13 years, whose resignation was submitted last week. Gen. Keehn's request to be placed on the retired list was reported to have beeen inspired by Gov. Horner after a series of differences on points both political and military.

Gen. Lawton, in his office here yesterday, said he planned no sweeping changes in either organization or tactics of the guard.

Progress Under Keehn Hailed.

"I feel I am inheriting a splendid division from Gen. Keehn," said Gen. Lawton. "I have worked closely and pleasantly with him for several years and he has brought the 33d division to a high state of efficiency. I shall be happy and willing to carry on where he left off."

Gen. Lawton lives in the Mayfair hotel, 5496 Hyde Park boulevard. He is 56 years old. His military career goes back almost exactly 31 years. On May 8, 1909, he enlisted in Troop I, 1st Illinois cavalry, Illinois National Guard.

He served on the Mexican border in 1916 as captain of Troop I. The 1st Illinois cavalry was transferred into the 2d Illinois field artillery [later the 122d field artillery] on July 1, 1917, and Lawton became captain of Battery D. He entered the United States service in the world war on July 25, 1917, and trained with the 33d division in Houston, Tex.

Service on World War Fronts.

After the regiment was ordered overseas he was graduated from the United States artillery school in Camp Valdahon, France, and served at the front as executive officer, 2d battalion, 122d field artillery. The regiment served in defense of the Toul sector, the St. Mihiel campaign, and in all phases of the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Lawton continued his rise after the war. In 1926 he became colonel of the 122d field artillery and in 1936 was made brigadier general in command of the 58th field artillery brigade.

He was appointed by Gov. Horner to the Illinois board of pardons and paroles last January and is a member of the Illinois armory board.

Col. Charles C. Haffner Jr. was appointed to succeed Gen. Lawton as brigadier general in command of the 58th. Haffner, also an overseas world war veteran, has been commander of the 124th field artillery of the Illinois National Guard. He is treasurer of R. R. Donnelley & Sons Co. and lives at 880 North Green Bay road, Lake Forest.

SPAIN GIVES POOR MORE BREAD, RICH LESS IN RATIONS

Food Shortage Grows as War Spreads.

BY MAURICE ENGLISH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, May 4.—Revision of the bread rationing system for all Spain was instituted by the government today in an attempt to relieve the food stortage due to the cutting off of wheat imports and as a result of the bad and inadequate harvests last year.

Under a decision taken at a cabinet meeting Friday night and announced today the ration will be increased for poor families and workers, and will be decreased for the wealthier classes who can afford more expensive foods. The extent of the increase for the poor was not revealed.

Cut Bread Distribution.

It is the second measure taken within a week to cope with the vexing food problem. A few days ago it was decreed that bread would be distributed only every other day instead of daily as before. The ration, which has been 125 grams [about 4½ ounces] for each person, was not changed that time but the effect of the measure was to cut it in half.

It is hoped that Marshal Henri Petain, French ambassador, will be able to persuade his government during his current visit in Paris to speed up shipments of French wheat which were held up when France became worried about its own harvest prospects.

Food Problem Serious.

The food situation is vitally important now that Spain has turned a watchful eye toward the Mediterranean. Until the food problem is solved, neutral observers say, it is difficult to see Spain voluntarily playing a rôle in the European conflict even if she wished to do so despite the feeling that Spain, like Italy, has vital interests in the Mediterranean.

The desire for neutrality while Spanish reconstruction is under way is reflected in the government's desire to have military and naval movement played down in the press on the ground that they are strictly defensive.

The Mediterranean tension is being reported quietly by most Madrid newspapers, but the Falangist paper, Arriba, warns Britain in a front page editorial today that the tranquility of the trade routes can be assured only if Spain's interest there is considered.

ROLLER SKATING CHAMPIONS MEET FOR CITY TITLES

1,250 Take Part in Park Competition.

Ten thousand wheels strapped to 1,250 pairs of young Chicago feet roared yesterday up and down the block-long stretch in 16th street between Columbus and Leif Eriksen drives at the south of Soldiers' field. It was the day of the playground roller skaters.

The bright spring sun brought out the stars of 16 leagues, representing 64 park playgrounds, for the annual championship meet. The contest is conducted by the bureau of recreation of the board of education.

A Contest of Champions.

The less adept were weeded out at skating preliminaries earlier in the week. Yesterday's meet was a contest of champions. Freckle faced stars in shorts and knickers shuttled off 100 and 150 yard dashes with amazing speed. Some rose to new titles. And some sat down to defeat, emphatically.

The kindergarten tots stormed down the stretch with one skate on and the left foot paddling. There were 200 yard shuttle relays, with four on a team, cross-hand couple races, coasting events and a 50 yard dash skated backward.

How They Finished.

In the boys' contest, Delano playground took the title with 29 points, Drake was second with 28, and Swift, third, with 19. In the girls' tournament, the Mozart skaters carried off 30 points, Carter playground 23, and Forrestville and McPherson tied for third place, each with 18.

The boys left the field with only four knees skinned. But when the girls swung into action the first aid kit was all but depleted of its supply of mercurochrome and bandages. At this the masculine skating contingent wore a blanket expression of smugness. Neighbor nudged neighbor at each feminine tumble with a knowing, "H-m-m-m!"

Census Man Dives in River, Comes Up with Cold Facts

Everett, Wash., May 4 (AP).—Karl Gladsjo, a census enumerator, spied a trapper's cabin beside a stream in the sparsely settled backcountry. The stream was too wide to permit conversation so Gladsjo doffed his clothes, swam the chilly river, got his information, swam back, and entered the notes in his census book.

PARLEY OPENED BY DEALERS AND MILK DRIVERS

Representatives of the Associated Milk Dealers and the Milk Wagon Drivers' union met yesterday in the first of a series of conferences to negotiate the dispute which led to the drivers' recent two day strike. The meeting was in the association's offices at 309 West Jackson boulevard.

Most of the conference was devoted to outlining procedure for ensuing meetings. It was decided that the groups will begin actual negotiations tomorrow morning. If the dispute is not settled by June 1 it will be arbitrated by a special board.

The dealers were represented by Attorney Ernest Ballard and Paul Potter. The drivers' group consisted of Henry Weber, union president; Peter Hoban, recording secretary, and other union executives. They also are to meet with union members Thursday night to present the arbitration proposal for approval.

NEW DEAL VINDICTIVENESS.

Mr. Roosevelt's planned tour of the country in June, if congress adjourns in time, is greeted by the third termers as a master stroke by the greatest political practitioner ever in the White House. Persons with less enthusiasm for the art of the great practitioner regard the travel plan as a double headed political dodge revealing poor sportsmanship on one side and circus showmanship on the other.

Mr. Roosevelt proposes to take to the rails and visit many constituencies in the south, far west, and middle west while the Republicans are gathering for their national convention. He will return shortly before the Democrats meet in Chicago there to learn whether they are to nominate him for the third term or are to be told that some other man has been picked for the succession.

It is assumed that Mr. Roosevelt has two purposes in mind. One is to try to share the first page with the man the Republicans will nominate to oppose the New Deal, and the other is to invite the acclaim of the people, increase the guessing regarding his intentions, and strengthen his grip on the Democratic delegates. The chances are the first purpose will result in a fiasco. Mr. Roosevelt would need, even for him, a full bag of tricks to blanket the Republican proceedings in Philadelphia. The second purpose he can probably accomplish.

The New Dealers whose jobs, perquisites, subsidies, and reputations are dependent upon Mr. Roosevelt's continuance in office can put on a show wherever he goes to indicate that the country is demanding him with a call to be heard from Maine to California. There are enough of them who have everything at stake to produce the necessary ballyhoo.

The politics of the New Deal under Mr. Roosevelt, in addition to the shrewdness or genius attributed to it by the faithful, has another characteristic never before revealed so openly in a national administration. That characteristic is vindictiveness. The note of personal animosity was loudly sounded when Mr. Roosevelt undertook to defeat the Democratic senators who opposed him on the court packing bill. He tried to put them out of the senate because they had been guided by their convictions and their thoughts of the country's welfare.

There could hardly be a subject on which a legislator could take his stand more conscientiously than a question affecting the integrity of the Supreme court. But Mr. Roosevelt, in the spirit of vindictiveness, never forgave these senators. He tried to send them back to private life by reminding their constituents of the money they had received from him and holding out promises of more if they would vote as he asked them to. Maryland could have a new bridge if it defeated Senator Tydings. It didn't defeat the senator and it hasn't the bridge.

Mr. Roosevelt neither tolerates nor forgives, nor does he recognize that opposition is a necessary part of representative government. He and the third termers regard criticism as vile and opposition as wicked.

The vindictiveness takes a more serious turn when it leaves the field of political action and uses the various departments of government which are supposed to be unprejudiced and impartial in their relations to the people. It is, of course, notorious that money favors go as political favors, but when citizens are put in jeopardy because they offend the New Dealers then American political action has become very dangerous.

The department of justice under all three of Mr. Roosevelt's attorneys general, Mr. Cummings, Mr. Murphy, now of the Supreme court, and Mr. Jackson, has carried its prosecutions in various directions obviously for political effect, to punish or intimidate. That is plain in the investigations which have been made and which are now threatened in various states where political ambitions or political opposition have appeared. The politicians can read the warnings given by the federal activities.

A sample of the use of the prosecutor as a politician can be taken from the justice department under Mr. Cummings, under Mr. Murphy, and under Mr. Jackson. Mr. Cummings' régime presents as a specimen the indictment of the Huey Long followers for income tax evasion and the abandonment of the cases when there was a correction of political behavior.

Mr. Murphy, resentful of the communists' comment on his political association with them when he was governor of Michigan, caused the belated indictment of Detroit communists and radicals who had recruited men for the Spanish war. Mr. Jackson, following Mr. Murphy in the department, dropped the prosecution and said in explanation that the accused seemed to have been singled out as special examples. But Mr. Jackson has given his own special sample of the same goods. Again the Reds were involved.

The New Deal endeavor to escape the reproach of its communist sympathies and associations has been tough on the comrades here. There has been no break in principle, but to disguise the association of ideas the administration has brought the American communists into court. Recently Ben Gold and 10 officials of the International Fur Workers' union were prosecuted by the department of justice in New York on indictments which were seven years old. The offense was an alleged violation of the Sherman antitrust act, but plainly enough the revived prosecution was one of the attempts to remove the taint of communist association from the New Deal.

The fur workers' union is one of the labor organizations under communist control and the men convicted on the old indictment are, as the prosecutor told the jury, "well known communists who represent things we do not want in the American labor movement."

The New Deal has wanted them in the labor movement. It now wants to clear itself of the responsibility and odium and vindictively attacks its former allies. "Or else" when a New Dealer says it means "or else."

FORM A MIDDLE WEST ASSOCIATION.

Harry A. Laird, whose death in 1938 cut short his brilliant discussions of transportation problems in these columns, stated the case for an association to defend the special interests of the middle west a short time before his death. His story, "Midwest Is Forced Off 'Main Street,'" appeared in the Graphic section of The Sunday Tribune on Aug. 8, 1937.

Mr. Laird's thesis was that industrial civilization is concentrated and has been concentrated thru all history along the main trade routes of the world. Industry does not push inland from the seacoast unless trade routes abandon the sea and push overland.

It was such an occurrence that made possible the industries of the middle west. From the end of the civil war period, when the first railroad was pushed out to the Pacific, until the completion of the Panama canal the "Main street" of world commerce ran thru the middle west, and industries located along that transcontinental American railroad route grew because they were in a position to place their products in the world stream at a minimum cost.

With the completion of the canal the main stream of world commerce was diverted 2,000 miles southward, but even so, Mr. Laird found, the development of middle western industry would not have been stifled had it not been for a series of discriminatory legislative acts which placed unfair burdens on the middle west.

The canal tolls act, by an unrealistic method of assessing tolls, permitted ships to carry a large part of their cargo thru the canal toll free. This situation has been remedied, in part, since Mr. Laird wrote.

The Esch-Cummins act of 1920 incorporated the nefarious long and short haul clause in railroad rate schedules. By providing that railroads could not make rates to compete with the ship lines for transcontinental business without reducing their rates to intermediate points proportionally, middle western industry was cut off from its Pacific coast and Pacific export markets. The Hoch-Smith resolution of 1925, which produced a schedule of freight rates based on distance alone, further discriminated against the middle west.

In addition, by selling to intercoastal shipping lines at a fraction of their cost the world war vessels which the middle west had contributed its share of taxes to build, the emergency shipping board gave a tremendous subsidy to the ship lines and their seaboard shippers, at the expense of the middle west.

These discriminatory acts have made it impossible for the middle west to compete for business, not only on the Pacific coast, but in a zone extending a thousand miles east of the coast. Waterborne products are hauled back eastward that far to compete with overland railborne products. Nor can middle western industry compete with eastern seaboard industry for the markets of Asia, for the same reason.

The middle west need ask no favors, Mr. Laird pointed out. It need only demand that it cease to be discriminated against. The Panama canal should pay its own way. The intercoastal merchant marine should be forced to stand on its own feet, without direct or indirect subsidies. Transcontinental railroads, which have repeatedly been forced into bankruptcy by the subsidies granted competitors, should be allowed to make competitive rates to recover their Pacific coast traffic.

There are other subjects with which a middle west association should deal, such as the interstate barriers that hamper commerce within the area, but its primary objectives, for the present, lie in the field of transportation. Industry in the middle west is being strangled by artificial advantages granted its competitors, and unless its cities and states combine to fight for their right of equal competition, their prosperity will come to an end.

THE PORK BARREL AND THE CRACKER BOX.

Philip Harrington, the city's commissioner of subways and superhighways, addressed the Midwest Safety conference the other day. He said that the problems of traffic safety and congestion in Chicago are now so grave that they cannot be left to cracker box experts to solve. Chicago, he said, must construct a city-wide system of grade separated, limited access thorofares for which an initial expenditure of $110,000,000 is required and ultimately nearly twice as much.

This is very good, but somewhat puzzling. The city may have gone beyond the cracker box experts, whatever that phrase may mean, but it has not ceased to listen to the voice of politics in planning streets. The last comprehensive plan for superhighways as it reached the city council didn't bear much resemblance to a sound engineering solution based upon traffic requirements. Every ward politician seemed to have had a hand in the drafting. The desire to squeeze out a real estate profit at the expense of the public treasury and public safety was evidently a paramount consideration.

Cracker box experts may not be the best guide to a modern transportation system in Chicago, but they are infinitely to be preferred to pork barrel experts.

JAPS GAIN IN MANCHUKUO

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANCHOULI, Northern Border of Manchuria—A journey across Manchukuo to this border town indicates the Japanese are making progress in their endeavors to colonize Manchukuo. Towns show signs of rapid industrialization and Japanese spokesmen say the standard of living is considerably higher than in Japan proper.

Towns like Dairen and Mukden show there has been much recent modern building and general improvement. Harbin, quite a city, has street cars, modern hotels, and department stores.

Manchouli, terminal of the Trans-Siberian railroad, has the atmosphere of an oil or mining town. It lies between Siberia, Mongolia, and Manchukuo, and its people are a mixture of the peoples of the three countries. The buildings are mostly one story frame structures and there are no sidewalks or paved streets.

* *

Peking, China, may be taken as the far eastern extremity of the longest train ride on earth—it requires at least 12 days to cross Asia and Europe. Tardy trains often lengthen the trip by a day or two. To insure connections at Manchouli on Thursday for the Siberian express, the Japan tourist bureau insists that tourists leave Peking on Monday morning.

The line winds out thru Tientsin, across the southern Manchukuo border at Shanhaikwan, and over to the main line at Mukden, where a change is made to the Harbin sleeper.

Much improvement, both in roadbed and train efficiency, is noticed on the main line of the South Manchurian railroad running from Dairen to Manchouli, as compared with the branch line and Chinese sections. The countryside appears more prosperous.

There is a sameness to the landscape over all Manchuria. Mostly it is flat. This is a farming country and the pay crop is soy beans, on which the natives' prosperity depends. There is nothing of interest on the 24 hour journey northwest from Harbin to Manchouli except field after field of soy bean stubble relieved here and there by a goat or a pig.

The train in which I traveled was pretty well crowded and all the passengers seemed to be Japanese, with the exception of some Germans going home from the United States by way of Siberia.

* *

One hour out of Manchouli the train officials pulled down all the shades and cautioned the passengers not to look out. Inquisitive tourists peeked, of course, to learn the reason for the secrecy, but to all appearances there was none. Some one suggested it was because there was a fortified zone near the border, but a study of the landscape showed no indications of fortifications.

In the freight yards at Manchouli was a camouflaged flatcar on which were mounted an obsolete pillbox and a gun. In zero weather a soldier stood guard.

A few miles west of Manchouli the Russians gave the Japanese a trouncing in their border skirmishes last fall. There are indications from many sources that German influence has prevented any more trouble between Russia and Japan for some time to come. In fact, some factions call Russia, Japan, and Germany the new axis.

Travel in this part of the world is much different from what I experienced as I passed thru Japan on the way to Peking. Travel in Japan is facilitated by the efficiency of the tourist bureau and the courtesy of transportation employés.

There are different ways of going from Tokio to Peking, but a combination train and boat trip is preferred by many. The train one takes from Tokio to Kobe, Japan, is about like medium class carriers in the United States. The ride from Tokio to Kobe takes place at night and little of the country is seen until one is near Kobe.

Kobe, an industrial center, is the seaport for Osaka. The large landlocked harbor was alive with craft, most of them flying the Japanese flag.

The boat from Kobe to Dairen was one of the Japanese Maru line, small but modern and well run. At two tables in the dining room passengers got English silver and European food. At the others Japanese food was served, to be eaten with chop sticks.

The trip thru the Japanese inland sea was one of pleasant sailing in a region of scenic beauty. Many little towns are sandwiched between protecting high ground and the water's edge.

* *

About 20 hours is required for the run from Kobe to Moji, northernmost point of the southernmost island of the Japanese empire's main group. Moji, a town of 110,000, was a beehive of industrial activity. Her harbor was filled with ships, a multitude of stacks poured forth dense smoke, and the war boom was much in evidence. The drydocks were overhauling everything from submarines to liners. Here, too, was a senior customs officer who is a woman, with a manner so pleasing one forgot having been awakened early in the morning. Passengers were not permitted to go ashore here. In midafternoon our boat glided out across Tsushima strait and headed for the southern end of Corea and the Yellow sea beyond. From Kobe to Dairen is a three days' run.

First class passengers were Japanese except three Germans and an American. There were more women and babies than soldiers.

The liner pulled into Dairen in a heavy fog at daybreak. Many American made taxis and buggies drawn by small Mongolian ponies were on hand to carry passengers 15 blocks to the South Manchurian railway station. Streets were coated with ice and many ponies had fallen.

* *

Dairen was clean, modern, impressive. The large railroad station might have been any big station in the western hemisphere. Train employés were exceptionally polite and well dressed.

The train pulled out on the minute for Mukden, next change for Peking. From Dairen to Mukden is a six hour trip north thru south Manchuria. The South Manchurian railroad was a pleasant surprise. Only our top American trains and railroads are better.

Everything here spoke of cheap labor. Embankments and trenches had been revetted with brick and concrete in many places where dirt cuts would have sufficed. Labor means nothing, yet the country had an atmosphere of prosperity. A mammoth iron plant 40 miles south of Mukden was going full blast and appeared to be bigger than the steel works at Gary, Ind.

Editorial of the Day

THE CARROZZOS OF OUR CITIES.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

The reader's attention is directed to an editorial from the Chicago Daily Tribune, reprinted on this page. This is an etching, in words, of Mike Carrozzo. Chicagoan by adoption, criminal by profession; a success story—one is tempted to call it typical—not in the American tradition but in a modern American formula.

Almost every American city of metropolitan consequence has its Mike Carrozzo, of more or less comparable genius to the Chicago Big Shot. They are a caste, these labor racketeers. They are the robber barons of the industrial age. In the stolen livery of labor they practice extortion on many fronts, but their most productive and helpless victims are the laboring men whom they villainously misrepresent.

How a creature like Carrozzo can pursue his outlawry as head of a large union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, with the passive acquiescence of the federation's president, William Green, is an exasperating and sinister phenomenon. Wasting no emotion on that angle, the Chicago Tribune realistically concludes that "the way to deal with Carrozzo is with police squads and indictments."

St. Louis and the Post-Dispatch, from bitter experience, can indorse the Tribune's plan of campaign. It was the police and the indictment, reinforced by an uprising of honest union men, that finally ousted the unspeakable John P. Nick.

DEMORALIZATION FROM MARIJUANA.

INDIAN hemp [marijuana]—the "loco" weed of many a back yard or vacant lot—will grow almost anywhere. It is of value to commerce because it supplies fiber for the manufacture of twine and rope; and birds thrive on its seed. Because of its peculiar effect—whether smoked, chewed, taken as a tea or extract—it was at one time the favorite remedy for migraine headache. Known as hashish, it was used in China, India, Arabia, and Egypt long before the Christian era. Homer tells of its ability to offer consolation to those who are distressed. In addition, it was reputed to allay fears and banish apprehension.

Cannabis, the drug proper, is found in its highest concentration in the sticky, resinous substance which is exuded by the small, whitish flowers. But the foliage and shoots contain a small amount of the active principle. In fact, any part of the plant may be utilized, and the leaves are dried, rolled into cigarets, and smoked.

A small dose occasions mental stimulation—with cares ironed out. With greater absorption there comes a consciousness of well being—everything is lovely and the goose hangs high. Exaltation is marked and the individual believes that he can accomplish anything; no task is too formidable. But illusions are common and the faces of companions may appear distorted—magnified and twisted as by an unevenly curved mirror. A twig lying in one's pathway is a log and a wild leap is necessary to get over it.

A typical hashish debauch—demanding a considerable quantity—may be accompanied at first by a feeling of anxiety. Some patients become filled with fears—shrinking from an unknown and unseen menace. This obsession, however, passes quickly with subsequent elation and supreme happiness. Walking seems effortless—one just floats along. Later—in conversation — thoughts flow swiftly, words come in a perfect torrent, and the speaker thinks that he is shining in a blaze of glory. One victim described his impressions thus: "I saw and realized the infinity of space. As I looked abroad on fields and water and sky I read many and startling meanings into them." So much for dreamland, for soon—within an hour or so—restless stupor ensues. This is succeeded by profound exhaustion and disgust.

Occasionally alterations in disposition are observed in which an otherwise pleasant man or woman may become pugnacious and quarrelsome or silly and ludicrous. The most unfortunate result probably is that self control is obliterated. Emotions held well in leash normally may come to the surface. If criminal tendencies exist they are magnified. Strangely enough, sensations of pain are diminished. One may suffer rather severe bumps in the course of a frolic and not be aware of the injuries until the drug has worn off and the black and blue spots are noted.

As a rule, few persist in the habit inasmuch as the afterclap of discomfort may be rather more than the individual has bargained for. On the other hand, persons have been known to have followed the "hemp trail" for 20 years or longer. But with any continued dosing there comes some mental deterioration. It is like driving a horse until he drops exhausted. Nervous tissues will not stand the sustained excitement.

How much crime can be attributed to the preparation is not clear. One who is before the bar of justice naturally will attempt to alibi his behavior by claiming that he was under the influence of this personality changing poison. Some may employ it because it decreases fatigue and—no doubt—desperate acts may be laid on its doorstep.

It is particularly pernicious when young people have recourse to it for its thrill producing properties. Under the persuasion of peddlers [in one case a school employé was found guilty] boys and girls have described to them the wonderful transformation which a few puffs of these homemade cigarets may bring. "It is harmless," whispers the seller, "but what a kick you will get." Curious, they may purchase a few and pass them around at some social gathering. Loud laughter and unusually bold behavior may point to users.

The United States Bureau of Narcotics identifies the drug under various names, such as: weed, reefers, tea, moocah, or Mary Warners.

SHAVING PROBLEM.

C. H. writes: I have a very tender skin and daily shaving causes irritation. Is there anything I can do to toughen the face?

REPLY.

If you use soap, lather the face thoroly. After a few minutes remove the coating with a hot towel and then relather. Employ a very sharp razor. More trouble is caused by dull blades than any other single factor. On completing the operation, wipe off the softener without rubbing. Washcloths may be folded and used as packs for two minutes. After drying, follow with a mild, sterile, nonperfumed cold cream. Only a very light application is needed. This may be massaged gently into the skin. Do not attempt a close shave. If irritation persists, you might try an electric razor.

SLEEPING WITH BOTTLE.

H. A. writes: My 15 month old baby will not sleep unless she has the bottle in her mouth. Is this practice injurious?

REPLY.

Probably not. As slumber deepens, you can remove the "comforter" without waking her.

TODAY IN HISTORY

May 5, 1821

Napoleon died at St. Helena, where he had been a prisoner of the English for more than five years. The previous month he had dictated his will, complaining that "I am dying before my time, murdered by the English oligarchy," and requesting that his body "be laid to rest on the bank of the Seine among the French people whom I loved so well." Instead, dressed in his favorite uniform, he was buried in a lonely spot on the island where he had loved to walk. The grave was beside a spring and shaded by weeping willows. The tombstone was inscribed "Here lies——" with no name.

TOWARD WAR.

Chicago, April 30.—Just why are all Tribune editorials and all letters to this column so strongly on the side of isolationism and in favor of the idea that it is never right to fight for a principle? Your cartoon of yesterday in which you showed that Britain and France were isolationists during the conquests of four innocent powers was only a half truth. Washington was not a pacifist or a peace at any price sap. He fought rather than endure a peace with tyranny. There were many people at that time, also, who said we had no business fighting for a right.

Is it not probable that had England and France joined with the United States in vigorously boycotting Japan at the time of the Manchurian steal there never would have been a war in Asia?

If Japan had not succeeded so easily, isn't it a natural supposition that Mussolini would not have grabbed Ethiopia?

By this time grabbing by intimidation was in full swing and the technique grew so that Hitler discovered all he had to do was scare every one stiff. It worked in Austria and all the other small, weak nations until it became evident to the world that the only way to stop the "might is right" gang of wreckers would be to use force. At long last they finally but tardily woke up.

You say it is none of our business what Europe does—or what Japan does! Does history show one single case of a war-mad conqueror ever stopping before he was stopped? And the whole world is very much smaller in size today than when Alexander went to India.

Can you imagine a world with the British and French annihilated in Europe under Hitler and Mussolini and Stalin? With the British and French annihilated in the Pacific and with the Japanese military gang in the saddle? That would not affect us! O, no!

God forbid that we are dumb enough to sit back and allow such things to happen.

If you are scared of increased taxes now or of the loss of a few brave young lives you'd better give some serious thought to the dire consequences then. Britain and France have already run into such a whirlwind. K. E. BURTON.

W-G-N.

Oak Park, Ill., April 26.—Radio listeners in general, and those in Chicago in particular, owe a great debt of gratitude to W-G-N and THE TRIBUNE for the excellent programs available any and every evening of the week. You have brought quiet dignity and great character to this newest field of entertainment and have made each evening at home one of complete oblivion of cares. My sincerest thanks to the writers, producers, stars, and musicians. JACK MILLER.

THE SYMPHONIC HOUR.

Chicago, April 29.—I wish to commend you for your Sunday Evening Symphonic hour over W-G-N. I had the pleasure of listening to it last evening.

This is a very fine program which should enhance the prestige of Chicago as a music center, and it is a relief to have one less hour of propaganda, foreign language, and Hollywood movie star self-admiring programs.

ALLAN JACKSON.

FOR STUDENTS OF HISTORY.

La Grange, Ill., April 27.—There is much talk nowadays about the British navy being America's protection in the Atlantic. Can any one recall an instance where the British navy has repulsed or intercepted a foe advancing upon the United States? J. H. VANCE.

ASH TRAY ETIQUETTE.

Chicago, April 30.—Which is the correct way to place a lighted cigaret in an ash tray? Should the lighted part be placed toward the inside or the outside? At a recent meeting downstate the opinion was about 50-50. C. P. CRAWFORD.

EXPLAINING TAX INCREASES.

Chicago, April 28.—For the information of your correspondent, Castine A. Davis, the continual increase in real estate taxes is due mainly to the public subsidy to transportation, viz.: taxation for park drives, street pavements and widening, traffic signals, traffic police wages, airports, etc.

The Chicago Municipal airport now costs the taxpayers $800,000 a year. The removal of the railroad tracks and extension of the airport will increase the deficit and raise taxes.

Years ago real estate taxes were low, as railroads, a private industry, paid all transportation costs. Today taxes are high because the city pays the ever increasing costs of construction and maintenance of streets and airports. Unless this subsidy is removed Castine A. Davis can expect still higher tax bills.

TAXPAYER.

THE SOUND ALSO RISES.

Chicago, April 28.—Why all this fuss about third floor tenants? I live on the third floor and, believe me, I get plenty of noise from below. Every night at 11 the man downstairs gets home and after almost knocking the hinges off the door he turns the radio on full blast and leaves it on until 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning. They can't even speak in low tones. They shout at one another. How about the children that are allowed to stay up till the wee morning hours, running and jumping around from one room to the other? The way they sing, whistle, and yell in the hall at night you'd think they were at a ball game.

I don't complain, because it doesn't pay to argue with people who are so ignorant that they don't think any one else may live quietly. DISGUSTED.

POSTAL DEFICITS.

Chicago, May 1.—Mr. Harry Folwell, writing in this department, wants to know why the postoffice department shows a loss every year. That is easily explained by one who has spent 15 years in the postal service, seeing the tons of mail that is handled free under the political franking privilege. The postmaster general and postmasters in the larger offices are largely figureheads, drawing large salaries, and the work is done by well trained assistants under civil service. Give the assistants the top jobs at a fair salary, curtail the franking, and the boys who do the work will give good service to the public and show a profit. HOOSIER.

SHE WANTS HER RENT RAISED.

Chicago, April 26.—I have read your editorial, "The Favored Few." Why try to pass the buck to the tenants of the Chicago Housing authority? Place the blame where it rightfully belongs, upon the government. The tenant would be more than glad to pay the same as outside tenants—tax bill, garage collection, cost of running schools, the parks, county hospital, sewage disposal plants, etc.

It's up to the government to right its mistakes and make federal housing a success, not another costly failure of the New Deal. Raise the rents and put the housing projects on a paying basis.

FEDERAL TENANT.

SOMEBODY SHOULD ASK HIM.

Chicago, May 2.—As I am sure the Norwegians want the protection of the allies, why don't the Germans leave Norway? Hitler has no business there anyway. HANNA JOHANSON.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

INTEREST IN ESTATE.

Harvey, Ill., April 24 [Legal Friend of the People].—We are living in the home of an old lady and caring for her. The property is a house and lot. It was willed to her and a grandson of her husband's by a previous wife—now dead. Her husband is also dead. The will gave her one-third and grandson two-thirds interest in property. There are several claims against the estate. The grandson is executor. She received a letter saying that the undertaker who had charge of funeral is taking over two-thirds interest and she could have it by paying his bill.

1. I understand the will was broken because the widow gets one-half and not one-third and the will is not legal. What we want to know is this. These claims are filed in court.

2. Does the law give widow one-third or one-half interest?

3. Can this man take over this interest in the property legally?

4. Cannot the widow live in this house until death?

5. What are her dower rights?

6. Could she by paying his bill get clear legal title to this property? If so, what would become of other claims filed against it?

7. Could any one else pay this bill and get clear title to property?

8. Has the grandson as executor a right to make such a deal legally? We do not know where he is or if he even knows about it. The letter she received does not say. Just says they are taking over.

9. Can the estate be settled or the property sold before she dies? I have a claim also. Must every one wait until she dies? I am willing to wait—the others are not. O. K.

1. We assume that you mean that the surviving spouse has renounced the will and taken instead the share provided by statute. This would leave the will standing in other particulars.
2. and 3. See attached summary.
4. If she is claiming under a will, her rights would depend on the wording of that will.
5. See attached mimeograph.
6. We advise her to employ an attorney.
7. No, but conceivably the undertaker might have the property sold under statutory proceedings to pay debts.
8. In general, the powers of an executor depend on the wording of the will.
9. See preceding answers.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COLLECTION ON NOTE.

1. Is this note outlawed? The note was signed by A [2] who claims it was paid. Note never was released, as he didn't know, or forgot to ask for release of note, forgetting its existence.

3. A's property is a joint property with wife. Wife's signature is not on promissory note.

4. Is this note still collectible? A says he paid in small instalments. The note shows no recordings, nor interest, altho A has interest return checks for six years to show. F. A.

1. No. The Illinois limitation period is 10 years from the maturity date.
2. The burden would rest on the maker to prove his defense of payment.
3. After taking judgment the creditor could reach the judgment debtor's one-half.
4. Yes, unless the defense of payment can be proved. If the question is litigated, the result would depend on which testimony is believed in court.

DARING FIREMEN TO EXHIBIT SKILL AT THRILL SHOW

Police Will Demonstrate Modern War on Crime.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.

Six hook and ladder companies will give a demonstration of aerial daring at a height equivalent to a five story building in the third annual Chicago Police and Fire Thrill show in Soldiers' field July 14.

The companies will respond to an alarm in such precise unison that trucks will arrive in pairs at the same instant at three appointed positions on the field. Ladders will be hoisted simultaneously and firemen will ascend to the top, from which they will slide down ropes to the ground as one man.

The firemen's spectacular new feat will be matched by the police, one of whose major contributions to the show's program will be a stagecoach robbery. The bandits' success in making their escape in the old days will be shown in contrast to the fate of their outlaw counterparts of the present.

Modern Methods to Be Shown.

Using modern police radio and scientific crime fighting equipment, the police will pursue and capture bandits who have been spotted from an airplane after a 1940 type holdup.

The thrill show is sponsored by the Chicago fire and police departments, the Chicago park district, and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Its primary purpose is to acquaint Chicagoans with the work of their police and firemen—to let them see the methods by which fire and crime are fought, and understand the fire and police equipment.

Equally important, the show is intended to do honor to the brave men who so often are called upon to risk their lives for the safety of Chicago residents—in line of duty.

A Breath-Taking Spectacle.

But the show has done infinitely more than that in the two years that Chicagoans have been privileged to see it. It has proved to be a breath-taking spectacle, a stirring drama of thrills and excitement. And side-splitting comedy is packed in between the demonstrations of skill and daring.

The third annual show will be more exciting and more hilarious than the others. Take the word of the men who are planning it: Commissioner Michael J. Corrigan and Deputy Chief Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney of the fire department; Commissioner James P. Allman and Chief John Prendergast of the uniformed division of the police department; Chief Roger Shanahan of the park police, and Harry O'Rourke, secretary of the committee in charge.

What is the Police and Fire Thrill Show? Countless thousands of Chicagoans who have witnessed those of 1938 and 1939 can tell you it's a combination of the drama of watching firemen conquer a devastating conflagration, and seeing the police triumph over outlaws, and attending a circus.

Here's a Brief Résumé.

But for those who never have seen the thrill show, here's a brief résumé of what to expect:

Great water towers, from which streams of water can be thrown into upper stories of buildings, parade the field with the rest of the fire department's marvels. Among these are a ladder truck by which firemen can enter the seventh story of burning buildings, huge pumpers, and other mechanical wonders that the public seldom is able to get close enough to see in operation at actual fires.

Retired firemen and policemen, and firemen and policemen from other cities, join in the procession. Girl baton twirlers and a band appear.

Realistic Police Pursuit.

Now come the feature events of the program.

Police cars roar around the field in a realistic pursuit of criminals. The police keep on the trail thru the aid of two-way radio communication with a scouting airplane that flies overhead and with their stations, established on the field.

Portable fire stations are set up with incredible speed, and soon smoke begins to pour from a temporary building erected to demonstrate actual fire conditions. An alarm is sounded. Fire companies roar off to battle the blaze.

Brides of Yesterday

Mrs. George Owen Fairweather Jr., the former Sally Ellen Hallberg of Evanston.

Mrs. Gordon Douglas Haverkampf, the former Miss Frances Durr of Kenilworth.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A number of pretty spring weddings were of interest yesterday, among them those of Miss Sally Ellen Hallberg to George Owen Fairweather, Jr., in Evanston, and of Miss Frances Ellen Durr and Gordon Douglas Haverkampf in Kenilworth.

Miss Hallberg, daughter of the Lawrence G. Hallbergs of Winnetka, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fairweather of Barrington, were married at 4:30 o'clock in the First Methodist Church of Evanston, with a reception following at the Country Club of Evanston. Some old duchesse lace belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. J. A. Vail, trimmed the bride's ivory satin dress. She carried Easter lilies and lilies of the valley. Her attendants were in yellow net with yellow horsehair hats. After a wedding trip west Mr. Fairweather and his bride will be at home in Evanston.

Miss Durr, daughter of the Herbert A. Durrs of Kenilworth, and Mrs. John L. Haverkampf's son were married at 4:30 o'clock in the Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth. The bride wore ivory taffeta trimmed with rosepoint lace belonging to her grandmother. After a wedding trip to Honolulu Mr. Haverkampf and his bride will be at home on the near north side.

Another wedding yesterday was one at 8:30 o'clock in the evening at which Miss Barbara Emerson, daughter of Arthur Emerson of Highland Park, became the bride of J. Dean Vail, Jr., of Kenilworth. The ceremony took place in the Highland Park Presbyterian church with a reception following at the Exmoor Country club. Mr. Vail and his bride will live in Evanston.

KOSCIUSZKO WILL REVEALS PATRIOT AS SLAVERY FOE

Old Document Called for Freeing of Negroes.

Sixty-five years before Abraham Lincoln issued the emancipation proclamation, another great patriot wrote a similar document. It did not have the authority of a government behind it, but it was the voice of a man who loved and fought for liberty. Altho he was a foreigner, American school children often recite his name in their history lessons.

Thaddeus Kosciuszko.

This hero and humanitarian was Gen. Thaddeus Kosciuszko, identified with the cause of independence for both Poland and America.

Now, by a unique document brought to light by Chauncey McCormick, president of the Commission for Polish Relief, Kosciuszko also will be identified with the antislavery movement. Today is the 142d anniversary of this document. It is Kosciuszko's last will and testament. It bequeathed his American property for the liberation of slaves.

Will in Virginia.

The original copy of the will is now in the court records of Albermarle county, Virginia, where it was filed by Kosciuszko's great friend, Thomas Jefferson. It reads:

> I, Thaddeus Kosciuszko, being just in my departure from America, do hereby declare and direct that should I make no other testamentary disposition of my property in the United States, thereby authorize my friend, Thomas Jefferson, to employ the whole thereof in purchasing Negroes from among his own as any other and giving them liberty in my name, in giving them an education in trades and otherwise, and in having them instructed for their new condition in the duties of morality which may make them good neighbors, good fathers and mothers, husbands or wives, and in their duties as citizens, teaching them to be defenders of their liberty and country and of the good order of society and in whatsoever may make them happy and useful, and I make the said Thomas Jefferson my executor of this.
>
> T. KOSCIUSZKO.
> 5th day of May, 1798.

This will was never carried out because Jefferson was of an advanced age at the time of Kosciuszko's death in 1816, but in 1826, the year Jefferson died, the legacy went to found the colored school at Newark, the first educational institution for Negroes in America. The school was named in honor of the great patriot.

Called Purest Son of Liberty.

"I see Kosciuszko often," Jefferson once wrote to a friend. "He is the purest son of liberty among you all that I have ever known."

Yet Thaddeus Kosciuszko had been born in wealth on Feb. 12, 1746. He was the son of a notary in that part of the Polish commonwealth known as the Grand Duchy of Lithuania. He was known and respected for his honorable and ancient family. He went freely among his father's serfs, learning a strong love for the peasantry which later inspired the laws he urged upon his country.

The wealth of his family dwindled and Kosciuszko, altho trained as a soldier and military engineer, could not afford to buy a commission in the reduced Polish army of 1772. The cause of independence in America kindled his imagination, and in the summer of 1776 he arrived in America at his own initiative and expense to serve thruout the war.

The will of Gen. Thaddeus Kosciuszko, fighter for liberty in America and in Poland, directing that Thomas Jefferson use the general's estate to free slaves and train them for citizenship has been brought to light by Chauncey McCormick. The conclusion of the document, reproduced here, reads: ". . . citizens teaching them to be defenders of their liberty and country and of the good order of society and in whatsoever may make them happy and useful, and I make the said Thomas Jefferson the executor of this. METHODISTS URGE CHILDREN BE TAUGHT THE 'FACTS OF LIFE'

Atlantic City, N. J., May 4 (AP).—The general conference of the Methodist church formally proclaimed today that parents should teach their children the "facts of life."

'Our children," the pronouncement stated, "desire and have a right to know before adolescence the facts regarding the origin of life and the nature of their personalities as it relates to sex.

"Parents, if properly instructed, are best fitted to give this assistance, but, if they are recreant to this duty, then qualified persons in the church should teach reverently the beautiful truths of life."

Another pronouncement urged a national law requiring medical examinations before marriage. Elmer E. Collins, Billings, Mont., lawyer, protested this measure, saying:

"Somebody slipped thru a law like that in Montana and in a few months the church people were praying for its repeal. The respectable element refused to undergo the humiliation and went outside the state to get married."

SINGLE OLD MAN TO OBSERVE RIOT 'REUNION' ALONE

The fifty-fourth annual reunion of the Haymarket Riot Veterans' association will be held at 2 p. m. today in the old Des Plaines street police station, and one veteran may attend.

G. W. Roycraft [top] and F. P. Tyrrell.

Two attended last year, George W. Roycraft, now 93, of 2642 North Spaulding street, and Frank P. Tyrrell, now 82, of Oak Park. But Tyrrell, who has missed only two reunions since 1908, is ill, and Roycraft expects to sit alone with his memories. Another survivor, Herman F. Krueger, does not belong to the association.

Yesterday was the anniversary of the riot, in which eight policemen were killed and 74 injured in an anarchist uprising. An old man, Ernest Lomberg, of 140 West Superior street, 79 and lame, limped into the police station.

"I'm an old timer, I am," he said. "I was sitting right across the street from here tending bar the night of the riot. I didn't go out into it, tho. I stuck close inside while the noise went on. But I know all about it . . . I know all about it."

RAPING ROBBERS ATTACK 2 WOMEN IN AUTOMOBILES

Two holdup-rape cases were reported to police yesterday. A colored bandit entered an automobile near 37th street and Cottage Grove avenue, forced the driver to turn into a nearby alley, then robbed him of 90 cents and attacked the wife while threatening her husband with a revolver. Police said the description of the rapist was similar to that of a man who attacked a colored woman earlier in the week.

Near 4200 Jackson boulevard, two men entered a parked car and forced an attorney and his young woman companion to drive to 4900 19th street, where the attorney was forced from the car. The woman later called police from near Polk street and Springfield avenue and said the two men and another they had picked up all had attacked her. She and the attorney also were robbed of $150 worth of jewerly and $6 cash.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

GET INTO A CHRYSLER AND Fluid Drive AWAY!

Why shift gears? That's the question you hear today, wherever motor cars are sold . . . wherever the good new things in motoring are discussed.

For Chrysler's Fluid Driving is so much simpler . . . so much smoother . . . so much more quiet and effortless than ordinary driving. If you try it, you'll never want a car without it.

Smooth as oil. One fan-like wheel drives another by forcing oil against it, faster or slower, as governed by your engine speed.

Why Shift Gears . . . or have them shifted mechanically?

When you can have the work taken out of driving so simply and completely, why shift gears . . . or have them shifted mechanically?

Only two moving parts revolving in oil are all you need to work this miracle. It's standard equipment on the Crown Imperial and available for only $38 extra on the Traveler and New Yorker models.

Two-tone upholstery . . . Airfoam cushions . . . Easy-Entry doors . . . Scientific weight distribution . . . Floating Power . . . Superfinished parts . . . Plastic enamel finish . . . Aero-type shock absorbers . . . Tin coated pistons.

Why be without any of them? See your Chrysler dealer . . . He's anxious to give you a demonstration, no matter what car you drive or expect to buy. Let him show you the world's newest and most amazing motor car . . . Chrysler with Fluid Drive.

Throngs Come Early; Hail Good Records!

Huge Crowds Rush to Get Albums of Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony on First Day of Distribution

Chicago music lovers, men, women and children of every age and race and color and creed yesterday gave thrilling welcome to the opening of Chicago's music appreciation campaign. By means of this program, valuable albums of symphonic records, the recordings of the world's greatest orchestras, will be made available to the public at hitherto unprecedented prices.

An entire symphony, consisting of three or four double-faced 12-inch records, 6 or 8 sides, can be obtained for a payment of $1.69. Ordinarily such symphonies would cost from $6 to $8.

The distribution will be continued all of next week, from Distribution Headquarters at 65 East Lake street, and 14 North Franklin street.

Yesterday was the first day of distribution, and there was a long waiting line before the doors opened at 9 a. m. By the end of the day, more than 7,000 music lovers had called for their symphonies.

Today, in perhaps thousands of Chicago homes, the beautiful strains of Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony are being played for those who had little hope of ever owning this great masterpiece. And in the weeks to come there will be the music of Beethoven, Mozart, Bach, Haydn, Debussy, Franck, and others.

Enthusiastic crowds of music lovers of all ages yesterday besieged music distribution headquarters at 65 East Lake Street and 14 North Franklin Street. Long before the doors opened at 9 a. m., a crowd was waiting to take home the first of the 12 groups of symphony records.

Schubert's "Unfinished" Symphony was given to the public today for $1.69 for the entire symphony of three double-faced 12-inch records, 6 recordings. Except through this educational distribution, price would have been from six to eight dollars.

Beethoven's Fifth Symphony in eight recordings will be distributed to the public this Saturday for the same small payment. Distribution of the Schubert records will continue tomorrow and all of next week. Records can be heard at both Distribution Headquarters.

PUBLIC SERVICE

That a dream of music educators has come true is an epic of public service; a monument to the co-operation between art and industry and civic groups throughout America.

Great symphony and philharmonic orchestras waived their royalties. The world's greatest conductors did likewise. America's foremost manufacturers of musical instruments and records minimized profits, in order that the greatest possible number of American families would have the opportunity to learn to love good music.

Precious albums of phonograph records — records that would ordinarily have cost $6 or $8 or more, held tightly, yet tenderly; soul-stirring treasures that will grow more beautiful with the years,—that was the sight you saw yesterday at Music Distribution headquarters, at 65 East Lake street and 14 North Franklin street.

All day long, a large staff of clerks, supplemented by volunteer workers, handed out the packages and albums to eager throngs. Many waited in line for more than an hour. But there was no complaining. There was only gratitude and happiness that good music had at last been given to the masses.

For those who do not have a means of playing phonograph records, an electric turn-table was provided, a machine that connects with the audio tubes of the radio and permits the music to be played through the loudspeaker of the radio, with the volume and tone of the radio. Demonstrated at headquarters, the effect was all that might be desired. These turn-tables operate only on AC current.

SYMPHONY FOR $1.69

Throughout the day crowds expressed amazement that complete symphonies by Schubert, Beethoven, Mozart and Haydn can be made and distributed for as little as $1.69. The Beethoven symphony comes in four double-faced 12-inch records, 8 recordings in all. The price for the entire symphony is only $1.69. It will be released this coming Saturday.

The symphonies were recorded by some of the world's greatest orchestras under the direction of conductors equally renowned.

The names of the orchestras and conductors do not appear on the records, for the reason that these organizations and conductors agreed to permit this public service, educational distribution only on the condition that their names and trade marks were not capitalized for advertising and publicity purposes, and that the symphonies be distributed through other than customary commercial retail channels.

The Chicago program follows fast on the heels of successful campaigns all over the country.

In Louisville, Ky., the program was initiated by the Louisville Courier-Journal and Louisville Times. In Cincinnati a community-wide drive for deeper music appreciation was fostered by the Cincinnati Times-Star, in full co-operation with the Women's Committee of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra.

Cleveland music lovers were benefited by the adoption of the program by the Cleveland Press, and the Cleveland orchestra joined actively in the plan to win new converts to its own programs.

In Indiana the plan assumed statewide proportions by reaching into every corner of the state. The three newspapers of Indianapolis gave unanimous editorial support to the plan.

In Detroit an unprecedented drive for greater musical understanding was backed by the three great dailies of that metropolis, and symphony organization leaders. The campaign in the Michigan area has been described by Dr. Peter Dykema as one of the most far-reaching cultural achievements of recent times.

In a number of communities the idea has been instrumental in reviving flagging cultural interest and has restored orchestras and other worthy musical organizations to useful service.

Schubert Now, Beethoven Next!

The first symphonic masterpiece to be distributed in Chicago's Music Appreciation program was Schubert's Symphony No. 8 in B Minor, the famous "Unfinished." Eager music lovers paid the public service price of $1.69. On Saturday of this week, May 11th, Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C Minor will be released to the public for the same payment. Thereafter, one symphony will be released on Saturday of each week.

Mayor Kelly Issues Proclamation for Music Appreciation Week

Proclamation Urges All to Support Music Plan

Declaring himself enthusiastically in accord with the objectives of the Chicago Music Appreciation movement, Mayor Edward J. Kelly has designated the week beginning May 6 as Chicago Music Appreciation Week.

The Mayor's proclamation emphasizes the endorsement of the plan by the National Committee for Music Appreciation "as one of the most practical and progressive steps ever taken in the history of music education."

PROCLAMATION:

"WHEREAS, the four leading Chicago musical organizations are sponsoring a movement to increase interest in music through the distribution of recorded masterpieces made possible through arrangements with America's greatest symphony orchestras; and

"WHEREAS, the National Committee for Music Appreciation, representing 2,000 of America's most distinguished civic, educational and cultural leaders, has endorsed this movement as one of the most practical and progressive steps ever taken in the history of music education; and

"WHEREAS, the Chicago Committee for Music Appreciation, a chapter of the National Committee, has arranged to begin public distribution of these symphonic masterpieces on Saturday, May 4, 1940

"NOW, THEREFORE, as Mayor of the City of Chicago, I do hereby proclaim the week beginning Monday, May 6, 1940, to be Music Appreciation Week in Chicago, and I urge the fullest co-operation of our churches, schools, clubs, social, business, and fraternal organizations of every kind and description to the end that this great movement so unselfishly carried forward, may achieve the fullest possible expression in bringing the joy and inspiration of great music into the hearts and homes of the people of our city.

"Dated this second day of May, A. D. 1940.

"EDWARD J. KELLY, Mayor."

12 Symphonies in Campaign

Twelve symphonies and symphonic masterpieces are included in the Music Appreciation program. All were recorded by world-famous orchestras under the direction of the world's best known conductors.

Both orchestras and conductors waived their royalties in order to permit the symphonies to be distributed either through schools, public libraries or music clubs at a price that would be within the reach of practically every family in the land.

The twelve symphonies that will be made available to the public, at the rate of one symphony per week during the next twelve weeks, are: Schubert's Symphony No. 8 in B Minor, May 4th; Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C Minor, May 11th; Tschaikowsky's Nutcracker Suite, May 18th; Mozart's Symphony No. 40 in G Minor, May 25th; Debussy's "Afternoon of a Faun," "Clouds" and "Festivals," June 1st; Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" and Prelude to "Parsifal," June 8th; Bach's Brandenburg Concertos Nos. 2 and 3, June 15th; Haydn's Symphony No. 99 in E Flat Major, June 22nd; Tschaikowsky's Symphony No. 4 in F Minor, June 29th; Beethoven's Symphony No. 8 in F Major, July 6th; Brahms' Symphony No. 2 in D Major, July 13th; Franck's Symphony in D Minor, July 20th.

Good Music for Everybody, Goal of Record Campaign

Chicago's music appreciation program, which opened yesterday with an auspicious start, owes its success to a plan inaugurated many months ago by one of America's leading newspapers, the Washington Star, of Washington, D. C.

It was the Washington Star's campaign for good music in the District of Columbia that inspired the activities of the National Committee for Music Appreciation and the extension of this public service music plan to other communities throughout the nation.

Under the leadership of the Washington Star's editors, music was carried to the people of the District of Columbia in a dramatic and effective manner that has won the approval and admiration of educators, editors, cultural leaders and the public at large in small and large cities from coast to coast.

More than 73,000 symphonies and symphonic works were distributed to the people of the District of Columbia in a campaign covering several months. More than 10,000 families took advantage of this public-spirited program in the Washington area.

The efforts of the newspaper to spread the priceless joy of music effected amazing results. According to Dr. Edwin N. C. Barnes, head of music in the District of Columbia schools, "the campaign advanced music understanding in Washington by at least five years."

Attendance at the National Symphonic orchestra's summer and winter concerts, under the direction of Dr. Hans Kindler, was stimulated, according to that orchestra's official.

"The general cultural tone of the community was immeasurably increased," said C. C. Cappel, manager of the Washington symphony organization, "and thousands who had never before been interested in the great music of the ages became converts to music and subscribers to the concerts in Constitution Hall and at the evening out of doors Watergate programs.

"The Washington Star performed an unforgettable service for music and added another bright page to its illustrious record as one of our country's most distinguished journals."

Gets First Symphonic Records

"What a break for those of us who haven't big incomes," declared Robert Sweeney, of 7606 S. Indiana Ave., a student at Armour Tech.

The first to obtain Schubert's "Unfinished" at the main distribution center, 65 East Lake street, Sweeney called the music appreciation program in Chicago "one of the finest cultural opportunities for Chicagoans in years."

"Many of the students at Armour and others all over Chicago are going to be in here to take home this wonderful music. The planners of this program deserve the heartfelt praise of all music lovers."

Hours are from 9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Hours of distribution of the symphonies are from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., both daily and Saturday. No telephone orders can be accepted, although mail orders, accompanied by proper remittance will be filled in order of receipt, officials said.

Reservations Aid Staff in Making Estimates

The committee in charge of music distribution headquarters today at noon issued the following statement:

"We wish to thank music lovers of Chicago for their patience and co-operation.

"It is to be expected that thousands will crowd the headquarters to obtain these valuable symphonies, especially in the very first days of the distribution.

"We regret that a certain amount of standing in line will be inevitable, and we appreciate the patience and good-natured attitude of the public.

"We hope to serve every man, woman and child as promptly as possible in this great educational plan.

"There are several ways by which delays and tiresome waiting can be minimized.

"First, call for your symphonies other than at noon and closing hours;

"Second, having the exact change with you will speed up service at the counters;

"Third, mailing of a reservation form will help us determine how many symphonies to have on hand each day.

"The reservation form does not obligate anyone in any way whatsoever. It merely aids the distribution staff in having an adequate supply of symphonies available.

"The reservation blank below is for the convenience of those who may wish to send in the form."

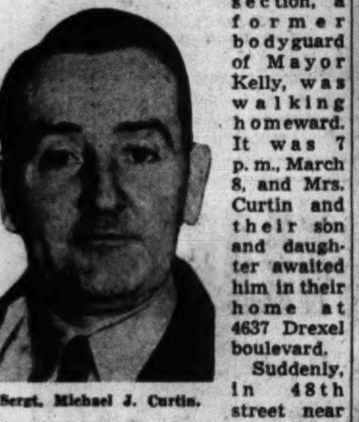
HERO AWARD GOES TO SERGT. CURTIN; IT'S FAMILY'S 5TH

Two Policeman Brothers Former Winners.

BY EDWARD WILSON.

Sergt. Michael J. Curtin of the police department's stolen automobile section, a former bodyguard of Mayor Kelly, was walking homeward. It was 7 p. m., March 8, and Mrs. Curtin and their son and daughter awaited him in their home at 4637 Drexel boulevard.



Sergt. Michael J. Curtin.

Suddenly, in 48th street near Drexel, Sergt. Curtin heard a sound behind him. He turned and saw a man hiding between two parked cars. It was Andrew Foster, 26 years old, colored, of 4227 Calumet avenue, an ex-convict. He had a gun in his hand.

Wounded by Gunman.

"Come here, buddy," said Curtin. The man started shooting, and a bullet tore thru Curtin's left side near the hip. He drew his revolver as he fell and engaged the robber in an uneven duel. Foster kept on shooting at the injured policeman, wounding him anew in the right chest and the left forearm.

One of Curtin's bullets hit Foster in the right arm and drew so much blood that, altho the bandit fled for several blocks, police were able to trace the trail of blood to an apartment at 4545 Evans avenue, occupied by Miss Rosella Jenkins, Foster's cousin. She gave them his correct address, where he was found.

Foster confessed the shooting. He said he was out looking for some one to hold up—and Curtin was in civilian clothes. Foster has served time in St. Louis for robbery and in Chicago for purse snatching. He was indicted by the March grand jury on a charge of assault to commit murder and on two charges of robbery with a gun.

Wounded Hero Recovers.

Curtin was rushed to the Chicago hospital, where for several weeks his chances of life were considered small. His condition improved and on April 15 he returned home.

For his heroism under effective fire Sergt. Curtin received THE TRIBUNE'S $100 hero award for March—the fifth such honor to be won by Curtin and two of his brothers, who also are police sergeants. Each month THE TRIBUNE makes the award to the policeman, fireman, or park district policeman who shows outstanding courage in line of duty.

It was the second hero award for Michael, who got his first in 1927 for killing one of three bandits in a pistol fight. He also has 12 creditable mentions in police department records.

Two Tribune awards likewise have been taken by Sergt. Thomas F. Curtin of the Stanton avenue station. He also has 18 creditable mentions.

One Tribune award and four creditable mentions have gone to James E. Curtin, a sergeant at Hyde Park station. Twelve mentions are listed for Patrolman William E. Curtin of the state's attorney's police, another brother. The family's total is 46.

The fire department brethren are Joseph and David.

The Curtins' mother, Mrs. James Curtin, 65, has been a widow since the death of her husband, a south park policeman, 20 years ago.

DOCTOR, 74, HELD AFTER DEATH OF WIFE, 42, IS FREED

Spokane, Wash., May 4 (AP).—Dr. R. A. Hahn, 74 years old, was freed today after being held two nights and a day on an open charge, and went tearfully to the mortuary where lay the body of his wife, Sylvia, 42, who was found shot to death in her bedroom.

Sylvia D. Hahn. [A. P. wirephoto].

Prosecutor Carl Quackenbush released Dr. Hahn after a long conference with Deputy Prosecutor Leslie Carroll and Dr. I. S. Collins, coroner. The coroner set an inquest for Monday night. The physician's attorney said Dr. Hahn would be present.

Police were called Thursday by Dr. Hahn. They found Mrs. Hahn dead, a bullet hole in her head and a Luger pistol nearby.

WAR VETERANS HOLD FROLIC.

Hundreds of veterans of the Spanish and world wars gathered last night in the Ashland boulevard auditorium for the annual military ball of the William McKinley camp, United Spanish War Veterans.

200 Fight Spectacular Fire

Fifty-three pieces of fire fighting apparatus were used to control flames which destroyed a two story business building at 4725-37 Broadway yesterday. A crowd of 20,000 watched the fire, which occurred near the heart of the Uptown business district.

Damage of $5,000 was caused yesterday by a fire in frame buildings at 544-554 Melrose street. The buildings were used for garage storage, and one was also occupied by two families. Two small children were carried to safety. A thousand persons watched firemen, called by a 2-11 alarm, fight the flames. Traffic in the vicinity was tied up for 50 minutes.

Auto Theft Probationer Held to Jury in Mail Theft

Christ Zalewski, 18 years old, 1440 Chicago avenue, was ordered held to the federal grand jury yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker on a charge of robbing mail boxes. Bond was set at $2,000. Police said that Zalewski, who was placed on two years' probation last October for car theft, and two younger companions admitted rifling more than 400 mail boxes. The two other, one of them a "graduate" of the St. Charles School for Boys, were sent to the Juvenile home.

20,000 WATCH UPTOWN BLAZE; TRAFFIC HALTED

150 Police Called; Loss Put at $150,000.

A crowd of 20,000 gathered yesterday afternoon to watch firemen battle a fire which spread rapidly in a two story building at 4725-37 Broadway, near the heart of the uptown business district.

The flames were brought under control two hours later. Damage was estimated at between $150,000 and $250,000. Eleven stores and their contents, all on the first floor, were destroyed, and the equipment of an X-ray laboratory and of physicians' and dentists' offices on the second floor was a total loss.

Two hundred firemen and 53 pieces of apparatus were engaged in the fight, and 150 policemen were needed to keep the crowd in order. All traffic in Broadway was stopped by hose lines.

Several persons were trapped on the second floor when exits were burned away. These persons were assisted down ladders by the firemen. The only injured were Firemen John Booker and William Goesselie, who suffered falls.

Smoke which poured from the burning structure drove tenants from the 12 story Uptown National Bank building on the north.

Smoke Blown into Theater.

The wind also carried smoke into the ventilating system of the Riviera theater, nearly a block away. Most of the audience remained in their seats after Ralph Wettstein, the manager, explained they were in no danger.

The business enterprises that were ruined by the flames were: Ace hardware store, Otake Japanese art shop, Happy Day restaurant, Sherman Cotton shop, Sally Dress shop, Uptown Bootery, La Salle millinery store, Leland and Masters' jewelry companies, Lanathan hosiery shop, Ritholz optical shop, and the Broadway X-ray and Clinical laboratory.

First Deputy Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney said he believed the blaze started in the basement.

United Medical Service
250 YEARS OF MEDICAL EXPERIENCE
THE combined experience of the physicians who compose the medical staff of a United Medical Service amounts to more than 250 years. There are three physicians with more than thirty years of medical experience; six with more than twenty years; twelve with more than ten years, and two with more than six years. All are graduates of prominent medical schools, served internship in leading hospitals and registered by the State of Illinois. In addition, all have taken post-graduate courses—many in London, Berlin, Paris, Vienna, and other great centers of learning, in search of special knowledge and techniques in their particular fields of medicine. They have practiced their profession as private physicians, staff physicians and as members of medical organizations. Their knowledge and skill have been awarded special recognition through appointments, professorships and memberships in various medical groups and societies. They are members of a United Medical Service staff because they feel that this form of group practice is fundamentally sound and not only offers more accessible and adequate medical protection for the masses but a wider and more interesting field for the physician. Complete medical facilities including X-ray, medical laboratory and other scientific equipment are at hand to aid them in their diagnostic and treatment service. For a United Medical Service is one of the most modern and completely equipped medical institutions in the country. Those who need medical care for existing ailments as well as those who would like to protect their health against the encroachment of disease need not hesitate to entrust these problems to their expert care. The fees for services are within the reach of the most limited incomes.
Whatever Your Complaint . . . Be Examined
Effective treatment cannot be prescribed until the exact cause of your ailment has been determined. This may require, in addition to the attending physician's knowledge and skill, X-ray studies of various organs of the body, an electrocardiogram of the heart, basal metabolism test and laboratory examinations of the blood, urine and other secretions.
Your Stomach Trouble may be caused by improper diet, worry, peptic ulcer, gall-bladder disease, or if you are past 40 years of age there is always the danger of cancer. For this reason it is the height of folly to neglect stomach complaints. An accurate diagnosis should be made before any medication is attempted. A special gastro-intestinal examination including a physical and clinical examination by trained physicians, blood pressure, urinalysis, a complete blood examination, and serological tests is $3.50
A fluoroscopic examination following a barium meal, repeated at intervals necessary to watch the barium pass through the entire gastro-intestinal tract, including necessary X-ray film, is $5.50
In addition, if necessary, there is a laboratory examination of the gastric contents and of the stool for mucus, blood, and parasites, for $3.50 A special X-ray examination of the gall bladder, when necessary. $4.50
Women's Complaints should receive prompt medical attention, for they often present a serious gynecological condition. Early diagnosis and treatment give greater assurance of complete recovery. A gynecological examination by a trained physician, including a regional and colposcopic examination and Schiller's test to detect infected tissue that may cause cancer of the cervix, microscopic examinations of all secretions and discharges, urinalysis, complete blood and serological tests, is $3.50
Diseases Men Should Avoid The most common are diseases of the heart, kidneys, bladder and prostate . . . diabetes, hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure. A physical check-up is important, for an accurate diagnosis should be made without delay, as chronic conditions may develop and cause serious consequences. A urological examination of men that will provide the greatest protection includes a regional and clinical examination by a trained physician, microscopic examination of all secretions and discharges, urinalysis, complete blood and serological tests; the fee is $3.50
Ear, Nose and Throat Troubles
Those who suffer from repeated colds, sore throat, pain, or chronic discharge from the ears, impaired hearing, dripping at back of throat, should have a thorough examination by our ear, nose and throat physician. Such symptoms indicate inflammation of the tonsils, adenoids, nose, ears, or connecting sinuses, and unless properly treated may cause deafness or other serious disabilities. The examination with tests for hearing, urinalysis, and complete blood tests, is $3.50
Tonsils and Adenoids Removed by Experienced Surgeon for 15.00
Don't Neglect Your Eyes If you are subject to headache, nervousness, inflammation of the eyelids, pain in the eyeballs, floating objects before the eyes, crossed eyes, impairment of vision, have your eyes examined by an oculist, a physician specializing in diseases which affect the eyes. . . . Such conditions may result from iritis, retinitis, conjunctivitis, glaucoma, cataract, and cause serious damage to sight. Our oculist can diagnose and prescribe proper treatment. A complete medical examination of the eyes, including refraction, special tests for vision, urinalysis, and blood tests, is $3.50
Rectal Troubles such as piles, hemorrhoids, fistula, are dangerous and often cause pain and discomfort in other parts of the body. Have a complete rectal examination by a trained physician, including the use of the proctoscope, urinalysis, complete blood and serological tests, and microscopic examination of the stool for blood, mucus, and amoebae. The fee for this service is $3.50
Pre-Marriage Examinations
Complying with all the requirements of the Illinois State Marriage Law by physicians practicing in all fields of medicine. Certificates of examination can be had the following day. Single $3.00
Couples, $5.00
Visit Our Optical Dept.
You can, perhaps, obtain better glasses at lower costs in our optical department than elsewhere. When glasses are necessary let us fit you with this fine engraved, gold-filled mounting, in Ful-Vue style from our own optical shop, including best quality single vision lenses, for $6.95
Bifocals are slightly higher. Other styles as low as $4.50
No Charge for Sight Test
An X-ray of Your Teeth
may protect your health as well as save your teeth. For a diseased tooth can cause arthritis, serious heart trouble, kidney disorders, indigestion, and other troublesome ailments. An X-ray at regular intervals will provide protection against these dangerous and frequently painful conditions. A full mouth X-ray, 14 films, is available here for . . $1.50
Obstetrical Care is no longer a financial burden. Under our plan of budgeting all costs, the fee is paid before the baby arrives. Our complete service includes full term pre-natal care—and two months post natal care—necessary X-ray films—routine laboratory tests—delivery—delivery room—infant respirator if necessary—care of child—nursing, medication, and hospitalization for $60.00
First examination, $3.50
Skin Diseases not only are most annoying but often they indicate the presence of a serious disease. Competent diagnosis and treatment of all types of skin and scalp diseases are available by our expert dermatologist. His examination will include urinalysis, blood and serological tests. The fee is $3.50
X-Ray and Laboratory Services
X-ray of the kidneys, pelvis and bladder . . .$3.00
X-ray pictures of the sinuses (3 views) . $3.00
An X-ray picture of ankle (two views) . $2.50
An X-ray of the chest showing the heart and lungs . . $3.00
A complete basal metabolism test is $2.50
Electrocardiogram of the heart is $2.00
Serological Kahn test of the blood, 75c

CHICAGO FAUCETS

REMEMBER that the purchase cost of cheap faucets pales into insignificance when compared with the cost of keeping them in operation. It's the upkeep that makes cheap faucets ultimately expensive. So why not avoid this upkeep snare. Install Chicago Faucets. Naturally they must be priced a little higher than ordinary faucets, but their purchase cost is virtually their only cost in a lifetime of service. All parts subject to wear, including the seat and composition washer, are contained in the removable operating unit and, if necessary, are quickly and easily renewable at trifling cost.

TUBE STATIONS TO FORCE SHIFT OF UTILITY LINES

Ten Underground Links to Be Moved in Loop.

How the underground lines of 10 utility services will be relocated to make way for the construction of mezzanine subway stations in State and Dearborn streets in the loop was explained yesterday by Philip Harrington, subway commissioner. Opening of the streets in the middle of loop blocks to dig 14 loop stations will start in a few months.

Harrington said a joint committee of utilities engineers, representing the city and all utilities affected, has practically completed plans for moving all the lines into the 8 feet of space between the street surface and the tops of stations. Stairways lead from the mezzanines to the subway tracks 40 feet below the street.

The plan has been devised so service will be maintained while the stations are being built and while service is switched over to the new lines to be built above the stations, Harrington said.

Some Below 8 Foot Level.

Several utilities now have lines running below the 8 foot depth, engineers explained. They said that some manholes go as deep as 30 feet. Where these facilities are in the way of subway stations they will be raised.

The necessary relocations create a "space problem" among the utilities, but the engineers' committee has arranged to fit all the services into the required space.

The principal private companies whose lines must be moved are Peoples Gas Light and Coke, Commonwealth Edison, Illinois Bell Telephone, Chicago Surface lines, Western Union, and Postal Telegraph. Others affected are the city's electric lines, city sewers, and city water mains, and the park district's electric lines. Facilities of the Illinois Maintenance company, which sells steam; the Chicago Postal Pneumatic Tube company, and the City Press association also will have to be moved at several points.

Eighteen Foot Excavations.

The mezzanine stations will be built by the so-called "cut and cover" method. Street paving will be taken up and the earth will be excavated to a depth of 18 feet for an area about 80 feet square. During this construction temporary plank decking will be placed over the work to accommodate motor traffic and street car service. The streets will not be entirely closed to traffic at any time, because only one side will be dug at a time.

The excavation will affect all utility lines under the street. During the digging two methods of maintaining service will be used, depending on the utility service involved.

The electric power, telephone, telegraph, and surface lines' facilities underground will be hung underneath the plank decking. These lines now are encased in lead insulating cables, which in turn are housed in protective concrete or tile duct banks laid in the soil. When subway contractors excavate for the stations, utilities' workmen will knock off the duct banks, bunch the lead cables, and suspend them.

New Cables to Be Laid.

When the contractor has built the station and is ready to refill the 8 feet above the roof with earth, new duct banks will be laid by the utilities. New cables will be run thru the ducts and service will be switched over from the old wires to the newly installed lines.

Services of the gas company, water pipes, and sewers will be handled by a different method during station construction. The present gas mains will be cut out of service for the entire block where construction is under way. Gas lines in east-west streets at either end of the block will be tapped and temporary lines will be run down the block in the subsidewalk space to serve the buildings. A similar procedure will be used for sewers and water mains.

Lines to Be Replaced.

The old lines will be taken out and replaced with new facilities above the mezzanines, to be placed in service after the stations have been built.

Estimates by the private companies indicate that their cost of relocations to make way for subway stations in and outside the loop will exceed 6 million dollars. Moving the city's facilities will cost additional millions, engineers estimate.

Whether the cost of moving the private utilities lines will be paid by the city or the lines will be decided by court litigation. Each claims the other should bear the cost.

Lines of 10 Utilities to Be Crowded Above Subway

How underground lines of 10 utility services will be crowded into the eight foot space between the level of State street and the roof of the mezzanine floor of the subway station at Quincy street is shown in this drawing. The view is northward. At some other points even more utility lines will have to be provided for. Numbers indicate the respective lines, as follows: (1) City of Chicago electrical conduits, (2) city electrical manhole, (3) city sewer, (4) city catch basin, (5) city water pipes, (6) city fire hydrant, (7) Chicago Surface Lines electrical conduits, (8) surface lines tracks. (9) Commonwealth Edison company conduits, (10) Commonwealth Edison manhole, (11) Illinois Bell Telephone company conduits, (12) telephone manhole, (13) People's Gas Light and Coke company pipes, (14) Western Union Telegraph and Cable company conduits, and (15) Western Union manhole.

BANDIT TIES UP TWO IN OFFICE; FLEES WITH $500

A tall robber of sturdy build walked into the office of the Personal Finance company at 3982 Milwaukee avenue yesterday, displayed a pistol, and compelled the manager, Eugene McKevett, to open a safe and hand over $500.

Shirley Vance.

When this had been done the bandit ordered McKevett and Miss Shirley Vance of 5007 Belle Plaine avenue, a cashier, to sit in chairs. Then he took a clothesline from his pocket, tied both securely, and fled. Miss Vance extricated herself 20 minutes later and notified the police.

$30,000 JEWISH HOSPITAL FUND DRIVE PLANNED

A committee of 40 members headed by A. Morris Krensky will open a drive here this week to raise $30,000 for the National Jewish hospital at Denver, Colo. The institution, a refuge for tuberculosis patients unable to pay for treatment, is one of the oldest philanthropic hospitals in the country operated on a nonsectarian basis. Many patients from the Chicago area have received treatment there.

It was announced at the office of the Chicago committee at 30 North La Salle street that a substantial gift had been received from the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, senior auxiliary bishop of the Chicago Catholic archdiocese.

GEORGIA POSTAL JOBS SALE CASE GIVEN TO JURY

Congressman, if Guilty, Faces Prison Term.

Gainesville, Ga., May 4 [Special].—A federal court jury tonight deliberated the case of Congressman B. Frank Whelchel [D., Ga.], accused with a political leader, H. Grady Jones, of conspiracy to sell postal jobs.

In the event of conviction on all counts in two indictments, Whelchel would face a possible maximum of 12 years in prison and a $22,000 fine. Jones, under one indictment, would be subject to a maximum of 10 years and a $12,000 fine.

Jones, commissioner of Pickens county, was accused of acting as a "go between" for Whelchel and prospective appointees. The government charged that Whelchel accepted $2,700 in return for recommending three persons for postal jobs.

Prosecutor Bitterly Assailed.

The jury was given the case late today after a day devoted to final arguments highlighted by a bitter defense counsel attack upon United States Assistant Attorney General O. John Rogge, which drew a reprimand from Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

In his address to the jury, Rogge termed the congressman's alleged sale of postal appointments a "vicious manifestation of corruption in public office," after which Defense Attorney Paul Carpenter began a scathing attack upon the assistant attorney general, implying he was "an outsider invading our district."

Attorney Rebuked by Judge.

Carpenter referred sarcastically to Rogge as "the distinguished gentleman from Washington, the honorable," when Judge Underwood interrupted him.

"Just a minute," the judge said. "I don't think a government officer should be subjected to such remarks."

In a long address to a jury of 13 farmers and business men Rogge asserted Congressman Whelchel had "betrayed the trust placed in him by the people of Georgia and the United States, double crossed his constituents and then fabricated a flimsy defense."

Doubts Jury Will Convict.

In reply Carpenter said:

"This distinguished gentleman from Washington comes down here and tries to tell us that our own congressman has double crossed some of us here, and I don't expect you men to believe it."

Carpenter omitted United State Attorney Lawrence Camp, a Georgian, from his appeal to sectionalism. Camp prosecuted the case with Rogge.

BLOOMINGTON CUTS FIRE LOSS.

Kidney Strain, Nervousness, Backache, Getting Up Nights

If you're feeling out o'sorts, Get Up Nights or suffer from Burning Passages, Backache, Swollen Ankles, Nervousness, Rheumatic Pains, Dizziness, Circles Under Eyes and feel worn-out, the cause may be non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles. Worry, Colds, working too hard, late hours or over-eating or drinking may create an excess of Acids and put a heavy load on your Kidneys so that they need help to flush out poisonous wastes that might otherwise undermine your health.

Help Kidneys Nature's Way

Nature provides the Kidneys to clean and purify your blood and to remove excess Acids. The Kidneys contain about nine million tiny tubes or filters and the heart pumps blood through them about 200 times an hour, night and day. No man has ever made a machine that would stand up under the work that the Kidneys are asked to do, so it's easy to see that they may get tired and slow down as you grow older.

Fourteen years ago a practicing physician's prescription called Cystex was made available to the public through drug stores, making it easy and inexpensive to help thousands suffering from non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder troubles in these three natural ways: 1. Help the Kidneys remove excess acids which may become poisoning and irritating. 2. To palliate burning and smarting of the urinary passages, and bladder irritation. 3. Help the Kidneys flush out wastes which may become poisonous if allowed to accumulate, thus aiding nature in stimulating an increase of energy, aliveness and enthusiasm which may easily make you feel years younger.

Money Back Guarantee

Usually, in non-organic and non-systemic Kidney and Bladder disorders the very first dose of Cystex goes right to work helping the Kidneys flush out excess Acids, poisons and wastes. And this cleansing, purifying Kidney action, in just a day or so, may easily make you feel younger, stronger and better than in years. A printed guarantee with each package of Cystex insures an immediate refund of all your money unless you are completely satisfied. GLIDER COMPANY FORMED TO SPUR SPORT IN CHICAGO

School for Pilots Will Be Established Here.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

A new corporation has been formed in Chicago to build training and high performance soaring planes here and to operate two schools for soaring pilots, it was announced yesterday. The concern is the Frankfort Sailplane company. It has been formed around a glider manufacturing company that for the last 20 months was located at Frankfort, Mich., and is being underwritten by Chicago capital.

Temporary headquarters are at the Howard Aircraft plant at 5301 65th street, where manufacturing already is under way. Engineers for the Howard company are engaged in preparing stress analyses on two types of soaring planes that are to be put into quantity production within the next few weeks. A force of workers in the Howard plant is engaged in completing the last three units of the company's first series of five ships.

Evanstonian Heads Concern.

The transfer of the company from Frankfort to Chicago is the result of efforts by J. J. Smiley Jr., 1213 Cleveland street, Evanston, who will head the new corporation, and Stanley Corcoran, 6318 South Knox avenue, who is the designer for the concern and chief instructor of the soaring schools. Corcoran is one of the country's outstanding soaring pilots.

For the last five months they have worked with E. P. Querl of the Chicago Association of Commerce in negotiations preliminary to the transfer of the company's shops and assets to Chicago. Querl has assisted Smiley in reaching a group of Chicagoans who have subscribed to stock. It is expected that the underwriting will be completed in the next fortnight and the first meeting of stockholders held within that period.

"This is a definite step," said Querl yesterday, "toward the Association of Commerce's objective of building up an aircraft industry in Chicago. We believe, with the men who have had the foresight and ambition to form this company, that a wave of enthusiasm for the sport of soaring is sweeping the United States along with the awakening of interest in the light airplane."

Two Types of Ships Built.

The Frankfort company is building single place and two place hulls, but only one set of wings. The wings can be locked to either type of fuselage. The two place hull has been designed so that the wings are bolted to a center section. In the case of the single place fuselage the butts of the wings meet over the fuselage. The wing arrangement gives the two place ship a greater span and consequently a greater lifting area of about three feet.

Both types are the work of Corcoran, who supervised the construction of the first series and has completed the test flying on them. On several occasions he has flown as far as 150 miles across country in the single place plane. Once he covered 202 miles. He has remained aloft, riding rising air, for periods up to 10 hours on the Frankfort, Mich., bluffs.

Plan School in Chicago.

Smiley said yesterday that the new corporation will operate one school at Chicago and one at Frankfort, Mich. Corcoran and other soaring experts have pronounced conditions around Chicago virtually ideal for cloud or "thermal" soaring. The sponsors of the new concern predict that new cross-country and duration records will be established here during the summer.

The Frankfort school will be conducted at the Frankfort airport and along the steep dunes that provide perfect conditions for slope soaring. The Franfort school trained 12 Civil Aeronautics authority flight students last summer, and it is hoped that more students for both schools will be authorized by the CAA this year.

Ex-Gov. Lowden's Daughter to Wed

[Scott Seegers (Bermuda) Photo.]

Announce Betrothal

Oregon, Ill., May 4 [Special].—The engagement of Mrs. Frances Lowden Drake to marry Frederick Wierdsma of New York in July was announced today by Mrs. Drake's father, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden, at his farm near here.

Wierdsma, whose family lives in Holland, is manager of the Holland American Steamship lines for the United States and Canada, with headquarters in New York. The newlyweds will live in New York.

Mrs. Drake was divorced in Waukegan, Ill., in 1938, from John B. Drake Jr., a member of the family connected with the Drake hotel of Chicago. Since the divorce, Mrs. Drake and her three children have been living at her Bermuda home. She is the granddaughter of the late George M. Pullman, designer of the railroad sleeping car.

Cars Collide on Road Near East St. Louis; Two Killed

East St. Louis, Ill., May 4 (AP).—Two men were killed and seven others injured in the collision of two automobiles on highway 3 just outside the city limits early today. The dead are Loy Busey Jackson, 30 years old, a refinery worker, and Willie Anderson, 40, Negro. Jackson was riding in an automobile driven by J. P. Newberry, an oil field worker. Illinois highway police reported their machine was going north on the highway and crashed into the rear of a machine in which seven Negroes were riding. Newberry and the six Negro survivors were brought to a hospital here.

COAL COMPANY OFFICE ROBBED.

STRIKE SETTLED IN HAT FACTORY AFTER A MONTH

Both Sides Agree to Terms at Series of Conferences

The strike at the American Needle and Novelty company, in which charges of violence have resulted in the arrest of a dozen men since April 3, ended yesterday. An agreement was reached after a series of conferences in the office of Sergt. George Barnes, head of the police labor squad.

The company manufactures hats at 2331 North Washtenaw avenue. It employs 150 men and women, of whom more than 100 joined in the strike called by the United Hatters, Cap, and Millinery Workers' union [A. F. of L.]. The union demanded a closed shop and wage increases of 25 per cent.

Terms Are Announced.

Terms, as announced by Attorney Harold M. Keele for the company, and Attorney Joseph Jacobs for the union, include:

The union will be sole bargaining agent for employés in the plant.

There will be a closed shop with certain exemptions such as employés in supervisory positions.

All employés will receive a 5 per cent increase in wages. On Jan. 1, 1941, skilled operators will get an additional boost of 2½ per cent. The pre-strike wages ranged from $17 to $35 a week.

A number of girls employed as table workers [unskilled] were given 30 days in which to join the union or seek other employment.

The first of three strike conferences called by Sergt. Barnes was held in the La Salle hotel Wednesday, with the next two in Barnes' office. I. M. Kronenberger, a partner, handled negotiations for the company and Sam Hershkowitz, president of the millinery unions' joint council, sat in for the striking employés. The conferences lasted a total of 11 hours.

No Bar to Prosecution.

Sergt. Barnes said there was nothing in the terms of settlement to preclude prosecution of four young men due in Boys' court May 16 for arraignment in connection with strike violence. Three members of the gang confessed to police that they threw bricks thru the windows of the home of a nonstriking girl employé. Her father was injured by one of the missiles.

Charges against eight others, accused of beating loyal employés and an independent trucker and his helper, were dropped when two of the victims refused or were unable to identify them.

Pickets and police details were withdrawn from the plant late yesterday and a few minutes later a truckload of merchandise was driven away.

Chicago Residential Builder Plans Town Houses in "Meekerville"

TACKETT BUYS SHERIDAN ROAD SITES FOR NINE

Homes Will Cost Up to $27,500.

Location of proposed nine town houses.

W. C. Tackett, Inc., Chicago residential builder, yesterday announced the purchase of a tract of land in "Meekerville," fronting on Sheridan road, Barry avenue, and Briar place, on which he intends to build nine houses. As the price range of the houses will be from $22,500 to $27,500, the investment in buildings will be about $225,000. The price paid for the land was not disclosed.

The property was purchased from Alexander H. Revell Jr. and others. Nelson L. Barnes of Sudler & Co. negotiated the sale. The land fronts 316 feet on the east side of Sheridan road from Briar place to Barry avenue. It fronts 87 feet on Briar and 100 feet on Barry.

Plans Being Made.

Plans are being completed by the Tackett architectural staff, headed by Herman H. Bruns, for the nine houses of seven, eight, and nine rooms, and with three and four baths. Architecture is to be a modern version of French and Italian Renaissance.

Some of the features in these houses will be electric auxiliary bathroom heaters and ultraviolet ray sunlight for the master bath. Baths will have vitrolite walls and mirror ceilings.

Cove lighting with transformer will be a feature of the dining rooms, giving the home owner any color or intensity of light desired. Kitchens are to have daylight fluorescent lighting.

Platted 28 Years Ago.

Each house will have a recreation room with upholstered, built-in furniture and murals on walls and ceilings. Living room, dining room, and hall will have walnut parquet flooring. Each house will have an intercommunicating telephone system.

The area popularly known as "Meekerville" extends from Belmont avenue south to Oakdale avenue and from Sheridan road east to Lake Shore drive. It was laid out as a residential development 28 years ago. Arthur Meeker built the first house. Other early builders were J. Ogden Armour, John Shortall, Boettius Sullivan, Frank Hecht, and Lester Armour.

About 14 years ago Frank D. Stout purchased all of the frontage on the north side of Briar place, between Sheridan road and Lake Shore drive, and built a stone mansion said to have cost $500,000.

The property bought by Tackett is zoned for single family dwellings and is restricted until 1965 by the Tackett organization. Construction is scheduled to start prior to June 1, with Oct. 1 occupancy planned.

Percy Wilson Sells His Dorchester Avenue Home

Percy Wilson, vice president of Marshall Field & Co., yesterday sold his 12 room residence at 4919 Dorchester avenue, lot 50 by 150, to Amanda V. Ehrlich for an undisclosed cash consideration. Willard T. Orr of the Orr Realty company was broker.

BEST & CO. TO BUILD ONE STORY BRANCH STORE IN WINNETKA

Philip LeBoutillier, president of Best & Co., New York specialty apparel store, yesterday announced that work will be started shortly on a one story building in Winnetka to be occupied by a new branch of his concern.

Designed by Burnham & Hammond, Inc., of Chicago, the new building will be on Oak street, just east of Maple, adjoining Christ church parish house. It will be 100x100 feet and will have parking space for customers. The store will be opened early in the fall.

Burnham & Hammond designed this north shore building for Best & Co. It will be of modified French provincial style, with white painted brick walls, and will be air conditioned.

Bids Show Brick House Costs Only Slightly More than Frame

The question of relative costs of brick and frame houses, discussed by builders and argued for years by advocates of both materials, has been answered in a new way by William F. Schlake, president of the Illinois Brick company.

"This week we obtained from a reliable contractor with long experience in building small homes comparative figures on constructing in Chicago or vicinity an attractive house designed for a typical family of average income and to cost about $5,500," Schlake said yesterday.

Submits Two Bids.

"We had him submit a bid for erecting the house with solid brick walls, and for erecting the same house in typical frame construction."

The bid for the solid brick house was $5,565 and for the frame house, $5,460.

"Only three items show any difference between brick and frame construction," Schlake said. "All the other costs are the same.

"For the brick house the exterior walls cost $690, or $140 more than frame, which cost $550. Exterior painting costs $85 in the brick house and $175 in the frame. Structural steel beams and lintels cost $105 in the brick house and $50 in the frame house. This makes the total extra cost for the brick house $105."

Other Items Identical.

Following are the items where the cost was identical for both brick and frame: excavating, $65; 10 inch foundation wall to grade, chimney and fireplace, $500; interior lumber, carpentry and millwork, $1,600; cellar floor and sidewalks, $120; finish hardware, $55; sheet metal and roofing, $125; lathing and plastering, $470; heating, warm air, $395; plumbing and gas fitting, $670; interior painting, $145; interior decorating, $160; electric work, $165; electric fixtures, $55; ceiling insulation, $33; glazing, $40; linoleum in bathroom and kitchen, $57.

"The first repainting of the frame house, as the estimate shows, would amount to practically the difference between the cost of the two structures," Schlake said.

"The brick house also carries a lower insurance rate than the same design with either frame or brick veneer exterior, both of which call for the same higher insurance rate."

HOUSE TO BE LOANED GLEN ELLYN INFANT WELFARE SOCIETY

Broomell Brothers, Inc., yesterday announced that one of the two houses now under construction in their Stoneleigh Park development, Glen Ellyn, would be completely furnished and loaned to the Glen Ellyn Infant Welfare society, thruout June. This organization, of which Mrs. A. H. Burton is president, will open the house to the public, charging ten cents admission, all of the proceeds going to the welfare society.

The house has six rooms and will cost $8,200. It is heated by gas. The lost will cost $2,250. It is on Turner avenue, west of Park boulevard. Stoneleigh Park is the former Overman estate, containing nine acres.

Acording to Edward W. Turk, sales manager for Broomell Brothers, work will be started on two more homes within ten days.

LOT UNDER LOOP STORE IS SOLD FOR $177,778

The land at 28-30 South Wabash avenue, 40 by 170, was sold yesterday by Edith McCormick Blaine and Harold F. McCormick, trustees of the estate of Mary Virginia McCormick, to Samuel G. Braudy, trustee of the estate of Louis C. Braudy, for $177,778. This is at the rate of $4,444 per front foot. The sale was subject to a 99 year lease dated Aug. 26, 1892, by John P. Atwater to Edwin C. Donaldson. The land is occupied by part of the Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co. department store.

The Illinois State Detective Agency, Inc., formerly at 155 North Clark, has leased space at 140 North Dearborn thru the Eiger Realty company.

Woodmen Sell Three Hotels for $730,000

The Modern Woodmen of America yesterday sold three south side apartment hotels to different buyers for a total of $730,000. Byron Cain, vice president of Curran & Cain, Inc., negotiated all the sales.

The nine story Saranac hotel at 5541 Everett avenue, containing 144 furnished units of one, two, and three rooms, was bought by the Saranac Hotel, Inc., for $385,000. The Harper Plaza, at 5129 Harper avenue, was purchased by Harper Plaza, Inc., for $165,000. It contains 90 one room kitchenettes and hotel rooms.

The Woodmere hotel, at 4641 Woodlawn avenue, was bought by Woodmere Hotel, Inc., for $180,000. According to Cain, about 20 per cent cash was paid in each deal.

FURRIER RENTS SOUTH MICHIGAN AVENUE SPACE

L. Friedman, Inc., furrier, now at 305 North Michigan avenue, in the Bell building, has leased the first floor store, basement, and second floor at 30 South Michigan avenue, for 10 years beginning Aug. 1. According to Judson F. Stone, agent for the Cyrus Hall McCormick estate, owner of the property, the lease is on a minimum guarantee and percentage basis. It is understood Friedman will move to the new location on July 15.

We helped 1200 families become farm owners last year

BY MEANS of the Opportunity Farms plan, more than 1200 families realized their dreams of owning their own farms, last year. They found it easy to buy sound, improved farms to the value of more than $11,000,000.

These are significant statistics. But even more significant is the fact that 1100 of these 1200 buyers were experienced farmers who know farms and farm values.

Farm buyers today can take advantage of the lowest prices in more than 30 years. You can buy an Opportunity Farm for a small down payment; your only payments thereafter are 6% a year on the balance. This 6% covers payments on both principal and interest.

If you've dreamed of owning your own farm, now is the time to do it. Your Opportunity Farms agent can show you how easily you can make this dream come true. Write or phone to . . .

"THINK OF IT! We have saved such a short time at Bell Savings and now we are ready to make the down payment on the home we want. A loan from Bell Savings will build it!"

WHO could be happier than the family that has saved a little money and is now ready to build or buy its own home?

Bell Savings provides every aid to home ownership. You may take your first step toward this goal by opening a savings share account here. If you have saved enough to make a small down payment or if you own your home site, a loan from Bell Savings will enable you to acquire a home.

We are always pleased to talk over ways and means with the family that wants a home. Many come to our office with little idea that they are in a position to buy or build and leave with all arrangements made to get a home at once. We invite you to call and let us show you how.

Decentralization of Chicago Warehouses Shown by Survey

LARGE BUILDINGS TO BE ERECTED IN OUTLYING AREAS

One Story Design Proves Most Popular.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Chicago's great warehouse business, one of its outstanding industrial activities, rapidly is becoming decentralized. Following the trend of residential construction toward outlying sections and suburbs, warehouses are also moving away from the central areas. More of them are being built or are planned away from the central part of the city than ever before, a survey made yesterday indicated.

Also following the residential trend away from multistory buildings, the modern warehouse is clinging closer to the ground. Most of the modern type Chicago warehouses recently built, now under construction, or planned, are of the one story type.

Cheaper to Operate.

Cheaper and larger sites are available in outlying sections, enabling the builders to spread former multistory activities into one story structures. These, authorities said, are cheaper to operate, more convenient, more accessible, safer, and not the least important, more salable.

They also are away from the traffic congested streets of the downtown area and convenient to arterial highways, an important factor in view of the truck transportation systems used so extensively by warehouses.

According to industrial experts virtually all inquiries for both warehousing and manufacturing space today are for one story structures.

Several great warehouse projects, involving investments totaling millions of dollars, now are under way or about to be started—all at some distance from the downtown district. With one exception they all are to be one story units.

$2,000,000 Investment.

This exception is the seven story building now being erected by the General Electric company covering the entire near west side block bounded by Canal, Clinton, Cabrini, and Arthington streets. It will represent a total investment of about $2,000,000.

Two other great warehouse structures are to be erected by Sears, Roebuck & Co. and Goldblatt Brothers, Inc., on land once occupied by the old Union Rolling Mill, and owned by the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation, near 35th and Iron streets, about four miles from the loop.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. is building a one story steel, brick, and concrete structure to contain 480,000 square feet, and representing a total investment of about one million dollars. It will be the largest United States warehouse of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's leading mail order house.

Plan Huge Warehouse.

The Goldblatt company recently bought 680,000 square feet at the southeast corner of Archer and Ashland avenues, northern part of the original 53 acre Union Rolling Mill site. It is understood the department store organization will erect one of the largest warehouses in the country. Most of the building, it was said, will be one story with a multistory section in front to house offices.

Another large one story warehouse to be erected outside of the downtown area on a site yet to be selected, is contemplated by Sprague, Warner & Co., food processing and distributing house. It will contain about 600,000 square feet, making it one of the largest of its kind in the country. There will be a four story tower for food processing operations that lend themselves to the gravity system.

Trend to One Story Units.

According to officials of the Clearing Industrial district, about eight miles from the loop, and the Central Manufacturing district, about four miles from downtown, Chicago's two largest controled factory areas, the trend is almost wholly toward one story warehouses and factories.

Johnson & Johnson, surgical goods manufacturing company, recently completed a large one story warehouse addition to its Clearing plant. It contains 30,000 square feet of space.

The Kellogg Switchboard and Supply company some time ago moved from a multistory building out to the Clearing Industrial district. In its new one story location the company was able to cut seventeen departments down to six.

Offsets Cost of Land.

The H. P. Smith Paper company is building a one story warehouse in the Clearing Industrial district, which will contain 50,000 square feet of space.

The J. H. Stone Box company some time ago built a one story warehouse 300 by 500 feet, containing 150,000 square feet of floor space, in the Central Manufacturing district.

Commenting on the warehouse trend toward cheaper land and lower buildings away from the downtown area, an official of a large industrial concern said: "The convenience, economy, flexibility, and safety possible in a one story building in the long run will more than offset the original cost of the larger tract of land used."

New North Shore Theater

Glencoe's second moving picture theater to be announced this spring is under construction on the west side of Vernon avenue, south of the intersection of Hazel avenue. Irving M. Karlin is architect. Thomas M. Reed, Inc., has the general contract. Its opening is scheduled for Aug. 15, according to George T. Valos, head of the Glencoe Theater corporation, owner.

Labor and Taxes Are Blamed for Home Building Cost Rise

Higher labor rates and ever mounting taxes are the two most important factors in boosting costs of home building in 1940 over 1926 levels, according to results published yesterday of a study by the Building Construction Employers' association of Chicago.

The studies are based on typical $5,000 frame and $6,000 brick residences. It was found that the frame house costs $794.92 more and the brick unit $988.25 more than they did 14 years ago.

Show Comparable Costs.

$5,000 Frame Residence.

Materials	$2,293.50	$2,340.50
Overhead and profit	763.00	883.97
Labor	1,878.00	2,217.50
Taxation:
Workmen's compensation	65.50	194.03
Sales tax	....	70.22
Social security	....	88.70
Totals	$5,000.00	$5,794.92

$6,000 Brick Residence.

	1926.	1940.
Materials	$2,598.60	$2,635.20
Overhead and profit	915.60	1,066.02
Labor	2,401.80	2,845.20
Taxation:
Workmen's compensation	84.00	248.96
Sales tax	....	79.06
Social security	....	113.81
Totals	$6,000.00	$6,988.25

"The cost of construction in the Chicago area for the type of building under consideration is today 15.90 per cent higher on the frame building and 16.47 per cent higher on the brick dwelling than it was in 1926," the survey states.

Material Cost Up Little.

"Since material costs are 2.05 per cent higher on the frame dwelling and 1.40 per cent higher on the brick unit today than in 1926, and overhead is but slightly higher, the increase can be attributed to higher labor costs and increased taxation.

"The materials in a $5,000 frame house and a $6,000 brick house in 1926 would have cost, on the average, $2,293.50 and $2,598.60, respectively. Those same materials today would average $2,340.50 and $2,635.20, a net rise over the period of only 2.05 per cent and 1.40 per cent, respectively, in spite of the absorption by the material suppliers of increased transportation costs, and increased and new taxes.

"In 1926 the cost of labor on these two types of residences amounted on the average to $1,878 on the frame and $2,401.80 on the brick. In 1940, to build these same buildings, labor would receive $2,217.50 and $2,845.20, respectively. This is an increase of 18.08 per cent on the frame and 18.42 per cent on the brick construction."

Taxes Show Biggest Rise.

The study shows the biggest percentage of increase in the cost of home building lies in the ever mounting workmen's compensation, sales, and social security taxes.

"In 1926 taxation took 1.31 cents and 1.40 cents of the building dollar on the two types of buildings under consideration," the report states. "In 1940 taxation would take 6.09 cents and 6.32 cents. This is an increase of 364.89 per cent and 351.43 per cent, respectively."

Taxation is taking a portion of the building dollar that might otherwise be available to labor, the report concludes.

IRVING PARK ROAD SALE.

Charles H. Albers, receiver, has sold to George E. Gall, president of Stereotype Equipment company, the one story building, 100 by 125, at 2815-21 Irving Park road, for $25,000, according to H. E. Schuett of Lang, Weise & Cella, who represented all parties.

LEASES SPACE FOR NEW LOOP STINEWAY UNIT

The Stineway Drug company has leased the corner store in the Westminster building, Dearborn and Monroe streets, for a term of years and will open its 24th Chicago unit in about six weeks, according to H. A. and M. A. Stine. It will be the company's fourth loop drug store. The other three are in the Field, Harvester, and Pure Oil buildings.

The Westminster unit will be remodeled and air conditioned. It will have a grill room. Roland W. Johnson of Frankenstein & Co. represented all parties.

GLENCOE WILL HAVE A SECOND MOVIE THEATER

Glencoe, which long has lacked a moving picture theater, now is to have two. Plans were announced last March for a 1,100 seat movie at the northeast corner of Scott avenue and Glencoe road. Yesterday it was reported that work is under way on a second playhouse, also to have 1,100 seats. Glencoe has a population of 6,295.

The latest picture house is to be called the Glencoe and is being built on the west side of Vernon avenue, south of the southwest corner of Hazel avenue, in Glencoe's main business district.

Will Cost $125,000.

It is owned and will be operated by the Glencoe Theater corporation, of which George T. Valos of Evanston is president. It is being built by Thomas M. Reed, Inc., of Chicago from plans by Architect Irving M. Karlin, also of Chicago. The reported cost of land and building is $125,000.

The site, 100 by 210, was bought from Merle B. Waltz and the First National Bank of Evanston as trustee. The price was not disclosed.

Valos said that the project will be the result of three years of effort to give Glencoe a theater. In the last few months a vote of residents was taken. The result was general approval of both project and location, he said. Several civic organizations also voiced their approval in letters.

Will Open on Aug. 15.

The Glencoe theater is scheduled to open on Aug. 15, Valos said. Movies will be shown each day.

Glencoe's other moving picture house will be the Glenwin, designed by Rapp & Rapp, and owned and operated by S. C. Meyers of the Teatro del Lago, Wilmette. It is just over the north Winnetka limits and derives its name from the first part of the two suburbs' names. It is reported to represent an investment of $175,000 in land and building.

It is expected to draw heavily from Winnetka, which has a population of 12,166 but no theater. Sunday movies are not permitted in Winnetka.

Ashland Block Taken Out of Receivership

The 16 story Ashland block, at the northeast corner of Clark and Randolph streets, one of the city's best known downtown landmarks, has emerged from three years of receivership. All delinquent taxes, approximating $250,000, have been paid, and $180,000 has been spent in modernization, Hugh C. Michels, who became receiver for the property in 1937 and who has been appointed managing agent since termination of the receivership, announced yesterday.

Hugh C. Michels.

In the reorganization of the property title to the building has been conveyed to the Randolph-Clark company, to be held in trust for the benefit of owners of $3,250,000 of land trust certificates, it was announced.

Occupancy Rises Sharply.

Occupancy was 78.6 per cent when the receivership was instituted. It is now 90 per cent, the highest in 14 years, Michels asserted. Resultant increased earnings have permitted the payment of 2 per cent annually on the certificates, he said.

The Ashland block was one of the loop's earliest fireproof office buildings. It was erected in 1892 from plans by the late Daniel H. Burnham Sr.

Once Home of Bank.

The building has been the home of the Hibernian bank and many other early Chicago organizations.

A few years ago the building housed 88 per cent of the city's court reporters and a large segment of the legal profession. The tenancy now is predominantly commercial, according to Michels.

REPORT FIRST TENANT IN NEW FACTORY AREA

Chicago's newest industrial area, the Montrose Manufacturing district, yesterday announced its first tenant. The G-M Laboratories, Inc., makers of electrical apparatus, bought 25,000 square feet of land, with an option on 31,980 additional, and will erect a one story plant, 142 by 119, designed by Battey & Childs, engineers and architects. It will cost a reported $75,000. Contracts have been let and the company expects to move from its present location, 1731 Belmont avenue, by July 1.

The Montrose Manufacturing district, which is owned and operated by Clearing Industrial District, Inc., extends from Irving Park road on the south to Montrose avenue on the north. It is bounded on the west by the Milwaukee road right of way and the Chicago and Northwestern R. R. on the east.

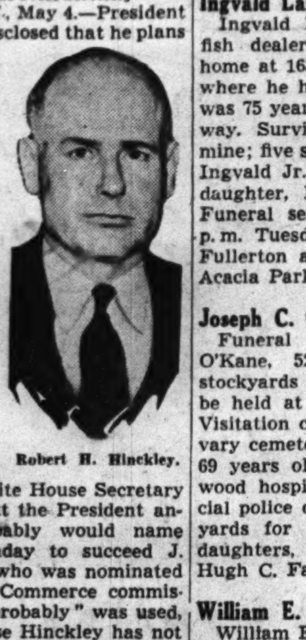
CAA HEAD TO BE REWARDED WITH COMMERCE POST

Backed Roosevelt's Plan for Reorganization.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., May 4.—President Roosevelt today disclosed that he plans to reward Robert H. Hinckley, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics authority, with the post of assistant secretary of commerce. The promotion will be in recognition of Hinckley's support of the controversial White House reorganization scheme which would shift the air unit under the wing of Secretary of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins.



Robert H. Hinckley.

Thru acting White House Secretary William D. Hassett the President announced he probably would name Hinckley on Monday to succeed J. Monroe Johnson, who was nominated to the Interstate Commerce commission. The word "probably" was used, it was said, because Hinckley has not been asked whether he would accept the commerce post.

Only One to Lend Support.

The announcement was interpreted here as a payoff for Hinckley's somewhat belated support of the reorganization plan. Hinckley's approval was reported to have been wrested from him by the President over the CAA chief's better judgment. Hinckley is the only member of the authority to support thePresident in the battle over relocating the air authority.

The controversy flared up almost three weeks ago when Mr. Roosevelt submitted his fourth reorganization plan to congress and provided that the CAA be made a bureau of the department of commerce. In this provision Mr. Roosevelt was considered to be settling an old feud with congressional leaders who took the control of the nation's airways out of the department of commerce, where it was a scandal center.

McCarran Sounds Rally.

Senator Pat McCarran [D., Nev.] father of the CAA, sounded the rallying cry for an independent air unit against the reorganization scheme. He was supported by the industry and by air minded leaders, who argued that return of the air monitorship to the department of commerce would jeopardize the nation's airways.

Mr. Roosevelt retorted that he had no intention of robbing the CAA of its independence. He insisted that he was acting merely in the interests of efficiency and was enabling the unit to function more independently than it can at present.

In the controversy members of the commission stood mute. Privately Hinckley expressed himself as against the change. Then Mr. Roosevelt turned on the glow of his personality in a White House conference last Thursday, and Hinckley distributed a prepared statement supporting the reorganization plan.

Announcement of the impending Hinckley appointment was taken here as indication that Mr. Roosevelt will use every White House wile and turn on the White House heat to the full to undermine opponents of his reorganization scheme. The President anticipates a tough congressional battle and recognizes that, as matters stand today, he is fighting a losing fight. He has hopes of turning the tide, however.

Hinckley's appointment to the commerce department will leave the CAA chairmanship open.

OBITUARIES

Roscoe Edward Davis.

Roscoe Edward Davis, 62 years old, head of the department of chemistry at Lane Technical High school since 1914, died yesterday of peritonitis in his home at 3642 North Bell avenue. He had been senior sponsor for many years and was known to thousands of Lane alumni. Mr. Davis was a member of the American Chemical society. His hobby was numismatics and he was a former president of the Chicago Coin club and former president of the Central States Numismatics society. His widow and two daughters survive. Services will be held at 5501 North Ashland avenue at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Ingvald Larsen.

Ingvald Larsen, retired wholesale fish dealer, died yesterday in his home at 1634 North Artesian avenue, where he had lived for 50 years. He was 75 years old and a native of Norway. Surviving are his widow, Thomine; five sons, Harry, Julius, Malvin, Ingvald Jr., and Thor Larsen, and a daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Andersen. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday in the chapel at 3429 Fullerton avenue. Burial will be in Acacia Park cemetery.

Joseph C. O'Kane.

Funeral services for Joseph C. O'Kane, 5218 Emerald avenue, a stockyards employé for 55 years, will be held at 10:45 a. m. tomorrow in Visitation church, with burial in Calvary cemetery. Mr. O'Kane, who was 69 years old, died Friday in Englewood hospital. He had been a special police officer in the Union Stockyards for the last 22 years. Two daughters, Betty O'Kane and Mrs. Hugh C. Fay, survive.

William E. King.

William E. King, a former resident of Wheaton, died Friday night in Battle Creek, Mich., where he was distributor for the 7-Up bottling company. ROOSEVELT PLAN TO SHAKE UP AIR BOARD ASSAILED

Attorney for Pilots Tells Perils in Program.

Attorney Daniel D. Carmell, representing the Chicago and Illinois Federations of Labor and the Air Line Pilots' association, in a radio speech last night blasted President Roosevelt's proposed reorganization of the Civil Aeronautics authority.

The President's order would abolish the air safety board, transfer its duties to the Civil Aeronautics authority, and place the latter body under control of the department of commerce. Carmell spoke on behalf of the pilots' group, which is an American Federation of Labor affiliate, urging both houses of congress to reject the proposal.

Political Grip Recalled.

"Before 1938," Carmell said, "the commerce department was in charge of air safety. Every two-bit politician who knew anybody else was able to get his friends to take care of this or that. Every time there was a fatal accident on the air lines it was always a 'pilot's error.' The dead pilot, of course, could not answer."

During the winters of 1935 and 1936, Carmell continued, 67 persons died in air crashes, and as a result the Civil Aeronautics act was passed.

One of the provisions of the act, Carmell said, was creation of the air safety board. Due largely to the work of this body, he said, a record of more than 87 million miles without a fatality to more than two million passengers was established during the last year.

Points to Death Record.

"Prior to the creation of the air safety board," the speaker continued, "that you now seek to abolish, Mr. President, one pilot was killed every 28 days and one passenger every 15 days during the entire time that the department of commerce regulated and investigated accidents.

"Do you want this condition, Mr. President, to exist again?"

Carmell denied statements attributed to the President that politics and ignorance were behind the opposition to the proposed change.

Owners and Pilots Protest.

The Aircraft Owners' and Pilots' association, with a membership of more than 5,000 flyers, has sent letters to each senator and representative in Washington protesting against President Roosevelt's proposal.

The letters praise the work of the authority and say that men of the caliber who have served on that body would not be attracted if the authority became a mere bureau under the department of commerce.

"We feel," the letters continue, "that it would simply be a case of bad judgment to wreck this outstandingly successful authority by demoting it to incompetent management and submitting it to departmental regulations which will hamper it."

An inheritance tax return in the estate of Mrs. Sarah Goodrich Farwell was filed with County Clerk J. B. Morse of Lake county in Waukegan yesterday by C. W. Furlong, representing the executors. Mrs. Farwell was the widow of Maj. Granger Farwell, banker and broker. She died July 13, 1939, in her home at 770 North Sheridan road, Lake Forest.

The tax return sets the gross estate at $530,873, of which $105,966 went for debts and expenses, including federal taxes of $73,570. This leaves a net estate of $424,907, on which the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company estimates there is due a state inheritance tax of $6,474.

The bulk of the estate is divided almost equally among five daughters. Each will get about $75,000. Other bequests are left to grandchildren, nephews, and nieces.

MRS. MARS, DERBY REGULAR, ILL AS COLT WINS

CUB HOMERS BEAT GIANTS; SOX WHIP YANKS, 10 TO 3

TODD, LEIBER STAR AT BAT IN 3 TO 2 TRIUMPH

French Gets Decision Over Hubbell.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The home run ball as thrown by the venerable Carl Hubbell, who in his palmier days didn't fool around with such hazardous items, was put to profitable use yesterday by the Cubs, who for three days had done nothing more than talk about the weather. Two of Gabby Hartnett's warriors—Al Todd and Hank Leiber—located the home run ball in Hubbell's assortment and the discoveries led to a 3 to 2 triumph over New York's Giants in the one game series.

The home run smashes, one into the seats and the other out of the park, were particularly helpful to the 1940 record of Larry French, who, altho missing out on his third whitewash performance of the year, got himself into that style of pitcher after a shaky start. The New Yorkers gave him the works in the first two innings—five hits—but just when they were beginning to suspect they had him on the ropes he bounced back to do a three hit job in the last seven innings of his third victory in the infant campaign.

The victory lifted the Cubs into third place in the National league standings and dropped the Giants to fourth.

Carl Is Still Tough.

It was a good thing that Todd and Leiber made their discoveries because outside of these two happenings Hubbell was a tough opponent. The Cubs frisked him for only six hits, four of which were shared equally by the home run producers. Three passes also were mixed in the Cub attack, but the three men who scored were the only Chicagoans who traveled beyond second base and only two others went that far, one on an error by Nick Witek when he threw wild attempting a double play in the first inning. French was even better than that. The Giants didn't see second base after the second inning.

Todd made his first contribution in the second inning, thus cutting in half the early two run lead taken by the enemy. He was up again in the fourth and with a mate on first singled him to third, whence the latter scored the tying marker on an infield out. In the four remaining innings Leiber was the only Cub able to make an impression on Hubbell. Hank hammered his homer into the distance in the sixth, a blow which proved decisive, and in the eighth he singled but was doubled trying to steal while Hubbell was hanging a strikeout on Bill Nicholson.

Giants Waste Hits.

The Giants injected a lot of life into the first inning but, even with the three hits on which they teed off against French, couldn't get more than one man across the plate. Moore set the pace by doubling to left with one out. Demaree hit a bounder in front of the plate and by the time it descended into French's hands, the ex-Cub was safely on first, Moore going to third. Ott popped to Herman but a moment later Danning singled and Moore sprinted home. Young grounded to Cavarretta.

The second inning might have been worth more than one run to the Giants if they had exercised ordinary patience. Jurges led off with a single to center. He started to steal second, turned back toward first and was nailed. Then Witek walked and was bunted to second by Hubbell. Whitehead clipped a single into center and took second on Galan's throw-in, which was too late to keep Witek from scoring. This little disturbance

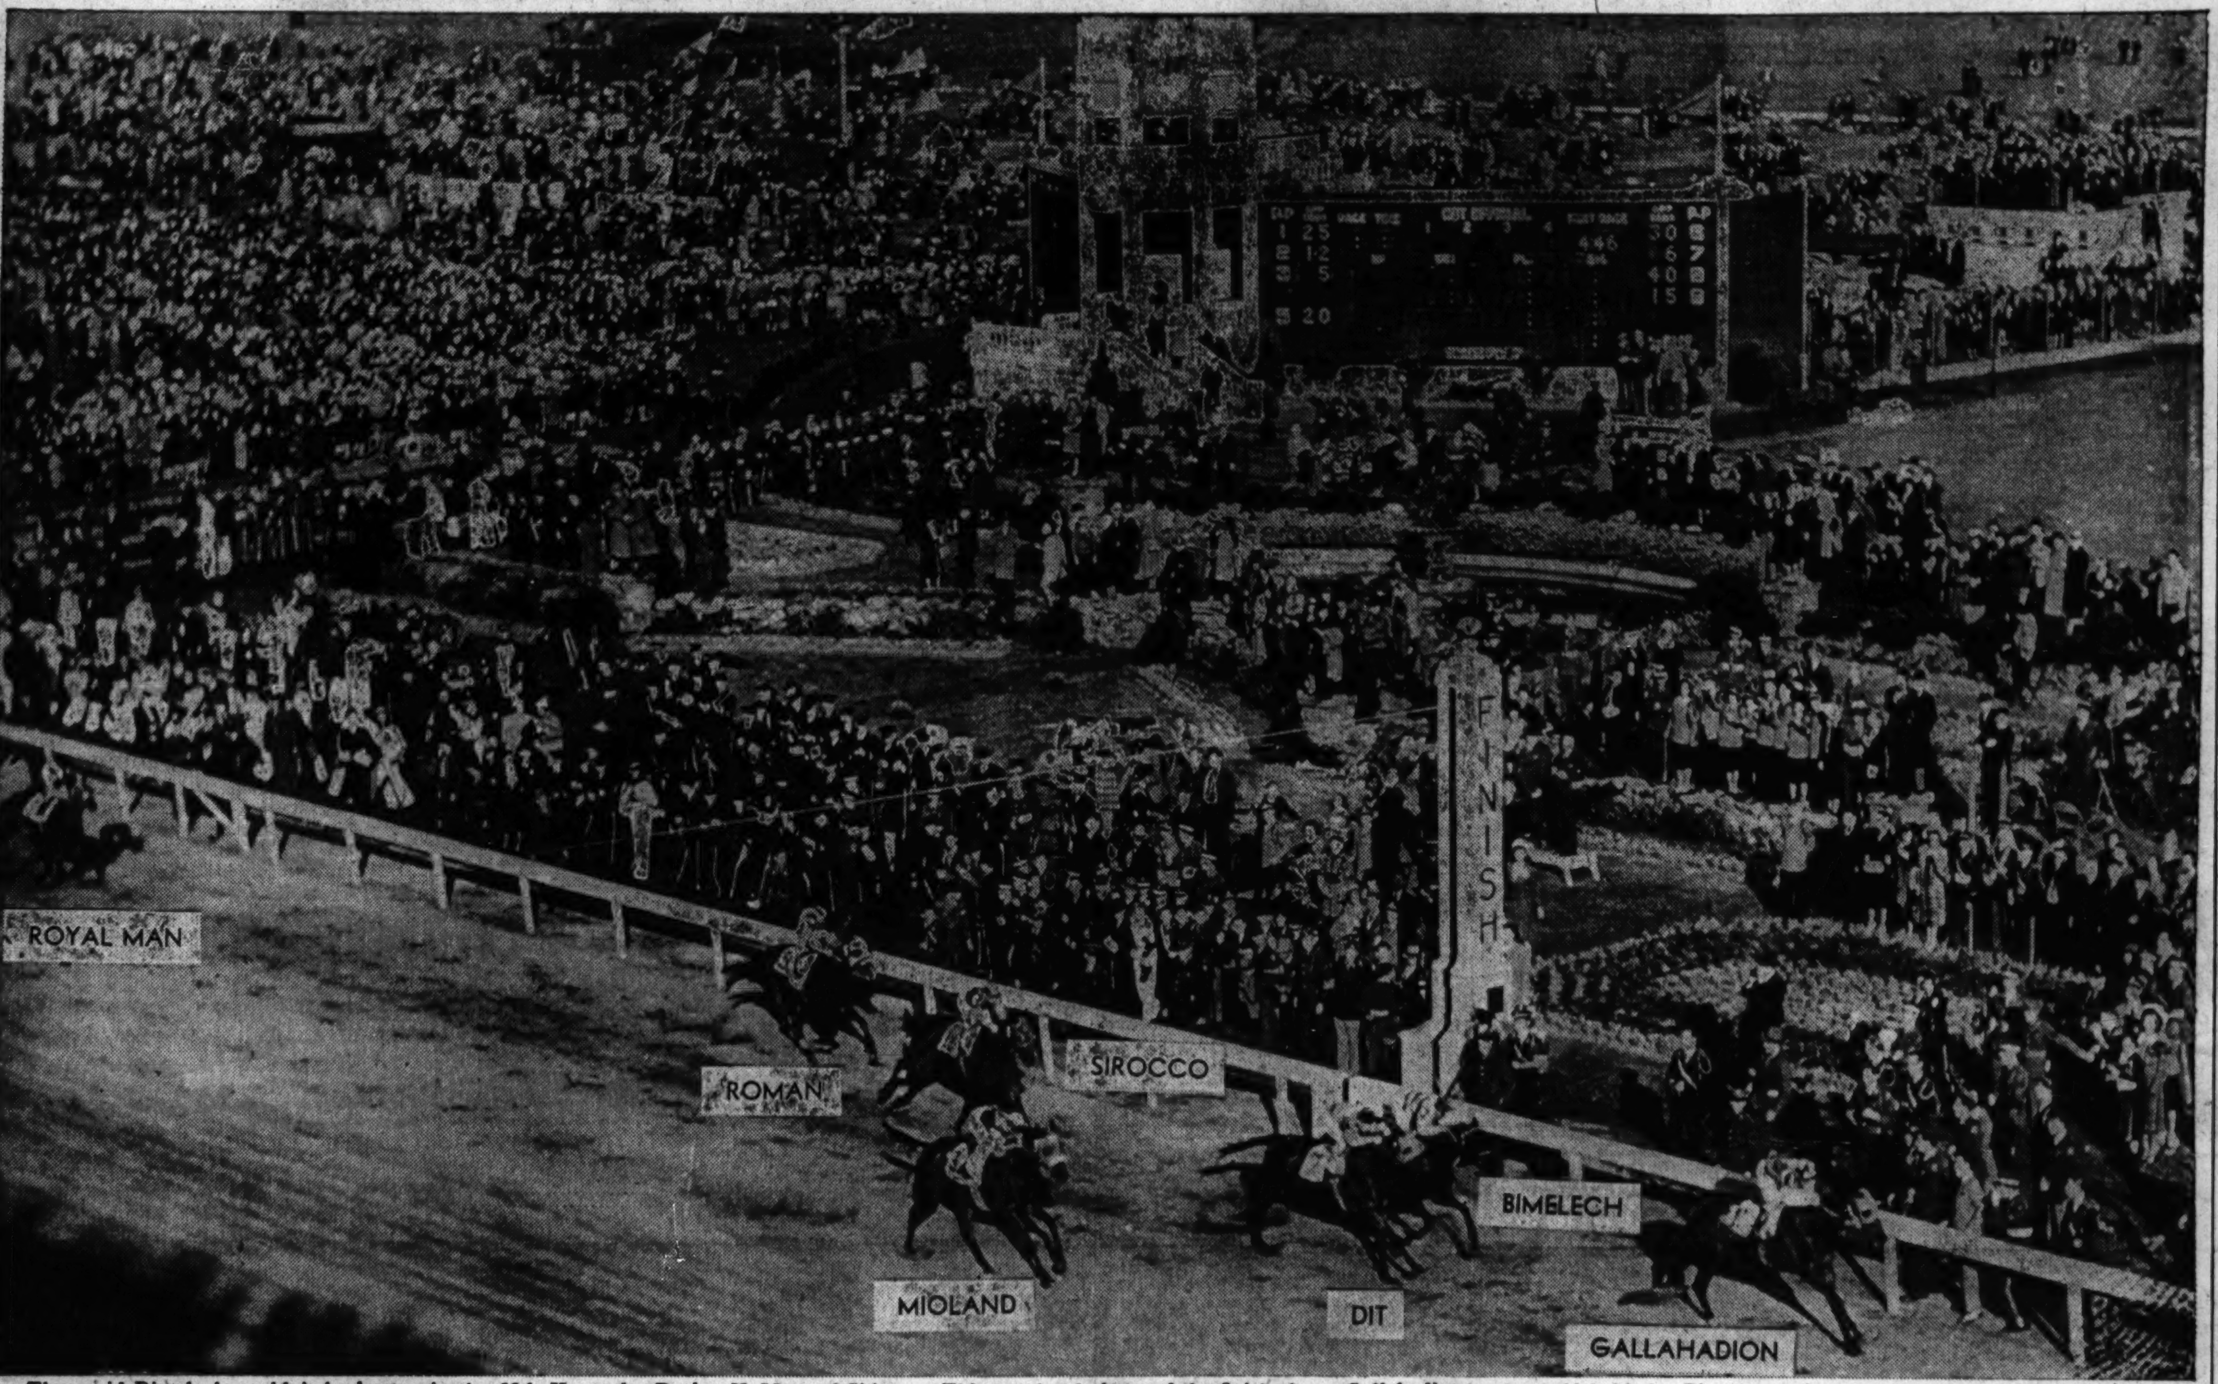
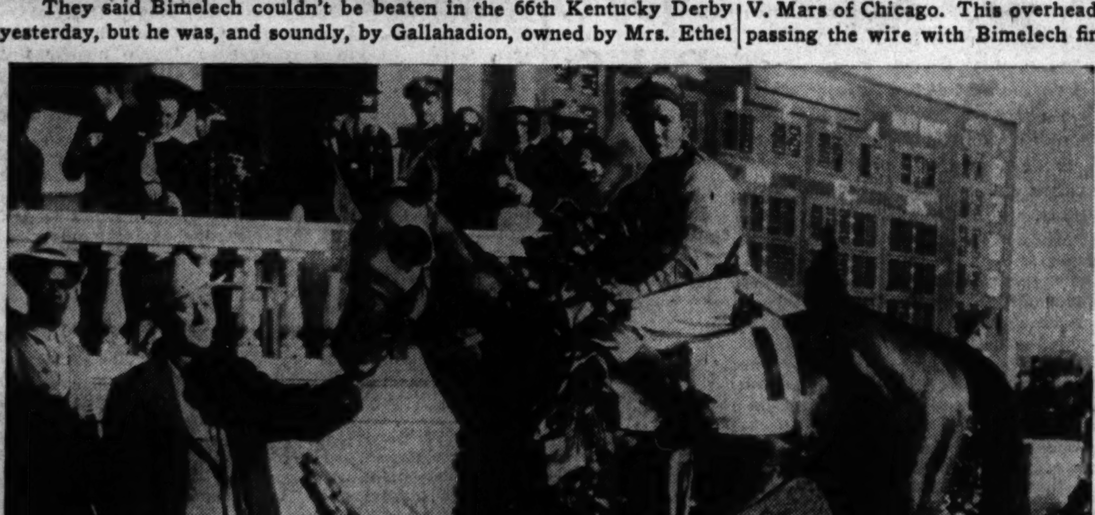
LONG SHOTS WIN IN THE DERBY, TOO—GALLAHADION, $72.40!



They said Bimelech couldn't be beaten in the 66th Kentucky Derby yesterday, but he was, and soundly, by Gallahadion, owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars of Chicago. This overhead photo of the finish shows Gallahadion passing the wire with Bimelech finishing second and Dit third, a length and a half behind. Pictor was just too late to get in picture.

[TRIBUNE-Associated Press Wirephotos.]



Gallahadion poses proudly in the winner's circle with the traditional blanket of roses after his Derby victory. The gentleman holding the bridle is Trainer Roy Waldron and the jockey is Carroll Bierman.

KUHEL HITS TWO HOMERS AS SOX BEAT YANKS, 10-3

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 4.—Lefty Thornton Lee, Joe Kuhel, Julius Solters, and other White Sox boys showed the jittery Yankees no mercy today as they plastered the world champs, 10 to 3, in the final of the two game series.

It was the fourth victory of the season for the Sox, who remained in last place, but, they are confident, not for long. It was the second victory for big Thornton, who whipped the Indians in Cleveland April 26, 11 to 1. Today Lee did not give up a run until his associates had given him a 4 to 0 lead and the two other Yankee runs were produced after the Sox had built up a 10 to 1 edge.

Solters Starts Hitting.

Joe Kuhel knocked two homers, his fifth and sixth of the season. The first was off Steve Sundra in the first inning, the other off Oral Hildebrand in the eighth. They brought his total to three for the two game series here, and four for the last three games.

More encouraging than Kuhel's long swats, perhaps, was the fact that Solters made four hits in five times at bat. Everybody, including Julius, has been worrying about his slump. So all of the Sox party was happy at the way he was busting them today.

Mike Tresh made three hits in four times at bat. All the Chicagoans made at least one hit except Bob Kennedy and he was brutally robbed twice on circus catches by Frankie Crosetti and George Selkirk.

All Look Alike to Sox.

Sundra was the starting pitcher and the Sox made four runs off him before the second putout of the game. Sundra is the gent who last year won 11 victories before he suffered his first and only loss. Succeeding Sundra were Bump Hadley, Hildebrand, and Lee Grissom, all of whom contributed to the Chicago total of 15 hits.

By winning today the Sox equaled their last year's accomplishment in Yankee stadium. They beat the Yanks on their home grounds just once and three times in Chicago in 1939.

The Sox would have liked it very much had Sundra stuck around longer. He certainly was a tonic for sick batting averages. With one out Kuhel warmed up with a smack that had the dimensions of a homer, but was slightly foul. This gave Steve no

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 4.—Blond Carroll Bierman, who ranked 29th among the nation's jockeys on a basis of winners in 1939, is the toast of the country tonight. . . . Trainer Roy Waldron and most of the 85,000 spectators gave him credit for the victory of Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Gallahadion in the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs this afternoon. . . . He knew his mount's potentialities and he judged the pace expertly. . . . "We caught Bimelech between the eighth and sixteenth pole," he told a battery of turf writers after the presentation ceremonies, "and there was no doubt of the order of finish thereafter." . . . Never farther back than fourth, Bierman and Gallahadion made their move coming around the last turn heading into the stretch. "We looked Bimelech in the eye as we reached the sixteenth pole and from there on it was just a ride," he said. "Gallahadion had plenty left and I don't think Bimelech could have caught us if we had raced all the way to Chicago," he grinned. . . .

Bierman, who was born in Centralia, Wash., in 1918, has lived in St. Louis for several years. . . . "I am particularly happy because my brothers, Edward and Lawrence, and my sister, Dorothy, saw me ride a Derby winner," the jockey beamed. . . . "What are you going to do tonight?" a reporter inquired. . . . "I'm gonna go home and go to bed," was his answer. . . . Bierman last year won 96 of his 622 races. . . . Horses which he piloted to the finish wire earned $169,575. . . . He joined the Milky Way farms last winter when Jockey Alfred Robertson left Mrs. Mars' employ to join Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's Brookmeade stable. . . . He had a leg up on Viscounty, which finished fourth in last year's Derby.

Trainer Waldron was overjoyed at the outcome of the race. . . . He begged reporters to let him go after he accepted the gold cup, emblematic of victory, from the hands of William E. Smith, Kentucky racing commissioner. . . . "I've got to get back to the barn to help cool Gallahadion out," he explained. . . . "Man, I feel great!" he shouted as he streaked across the infield in the direction of the Milky Way farm's stables. . . . Mrs. Mars was undecided whether to start Gallahadion or Tough Hombre in the big race. . . . She assigned the responsibility to Waldron, who ruled in favor of the former after his showing in the Derby trial Tuesday. . . .

Kentuckians, who had bet their tobacco plantations, coal mines, and famous breweries on Bimelech, superhorse of the Blue Grass, were stunned when Gallahadion pulled away in the last furlong. . . . "There's something wrong with Bimelech," they consoled one another. . . . "He couldn't lose to a horse that required 2:05 to complete the route, if he were right," they philosophized. . . . E. R. Bradley, who was seeking his fifth Derby victory with Bimelech, was unable to attend the race. . . . Eighty years old and in delicate health, he was ordered to follow the Derby by radio. . . . No. 2, the post position Bimelech drew for today's race, apparently is his jinx number. . . . The only trouble he ever had winning until today was in the Hopeful Stakes at Saratoga last August when, running from the same GALLAHADION, away well from his inside position, held a contending position while saving ground, moved forward with BIMELECH, responded to strong urging when wearing down BIMELECH, drew out to a good margin but won with nothing left. BIMELECH was the first in motion, lost ground thruout, moved into command nearing the final quarter, bore out on the stretch turn, held on to the lead under strong handling but was unable to hold the winner. DIT, steadied along early, improved his position on the outside, was forced wide entering the stretch, but held on well under good pressure. MIOLAND, unable to improve early position, responded after reaching the stretch and finished strongly. SIROCCO was unable to improve his position during the opening mile, was put to strong handling in the drive and weakened near the end. ROMAN established a good early lead, held command under light urging, gave way when BIMELECH challenged, and tired rapidly after a mile. ROYAL MAN and PICTOR raced well back and were unable to improve their positions when called upon.

Armour Tech Golfers Win from Bradley Tech

Armour Tech golfers defeated Bradley Tech of Peoria, 13 to 5, yesterday at the Southmoor club. Melvin Korrell, Armour, 40—39—79, and Bob Derngen, Bradley, 41—38—79, had low cards.

Prep Baseball Games in Suburban Race Postponed

The two games in the Suburban High School Baseball league, scheduled for yesterday, were postponed. Waukegan and Oak Park will play May 25, and Evanston and New Trier May 23.

The happiest lad in the country yesterday must have been Jockey Carroll Bierman, who rode Gallahadion to victory. He points proudly to the No. 1, which also indicates how he finished.

HAD FAITH IN GALLAHADION FROM THE FIRST

Praises Jockey and Trainer Waldron.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Propped up in bed 325 miles from the tumult and pageantry that is Louisville on Derby Day, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars yesterday attempted to continue her recovery from a four weeks illness in her River Forest home while her Gallahadion went forth to meet the mighty Bimelech.

But before the radio announcer's voice had reported the horses at the post, Mrs. Mars gave it up as a bad job and surrendered herself to the prevailing excitement.

In the company of her daughter, Mrs. Allen Steeney of Pulaski, Tenn., and her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Kruppenbacher of River Forest, Mrs. Mars grew tense and quiet as the quarterly calls were shouted into the microphone and nearly fainted when the colt Gallahadion's nose went under the wire at Churchill Downs, the winner by a length and a half.

Proud of Jockey, Trainer.

"I'm thrilled to death," she said later in a telephone interview. Reporters and photographers have been barred from the Mars home until Tuesday. "I've always wanted a Derby victory. I think the boy [Carroll Bierman] gave him an excellent ride and I am very proud of the trainer [Roy Waldron.]"

Mrs. Mars appeared slightly put out at the suggestion that Gallahadion's victory was an upset.

"Certainly I expected him to win!" she said with finality. "I have always been very confident of Gallahadion. I liked him when I bought him; I liked him as a 2 year old and I liked him in the Derby."

May Run in Preakness.

Friends confided that Mrs. Mars was so sure Gallahadion would win that she had placed a bet on him. They did not divulge the amount, but it was a happy family gathering that anxiously waited for Waldron and Bierman to phone from Louisville last night.

At the Mars residence it was said no definite arrangements had been made as yet, but it was thought Mrs. Mars would ship Gallahadion to Pimlico for the Preakness next Saturday.

Yesterday was the first time in eight years Mrs. Mars has not been at Churchill Downs for the Derby and the sixth time she has started horses in the rich event. Her Reaping Reward finished third in 1937 and Whiskolo was third in 1935. Other Milky Way farm Derby entrants failed to finish in the money.

HARVARD CREW WINS 4TH TIME OVER 2 RIVALS

Princeton, N. J., May 4 (AP).—Harvard's favored crew of veterans outsped M. I. T. and Princeton over Lake Carnegie today to win the Compton cup for the fourth successive year. The Crimson finished two boat lengths ahead of M. I. T. in 9 minutes 39 and 6-10 seconds.

Harvard also won the junior varsity competition.

Boys Fail, So Girl Pitches for Prep Team (40 to 4)

Kettle Falls, Wash., May 4 (AP).—Northport High school gave all it had but lost its ball game with Kettle Falls, 40 to 4. The Northport coach sent every boy on the bench into the pitcher's box in a futile effort to hold down Kettle Falls. The game was called at the end of the seventh because the last Northport pitcher—a girl—was getting tired.

RED SOX OUTHIT, 11-6, BY BROWNS, BUT WIN, 4 TO 1

Galehouse Is Effective with Men on Base.

Boston, Mass., Ma. 4 (AP).—Boston's Red Sox hit lightly but effectively today to give Pitcher Denny Galehouse his first victory, a 4 to 1 triumph which swept a two game series with the St. Louis Browns. Bob Harris and Johnny Niggeling limited the Red Sox to six hits, but five of the blows figured in the scoring. The Browns hit hard, but Galehouse kept the blows well scattered and in only one inning did the St. Louis team bunch enough hits to score.

ATHLETICS, 14; TIGERS, 5.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 4 (AP).—With his mates getting 17 hits off three Detroit pitchers, including two home runs, Johnny Babich won his third victory today as the Philadelphia Athletics whipped the Tigers, 14 to 5. Bennie McCoy sparked a third inning drive which netted six runs when he hit a home run with two men on base. Freddie Hutchinson was replaced on the Tiger mound in the third by Dizzy Trout, who gave way to Tom Seats in the fifth. Catcher Frank Hayes of the A's had a perfect day at bat with three singles and his third home run of the year. Score:

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—Collecting 13 hits off three Washington pitchers, Cleveland registered a 12 to 4 victory over the Senators today. Second Baseman Ray Mack sparked the attack with a 420 foot home run into the center field stands with nobody on base in the sixth inning, but five Washington errors contributed heavily to the scoring.

Cleveland chased Ken Chase from the mound in the sixth and continued to slam Bucky Jacobs and Gilberto Torres for five runs in the eighth. Score:

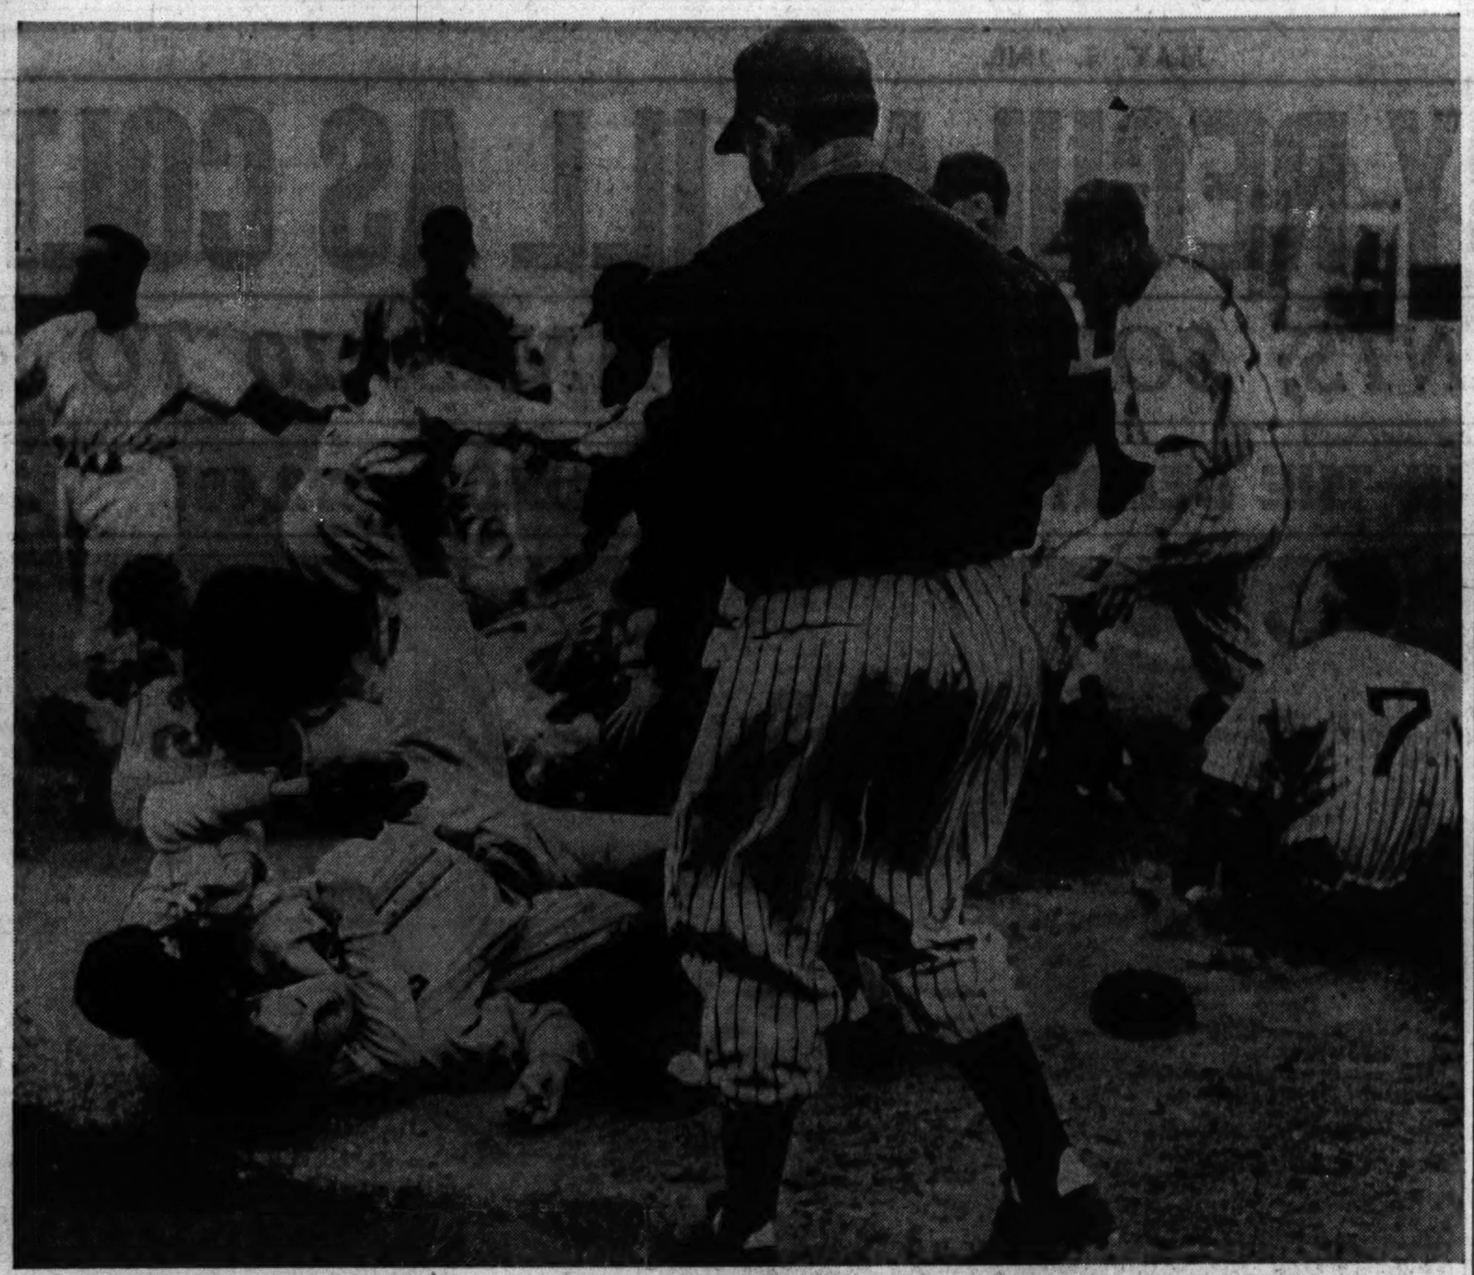
A FREE-FOR-ALL AND ONLY ONE BANISHED



This is what Walker Cooper, Columbus catcher, started yesterday by taking a punch at Gerald Priddy, Kansas City second baseman, in their American association baseball game. Cooper was banished after the free-for-all. That's Manager Bill Myer (No. 7) of Kansas City sitting down. Cooper and Priddy are somewhere in the pile-up under Manager Burt Shotton of Columbus (in background), waving his arm at umpire.

Mike Kreevich followed with a line single to left, after which Taft Wright singled to right, putting Kreevich on third. When the ball got away from Charley Keller, Kreevich ran home and Wright advanced to second. Luke Appling walked, then Solters banged his soundest hit of the season, a double to the 402 foot marker in left, scoring Appling and Wright. Sundra was chased at this juncture and Hadley came on the scene. Crosetti tossed out Eric McNair, Tresh walked and was forced by Lee.

The first hit off Lee was a single by Buddy Rosar with one out in the second inning. Joe Gordon executed his first strikeout, but as he did so Rosar stole second. Lee and Tresh thought they had Tommy Henrich struck out, but they weren't supported officially in the theory and Tommy doubled to left, scoring Rosar. Kennedy knocked down Babe Dahlgren's smash headed for left field and Henrich had to stop at third and Dahlgren at first. Hadley forced Dahlgren.

That Big Seventh.

Here's the detail of the way the lads knocked out Hadley in the seventh: Lee opened with a double to left and Kennedy walked on four pitches. Kuhel struck out, but the bases were loaded when Red Rolfe made a bum throw to second on Kreevich's double play ball. Wright singled to right, scoring Lee and Kennedy and putting Kreevich on third. Appling singled to right, scoring Kreevich and putting Wright on third and Solters singled to right, scoring Wright and putting Appling on third. Hildebrand replaced Hadley and McNair singled to left, scoring Appling. Tresh beat out a slow roller to Rolfe, but Solters became confused near the plate and turned back while Rolfe was making a belated throw to first. In the base running mixup which ensued, Solters was run down, McNair reaching third and Tresh second. Lee, up the second time in the inning, grounded out to Gordon.

The eighth produced Kuhel's second homer and the threat of some fist fighting. Kennedy walked, but was caught stealing. Then Kuhel smacked his homer. Hildebrand, long one of the outstanding soreheads of the American league, tried twice to hit Kreevich and Mike countered by bunting down the first base line in an attempt to get Hildebrand to cover first so he could bump him. There was a challenge at the base, but Umpire George Moriarty halted possible fisticuffs. Wright bounced to Dahlgren and Hildebrand, obviously alarmed at covering first in the fear that Wright might carry on for Kreevich, dropped Dahlgren's toss. Gordon, however, threw out Appling.

Yanks Attempt Rally.

It was just as well that Lee had a 10 to 1 lead going into the home eighth, otherwise disastrous panic might have been set off. As it was the Yanks made two runs and had the bases full before the first putout was accomplished. Buster Mills, who joined the Yankees today, batted for Hildebrand and singled to center. Crosetti walked and Rolfe doubled to right center, Mills scoring and Crosetti stopping at third. Selkirk singled to right, Crosetti scoring and Rolfe stopping at third. Keller walked, loading the bases. Then Rosar fanned, Gordon fouled to Kennedy and Appling threw out Henrich.

Raceway Park Opens Midget Events May 18

With drivers from five states listed to compete, the outdoor midget auto racing season will be ushered in with an eight event card at Raceway Park, 129th street and South Ashland avenue, Saturday night, May 18, it was announced yesterday by Robert G. Lundgreen. The quarter mile oval is the longest dirt track in the Chicago area devoted to midget competition. The track has been resurfaced and otherwise improved.

Baseball Fans in Kansas City See Real Fight

Kansas City, Mo., May 4 (AP).—The Kansas City Blues beat Columbus today but fans got a bigger kick from a threatened free-for-all fight than from the 10 to 0 score.

In the sixth inning, Gerald Priddy, Kansas City second baseman, had been sent to the ground by one of Frank Melton's fast balls and his comment brought a blow from Walker Cooper, Columbus catcher.

Even Manager Bill Meyer of Kansas City joined in the fray. He got in a swing, then tripped and found himself flat on the seat of his pants. At one time almost everybody in the near vicinity was on the ground. Manager Burt Shotton of Columbus was down struggling to separate his catcher and Priddy.

Priddy was strongly inclined to continue the battle over the persuasions of fellow players and umpires. Three policemen arrived but by that time angers had cooled and the two belligerents had shaken hands.

Priddy received a small welt under one eye and Cooper was marked about the face. The latter was ejected from the game.

2 Cub Homers Beat Giants, Hubbell, 3 to 2

The Cubs ripped off three hits in a row in the second inning but they were produced in the wrong order, hence the dividend was only a lone run. After Nicholson had been thrown out and strikes had returned Cavarretta to the bench, Todd hit his homer into the left field bleachers. Then Mattick and French dispatched singles into right, putting the matter of further run production in the hands of Hack. The latter tapped gently to Hubbell for the third out.

A pass, gratefully accepted by Cavarretta with one out in the fourth, put the Cubs on the road to the tying run. Todd singled to center, Cavarretta sprinting to third. Todd was forced by Mattick, who arrived at first in time to avoid a double play, Cavarretta scoring. The Cubs didn't disturb Hubbell again until the sixth when Leiber decided something had to be done about the 2 to 2 deadlock.

Reds Win, 3-2, on Wild Pitch in Eleventh

Cincinnati, O., May 4 (AP).—Kirby Higbe, one of the Philadelphia Phillies' hard luck pitchers, spoiled a well pitched game in the 11th inning today by fumbling a sacrifice bunt and then making a wild pitch on which Billy Myers scored from second to give the Cincinnati Reds a 3 to 2 victory.

Manager Bill McKechnie scrambled the Reds' lineup with pinch hitters and runners in the ninth and Billy Hershberger singled to bring in Vince DiMaggio with the tying run. Vince was running for Ernie Lombardi, who singled. In the eleventh Myers was safe on Bragan's fumble and Higbe fumbled Harry Craft's bunt. Then, pitching to Mike McCormick, Higbe threw the ball into the screen and Myers scored.

Joe Beggs, who started the tenth after Paul Derringer gave way to a pinch hitter, got credit for his first victory for the Reds. Score:

Pitching the 13th game, McGee held the Bees to four hits, two of them doubles by Eddie Miller. The Cardinals scored their runs in the third inning, McGee driving in one run with a single and scoring another when Enos Slaughter doubled with two men on base. Score:

Cubs Option Bob Sturgeon to Jersey City

Bob Sturgeon, who from April 16 to 23 was the Cubs' regular shortstop, was released yesterday, on a 24 hour option, to the Jersey City International league team. Sturgeon was purchased last winter from the Columbus, O., team of the Cardinals' chain system. The lad's erratic fielding brought quick finish to his first big league venture.

The Phillies will be at Wrigley field today for the opener of a three game series. They'll be welcomed by Bill Lee. Hugh Mulcahy is the nominee for the Phils' mound job.

Clay Bryant, who is Diz Dean's rival for the honor of being the Cubs' No. 1 cripple, watched his mates play ball yesterday but didn't don a uniform. He underwent a tonsil job a few days ago.

The Giants couldn't agree with Umpire Ballanfant's judgment on Todd's homer in the second inning. The New Yorkers claimed a spectator had reached out and caught the ball, which otherwise would have plunked against the brick wall. The umpire was right, as usual.

Iowa City, Ia., May 4 [Special].—The University of Iowa won its second straight victory over Chicago today, 12 to 2, to retain a lead of a game and a half in the Big 9½ baseball race.

Jimmy George led the Iowa hitting parade with a triple and two singles in four trips to the plate. The Maroons, counting their two runs in the fourth inning, were able to nick two Iowa hurlers, Wendell Hill and Fred Hohenhorst, for only six hits. Five straight hits and an error gave Iowa six runs in the third inning.

It was Iowa's sixth triumph in seven conference games. Score:

The list of box seat holders at yesterday's Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs reads like a section of "Who's Who in America." In this group were (front row, left to right) Irene Dunne, film actress; Postmaster General James A. Farley, Mrs. Sam Conner, Democratic national committeewoman from Kentucky, and Lieut. Gov. Rhodes A. Myers of Kentucky. Back row: Gov. Prentice Cooper of Tennessee, Gov. Keen Johnson of Kentucky, and James Cromwell, United States minister to Canada.

Among the many Chicagoans on hand for the Derby were Federal Judge Michael Igoe and Mrs. Igoe. They were accompanied by Mrs. John J. Dempsey of Santa Fe, N. M. (right).

CHICAGO GOES TO DERBY IN ITS GAYEST APPAREL

Suits and Prints Share Color Spotlight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—Chicago put away its winter garments, donned its gayest togs, and came to the Derby today. And whether the race is called "Durby" or "Darby," its flavor would be lost without a large representation from the Windy City. The feminine delegation welcomed the 66th running of the Kentucky Derby with the fervor of true sportswomen, and their costumes were in keeping with their enthusiasm.

Seldom have women been as beautifully turned out as the feminine fans from Chicago. Apparently most of the smart money was put on well cut suits, either tweeds, plaids, or town tailleurs—while costume ensembles were backed by many conservatives. Prints were decidedly in the running—black and white, always a favorite, was noted here and there, and navy blue, as usual, was spring's own special. Gray was never more popular. A new brown, called chocolate soda by some and milk chocolate by others, depending on whether one likes one's beverage liquid or solid, also was in evidence.

Among Boxholders.

Chicagoans made up a good portion of the front row boxholders. Among them were P. H. Joyce, Edward J. Fleming, Stuyvesant Peabody, David A. Crawford, Harry H. Blum, R. J. Brooks, William F. Chiniquy, Guy Chipman, George B. Cross, C. S. Ellis, Melvin L. Emerich, P. W. Evans, C. W. Foley, J. B. Ford, R. L. Fowler, Guy H. Giles Jr., James H. Jacobson of Evanston, Ill.; Dr. Charles Lowry, Edward T. Lawless, Foreman M. Lebold, O. W. Lehmann, Horace Lindheimer, John J. Louis, and Thomas M. McHale.

Other boxholders included R. W. McIlvain, D. F. McKeown, Leon Mandel, Dr. John M. Mitchell of Evanston, Ill.; Edward J. Merkel, P. A. Nash, Dr. E. J. O'Grady, M. C. Phillips, R. S. Pruitt, Albert Sabath, Theodore T. Scudder Jr. of Oak Park, Ill.; Charles A. Legner, Sidney Sennett, William J. Sinek, and Warren Wright.

In Box Parties.

In Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore Ouerbacher's box were J. C. Hemphill of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Charles N. Seidlitz of Kansas City, and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Weicker of New York.

Mrs. Harry Olsen of Chicago was entertained by Miss Adeline L. Lauer.

In Mr. and Mrs. Walter Girdler's box were Mr. and Mrs. Keith Dunham and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haines, both of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ward and Mr. and Mrs. William Gough of Chicago were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Vawter. Mr. and Mrs. Dann Byck had in their box Mr. and Mrs. Richard Taussig of Highland Park, Ill.; Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Bloom of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crystal of Highland Park.

Mr. and Mrs. George Danforth Jr. of Chicago occupied a box with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Goun.

In Samuel Culbertson Box.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Carr Jr. of Chicago were in Samuel A. Culbertson's box. James J. Cuniffe of Chicago was with Mr. and Mrs. Martin Duffy in their box. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Butler of Chicago were in the box of Dr. and Mrs. B. L. Henderson. Sanford Otis of Chicago was in the box of Mr. and Mrs. John Mallon.

Some of the striking costumes noted were those of Mrs. Harry Olsen, who wore gray with brown accessories and sables; Mrs. Keith Dunham, in a navy blue tailored suit, white hat, and white accessories, and Mrs. Charles Haines, in a chic brown and beige redingote with sable furs and orchids.

In Black and White.

Mrs. Henry Stone was in a black and white costume with the ever popular white accessories, while Mrs. Mervyn Phillips wore a light blue tweed suit and a matching turban.

Mrs. William Gough was another in a suit. Hers was a gray tailored one, with which she wore sables. Mrs. Richard Taussig was smart in a navy blue and red costume and red hat.

Mrs. George Danforth also chose tweeds. Her suit was in blue and plum.

Mrs. Robert Carr, one of Chicago's smartest young women, wore a daring navy blue and bright green print ensemble, with a green hat and navy bag and shoes.

Mrs. Albert Butler was in gray, while Mrs. Warren Wright was another in black and white. She added a crimson hat to her Hattie Carnegie costume.

Trainer at Tanforan Picks Derby Finish 1-2-3

San Francisco, Cal., May 4 (AP).—Robert Johnson, trainer for a racing stable at Tanforan track, picked the Kentucky Derby finish, one, two, three. Johnson, one of 17 trainers and clockers asked by the Call-Bulletin to pick the outcome, was the only one who mentioned Gallahadion.

post position, he had to come strongly in the stretch to win by a neck from Andy K. . . .

Otto W. Lehmann, former president of the Arlington Park Jockey club, and Warren Wright and Leonard Florsheim, former directors, had seats near the box occupied by Matt J. Winn, president of the Downs. . . . Don Ameche, screen and radio celebrity, flew in from Hollywood at noon and joined the Elmer Laydens in a box near the finish line. . . . He expects another heir in the Ameche home about June 1. . . . The Ameches have three sons. . . . Judge Michael Igoe, like most Chicagoans, was backing Bimelech.

Bimelech was first of the Derby horses to leave the stable for the march to the paddock. . . . He wore no blanket. . . . The heavily backed favorite was escorted by Joe Harrigan, chief of detectives at Lexington, and Marvin Peake, a Churchill Downs policeman. . . . Behind Bimelech came Sirocco, led by a stable boy, and Gallahadion, the horse the betters forgot, wearing a yellow blanket. . . . Bimelech took a quick look at the crops of photographers grouped near the north rail behind the finish line, where they were receiving instructions from a national guardsman. . . . Three motor propelled harrows moved up and down the stretch smoothing the track for the big race. . . . Winn left his box 15 minutes before the Derby and crossed the track to the judges' stand with Postmaster General James Farley, Gov. Keen Johnson of Kentucky and Mayor Joseph Scholtz of Louisville to prepare for the presentation of the trophy to the winner. . . . There were more than 23,000 cars in the parking lots around the race track.

Concessionaires estimated that they sold 25,000 mint juleps at $1.25 apiece. . . . This seemed to be a gross understatement, because it was apparent that three or four rowdies who tried to crash the press box had drunk that many themselves. . . . The mutuel handle for the first six races today exceeded the figure for the same number of events a year ago. . . . Frank Ashley, who handles the loud speaker at all Chicago tracks, called the Derby. . . . The candidates were called to the track at 5:35, Chicago daylight time. . . . They paraded past the stands to the strains of "My Old Kentucky Home."

Kentucky's inviting sunshine, making up for lost time, came out enthusiastically early this morning to warm the spirits of the thousands who came to the Blue Grass country for the Derby. . . . At noon when the field went to the post for the first of the day's nine events the temperature was in the upper 50's, 10 degrees higher than at the same hour yesterday. . . . Not a cloud flecked the blue and there was so little breeze the flags in the infield were hanging limp. . . . Andy Frain of Chicago, director of the 400 ushers who handled reserved seat patrons, was at the Downs at 4 a. m. . . . He reported that the general admission sections and the lawn beside the homestretch and the infield began to fill up as early as 7 o'clock. . . . Early arrivals had breakfasts of hot dogs, popcorn, peanuts, sandwiches, and coffee. . . . Some brought thermos bottles, lunch baskets, and portable radios as standard equipment. . . . Most of them needed the radios to learn how the Derby came out, because there weren't enough points of vantage to permit a view of the race. . . .

Touts, hawkers, beggars, soldiers, sailors, newsboys, governors, United States senators, cabinet members, mayors, horse owners, glamor girls attired in multicolored springtime finery, representatives of every walk of life and every stratum of society provided a moving scene, ever shifting for a chance to get a better look at the race. . . . Attempting to absorb some of the spirit of the old south, visitors from Yankeeland, as well as natives of Kentucky, applauded "My Old Kentucky Home," "Way Down Upon the Swanee River," and other airs dear to this section played by a band of 50 pieces located near the finish line, just inside the rail. . . . Winn made extensive precautions against fire. . . . There were 125 firemen, three fire engines, and 4,600 feet of hose on the grounds to take care of carelessly thrown cigaret and cigar stubs. . . .

Andy Phillips, amiable Negro who has been decorating Derby winners with garlands of roses since Twenty Grand's victory in 1931, was on hand early to perform the ritual again this afternoon. . . . "There's an art to the job," Andy explains. "You gotta drop that wreath on easy like, 'cause some hosses are skitterish and try to shy away." . . . He said Cavalcade was the quietest horse he ever has handled after winning a Derby. . . . The wreath which adorns the victor's neck is made up of 500 Louisville grown American Beauty roses. . . . Bimelech has been an odds-on favorite every time he has gone to the post since Aug. 12, 1939, at Saratoga. . . . His longest price since that has been 3 to 5 and twice he ran at 1 to 10.

The infield presented a pretty picture with tulip beds surrounded by ornamental shrubs and blooming perennials. . . . The 45 white barns with green roofs provided a spick and span background. . . . Hundreds of youngsters were perched atop some of the stables. . . . Irvin Wiedekamp, supervisor of the mutuels, had a crew of 958 ready to meet the betting demands of the day. . . . On Derby day last year $1,674,599 passed thru the machines. . . . The heaviest handle was in 1926, when the figure was $2,096,613. . . .

Not a single jockey in today's race had been astride a previous Kentucky Derby winner. . . . Watching the event today was Charley Kurtsinger, who piloted War Admiral and Twenty Grand to victories. . . . Increasing weight prevented him from an opportunity to tie the record of three winners established by Earl Sande and Isaac Murphy. . . . William Woodward, whose Gallant Fox, Omaha, and Johnstown will live in Derby history, was not represented in today's race. . . . Joseph E. Widener, owner of Roman, didn't reach Louisville until this morning. . . . Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Howard of California, owner of Mioland, have been daily visitors to Churchill Downs all week. . . . So have Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Fisher of Detroit, owners of Sirocco. . . . Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Brann, whose Pictor finished last, to place, came over from Walkersville, Md., yesterday. . . .

Edward Fleming, Chicago coal merchant and a stockholder in the American Turf association, had Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Layden as luncheon guests. . . . Col. Philip B. Fleming, administrator of the Wage-Hour law, who for years was athletic director at the United States Military academy, was with a party that included Maj. Gen. Allen Gullion of Washington, Arthur Loew, theater magnate, and Charles Adams, owner of the Boston Bruins hockey team. . . . Miss Arline Judge, movie star recently divorced from Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn football Dodgers, had a box seat not far from Zazu Pitts. . . . The Derby was the climax of homecoming festivities for Irene Dunne, who came to her native Louisville to make an appearance at the world première of her new picture. . . . Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois Athletic commission, and James Fitzpatrick of Springfield, a member of the board, both backed Bimelech heavily to show, figuring he would pay as much to run third as first. . . . They were accompanied by Harvey Miller, president of the National Boxing association, who last night saw Sammy Angott of Louisville win a hairline decision from Chicago's Davey Day in a lightweight championship match. . . . Ray Sheehy, a member of the Wisconsin Boxing commission, also was in the party. . . .

Tad Jones, Yale football coach in the days when Old Eli was a gridiron power to reckon with, was seated with former Gov. Herbert S. Ely of Massachusetts. . . . Rod Cooper, Louisville skeet and trap shooter, bet $140 against $1,400 on Bimelech in a Cincinnati winter book, said to be the longest odds quoted on the Bradley colt anywhere.

Ten Years Ago Today—Vernon Gomez, sensational 20 year old rookie pitcher of the Yankees, pitched New York to a 4 to 1 victory over the White Sox. . . . The Edmonton Grads, a girls' basketball team, won the world's title by defeating the Chicago Taylor Trunks, 10 to 16. . . . Tony Canzoneri whipped Harry Carlton in 10 rounds in New York.

YALE OARSMEN WIN BLACKWELL CUP FOURTH TIME

New York, May 4 (AP).—Yale's greater experience carried more weight today than the superior poundage of the Columbia and Pennsylvania crews so that the Elis won the Blackwell cup for the fourth successive year. Yale finished the mile and three-quarters on the choppy Harlem river at a sweeping 40 strokes a minute beat and gave Columbia's light blues their first defeat of the season by a margin of about 15 feet. Pennsylvania finished 2½ lengths behind Columbia.

The Yale crew's time of 7:20.6 was excellent for the choppy water. Columbia was clocked in 7:21.2. The Elis and Columbia divided honors in the four race regatta. Yale took the 150 pound varsity race over the mile and five-sixteenths Henley route. The Lions won the freshman and junior varsity races, both over the 1¾ mile course.

ROSEVILLE WINS IN TRACK MEET; LEWISTOWN IS 2D

Galesburg, Ill., May 4 [Special].—Roseville High school won the 39th annual Military Tract association's track meet here today, scoring 29 points. Three hundred athletes from 17 high schools competed. Lewistown was second with 28½ and Media third with 23 points.

Two new meet records were set by J. R. Worley of Media, who won the 120 yard high hurdles in :15.3 and the 200 yard low hurdles in :23.2.

Harrison T. Ireland, Illinois Horseman, Dies

Springfield, Ill., May 4 [Special]. —Harrison T. Ireland, father of Walter O. Ireland, secretary of the Illinois Review futuries, died this week in Washburn, Ill. Like his son, he was interested in harness racing for many years. He formerly was a judge at state fair races and was active in Republican politics. Two years ago at the age of 90 he still enjoyed riding horseback on his farm.

MICHIGAN STATE BASEBALL TEAM BEATS IRISH, 2-1

East Lansing, Mich., May 4 [Special].—A long hit by Casey Klewicki with the bases full in the ninth inning gave Michigan State a 2 to 1 victory over Notre Dame today.

After Frank Kekules and Rex Ellis had engaged in a pitchers' duel for eight innings with the score tied, 1 to 1, Bill Morrison opened the ninth with a two base hit and advanced to third on a passed ball. Intentional walks to Norman Duncan and Will Davis filled the bases. Steve Jakubowski popped out, then Klewicki's hit cleared the center fielder's head. Score:

Notre Dame	010	000	000—1	6	0

Season Opens in Three-Eye League Today

Moline, Ill., May 4 [Special].—The Three-Eye league, one of the oldest class B baseball circuits in the nation, opens its season tomorrow with many new faces in the player ranks, and one new club, Madison, Wis., which replaces Bloomington.

The opening day schedule offers Madison at Decatur; Clinton, Ia., at Moline; Cedar Rapids, Ia., at Evansville, Ind., and Waterloo, Ia., at Springfield. The following week the visitors will open their home seasons at their respective parks.

Few Veterans Back.

Few of the clubs have many veterans back from last season, since the best of the 1939 crop has been advanced to faster competition. Some teams, such as Decatur and Waterloo, have almost entirely new line-ups.

Evansville is rated by the experts as the team to beat for the championship. It is packed with capable players from the Bees and the Hartford club of the Eastern league.

Raiders Are Weakened.

The Cedar Rapids' Raiders, who defend their 1939 championship, are not considered as strong as they were at the finish last summer. Springfield, which won the Shaughnessy playoffs, has lost half a dozen regulars to San Antonio of the Texas league.

The clubs, their farm affiliations and their managers, with number of years of service are:

Moline, Chicago Cubs, Mike Gazella, four; Evansville, Boston Bees, Bob Coleman, three; Decatur, St. Louis Cards, Tony Kaufmann, three; Cedar Rapids, Cleveland, Ollie Marquardt, two; Madison, Milwaukee Brewers, Mervin Connolly [last year with Bloomington]; Clinton, New York Giants, Josh Billings, first; Waterloo, White Sox, Jack Fitzpatrick, first; and Springfield, St. Louis Browns, Art Scharein, first.

Marquette and Beloit Golf Teams Tie at 9½ Pts.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 4 [Special].—Marquette university and Beloit college golf teams played to a 9½ to 9½ tie on the Westmore Country club course today. Warren Cahill of the Hilltoppers was the day's low man with a 77.

Suspend Umpire for 90 Days in Knife Incident

Durham, N. C., May 4 (AP).—Umpire Bill Wilson of the Texas league was suspended today for 90 playing days by W. G. Bramham, president of National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, "for drawing a knife during a game at Forth Worth April 25."

That is the minimum suspension period for such action, Bramham said.

With the score tied in the ninth inning, Wilson called a Fort Worth runner safe at the plate. This gave Fort Worth a 2 to 1 victory. San Antonio players swarmed in to protest and in the argument Wilson drew a knife.

GREG RICE SETS AMERICAN MARK IN 3,000 METERS

Minneapolis, Minn., May 4 (AP).—Greg Rice, former Notre Dame track star, bettered the American 3,000 meter mark in a special exhibition race at the University of Minnesota today.

He ran the distance in 8:18.9, defeating Walter Mehl, former Wisconsin athlete, who was second, and Taisto Maki, touring Finnish runner, who finished third after etting the pace most of the way. The American record, 8:26.4, was set by Paavo Nurmi.

Northwestern Tennis Team Routs Purdue, 9-0

Lafayette, Ind., May 4 [Special].—Northwestern's tennis squad swept all its matches in a dual meet with Purdue today to win, 9 to 0.

ZUPPKE'S BRUSH SWEEPS CANVAS WITH AUTHORITY

Illinois Coach's One Man Show Opens Tomorrow.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

When a football coach turns his attention from punting to painting, there is likely to be speculation on the artistry of his canvases. But capitalizing on action and mapping out wide end runs evidently has something to do with the sure sweep of a brush on canvas.

At least twenty-three oils painted by Robert C. Zuppke, head football coach at the University of Illinois, which are now hanging at the Colonial Art galleries in the Palmer House, show no timidity nor lack of artistic ability. The paintings may be seen by the public tomorrow thru Saturday at the galleries. This is Coach Zuppke's fifth nation-wide one man show.

Once Assistant Sign Painter.

In his early youth "Zup," as he is known to thousands of graduates, was an assistant sign painter. He has lost none of the bold stroke of that trade but has combined it with a love of vivid colors and an appreciation for scenic beauty.

At his last show here three years ago critics compared Zuppke's technique with that of Van Gogh. The new collection, however, includes five soft toned, gently outlined scenes that, according to George Rocheleau, manager of the galleries, are among the best he has done.

Zuppke paints quickly and splashes over everything, except the canvas. The myriad colors of an Arizona sunset or the shadow of a cactus is placed with preciseness. Subjects for his latest work are the valleys of New Mexico, the Pacific coast, the plains of Arizona, and the woodlands of Illinois.

Paints from Memory.

The artist-coach can never be found at what he calls "the scene of his crime." He paints mostly from memory and frequently from sketches. He has remembered the accurate details of a landscape over as long a period of time as 10 years.

Rising at 2 or 4 in the morning, he "putters" with oils at his farm outside Urbana until almost time to be on the football field. In summer, however, he works at his studio in the Camel Back inn at Phoenix, Ariz.

Visitors to the galleries will find no price set on any of the pictures. Not particularly interested in exploiting his talent, Zuppke gives many paintings away and frequently uses them for wedding presents to football players.

In Many Famed Collections.

It is his boast that he has had no artistic training except one summer, in 1904, at the Art institute. Yet Zuppke's works are among many famed collections, including those of George Ade, the author, and Edward G. Robinson, movie actor. Reproductions of his paintings have been seen on the covers of several of the nation's foremost magazines and in commercial advertisments for nationally sold products.

FAIRY CHANT IS 1ST BY 1½ LENGTHS IN PIMLICO OAKS

True Call Is Second in $10,000 Event.

Baltimore, Md., May 4 (AP).—Fairy Chant, a little chestnut with plenty of drive, showed her heels to 12 other 3 year old fillies in the 17th running of the $10,000 added Pimlico Oaks today.

The Foxcatcher farms' filly, favorite in the large field, thrilled the crowd of 20,000—largest of the spring meeting—by dashing suddenly to the front at the top of the home stretch and winning by a length and a half over Mrs. D. K. Kerr's True Call. Log Cabin stud's Discerning was another four lengths back in third place and a length in front of W. L. Brann's Yarnith.

Now What Is Disappointing.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Now What, last year's champion of the 2 year old filly division and the second favorite in the wagering, showed on top briefly at the half mile pole, but folded up on the last turn and finished a disappointing ninth.

The lone filly eligible for the $50,000 added Preakness Stakes to be run here next Saturday, A. J. Sackett's Hand Organ, never figured in the running and wound up seventh.

The big field got off to a pretty start and swung by the stands closely packed with an outsider, Frank Garrett's Pimlico Lady, showing the way. Pimlico Lady stayed on top around the turn and hit the backstretch a head in front of Now What.

Fairy Chant Takes Lead.

As they reached the half mile pole, Sonny Workman got Now What out in front, but the advantage was short lived. True Call took command on the turn, followed by Fairy Chant, which Jockey Ralph Neves had nursed along behind the pace. Swinging into the home stretch, Fairy Chant moved up on the outside like a bullet, passed True Call with a sudden burst of speed and stayed out in front.

Fairy Chant covered the mile and a sixteenth in 1:49 2-5 over a slow track. The winner picked up a purse of $11,525 and paid $7.80 for $2.

WISE BEE WINS

New York, May 4 (AP).—Wise Bee, only 3 year old in the field, today carried W. H. Gallagher's silks to victory in the $5,000 added Jamaica handicap, defeating six older rivals, including William Woodward's Fighting Fox.

The son of Wise Counsellor, ridden by Don Meade, broke fast, took the lead in the stretch and in a driving finish beat Red Eye from H. F. Guggenheim's Falaise stable in a photo finish. Maxwell Howard's The Chief was only a neck back for third, a length and a half in front of Porter's Mite.

Fighting Fox, 3 to 2 favorite in the pool that saw $139,547 pass thru the machines, trailed thruout after getting a bad start. Meade sent Wise Bee over the 6 furlongs in 1:12 3-5 to earn the purse of $5,050.

The Bradley Tech track team handed Armour its first defeat yesterday, 85 to 46. Robert Thacker, Bradley distance man, won top honors with places in the one-half, one and two mile runs. Capt. John Cerovski, Armour sprinter, was high for his team, winning both dashes.

Ned Day Takes 11th Place in All-Events

Detroit, Mich., May 4 [Special].—Ned Day of West Allis, Wis., anchor man of Chicago's Pabst Blue Ribbons, finished his current American Bowling congress assignment today and by turning in counts of 708 and 664 in the doubles and singles, respectively, moved to the top among the A. B. C.'s 10 year men.

Day, who after hitting only 550 in the team event two weeks ago had to postpone his other two series because of a leg infection, hit games of 235, 229, and 244 in the doubles today, then, with 664 in the singles, brought his all-events total to 1,922—good for 11th place—and his average for the 90 games he has bowled in 10 tournaments to 202.85. In so doing he passed Walter Ward of Cleveland, who had brought up his 10 year average with a 1,919 all-events total.

Get 1,243 in Doubles.

Les Fuller, Day's partner in today's doubles, got only 535, which gave the pair 1,243 or 103 fewer pins than the total of the leaders—their teammates on the Pabsts, Herb Freitag and Joe Sinke. Fuller turned in 645 in the singles.

Today's change among the leaders, the first in six days, saw Charley Rotunno of Elibabeth, N. J., roll 708 for 10th place in the singles.

GALLAHADION, CHICAGO HORSE, CAPTURES DERBY

Bimelech 2d, Dit Third; Winner Pays $72.40.

and a quarter in 2:05. The record of 2:01 4-5 was set by Twenty Grand in 1931.

Mrs. Mars is the widow of Frank C. Mars, Chicago candy manufacturer, who died in 1934. She established her Milky Way farm racing stable in 1935 and the next year was the leading money winning owner in America.

Mrs. Mars Ill, Misses Race.

By an ironical twist of fortune, Mrs. Mars, who has been present at the Derby with unfailing regularity season after season, missed her hour of triumph. She was ill in her home in River Forest. Last year and the year before she had seen her horses finish last. The season before that she sent Reaping Reward after the rich prize and he finished 3d. In 1936 her color bearer was 10th. In 1935 Whiskolo rewarded her with a 3d. finish last. The season before that her representative came in 15th. In 1936 her color bearer was tenth. In 1935, her Whiskolo finished third.

Today would have recompensed her for all those disappointments. If she had seen Gallahadion in that last magnificent drive, she could easily have forgotten those failures—but that ultimate thrill eluded her.

Bought Horse for $5,000.

The $60,150 net prize to the winner means little to Mrs. Mars in comparison to the fulfillment of her long cherished aim. For season after season she has been one of the highest bidders at the Saratoga sales, always seeking the perfect yearling which will develop into a great race horse.

Mrs. Mars paid $5,000 for Gallahadion at the Saratoga sales of 1938—and he won only $180 last season. But Mrs. Mars doesn't care now whether he won only 180 cents last season. He won the Derby today.

Gallahadion is just as true a product of the Kentucky Blue Grass as the overthrown champion, Bimelech. He was bred by R. A. Fairbairn at Fairholm farm, which is located near Winchester, Ky. His sire is the great Sir Gallahad III., whose son, Gallant Fox, won the Derby of 1930. During the intervening years Sir Gallahad's blood was carried thru Derby history by Omaha, a son of Gallant Fox. Omaha won in 1935.

A Strain of Champions.

La France, dam of Johnstown, last year's winner, is a daughter of Sir Gallahad III. This stallion stands at the Claiborne farm, operated by Arthur B. Hancock. Fairbairn owns a part interest in him. Gallahadion's dam, Countess Time, is a daughter of Reigh Count, winner of the 1928 Derby.

After his disappointing showing as a 2 year old, Gallahadion was brought to Santa Anita for the winter racing. Trainer Roy Waldron worked with him carefully. It was there he won for the first time. He scored two more victories and three second places in a total of eight starts at the California track. One of these was a $10,000 stake event at a mile. In the Santa Anita Derby he finished 13th behind Sweepida, after encountering some bad luck.

Second to Bimelech in Trial.

After leaving the west early in March, Gallahadion didn't start until the Derby trial last Tuesday. In that mile race he earned new respect by finishing second to Bimelech, a little more than two lengths behind.

Tho Gallahadion showed in that race that he was a much improved horse, he had so few backers in the Derby that he paid off at $72.40, $13.80, and $4.80 in the mutuels. Bimelech returned $3.20 to place and $2.40 to show. Dit's show price was $2.80.

The total mutuel handle for the day was $1,593,983. Last year's was $1,674,599. On the Derby, $465,149 was wagered. Last year's figures were $584,977.

The Field Is Orderly.

A fairly well behaved field lined up before Starter Bill Hamilton at the head of the stretch. After a brief delay they got away in good alignment. As expected, Roman went out to make the pace. As they came past the stands for the first time, he was leading by a length with Bimelech and Gallahadion in close pursuit. The field was well bunched going around the clubhouse turn.

As they started down the back stretch, Roman was still out in front by a length and a half with Bimelech and Gallahadion running head and head behind him. Dit, Mioland, Sirocco, Royal Man, and Pictor followed.

Roman Yields Lead.

Heading into the far turn, the Widener color bearer maintained his margin, but he was beginning to tire. Gallahadion and Bimelech still were head and head, with the others in approximately the same order they had been.

On the curve things began to happen. Bimelech and Dit moved swiftly alongside Roman, Bimelech in the middle and Dit on the outside. Bierman steadied Gallahadion and let the others go until he was straightened out in the stretch. Then he began the drive that ended in victory.

As for Bimelech, no excuses were made. He suffered no serious interference. He had racing room and was running well as the stretch battle began. He just didn't have enough in him in that last sixteenth.

HUNCH BETTERS, NOTE: ANOTHER DERBY TO NO. 1

Louisville, Ky., May 4 (AP).—For the third time in four years, the horse in No. 1 spot at the post won the Kentucky Derby. Gallahadion did it today. Lawrin did it in 1938, and War Admiral did it in 1937. Johnstown, winner last year, started from fifth position.

Chicagoans Lead for Two A. B. C. Tournament Crowns

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The Monarch Beers of the Classic league and Herb Freitag-Joe Sinke of the Pabst Blue Ribbons, also of the Classic league, are still setting the pace in the five-man and two-man divisions of the 1940 American Bowling congress tournament, the former with a count of 3,047 and the latter with a 1,346 score. If, after the remaining 150 five-man teams and 576 two-man teams have entered their scores during the next three days the Chicagoans are still out in front, they will be crowned champions, inasmuch as the tournament ends Tuesday.

Eighty five-man teams roll today and 70 more tomorrow to finish the schedule in that division, while the two-man and singles competition will continue thru Tuesday afternoon.

Monarchs Boost Own Average.

Should the Monarchs' 3,047 stand up, it will be the 17th team title for Chicagoans in the 40 year history of the congress. The last championship by a Chicago lineup was won three years ago in the Coliseum, where the Birk Brothers set up an all-time high of 3,234. In scoring 3,047 on April 13, the Monarchs, who had a five year rating of 2,965 from 1935 to 1939, second in averages to the Birks who had averaged 3,022, posted games of 996, 1,089, and 962.

Eleven other double teams have won national pin titles for Chicago, the last being Tony Slanina and Mike Straka, who scored in 1936 with 1,347, one pin more than the count shot by Freitag and Sinke on April 20.

Other Chicago entries are among the leaders in the tournament, the Schamberger Schlitzes of the North End Traveling league being sixth in the five-man section with 2,967; Henry Wester-Lee Zender fifth with 1,309 in the two-man, and Eddie Zajac seventh with 1,940 in the all-events.

Chicago Teams to Bowl Today.

Twenty-two Chicago area doubles combinations will roll today and 27 tomorrow. The Chicago five-man teams to roll today are the Ace Cartons, Pabst Blue Ribbons of the North West Traveling league, Pabst Blue Ribbon Juniors, Avenue Recreation, Fritzi Scheffs, and Samuelson's Kids of the Samuelson Major league, Hochspeie Funeral Home, Logan Square Buicks, and Garden City Brewers.

Spotting the Pins.

The Schamberger Schlitzes, working on an eight-game margin, may clinch the North End Traveling league title when they bowl the Koenig Braus at North Town at 7 o'clock tomorrow night. Other matches:

Pepsi-Colas vs. Jolly Jacks at Monte Cristo, 7 p. m.; Chapin & Gore at the De Luxe Recreation, 7 p. m.; Birk Brothers vs. Fox De Luxe at Kaadland, 7 p. m.

The standings:

	W.	L.		W.	L.
Schambergers	64	35	Koenig Brau	49	50
Budweisers	56	40	Jolly Jacks	49	50
Pepsi-Cola	56	43	Fox De Luxe	45	54
Birk Brothers	56	43	Samuelsons	37	62
Chapin & Gore	51	45	De Luxe Rec.	29	70

INDIVIDUAL LEADERS.

Ted Hjort, 208; Al Bartock, 207; Harry Ledene Jr., 207; Frank Kartheiser, 206; Leo Faets, 205; Stanley Keegan, 205.

A. Blommaert and H. Piersma, with 1,231 in the doubles, and N. Van Heusen, with 711 in the singles, won top money in the Holland-American tournament last week-end. S. Diephouse, who teamed with P. J. Klein for second place in the doubles and who took fifth with 638 in the singles, won the all-events prize, a bowling ball. . . . Harry Shay was elevated to the presidency of the Insurance league at the organization's dinner last Monday. He succeeds John Thelen. Loyalty Group won the league's title with 60 games won and 36 lost, a four game margin over London and Lancashire. Jules Sowa of the American Glass team won the individual championship with a 201-59 average.

The bowling season nears its close—see you next fall!

HE'S OUT IN FRONT, BUT NOT FOR LONG

Pat Harder of Washington High school, Milwaukee, runs the anchor leg for his team in the 480 yard high hurdles shuttle relay in the Proviso relays and is out in front all alone, since the event was run in sections against time. La Grange and New Trier, however, tied for first and second places in the races, Washington taking third and York fourth. Oak Park, winner of the meet title, was fifth in this event.

Oak Park, state track and field champion, won the third annual Proviso High school relay carnival in Maywood yesterday, scoring 44 32-45 points. Proviso was second with 41 21-90.

Five records, three in the open class, were established.

New Trier lowered the two mile relay record to 8:27.2, beating its own mark of last year by one second. Oak Park took two-tenths off the 440 relay mark, being clocked in :45, and the 880 yard time was bettered by Highland Park by two-tenths, the new record being 1:33.2.

Four individual records were added automatically in the pole vault, 480 yard high hurdle shuttle relay, shot put and discus throw, new events in the meet. Sabin of La Grange heaved the shot 54 feet, 7 inches and Kalchik, Washington of Milwaukee, threw the discus 154 feet, 10 inches, for the outstanding individual performances. Summaries:

OSCAR GRIMES IS PROGRESSING AFTER INJURIES

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—Dr. Edward Larkin, physician for the Washington Baseball club, said today that Oscar Grimes, Cleveland utility infielder, was "progressing satisfactorily" after suffering injuries yesterday when he was struck in the face by a batted ball.

Mills, Coals Open Semi-Pro Season Today

The Colored All-Stars, Illinois state champions last year and the Indianapolis Kingans, Indiana state champions for the last two seasons will open Chicago's semipro baseball season against the Mills and Spencer Coals this afternoon.

The All-Stars will play the Mills in a double header in Mills stadium, 4700 West Lake street, and Indianapolis will meet the Coals in two games in Spencer field, 4200 North Central avenue. First games start at 1:30 o'clock.

The Mills have added reserve strength for this year's campaign. Bill Harley, manager of the Mills, has signed Al Lecomte, right handed pitcher, and Howard Berg, former University of Illinois pitcher as well as several other players.

The Mills lineup for today's games will include most of last year's regulars. The regulars include Nick Polly, former Brooklyn Dodger third baseman; Joe Rezo, who has had several years of minor league experience; George Calthamer, former White Sox catcher; Dock Chandler and Gene Rye. Berg and Jake Hautekamer have been nominated as the opening day pitchers.

Newcomers in the Coals lineup include Joe Zentura, Mike Poslak, Joe Dooley, Red Lindzl and Slim De Lion. Dooley is a former Philadelphia Phillies outfielder. The regulars include Bill Grandboise, Hal Mossman, Joe Desirardo, Bill [Lefty] Stevens and Mike Yarros. Stevens, a consistent winner last year, will work the first game. Yarros will pitch the second.

HAMMOND HIGH WINS PREP TITLE; 2 MARKS BROKEN

Froebel Loses Conference Track Championship.

Elkhart, Ind., May 4 [Special].—Two records were broken as Hammond rolled up 79¼ points to win the annual Northern Indiana high school conference track meet on Rice field today. Froebel of Gary, defending champion, was second with 64 points and Horace Mann of Gary third with 41 points.

Davidge Minor, Froebel's Negro high jumper, cleared the bar at 6 feet, 3¼ inches for a new conference record. The previous mark was 6 feet, 3 inches, set by Gracin of Froebel in 1933. The Hammond half mile relay team accounted for a new mark in covering the distance in 1:33.2, clipping eight tenths of a second off the old mark of 1:34 set by Froebel's team in 1931.

Robinson of Froebel was high point man, winning the century in 10.4 seconds and the 220 in 22.4 for 10 points. He was the only double winner of the afternoon. Robinson set a new field mark in the 220, the former record being 22.5, set by Parmater of Elkhart in 1931. Summaries:

Dr. Smith Gets Around—the Golf Courses!

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Most American golfers are content to play the game on one or two favorite courses thruout a single season, but not so Dr. C. Enion Smith, Chicago physician and surgeon. The physician has the unique record of having played rounds on every golf course within 125 miles of the loop, a feat which has required him these last five years to complete.

Dr. Smith, who is a member of the Medinah Country club, reckons he has played 535 courses in the 15 years he has taken part in the game, and of that number he has traveled more than 350 of them in the aforesaid 125 mile area. The farthermost points in the radius, he says, are Bloomington, Ill.; West Bend, Wis.; Freeport, Ill., and Lafayette, Ind.

What prompted him to make these one-man hegiras to Chicagoland fairways?

It's a Hobby with Him.

"Well, I suppose you'd call it a hobby one might take up, like anything else," is his answer. "Variety, naturally, was my first objective. But as I began to make these trips, I realized that they improved my mental attitude, also. I always have been a firm believer in the physical benefits of golf. I began to find that playing alone, as I have on most of these tours, also helped me. A doctor or any professional man sees scores of persons within a week. I made most of these trips on Thursday, my off day, and found that these solo rounds were mentally refreshing, not to mention physically so."

Dr. Smith has most of the cards of the multitude of courses he has played and has kept a fairly accurate record of his scores since 1932. Thru that span, his scores have ranged from 75 to 85. His handicap at Medinah is nine strokes.

This lone wanderer of the links once drove 300 miles in a single day to play 90 holes over 10 nine-hole courses in Illinois. These 10 were Cedar Dell at Plano, Saunnock at Sandwich; Earlville, Mendota, South Bluff at La Salle, Deer Park, the Ottawa Country club, the Streator Country club, and Anderson fields at Streator, and finally the Pontiac Country club.

Receives Degree at Loyola.

Dr. Smith is a native of Pocahontas, Va., but has lived in Chicago since 1912. He received his M. D. at Loyola university and is now on the staffs of the Henrotin, West Suburban, Ravenswood, and St. Francis hospitals.

He hit his first golf ball on the old nine hole course at Jackson park, and recalls it well, since it sliced into the lagoon. He has shot a 57 at Mid-City, his favorite course in a nine year practice of playing golf at least once a month. That included twelve pars and six birdies. Aug. 15, 1935, is a redletter day on the doctor's calendar, for on that date he scored a hole-in-one on the 184 yard 18th at Bunker Hill.

Names Six Outstanding Courses.

Dr. Smith refused to be trapped into naming a favorite course out of all those he has played, but will name six as outstanding. These, with his best scores on each, are Medinah No. 3, 80; Bob O' Link, 77; Olympia Fields No. 4, 78; Big Foot at Lake Geneva, 78; the Mill Road Farm course in Lake Forest, 80, and Chicago Golf, 85.

In the course of all his travels, Dr. Smith found his most invaluable guide THE TRIBUNE's Chicagoland road map. As time went on, he managed to repay the aid of the map by discovering a couple of courses which the mapmakers had overlooked.

Shortridge High Golfers Beat Culver Team, 10 to 8

Culver, Ind., May 4 [Special].—Shortridge High school of Indianapolis defeated the Culver Military academy golf team here this afternoon, 10 to 8. George O'Neal of Shortridge was low scorer with an 82. Cadet Bus Hubbard scored 84 to lead Culver.

SPARTAS OPEN BID FOR SOCCER CROWN TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Baltimore, Md., May 4 [Special].—The Sparta Falstaffs of Chicago and the Baltimore Football club will open a two game series tomorrow afternoon for the national soccer championship. The second game of the series, which will be decided on total goals, will be played in Chicago on May 12.

The Chicagoans, who are seeking to bring the city its second title in three years, arrived in Baltimore this morning and engaged in a brief workout this afternoon. The Spartas advanced to the final round after struggling thru three games with the Morgan Sport club of Pittsburgh, Pa., for the western crown, the Chicagoans winning the deciding contest two weeks ago.

SHIP AND STEEL MAKING CLIMB; TRADE IS SPOTTY

Trends of Business Activity Varied.

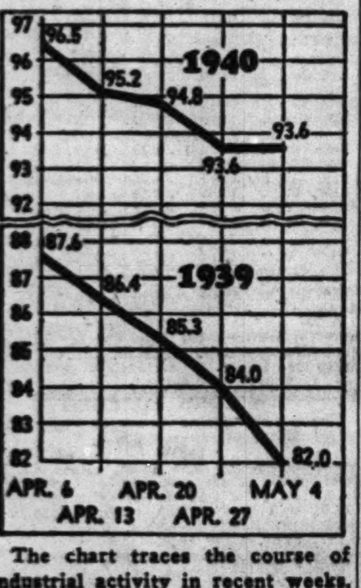
BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Industrial trends varied widely last week. Steel making, swinging upward to the highest level since mid March, and shipbuilding, busiest since world war days, led some branches of business forward, but in other fields, including automobile manufacturing, downward tendencies prevailed.

While steel mills were expanding output to 61.8 per cent of capacity, compared with 60 per cent in the preceding week, United States Steel corporation and other producers, including Inland Steel company, were disclosing large gains in earnings for the March quarter as compared with a year earlier.

Private Building Rises.

Private construction moved ahead at a brisk pace, aided by factory building activity. New financing by corporations was in larger volume than in the preceding week. An $81,600,000 issue of Union Pacific railroad refunding bonds, the largest carrier issue in 13 years, was put on the market, helping to swell the April volume of security offerings to more than 287 million dollars.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press' seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100.

Wholesale trade improved, but retail trade was described by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., as spotty, with rural areas making the best showing. Freight movement and bank clearings increased.

Automobile production slipped to 89,305 units, from 101,405 in the preceding week, but the decline followed the normal seasonal pattern. Sales of cars continued at a high level. The Chevrolet division of General Motors corporation reported that its sales in the first part of April averaged 1,000 a day more than a year earlier. April sales in Cook county nearly equaled the all-time record for any month.

Bank Lending Recedes.

Cotton mills reduced production, banks in Chicago and New York City loaned less money to business than in the preceding week, and residential construction declined. Latest available figures on production of electricity showed a shrinkage.

American exporters already affected by the war in Scandinavia turned their attention to the threatened moves of Germany and Italy in the Balkans and the Mediterranean. They observed Britain's rerouting of shipping around South Africa, and some expressed the view that the new developments may aid American ship owners.

United States shipping is expanding in spite of the restrictions of the neutrality act, the treasury reported, and is now experiencing its biggest boom in 10 years.

Index Is Unchanged.

The weekly index of industrial activity compiled by the Associated Press held steady last week. The index, with component groups based on latest figures, calculated on 1929-'30 levels as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite index	93.6	93.6	82.0
Auto output	*86.0	87.5	54.6
Steel activity	83.0	80.5	65.2
Cotton mfg.	112.3	112.3	101.6
Electricity output ..	*121.4	122.5	112.7
Home building......	*80.1	84.0	89.9
Rail loadings	68.6	67.6	61.2

South America Shifts Trade; Result of War

BUENOS AIRES, May 4 (AP).—The end of Europe's war will call for drastic reshuffling of the South American trade map, regardless of which side wins.

Already statistical reports show signs of strong impending changes in addition to those caused by Great Britain's warship blockade of Germany's blossoming barter trade with this continent.

Who will take Germany's share of the sales in markets of the South American republics is a question that remains unanswered.

The United States apparently has an inside track on sales of essential goods to Latin-American nations, including Argentina, on the basis of statistics for the first six months of the war period—September, 1939 thru March, 1940.

Japan Pushes Drive.

Japan, forced to seek new markets and supplies of raw materials when its agreement with the United States expired, is strongly active in promoting trade with the South American nations. Already it has accomplished what the United States failed to do, by negotiating a commercial agreement with Argentina.

A survey of Argentine trade for the first six months of the war compared with the similar period of a year earlier shows that Germany, Belgium, France, Italy, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, Sweden, Switzerland, and Japan sold less to this country since the war began. Denmark, Norway, and the United States sold more.

Only Germany and Great Britain bought less from Argentina—the former because British warships drove her shipping home or into neutral ports; the latter because of the tightening of her economic belt to finance the war.

Other Customers Buy More.

Every other major customer of Argentina bought more, including neighbors of Germany which have common frontiers—and unstoppable trade routes—with Germany.

Germany's imports from the Argentine dropped 89.7 per cent. By contrast, Belgium bought 22.8 per cent more, Denmark's purchases went up 138.3 per cent, Spain gained 219.4 per cent, Italy 127.9 per cent, Norway 143.2 per cent, the Netherlands 44.3 per cent, and Sweden 89.5 per cent.

Switzerland, neighbor of both Germany and France, registered the most phenomenal trade fluctuation. Its Argentine purchases jumped 1,735.6 per cent.

Great Britain, despite a small deduction, remains Argentina's best customer by a large margin. Second is the United States, which increased its buying here more than 80 per cent.

German goods worth about $5,800,000 trickled into Argentina past the British fleet in the first six months after the war began, much of it on neutral ships. These imports were 66.1 per cent below German sales here in the six month period a year earlier.

British Sales Decline.

Great Britain managed to sell $28,700,000 worth of goods, a drop of 5.9 per cent.

The war gave the United States an opportunity to supplant Britain as No. 1 supplier of the Argentine, and American tradesmen took advantage of that chance to boost sales to this country 42 per cent, from $2..000,000 to $35,600,000.

The British government announced early in the war its intention of destroying German influence on this continent.

Those plans have made little impression here despite import regulations highly favorable to the British. Delivery delays and a lack of ships to carry goods were given by informed sources as two reasons why the British economic warfare remains ineffective in South America.

INDUSTRIAL ART EXHIBIT OPENED ON S. MICHIGAN

An exhibition of the work of foremost midwest industrial engineers was opened yesterday at Art Center Chicago, 410 South Michigan avenue, and will be continued until the end of May. Included in the display were actual products, drawings, photographs, and blue prints of furniture, musical instruments, hardware, refrigerators, glass, and other products.

"The exhibition will enable manufacturers to trace the actual steps in the redesign of a product, and to study the result that redesigning has had on the sale of the product," the art gallery's announcement said.

Have Another Steak! It's National Restaurant Week

National restaurant week will be observed by more than 50,000 restaurateurs in the United States and Canada beginning tomorrow, the National Restaurant association announced yesterday. The Chicago Restaurant association will be in charge of the event in this area. Special menus and window displays will be arranged to attract customers, and numerous waitress queen contests will be held.

Ford Favors Employing of 'Men Over 40'

Detroit, Mich., May 4 (AP).—Henry Ford doubts that there are "enough brains under 50 [years of age] to supply the management needed in industry."

Henry Ford.

He said so today in a statement indorsing President Roosevelt's national employment week proclamation, particularly the appeal for jobs for men more than 40 years of age. The proclamation fixed the first week in May as "National Employment Week."

"My own opinion is that men do not come to full usefulness until they are 40," said Ford, who will be 77 next July 30 and has no intention of retiring.

"For years," he said, "I have advocated the employment of men over 40 because their experience, steadiness and judgment are absolutely necessary to the best success of industry."

Ford said that of the 85,967 Ford workers in the Detroit area 37,433 are more than 40 years old. The oldest employé, he said, is 87 and was hired at 70.

"I still have the first man I ever hired—that was before I was married and before I was in business," Ford said. "He worked with me on a little sawmill, and he still is working with me. I don't believe in retiring men for age. I believe the longer they work, the longer they live."

Ford was almost 40 years old when he founded the small automobile business that developed into his present great industrial empire. The Ford company has no age retirement rule.

BRIDGES ASSAILS BLOWS AIMED AT LIFE INSURANCE

Boston, Mass., May 4 (AP).—Senator Styles Bridges [R., N. H.], charged tonight that "economic tinker-toms in Washington have leveled their big guns on life insurance" to discredit the companies and later put the federal government into the business.

Bridges declared there was "no necessity for this uncalled for interference" because the business is "protected, regulated and guided under the watchful eyes of state insurance commissioners."

Federal control, he said "would mean a never ending congressional discussion and debate on the subject of life insurance. I do not believe that the American people want politics played with their savings, their insurance policies or their children's future."

He urged the nation's 64,000,000 life insurance policyholders to "protest before it is too late."

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—The Federal Home Loan bank board reported today that real estate taxes had became an "unbearable burden" on the ownership of property.

The board made public a report prepared for it by F. B. Bourland, former Illinois manager of the Home Owners' Loan corporation, asserting taxes were a "depressant" on land value, "a deterrent to its sale and a hazard to its economic stability."

The report added that "as a general matter, the philosophy of assessment must change if the inequalities and systematic overvaluation of real estate that now obtain are to be corrected."

The board reported that March home financing activity totaled $300,420,000, or 18 per cent above February and 6 per cent higher than in March, 1939. For the first quarter, the total was $818,731,000, an increase of 12 per cent over the 1939 period.

AUTO AND PLANES PARTS COMPANY BOOSTS DIVIDEND

Thompson Products, Inc., yesterday doubled the dividend return to its common stockholders. The company, which manufactures airplane and automobile parts, voted 50 cents a share, payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 21, against 25 cents paid on April 1. The company distributed $1 a share in 1939.

Timken Roller Bearing Co. directors declared a cash dividend of 75 cents a share on common, payable June 5 to stockholders of record May 16. A 50-cent cash dividend was paid March 5.

PRIZES OFFERED IN PICKING NAME AT HOME SHOW

If a slim pocketbook prevents you from owning a palatial estate, try your skill at naming one, in miniature, which is displayed at the Chicago home show, the National House and Garden Exposition, Inc., invited yesterday.

Officials said prizes will be awarded for the most descriptive name for the estate, one of various exhibitions at the showing which opened yesterday at the Coliseum, to continue thru next Sunday.

Various types of building materials, home equipment, model gardens, and other accoutrements of the home are on display, along with two large exhibitions of handicraft, one by the Chicago park district and another by disabled war veterans.

Dealers Urge Simpler Rules on Financing

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—The National Association of Securities Dealers has asked the Securities and Exchange commission to simplify as much as possible rules governing relations between corporations and underwriters who handle their financing.

The association made public today its reply to the SEC's request for suggestions on improving the "arm's length" bargaining rule. The SEC rule is intended to assure independent dealings between issuers and sellers of securities. The association's reply said:

That the securities act of 1934 has ample safeguards for the reasonableness of underwriting fees and commissions in cases where no question of affiliation between the issuer and the underwriter is involved, and no rule by the SEC is needed.

Opposes "Shopping Rule."

That any rule that the issuer has "shopped around" among investment bankers or has taken sealed bids would be "highly prejudicial to the best interests" of issuers, underwriters, investors and the public and that "under no circumstances should such a rule be promulgated."

That the present rule on arm's length bargaining should be replaced with one that would be applicable to all grades of securities and would be limited to cases where the underwriters are statutory affiliates. A proposed new rule was submitted.

Doubts Legal Authority.

The association said it doubted whether the commission could legally issue rules governing arm's length bargaining, but that it was proceeding on the assumption that the commission did have such power. It said it had "endeavored to make constructive suggestions to meet the legal, practical and administrative implications of the whole problem."

The association has been invited to discuss the problem personally with members of the commission. The association represents nearly 3,000 over-the-counter securities dealers.

RECORD WHEAT CROP IS RAISED BY AUSTRALIA

CANBERRA, Australia, May 4 [Special].—Minister of Commerce A. G. Cameron reported that the 1939-'40 wheat crop reached a record total of 215,000,000 bushels. Sales for local consumption and export were 104,800,000 bushels.

Domestic demand this year was estimated at 25,000,000 bushels. Only 14,500,000 bushels were shipped overseas, and 66,000,000 bushels await disposal after providing for seed.

PREDICT LARGER EMPIRE BUYING OF WAR GOODS

Reverses Increase Need for Supplies.

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 4.—The German grip on southern Norway will force the British and French empires to increase their war purchases in the United States, in the opinion of observers here.

They believe especially that British industrial plants will be more vulnerable than ever to German attack from the air now that the Nazis have established formidable air bases in Norway—a good jumping off place for attacks on the United Kingdom.

Trade Routes Broken.

The Nazi stronghold in Norway will further disrupt shipping facilities and make mandatory a diversion in trade from former Scandinavian sources to other countries. It is estimated that the spread of the war to Scandinavia has already forced longer hauls for about 10 per cent of British imports. Hence, the outlook appears to be that the empires will be more dependent than ever upon supplies from across the Atlantic.

There appears little likelihood, however, that American farmers will obtain any substantial increase in foreign markets. The empires have turned to colonies for agricultural supplies while conserving foreign exchange and other assets in the United States for purchase of airplanes, machinery, munitions, and manufactured goods vital to conduct of the war.

Biggest Demand for Planes.

By far the biggest demand is for aircraft and the size of these orders has been sufficiently attractive to cause the army and navy to forego deliveries on their own orders so that quick delivery to Europe may be made of the latest American fighting craft. The administration has taken the stand that unlimited shipments of planes to the British and French will bring developments in design and expansion of plant capacity that ultimately will benefit the defense forces of the United States. Critics of this policy claim that it jeopardizes our own defense position and may involve the disclosure of defense secrets.

It is estimated that approximately half of the billion dollars in war orders placed in this country by the empires have been for aircraft. Trade figures for the first quarter of this year showed a jump of 225 per cent in aircraft exports over the first quarter of last year. However, exports of foodstuffs have dropped.

Pork Supply Cut Off.

The British lost principle sources of pork and dairy products thru the German invasion of Scandinavia, particularly Denmark. In 1938 Great Britain obtained 53 per cent of her bacon, more than 30 per cent of her butter and nearly 40 per cent of her egg imports from the three Scandinavian countries. The British are expected now to confine bacon purchases as far as possible to Canada, altho in time demand will probably reach to the United States, in the opinion of experts. The British food ministry has announced that large stocks of pork now on hand must be reduced before hot weather comes.

Butter exports to the United Kingdom are unlikely because of the existing price situation where the federal government has supported the butter market thru relief purchases. The domestic price is substantially

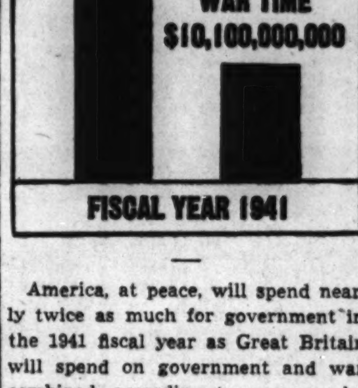
Peace and War Costs



America, at peace, will spend nearly twice as much for government in the 1941 fiscal year as Great Britain will spend on government and war combined, according to a survey by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Federal expenditures in the United States will total about 9½ billion dollars in the fiscal year, which will begin July 1, and state and local governments will spend about 9 billions, 800 millions more, making a total of 19 billions, 300 millions.

In Britain's 1941 fiscal year, which began April 1, total national and local government costs, including the war budget, will be about 10 billion, 100 million dollars, latest estimates indicate.

ILLINOIS BELL'S FIRST QUARTER PROFIT IS HIGHER

Edison Subsidiary's Earnings Rise, Too.

Illinois Bell Telephone company and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois reported yesterday that their earnings in the March quarter of this year were larger than in the first three months of 1939.

Net income of Illinois Bell was $3,486,609, compared with $3,107,526 in the 1939 quarter. Profit for the month of March also increased, amounting to $1,207,593, compared with $1,163,837 in March of last year.

Public Service Profit Up.

Public Service, a subsidiary of the Commonwealth Edison company, had a profit of $1,836,440 for the three months ended March 31, after depreciation, maintenance, interest, amortization and federal income taxes. In the corresponding 1939 period net income was $1,396,226.

Humble Oil and Refining company, Houston, Tex., announced a drop of $5,850,066 in net income for 1939 and said reductions in crude oil prices and in pipe line rates were largely responsible.

The company earned $29,950,287, equal to $3.33 a share, compared with $35,800,353, or $3.98 a share, in 1938.

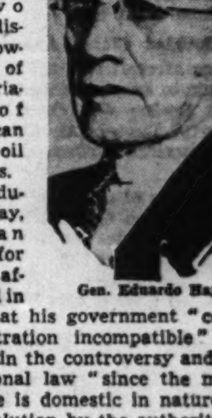
MEXICO'S NOTE SNUBS PLEA FOR OIL ARBITRATION

Seizure 'Justified,' America Told.

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—The Mexican government tonight flatly rejected the United States request for arbitration of the two year old dispute growing out of expropriation of American owned oil companies.



Gen. Eduardo Hay.

Gen. Eduardo Hay, Mexican minister for foreign affairs, said in a note that his government "considers arbitration incompatible" with the facts in the controversy and with international law "since the matter in dispute is domestic in nature and is near solution by the authorities of Mexico."

The note presented the view that the United States could not contend there had been a denial of justice until after the companies had exhausted every means of adjustment provided by Mexican law, including recourse to the Mexican courts.

Announces Sinclair Accord.

Gen. Hay announced a settlement had been reached with the Sinclair interests under which the American company, "accepting the expropriation as definitive, will limit itself to discussing the amount of the indemnity and the conditions of payment in reasonable instalments, recognizing the justification of the Mexican point of view."

The note, dated May 1, said the Sinclair group "represents approximately 40 per cent of the investments of American interests in the oil industry." New York financial circles value Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard Oil of New York, and Sinclair investments at $200,000,000, of which approximately $16,000,000 is owned by the Sinclair group.

Sinclair Confirms Deal.

Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of Consolidated Oil corporation, authorized the following statement tonight:

"We have concluded an agreement with the Mexican government providing for a settlement between the government and our corporation, acting for Mexican Sinclair Petroleum corporation, Sinclair Pierce Oil company, S. A., Compania Terminal de Lobos, S. A., and Stanford and company."

An informed source said tonight that Consolidated Oil had agreed to accept 20,000,000 barrels of oil and $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 in cash for

STOCKS CANCEL EARLY STRENGTH BUT FINISH FIRM

Traders Cut Commitments Over Week-End.

New York, May 4 (AP).—The stock market loitered in an irregularly lower range today as traders lightened commitments as a precaution against unexpected war developments over the week-end.

Leading issues slipped toward the close when steels failed to hold early improvement based on hopes for an increase in production schedules.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues closed unchanged at 49.8 and, on the week, showed a net loss of .2. A month ago the composite stood at 51.4 and a year ago at 45.5.

Transfers amounted to 316,880 shares against 349,040 last Saturday, and were the smallest for a two hour session sinch March 2.

Douglas Closes Ahead.

Douglas Aircraft was the only aviation stock to emerge ahead. It was up 1⅛. Boeing was down 1⅛ and Glen Martin, Eastern Air Lines, Sperry, and American Airlines also backed away.

Other losers of as much as a point or more included General Motors, du Pont, United States Rubber common and preferred, Great Northern, Phelps Dodge, International Paper, Loft, Consolidated Edison, and International Nickel.

Unchanged to up a shade were Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Johns-Manville, Texas corporation, Kennecott, American Telephone, Hayes Manufacturing, and Consolidated Oil.

In a ragged curb Colts Patent Fire Arms, National Container, and Glen Alden Coal edged forward, while minor declines were posted for Bath Iron Works, Electric Bond and Share, Brewster Aero, and Phoenix securities.

Swings Follow War.

Financial quarters during the week had eyes almost entirely for war happenings. Opinions as to effects on American industry varied to such an extent that definite trends in share prices were rare. The list tilted upward Monday, but finished unchanged on the average Tuesday. The sharpest drop of the week came Wednesday as dispatches told of British reverses in Norway.

There was a half-hearted comeback Thursday. Specialities with war buying potentialities continued to do well, especially paper and shipbuilding stocks. On Friday, a forenoon slump was followed by a brisk recovery when the President revealed he had urged Italy to stay out of the war. The volume topped the million share mark for the first time since April 19. The average, tho, emerged a bit lower.

CHICAGO STOCKS FINISH DAY AND WEEK LOWER

Prices turned downward again yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. There were a few strong issues, including the volume leader, Asbestos Manufacturing, which rose ⅜ point, and North American Car, which advanced ¼ point to a new 1940 high of 5⅞.

Trading volume on the exchange totaled 135,000 shares for the week, compared with 132,000 in the preceding week and 107,000 in the corresponding 1939 week.

During the week 193 issues were traded, of which, 56 advanced, 99 declined, and 38 finished unchanged. Fourteen issues established new 1939-'40 price peaks.

RUBBER FUTURES ADVANCE AGAIN; COPPER DECLINES

War Principal Influence on Staple Prices.

Rubber climaxed a week of advancing prices in the New York commodity market by rising another 7 to 13 points yesterday. Trade and speculative demand for the commodity, a vital war necessity, has been enhanced by war developments which have caused traders to fear increasing difficulties in obtaining sufficient ships to transport the product.

The same influences, however, did not have the same effect on copper, which is of as much if not more importance in the conduct of war. Prices sold lower most of the week and were quoted 2 to 4 points lower in yesterday's limited futures transactions.

Smelter Price Reduced.

Copper in the custom smelter markets was priced at 11⅛ cents a pound, a reduction of ⅛ cent, following a cut of ¼ cent to 9⅛ cents in the market for heavy copper wire scrap. The export quotation dropped from 11.25 to 11.10 cents for nearby shipment. Straits tin was quoted 25 to 30 points lower and lead and zinc were firm.

Domestic sugar futures steadied in the day's trading and world futures were irregular within a narrow range. Coffee futures were unchanged to slightly lower, as were cottonseed oil and raw hides.

Wool tops were firm to slightly higher. The market in cocoa futures went on its summer schedule, with Saturday operations suspended.

Commodity price quotations follow:

GRAIN TRADERS EVEN POSITIONS FOR WEEK-END

Many speculators evened up their positions in the grain markets on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday, not caring to have an open position over the week-end because of the uncertain political situation in Europe.

An early upturn on short covering was followed by a rapid decline on profit taking sales. Closing trades on wheat futures were ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower. May and July corn equaled the seasonal high prices early, but reacted to close ⅜ to ½ cent lower. Oats finished ⅛ to ⅜ cent lower. Rye developed independent weakness and was 1⅛ to 1¼ cents lower. Soy beans lost ⅜ to ¾ cent.

No. 2 yellow corn sold in the cash market at 67½ to 69 cents, 10 to 12 cents above the government loan basis. It costs about 8 cents a bushel,

UTILITY ATTACKS DEATH SENTENCE IN REPLY TO SEC

Washington, D. C., May 4 (AP).—Electric Bond and Share company, controling $2,600,000,000 of utility assets, challenged integration provisions of the holding company act today and said that in any event its system fitted within limits prescribed by law.

Electric Bond and Share, largest utility holding company in the country, told the Securities and Exchange commission that enforcement of integration proceedings—under the so-called "death sentence" of the holding company act—would be depriving it of property without the due process of law prescribed by the constitution. The company asked dismissal of the action started by the SEC in February.

Others Challenge Law.

Others among the nine systems against which steps have been taken also have challenged provisions of the law.

The Electric Bond and Share answer contended that:

The provisions of section 11 [B] 1 of the act [integration section] did not constitute a regulation of commerce within the meaning of the constitution.

The SEC had not set out what it believed should be done.

Denies It Is Interstate.

Electric Bond and Share constitutes a single integrated system as provided in the law, the company contended, but if it should be held otherwise, its holdings comprised one such system and "one or more additional integrated systems" conforming to the "ABC" standards of the law.

The reply also said that neither the parent company nor its underlying holding companies were themselves engaged in interstate commerce; that all of the public utility units were engaged primarily in intrastate business, and all of the nonutility businesses were engaged solely in intrastate business.

And because of the "long continued depression of general business activity, and the wars in Europe and Asia," the company argued, "it is not practicable at the present time or under present conditions to enforce drastic application" of the integration section.

ACTIVITY NEARS PEAK IN ILLINOIS OIL WELL FIELD

Centralia, Ill., May 4 (AP).—Activity in the Illinois oil field climbed toward its all-time peak this week with 635 operations, more than at any time since last summer. The operations included locations for wells, wells drilling and completions. Among them were 132 wildcat tests in 39 counties.

Twenty-nine of the week's completions were in the Lake Centralia pool where the Texas company alone had 102 active tests. Most of them were completed in the devonian lime.

Growth of the Centralia city pool's importance was manifest this week when the Oil and Gas Journal announced its production had climbed to 24,966 barrels daily for the week ending April 27. It now ranks third in production in Illinois, exceeded only by the Lake Centralia and Fayette county fields.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS RISE IN WEEK, MONTH

Chicago bank clearings increased last week to $334,200,000 from $314,200,000 in the preceding week and $296,900,000 in the corresponding 1939 week, the Chicago Clearing House association reported yesterday. The report, which also showed a total of $1,368,100,000 for April, compared with $1,195,800,000 in April, 1939, follows:

LONDON WRITERS ASSAIL MOVE TO EASE BLOCKADE

HitPledge to BuyMore U. S. Farm Goods.

BY JOSEPH CERUTTI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 4.—Britain's need for American dollars to finance war purchases has become more acute, according to financial observers, as the result of military reverses in Norway and the loss of Scandinavian "sterling" markets. Financial circles, aware of this need, were sharply critical of the recently reported moves by British and French purchasing representatives in the United States designed to mollify Americans with promised easing of the economic blockade and of restrictions on agricultural imports from America.

The Financial News, a leading market organ, complained that the activities of the Anglo-French economic experts, Frank T. A. Ashton-Gwatkin and Charles Rist, have jeopardized the British government's efforts in the last couple of months to close up the loopholes in the economic blockade of Germany.

Says Terms Are Vague.

The writer admitted that the terms of the official statement of the allied pledge to do everything practicable to ease the effect of the blockade and other wartime economic policies on American trade "are too vague to indicate the extent of the concessions made to the United States government." He expressed the fear, however, it will result in a further increase in the volume of goods available for reëxport to Germany thru the neutral European countries.

Objections were raised to the reported agreement to release a certain amount of German exports to the United States arising from deals concluded before the blockade was extended in November to cover exports.

The Anglo-French undertaking to maintain as far as possible purchases of American agricultural products, including tobacco and fruit, was assailed because it would "dissipate dollar exchange."

Needed for War Materials.

"The vagueness of the statement," the Financial News writer said, "prevents even an approximate estimate being made, but the volume of unwanted purchases will need to be substantial if it is to make any appreciable difference to the American agricultural situation.

"Where are the dollars coming from? All that are available we need for urgent war material purchases. If more are spent on unwanted agricultural products, less will be available for planes and other war material from the United States."

the same as the fixed price in Great Britain, leaving no margin for shipping costs and the British duty of about 2⅝ cents on non-British butter. It is suggested that the cut-off of Danish butter supplies may force the British to limit consumption and increase the use of butter substitutes.

Little Effect Noted Here.

The department of commerce said today that it found the extension of the European war to Scandinavia had little effect on American business in April.

"Development of the war to a more active stage in the spring gave rise to expectations in some quarters of a new buying wave in domestic markets which would head off the period of inventory liquidation that appeared to be in prospect," said the report.

"There has been some increase in business of a seasonal character, and new business in several other lines has expanded from the exceptionally low volumes that had been prevailing. Cotton gray goods were purchased in larger quantities in April, even before the spread of the war to Scandinavia, than had been the case for some months. Purchasing of nonferrous metals experienced another erratic spurt, and there was increased buying of hides. The one industry to receive a substantially enlarged volume of new orders, however, was paper and pulp—an obvious beneficiary if Scandinavian supplies are cut off from this market."

COTTON

A featureless trade prevailed yesterday in cotton. Prices held within narrow limits. Speculators were disposed to curb operations on both sides of the market pending further developments abroad. Closing trades were .09 cent lower to .04 cent a pound higher.

Spot cotton closed .02 to .03 cent lower with New York 10.84 cents, New Orleans 10.70 cents, Houston 10.36 cents, and Galveston at 10.34 cents a pound. Prices follow:

GERMANY'S WAR CHEST PARTLY IN AMERICAN FUNDS

Survey Puts Securities Grab at 100 Millions.

Hitler's war chest contains more than $100,000,000 in American securities obtained from German citizens with their consent or by force. This was revealed in a recent study of German expropriations made by Paul L. Weiden, an Oregon attorney for the New York University school of law.

Altho the amount is relatively small when compared with the billion dollar foreign holdings of England and France, it is of tremendous importance to the German war economy which is sorely pressed for foreign currencies, it was said.

In the last five years the German government has sold $28,200,000 of American securities which it had taken from private owners, and transferred the proceeds to its treasury to finance the building of a military machine, according to Weiden.

Seizures Began in 1933.

German expropriation of foreign securities held by its citizens began with the rise to power of the National Socialist party in 1933, according to Weiden. Before 1931 Germans were permitted to trade freely in foreign securities. Many purchased shares in the New York market or on European exchanges. Some left their securities on deposit with New York banks. Others had them transferred to Germany.

The Bruening government in 1931 banned purchases of securities on foreign exchanges in order to support the German mark. German owners of foreign securities were allowed to sell their holdings but were required to exchange the proceeds into marks.

Nazis Sequester Holdings.

When the Nazi régime launched its "socialization" program, Weiden asserted, German residents were ordered to register their foreign holdings with government authorities. Later, in 1936, all foreign securities were ordered deposited with "foreign exchange banks." These banks held the securities in the name of the owner. The owner, however, could not withdraw them or sell them except to the Reichsbank at its price.

The confiscatory methods employed by the Nazis became more relentless as the need for foreign exchange increased. In 1933 and 1934, according to Weiden, the form of expropriation was by seizing the property of writers, statesmen, and educators who had spoken or fought against national socialism. No hearing or trial was held. The property was confiscated by decree.

Fines Used to Force Sales.

The courts were used to extract foreign securities by assessing unlimited fines for violations of the tax laws or foreign exchange restrictions.

"After 1933, and more forcefully after 1936, every resident holder of foreign securities," Weiden reported, "was deprived of the right to dispose effectively of such property by general German laws and government decrees.

"In 1938, even the residue of ownership rights still vested in the private German holder was confiscated by general government decree—legal according to German notions—if such owner happened to be Jewish."

Use "Persuasive" Methods.

How the German banks were able to get funds for the government was described by Weiden as follows:

"The holder of foreign securities was invited, ordinarily in extremely polite terms, into the offices of a local head of the Reichsbank or of another banking institution and was told that it was his patriotic duty to sell either part or all of his foreign assets. When he refused—as at least the braver men did in the beginning—he was told that this was an unfortunate attitude; that no one knew what consequences such an unwise refusal might have."

The Gestapo [secret police] concentration camps and other methods were used to "persuade" Germans to sell their foreign securities to the Reichsbank, Weiden said.

APRIL PAYMENTS FOR LIVE STOCK UP 19 PER CENT

Larger Shipments Account for Most of Rise.

Cash payments to farmers for meat animals received at Chicago last month were second highest for April since 1931, it was learned at the stockyards yesterday. The compilation of returns disclosed a total valuation of $22,584,000 on cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep for the month, a rise of $3,710,000 or 19.6 per cent over the April value last year, and exceeded in nine years only by the 1937 figure.

The outlay by packers for meat animals was $10,354,000 above the 1933 depression payments, a rise of 84 per cent. Most of the increase over 1939 resulted from the larger volume of stock shipped to market. The total supply for the month was 18.3 per cent above a year ago.

Cattle Payments at 10 Year High.

Farmers were paid $15,120,000 for cattle and calves, the largest April payments to cattlemen in 10 years. This was an increase of $3,430,000 over a year ago, a rise of 29.3 per cent. The hog total, at $5,140,000, was up 7.1 per cent over 1939. Sheep brought $2,324,000, a decline of 2.5 per cent, the only class of live stock with a total value lower than in 1939. This was due to a drop of 5.1 per cent in sheep supplies. Cattle and calf receipts were up 22.4 per cent. Farmers sold 38.8 per cent more hogs than during April, 1939.

Payments for hogs last week rose to $1,548,000, compared with $1,146,000 the week before and $1,432,000 a year ago. Larger receipts and heavier weights of hogs raised the value despite a decline in the per 100 pound price. The week's average, at $6.00, was 15 cents under the preceding week and 85 cents lower than in 1939.

Price Advance Ended.

Large shipments of hogs, including many consignments of extremely heavy stock that had been held back for higher prices, ended one of the longest advances in recent years. Altho the six day average showed a reduction of only 15 cents from a week earlier, final sales ranged from 25 to 50 cents lower. "Lard hogs," which had been selling well up in the list, took a rather severe drubbing near the end of the week.

Wholesale pork prices weakened during the week. Various weights of fresh pork loins went to butcher shop owners from $1.50 to $3.00 a hundred pounds lower than a week earlier. Top light loins sold at $16.00. The heaviest loins brought $12.50.

Cattle Prices Mixed.

The cattle market was mixed, but the trend was generally toward lower price levels. Top grades of steers and yearlings, as well as the lowest priced offerings, held about steady. Most other steers slumped 25 to 40 cents, while the majority of yearlings showed reductions of 25 cents. Steady prices prevailed for most heifers, stockers, and feeders. Cows ruled weak to 25 cents lower. Calves advanced 50 cents. The six day steer average, at $9.80, was exactly the same as a week earlier.

An abrupt decrease in receipts of lambs sent prices into a sharp rise during the week. Final sales were at gains of 25 to 50 cents for the week. The six day average was up 15 cents, at $9.90. Old sheep and yearlings sold mostly steady.

OFFERING PRICES FIXED FOR TWO AVIATION STOCKS

Stockholders Get Right to Increase Holdings.

Terms for stockholders' subscription for additional shares were announced yesterday by two aviation companies which had previously told of plans to raise additional funds for expansion thru the sale of stock.

Eastern Air Lines, Inc., set a price of $32 a share for its offering of not to exceed 110,909 shares, made to stockholders of record May 10 in the ratio of one-fourth of a new share for each one held. This company is one of the nation's leading air transport units.

Boeing Price is $16.

The Boeing Airplane company, a leader in the production of military craft and a large manufacturer of commercial planes, announced its 360,979 additional shares will be offered at $16 a share. Stockholders of record May 10 may buy one new share for each two owned.

The same terms were offered the owners of United Aircraft and Transport corporation stock who convert their holdings into Boeing stock before the subscription rights expire.

Iowa Southern Utilities company, a Delaware corporation, filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange commission yesterday covering $10,000,000 of first mortgage bonds due in 1970, and $2,660,000 of general mortgage sinking fund 4½ per cent bonds due in 1950.

Plans to Retire 5½s.

The company plans to use the proceeds in the redemption of its mortgage debt, which consists of $12,664,990 of first and refunding 5½s due in 1950. Halsey, Stuart & Co. and W. C. Langley & Co. are expected to head the underwriting group.

The Great Northern railway made formal application to the Interstate Commerce commission to issue $20,000,000 of 4 per cent collateral trust bonds which are to be sold to the Reconstruction Finance corporation at par. The carrier asked the regulatory group for permission to issue $40,000,000 of general mortgage bonds, series J, to be pledged as security for the collateral trust issue.

PAPER AND PULP.

Shares of domestic paper and pulp companies were buoyed recently by a strong buying movement which followed the German invasion of Norway. With the supply of wood pulp and newsprint from Scandinavian countries disrupted, the American paper industry was considered in some quarters to be in a more favorable position to increase its profits.

Wood pulp imported from Norway, Sweden, and Finland in 1939 represented 64 per cent of the total purchased abroad by American companies and about 14 per cent of total domestic consumption. Newsprint imports from these countries were 11 per cent of the total brought into the country and constituted only a small fraction of the total used by American newspapers.

The domestic paper industry last year produced about 940,000 tons of newsprint, which amounted to 23 per cent of the total output for North America. Canadian mills manufactured 2,869,000 tons or 70 per cent.

Of the total domestic production of 13½ million short tons of all types of paper, about 45 per cent was paperboard, 11 per cent book paper, 7 per cent newsprint, 16 per cent wrapping paper, and the rest, fine and other papers.

With most of its pulp and newsprint derived from Canadian forests, the industry is not expected to be affected materially by the Norwegian situation. Altho kraft and paperboard prices have risen moderately, the contract price of $50 a ton for newsprint, in effect since 1937, has been reaffirmed for the third quarter.

Of more serious consequence to the industry are general business conditions, newspaper advertising, retail sales and other factors which affect the use of paper in industry and commerce. The depression jolted many paper companies severely, causing failures and financial difficulties.

The nature of newsprint manufacture requires huge capital investments in timber, water, and power, as well as in massive and complicated machinery. Investment of tremendous capital in hydro-electric plants for the sale of power to the public and overexpansion in the '20s contributed to their depression troubles.

Kraft paper and paperboard making have shown outstanding gains, in contrast with the newsprint branch. Output of kraft and paperboard in 1939 were at record peaks.

The investor interested in paper company shares should realize that earnings, especially in companies making newsprint, tend to be unstable and are burdened by heavy capitalization, often in the form of bonds and preferred stocks.

MEXICO'S NOTE SNUBS PLEA FOR OIL ARBITRATION

Seizure Was Justified, America Told.

the expropriated properties. The cash would be paid over a three year period.

The Mexican note promised that similar settlements would be made with other American oil companies whose properties had been expropriated.

Gen. Hay charged, however, that long delays had resulted from obstructionist tactics by American companies "which have systematically refused to allow the value of their properties to be determined, whether in the friendly manner proposed by Mexico thru private negotiations or before competent courts."

Blame Companies for Delay.

The companies, the note alleged, "by all means at their disposal, have prevented the attainment of a knowledge of the amount of the indemnity, an absolutely indispensable requisite for being able to effect payment."

The note charged the companies were directing their efforts "toward delaying the settlement of the dispute, by which means they have caused serious economic injury to Mexico and to the commercial relations between our two countries—even going so far as to cherish the hope that these differences, which ought not to exceed the bounds of a dispute between the government and a group of private companies, should weaken the bonds of friendship which unite our two peoples."

"Campaign" Against Mexico.

Suspension of negotiations for a settlement of unpaid services on the Mexican foreign debt and railroads, the note alleged, resulted from upset international conditions and "the campaign undertaken against Mexico by the oil companies, with the aid of certain governments, using, among other means, the boycott to prevent all sales of our oil in foreign countries or else restricting it considerably by the adoption of tariff barriers, especially the so-called quotas, producing an appreciable limitation of the possibilities of payment by Mexico."

Gen. Hay said that the Mexican government had always concurred in arbitration questions, when the facts warranted, citing the Chamizal case, in which, he asserted, a decision was made in favor of Mexico against the United States but has been awaiting execution since 1911.

"My government," Gen. Hay said, "considers that arbitration must not be admitted except when the nation has put into practice in full its rights of sovereignty thru the action of its courts and the existence of a denial of justice can be proved."

Disowns Land Claim Delay.

The Mexican note also denied responsibility for delays in paying claims for lands expropriated under its agrarian program since 1915, asserting that the claims are still in litigation since the arbitral commission has not yet made awards.

In addition to pledging individual settlements of the oil cases the Hay note urged "the desirability of renewing the conversations which were suspended when the petroleum case arose, in order to make an endeavor to settle the matters relative to the other subjects which are pending between the two governments, since the government of Mexico believes that the rapid solution of them all will contribute favorably to drawing closer the good relations between the two countries."

The Chamizal case, referred to in the note, involved the ownership of certain lots in the business district of El Paso, Tex., which was decided in favor of the Mexican claimants. Officials here said no final settlement had been achieved because of legal technicalities, including provisions of the Mexican constitution.

Acting Secretary Welles declined any comment on the Mexican note pending a detailed study of its points.

SOME SECTIONS OF BOND MARKET DIP ON WAR NEWS

New York, May 4 (AP).—Bonds showed a tendency to droop in some sections of the market today. Traders attributed the action to the "unfavorable" war news.

In the foreign sector losses of 1 to 2½ points occurred in Norway 4s, Japan 6½s, and Hungary extended 4½s. Fractions to a point higher were Norway 6s and Italian public utility 7s.

Corporates were mixed, with some gains in rails.

The few United States government issues traders recorded declines running to 7-32ds.

ARCHBISHOP TO DEDICATE NEW CHURCH TODAY

Grand Parade Will Precede Rites.

BY JUANITA DALY.

Archbishop Samuel A. Stritch will dedicate the new Queen of Angels church at 2330 Sunnyside avenue at noon today. The $270,000 structure was started in October, 1938, while the Rev. John V. Malley was pastor, and was completed last November. The Rev. John J. Doody is the present pastor.

The Rev. J. J. Doody.

Built of Indiana limestone, the building is 165 feet long and 65 feet wide. The wainscoting is of red pine, the pews are white pine and the floor is rubber tile. The large reredos behind the main altar is of black walnut and hanging over the side altars are the coats of arms of Pope Pius XII. and Archbishop Strictch. The church seats 1,108, and in addition has a gallery and choir loft.

There are approximately 1,700 families in the parish. Assistants to Father Doody are the Rev. James J. Fitzgerald, the Rev. Joseph W. McCarthy, the Rev. John P. Kennedy and the Rev. John P. Sullivan.

Will Hold Parade.

At 11 o'clock this morning, a grand parade will meet the Archbishop at Irving Park road and Western avenue and proceed north on Western avenue to Sunnyside avenue, east to Claremont avenue and north to Wil- n avenue.

In the parade will be four motorcycle policemen, 12 mounted police, St. Mary's Training school band of 60 pieces, 75 members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in regalia, Budlong division of the American Legion, 100 members of the 4th degree, Knights of Columbus, in uniform, two parish Boy Scout troops, and two Girl Scout troops, 30 patrol boys in uniform, the 4412 Young Men's Athletic and Social club, the Altar and Rosary society, the Holy Name society and the St. Vincent De Paul society.

The parish band will play in front of the rectory. The dedication ceremony is scheduled for noon and the solemn pontifical mass will begin about 45 minutes later. At 11:45 the procession of priests will leave from the guild hall at 4412 North Western avenue, followed by the monsignori, bishops and archbishop. There will be no reserved seats except for the priests, nuns and guests.

Assist in Ceremony.

Participating in the dedication ceremony with Archbishop Stritch will be the Rev. James A. Keating, Sacred Heart church, Joliet, deacon; the Rev. John B. Ferring, St. Dionysius church, Cicero, subdeacon, and the Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, master of ceremonies.

For the solemn high mass, Archbishop Stritch will be at the throne, the Rev. Terrence O'Brien, St. Columbkille church, assistant priest; the Rev. Gregory Cloos, St. Anthony church, Joliet, deacon; the Rev. Stephen Sullivan, St. Joseph church, Homewood, subdeacon; Bishop James A. Griffin, Springfield, celebrant of mass; Msgr. John A. Campbell, Our Lady of Lourdes church, assistant priest.

The Rev. Martin McNamara, St. Francis church, Wilmette, deacon of mass; the Rev. Eugene V. Mulcahey, director of St. Mary's Training school, Des Plaines, subdeacon of mass; the Rev. Amos E. Giusti, Springfield, master of ceremonies, and the Rev. Henry P. Cunneen, assistant at St. Patrick's church, South Chicago, and the Rev. William P. Dunn, assistant at St. Lucy's church, acolytes.

JUNIOR CHOIR TO GIVE REVIEW AT DANCE OF PARISH

A musical revue based on events of the year will be presented Thursday and Friday evenings at the annual dance of All Saints Episcopal church in the parish house at 1759 Wilson avenue. The junior members of the choir will present the musical program.

Members of the program committee include Charles G. Swan, George C. Kubitz, Mrs. C. E. Christian, C. E. Parris, Mrs. R. R. Westland, Miss Dorothy G. Pinkney, Lester J. Heath, and Mrs. C. E. Ochs. Bruce J. Mitchell will direct the show.

Nursery Auxiliary to Hold Mothers' Meeting Tomorrow

The Mothers' day meeting of the Uptown auxiliary of the Douglas Park Day and Night nursery will be held at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow in the Palmer House. A playlet entitled "Truly Mother" will be given by the nursery children. Mrs. Harry Ex is president.

Mannequins and Chairman of League Benefit

Thru an arbor of spring blossoms mannequins will descend upon the guests at the Mary Crane league's benefit Wednesday afternoon in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Parading among the luncheon tables, they will show fashions for any spring day from sunrise to moonset. Three of the members who will model are (left to right) Miss Marjorie Williams, Miss Virginia Johnson, and Miss Betty Davis.

Mrs. Maurice H. Stans (above) is general chairman of the luncheon, book review, bridge and fashion show. Proceeds will be used to complete the $10,000 budget which the league raises annually to support its nursery at Hull house. Mrs. John L. Reichert is president and Mrs. Harry Mason Smith ways and means chairman. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Tells How She Handles Lilacs on the Big Day

There's lots to be done about lilacs between the time they bud in the garden and the time they reach the hospitals, and Mrs. William F. Hill, 6069 Navarre avenue, who has headed the Norwood Park Garden guild's Lilac day project for the last three years, has the lilac gathering down to a system. She explains it as follows:

"I just go to my neighbors and tell them we're sending in the lilacs to the hospitals. They always give me armloads and armloads and are glad to do it. I bring them home and place them in wash tubs filled with water. Then I go up to the grocery stores where I trade and ask for wooden boxes.

Prefers Wooden Boxes.

"Cardboard cartons are not as strong as they look, when it comes to moving them around filled with wet lilacs. I like best the wooden boxes with two parts, because the central partition keeps the flowers from sagging.

"I take these home and spend the next few hours tying the lilacs into bunches. I tie them with heavy string, then wad wet newspapers thickly around the stems. When I pack them in the boxes, I put the lilac blossoms up, and pack wet newspapers all thru the bottom of the boxes. This keeps the flowers fresh and prevents them from sagging.

Rope Keeps Flowers in Place.

"Next I tie heavy rope back and forth across the top of the boxes and tie it well. This keeps the flowers in place and allows the boxes to be handled efficiently by the train men. The guild notifies me what train will take the lilacs. Of course, the North Western railroad takes them in free of charge.

"I've worked on this project long enough to know that if the flowers sent in are well packed, and have been wrapped at the stems with wet paper, they will arrive in much fresher condition."

Sacred Heart Household Plans Annual Card Party

The annual card party of the Sacred Heart household of the Order of Martha, the women's auxiliary of the Catholic Church Extension society, will be held Friday evening in the Belden-Stratford hotel, 2300 Lincoln Park West. Mrs. George Balko is chairman, Mrs. James O'Connor is co-chairman, and Mrs. William J. Arnold is president of the organization. Proceeds will be used to help outlying parishes repair their churches.

Spring Concert.

De Soto Male chorus will present its second annual spring concert at 8:30 o'clock Thursday in the Loyola Community theater, 1320 Loyola avenue. Miss Virginia Haskins, coloratura soprano, will appear as guest soloist. Adalbert Huguelet is director of the Knights of Columbus chorus.

MAN AND BROOM BRING SPRING TO JUDSON AVENUE

Judson avenue residents in Evanston smiled last Wednesday when they sat down at their windows and looked out into the May 1 snowstorm. For they knew summer was here [practically] despite the snow.

The summer man with the broom was on the job. Thru the lace curtain of snowflakes he pushed his broom, sweeping and shoveling and whistling to uphold the 43 year old reputation that Judson avenue is one of the cleanest streets in all Chicagoland.

Wednesday began the 43d year of the Judson Avenue Improvement association, a group of immaculate residents who live along the seven block stretch from Lee to Church streets. Each May since 1897 members have hired a man with a broom to clean the street daily in the summer and circle the Judson avenue trees with insect exterminating glue.

Missionary Rally.

Missionaries from China, Africa, and South America will speak at the annual missionary rally of the Moody Memorial church, Clark and La Salle streets, next week from Tuesday thru Sunday evenings.

OLIVET INSTITUTE CHURCH TO INSTALL NEW PASTOR TODAY

The Rev. Alva Tompkins, for the last five years associate minister of New England Congregational church, will be installed this morning as pastor of Olivet Institute church, 1441 Cleveland avenue. Dr. Forsyth Crawford, head of the department of philosophy at Beloit college, will preach the ordination sermon.

Dr. Andrew C. Zenos, dean emeritus of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, will be moderator of the service. Dr. Paul S. Johnson, superintendent of the church extension board, will deliver the charge to the congregation, and Dr. Norman B. Barr, now pastor emeritus of Olivet after 40 years administration, will deliver the charge to the incoming pastor.

Church Recalls First Home in Railway Depot

Fifty years ago a Sunday school was started in the Summerdale railroad station at 5200 Ravenswood avenue on the Chicago and North Western line. The Sunday school pupils sat on the benches of the waiting room. When the hissing, puffing trains pulled in during the singing, everybody sang all the louder. The Sunday school teacher wrote the weekly text on the station blackboard, used on the other six days for train schedules.

That was the beginning of the Summerdale Community church, Farragut avenue and Paulina street, which recently celebrated its 50th anniversary. It was founded by 21 charter members. Mrs. C. B. James, 5449 North Paulina street, who, as a 12 year old, used to attend Sunday school in the railroad station, is still an active member of the church.

Move Into Factory.

From the railroad station the Sunday school, now organized as a church, moved into a nearby factory. For pews the congregation used cracker boxes and planks. A neighboring church donated a small organ.

In a short time the membership bought a lot at Farragut avenue and Paulina street, but it had no money with which to build a church. One of the members, a mechanic, canvassed the neighborhood soliciting money and pledges of labor. In 1893 excavation work began. Women served coffee to the workmen three times a day. Deacon John W. Roper says this was to prevent beer drinking.

Still Is in Use.

The same church is in use today and membership has increased to 192 members. The Rev. Douglas R. Patterson is the present pastor. Church officers include V. A. Leengran, 2212 Rosemont avenue, clerk; E. S. K. Ott, 1651 Farragut avenue, treasurer; S. L. Leengran, 5356 North Wolcott avenue, head collector; A. B. Nordin, 6422 North Richmond street, assistant collector, and B. H. Mansen, 1733 Gregory street, auditor.

Deasons and deaconesses include Mr. Roper, Charles B. James, Fred W. Mitchell, Albert A. Nordin, Walter J. Roper, Paul Reid, Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. V. A. Leengran, Mrs. John W. Roper, Mrs. H. F. Nieschlag, Mrs. C. A. Smith, and Mrs. F. W. Mitchell.

B'nai B'rith Lodge to Hold Annual Dance This Evening

R. O. T. C. YOUTHS TO SEEK HONORS IN INSPECTION

Army Officer Starts Rounds This Week.

The "big day" for Chicagoland's 11,750 R. O. T. C. cadets—the day of the federal inspection for which they have drilled and drilled to the hopeful commands of their youthful officers—is just around the corner. Beginning this week and lasting thru May 27 the inspection ceremonies will take place for the 35 high school units in Chicago and its suburbs. The first nine inspections this week will start Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock when the Hirsch High school regiment is examined at Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street.

Some 620 cadets who have made outstanding records during the current semester will receive medals, nearly all of which will be presented at the time of inspection. Two hundred and thirty-five of the awards will be given by THE TRIBUNE, which each semester donates one medal for every 50 cadets, gold for upperclassmen and silver for freshmen.

Other Medal Donors.

Nearly 200 medals are given by R. O. T. C. headquarters twice a year for efficiency, neatness, success in recruiting, and rifle marksmanship. At the 27 public high schools in the city with R. O. T. C. training these medals will be presented by Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago public school system. Other awards are given by representatives of the American Legion, the Reserve Officers association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary. Cadets who will receive the various medals are selected by the military instructors at the respective schools.

The appointment of Maj. Norman M. Nelsen, attached to the University of Wisconsin, as officer in charge of all inspections here has been announced thru 6th Corps area headquarters. In the inspections he will take into account appearance, neatness, drill, map reading, first aid, combat principles, musketry, and other points in military theory and practice. On the completion of all inspections the best trained units will receive the title of honor schools, the highest possible mark.

At the first inspection of Chicago high school R. O. T. C. units as organized under the National Defence act of 1920, there were two honor schools—Crane Tech and Schurz. That was in 1921. In recent years there have been six or seven honor schools each semester.

Colors for the Best.

To the schools rated No. 1 and No. 2 THE TRIBUNE will present stands of colors embodying the school's emblem and American flag. This ceremony will take place at the annual Michigan avenue review, held about a week after the last inspection and sponsored by the board of education and THE TRIBUNE.

Inspections this week will take place at the following schools [in the event of rain they will be in the school gymnasiums]:

Tuesday—Hirsch, 9 a. m., Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street; Bowen, 1:15 p. m., Bessemer park, 2710 East 89th street.

Wednesday—Du Sable, 9 a. m., Washington park, 51st street and Cottage Grove avenue; Hyde Park, 1:15 p. m., Jackson park, 63d street and Stony Island avenue.

Thursday—Calumet, 9 a. m., school campus, 8100 South Aberdeen street; Harper, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 6520 South Wood street.

Friday—Lindblom, 9 a. m., Ogden park, 64th street and Racine avenue; Austin, 1:15 p. m., Columbus park, Jackson boulevard and Central avenue.

Saturday—Evanston, 9 a. m., school campus, Church street and Dodge avenue, Evanston.

Medals at Evanston High school will not be presented until the school's annual R. O. T. C. banquet, June 1.

ESSAY CONTEST TESTS SKILL OF SCHOOL PUPILS

North Shore grammar school pupils last week began writing papers on the subject of the three branches of the federal government, in an essay contest held by Ouilmette council of the Knights of Columbus.

The contest will close May 15 and winners will be given cash prizes. Those taking part include public and parochial school pupils from the sixth to the eighth grades in Wilmette, Kenilworth, Winnetka, Hubbard Woods, Glencoe, and Glenview.

The awards will be presented at an open meeting of the council to be held May 27. Members of the essay committee include Leo J. Hassenauer, Anthony Ludovice, Lawrence Schaeffer, and Thomas O'Rourke.

Newman K. of C. to Gather for Communion Breakfast

Members of Newman council, Knights of Columbus, of Evanston will attend a communion breakfast this morning at Ascension of Our Lord church in the suburb. Leo J. Hassenauer, former first assistant United States district attorney, will be guest speaker. John M. Vose, grand knight of Newman council, will preside.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

OUR TOWNER Mary Anita Jans yesterday presented her graduate recital at Clarke college, Dubuque, Ia., by enacting a dramatic monolog version of "Herself: Mrs. Patrick Crowley." Mary Anita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter N. Jans, 1229 Leonard place, Evanston, is a drama senior at the college. She is president of the Clarke College Players. During the four years she has been a scholastic honor student. After her graduation in June, Mary Anita intends to take a special course in radio script work and reading. Her father is a former Evanston alderman.

Mary Anita Jans.

Six Our Towners have been pledged to Pi Gamma Mu, national honorary social science fraternity at Loyola university. They are Harold Hall, 6041 North Talman avenue; Warren Matt, 6321 Winthrop avenue; John Murnighan, 1740 Columbia avenue; Charles Goodwillie, 1501 Hood avenue; Andrew Dussel, 2850 Southport avenue, and James Wallace, 6720 North Ashland avenue. The pledges will be formally initiated into the fraternity at a banquet to be held Monday, May 27.

NINE north side artists are among those exhibiting their paintings this month at the Club Woman's Bureau at Mandel Brothers' department store. They are Victorine Connor, 2243 Cleveland avenue; John Hanny, 901 Cornelia avenue; Cyrilla Gaffney, 6919 Wayne avenue; William Gingrich, 4827 North Damen avenue; Mary B. Poull, 4240 Clarendon avenue; Louis Weiner, 6542 North Ashland avenue; Maurice Daly, 5041 Winthrop avenue; Carl G. Erickson, 2127 North Clark street, and Frederick Remahl, 3042 Sheffield avenue.

E. R. RICHER, 801 Central street, Wilmette, was elected president of the Chicago Federated Advertising club at the club's annual meeting Thursday in the Hotel Sherman. Our Towner Richer last year headed the advertising talent committee which awarded prizes in recognition of Chicago ad artistry. He is vice president of Hart, Schaffner and Marx in charge of advertising. Another north sider was chosen second vice president. She is Miss Ann Weizbrod, 661 Sheridan road. The club is a city-wide organization formed in 1934 to guard the ethics of advertising, develop talent, and promote Chicago as an advertising center. It is composed of 626 individual members and 15 affiliated clubs.

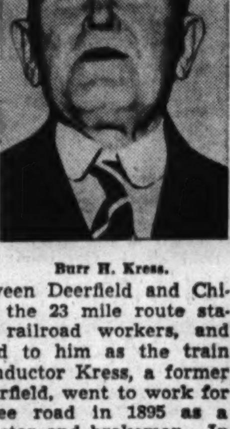
FOUR north side Northwestern university women students were initiated last week into Alpha Lambda Delta, national honorary scholastic organization for freshmen women. They are Catherine Putnik, 4249 North Mozart avenue; Mary Moser, 7658 Rogers avenue; Marjory Mattingly, 1700 Greenleaf avenue, and Doris McGinty, 5349 Sheridan road.

CONDUCTOR B. H. KRESS TAKES HIS LAST TRAIN BACK TO DEERFIELD

As the passengers scrambled into the 5:22 train for Deerfield last Tuesday at the Union station Conductor Burr H. Kress waved his lantern in the highball signal for the final time before retiring after 38 years.



Burr H. Kress.

It was his last ride as conductor on the Milwaukee road suburban trains running between Deerfield and Chicago. Along the 23 mile route station agents, railroad workers, and friends waved to him as the train went by. Conductor Kress, a former mayor of Deerfield, went to work for the Milwaukee road in 1895 as a freight conductor and brakeman. In 1902 he was made a passenger conductor on the Deerfield to Chicago run.

Mr. Kress, who is 70 years old, is the father of 10 children and has 18 grandchildren. He is a former director of the Deerfield Grammar school and village trustee.

ISLANDS TO AID PEDESTRIANS AT DANGER POINTS

Will Reduce Distance Across Auto Lanes.

[DIAGRAM ON PAGE 2.]

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

Seventeen north side intersections, said by traffic engineers to be among the worst crossings in the city, are to be made safer for pedestrians and motorists within eight weeks, Commissioner of Streets Joseph J. Butler announced last week.

The seventeen corners, most of them triple intersections, are to be included in a $50,000 program for the elimination of traffic hazards at 45 intersections thruout the city. The work to get under way within six weeks is expected to be completed within two weeks of the starting date. It will consist for the mort part of channelization, the erection of concrete islands in the traffic streams of the intersections. These islands will control traffic by keeping it in proper lanes.

Aids Right Turners.

In almost all cases traffic signal lights will be moved closer together to synchronize the flow of vehicles. Moving of the lights will provide right turn lanes behind the lights, and, thus, motorists will have fewer cross-traffic problems as they make a right turn.

North side intersections included in the $50,000 improvement program are Ashland-Clark-Rosehill, Ashland-Lincoln-Belmont, Broadway-Racine, Clark-Ridge-Thorndale, Damen-Lincoln-Irving Park, Halsted-Grace-Broadway, Halsted-Clark-Barry, Larrabee-Ogden-North, Leavitt-Lincoln-Montrose, Southport-Clark-Warner, Western-Lincoln-Lawrence, Marshfield-Lincoln-School, Orchard-Lincoln-Belden, Paulina-Lincoln-Roscoe, Lincoln-Peterson-Virginia, Lincoln-Bryn Mawr, and Larrabee-Lincoln-Webster.

Members of the north area council of the Chicago Motor club, who have advocated channelization work for several years, hailed the program as "a great factor in cutting down future traffic accidents." Commissioner Butler sent details of the program to council officers.

Cuts Long Distances.

Area council members cited the intersection of Lincoln-Belmont-Ashland avenues as an example of what channelization will mean. At present, they said, a pedestrian crossing from the east corner between Lincoln and Belmont avenues to the north corner between Lincoln and Ashland avenues must go 132 feet before he comes to a safety island. Once on the safety island he must traverse another 132 feet of traffic area before he reaches the safety of the curb.

When the corner will be channelized, the pedestrian can make the crossing in five "jumps," or, in other words, there will be four islands of refuge. In each "jump" the pedestrian will be exposed only to 56 feet of traffic area, instead of 132 feet as under the present system.

Ashland avenue is Chicago's most dangerous street, a survey of traffic deaths last year shows. Forty-six persons were killed in 1939 on Ashland avenue, and of the total 39 were pedestrians. The survey was made by George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, praised the plans of the city engineers. He said:

"Channelization serves a threefold purpose. It eliminates confusion among drivers by confining them to their own lanes, provides havens of refuge for harassed pedestrians, and permits a more efficient control of traffic. At three-street intersections pedestrians are forced to cross one or more streets at an angle, thus making their route considerably longer than the width of the street."

Will Reduce Collisions.

George Seebacher, north area council chairman, echoed the praise. "Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, and Mr. Butler have prepared a program that will eliminate hundreds of collisions and an untold amount of suffering by victims of unfortunate accidents at these locations," he said. "This is a splendid example of safety engineering."

Under the channelization program traffic signal lights will be moved closer to the actual point of cross-traffic flow. The distance between lights will be shorter, thereby making a shorter time between the flashing of red, green, and yellow lights.

YOUTH ALIJAH TO BENEFIT BY ENTERTAINMENT

Muriel Dunkleman, 3750 Lake Shore drive, actress; Marione Kohn, 3800 Lake Shore drive, pianist, and Ruth Doctoroff Levy, dancer, will present a program for the benefit of Youth Alijah at 3:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon in the Chicago Woman's Club theater, 72 East 11th street. Youth Alijah is a project of Hadassah in which Jews from 15 to 17 years old are transferred from countries of persecution to Palestine. About 6,000 already have been established in homes. Mrs. Gabriel Dunkleman, a member of North Side Hadassah, is chairman of the benefit.

GET THEIR TRAFFIC LIGHTS.

Stop and go lights are being installed at Oak and Orleans streets.

David Mark, chairman of the Division-State-Clark Business Men's association, informs me that lights for Division and Clark streets will be installed as soon as possible after the subway and street paving necessary for the subway station is completed. Lights are turned off during such construction anyway.

Mr. Brandies, city traffic engineer, and not the alderman or anybody else, is the man responsible for the lights not having been installed two years ago, for he claimed that a traffic policeman could do the job better than lights. [He still may be right.]

Of 24 stop and go lights asked for in the lower north community campaign by local merchants and civic groups under the banner of the Greater North Side association all but five are now installed with two dropped. 1941 should see them all in operation. A. H. S.

MORE ABOUT AUTO HORNS.

I wonder if "Tired," whose letter was published last Sunday, thinks that Rogers Park has a monopoly on selfish, inconsiderate people. Unfortunately there are plenty of people in Edgewater who are too lazy to get out of their cars and who think they have a right to wake up every one for blocks by honking their automobile horns no matter what the time.

It seems if we united we might be able to think of some way to get the better of these people. As a starter I suggest that the squad cars be instructed to pick up these disturbers of the peace and take them to the police station, or at least give them a ticket so that they will have to put in an appearance in court. S. L. C.

Last February the WPA came along Ashland avenue, between Irving Park road and Lawrence avenue. At various places they broke up the curbing and put in a new curb. They left our lawns in a very dirty condition, leaving broken concrete, stones, and sand. They left a deep trench along the new curb.

Who can we take this up with to get the lawns cleaned and the trench filled so we can put in grass seed and replace our lawns?

Yes, we have an alderman, also a ward committeeman, but they don't seem to take any notice of this condition. J. L. B.

LIGHTS FOR McCORMICK ROAD.

Why don't the villages along McCormick road get together about this lighting business? The frequency of night accidents along there certainly points to the need for nights.

Driving along the road last week after nightfall I saw several close calls and one brushed fender even in the short time I was on the street. This needs immediate attention. F. D. M.

EARLY WILMETTE DAYS WILL BE RELIVED TUESDAY

Memories of the early days of Wilmette, then an area of cucumber fields with a pickle factory in the center, will go on parade at the annual banquet of the suburb's old-timers Tuesday evening at the Wilmette Masonic temple.

More than 100 of the old residents are expected to attend and in keeping with their annual custom, will reminisce about the early history of the town. The old-timers have been organized since 1892 into a formal reminiscence and historical club called Ye Olde Towne Folkes of Wilmette. Each year the organization holds a banquet which is a field day of pioneer recollection.

The program Tuesday evening will be entitled "Wilmette Before 1870." Old settlers who were children at that time, or whose parents have handed down stories of the pioneer days, will make after dinner speeches.

Ye Olde Towne Folkes was organized 48 years ago to preserve the historical data of the suburb. Only residents who have lived in Wilmette continuously for more than 25 years are eligible for membership. James D. Kline, 531 8th street, is president.

Officers and directors will have charge of the program arrangements. They are Fred J. Newey, vice president; Albert B. Tucker, treasurer; Miss Rebecca Fitch, secretary; Mrs. Lorin A. Bower, historian, and Mrs. John Clark Baker, Mrs. William N. Waldner, J. R. Gathercoal, Dr. C. G. Smith, Mrs. I. R. Adkins, William H. Ellis, Charles A. Lundberg, Lloyd Gage, and Mrs. Elmer D. Becker, directors.

Wilmette gets its name from a French settler, Antoine Ouilmette.

JAMES SIMPSON LEADS THE FIELD FOR PARTY POST

Reveal Official Count on State Committee.

James Simpson Jr. of Wadsworth and Edward Sullivan of Chicago were the biggest Chicago district vote getters for state central committeeman in the April primary. This was shown last week with the announcement of the official vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

Simpson, former congressman from the 10th district, topped the Republican candidates, polling 51,982 votes, thereby unseating Committeeman Thomas J. Houston. Simpson got more votes than the three other candidates combined.

Simpson's nearest G. O. P. rival for vote honors was Committeeman Lester J. Norris in the 3d district. Norris, secretary of the state central committee, got 32,742 votes, snowing under four challengers.

Sullivan Is Unopposed.

Sullivan captured Democratic vote getting distinction with a total of 118,234. He was unopposed for the 6th district post being vacated voluntarily by Committeeman Richard M. Sullivan. Sullivan is secretary to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, and held a similar place under Mayor William E. Dever.

Another newcomer to the committee, former Ald. George D. Kells [28th] in the 7th district, was second high among the Democrats with 110,855 votes. He had no rivals for the committeemanship, relinquished by Joseph F. Higgins, who served two terms.

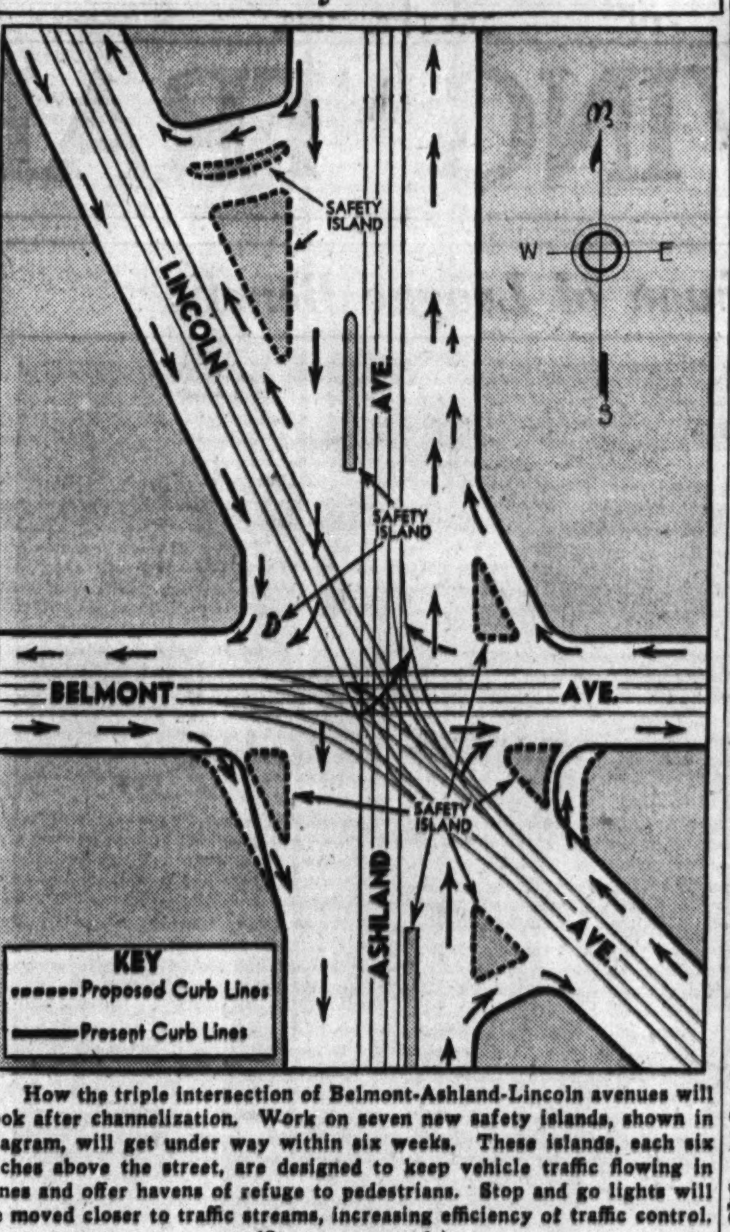
New Safety for Walkers



How the triple intersection of Belmont-Ashland-Lincoln avenues will look after channelization. Work on seven new safety islands, shown in diagram, will get under way within six weeks. These islands, each six inches above the street, are designed to keep vehicle traffic flowing in lanes and offer havens of refuge to pedestrians. Stop and go lights will be moved closer to traffic streams, increasing efficiency of traffic control.

RESIDENT MEN AT WILSON "Y" TO HAVE PARTY

Hi-Y Clubs Also Join in Festival.

Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A. members will have a choice of going to two parties Friday evening as part of the Y's opening celebration of its annual May festival. One will be the annual party given by the residence men at the Y., 1725 Wilson avenue, and the other will be held by the Lake View Hi-Y and Tri Hi-Y clubs at the Ravenswood Masonic temple, Wilson avenue and Paulina street.

A program for the remainder of the month has been drawn up. A movie night program will be held Monday evening, May 13. On Friday, May 17, members will present an archery demonstration and the Y's Friendly Indian organization will hold a spring pow wow. On May 24, gymnasium class members will present an athletic show.

Those serving on the general festival committee include Leon Enk, Avis Johnson, Henry Griesbach, Mrs. Ardis Higgins, Earl Mullins, Don Enderlin, Melvin Ellis, Wallace Griffith, Robert Nigg, Ann DeLany, Annabelle Sullivan, Grace Oeller, Mrs. H. A. Brandt, Robert Mullen, Russ Kewley, Fred Fahrenfeld, Milton Pergament, Al Bjorkland, Calvin Morris, Joseph Lange, Ed Wiegand, Jerry Moran, Ernest Mitzner, Reid Engelmann, and Harvey L. Smith.

During the May festival the newly organized Business Men's club will hold its first formal meeting.

Leads 17 Dark Horses in 9th District.

Seventeen dark horses appeared in the 9th district balloting for alternate delegate to the Republican national convention in the April 9 primary. This was revealed last week with the announcement of the official Cook county vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

This scramble resulted from the failure of more than one candidate to file for 9th district alternate. Paul J. Randolph, the only man to file, and whose name consequently was the only one printed on the ballot, received 11,639 votes.

Friends of Edmond Mansure elected him to the alternate's post by writing in his name on 585 ballots. A similar write-in campaign for Frank S. S. Sims brought him 469 votes. The name of John A. Rogers was written in on 182 ballots.

Seven Get One Each.

Seven candidates got from 3 to 23 votes each via the write-in route. Seven others received one vote each, presumably their own.

Below are tabulated the total votes for alternates in the first nine congressional districts, all of which are in Cook county, and the 10th which includes part of Cook and all of Lake county [the names of candidates who polled less than two votes each are omitted]. CHEER LINDBLOM AT THIS WEEK'S CITIZEN RALLY

W-G-N Show Will Reveal Origin of Slogan.

"This is Lindblom!"

That cry will open the sixth of the "Citizens of Tomorrow" radio shows of W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. The programs, which run a half hour, are sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Butler Laughlin.

How the slogan became a tradition of this 20 year old Chicago high school will be explained during the broadcast which will feature the Lindblom chorus, under the direction of Miss Hannah Rosenthal. As special guest of the evening performance, which will be attended by 600 students from Lindblom, will be Butler Laughlin, the school's principal.

School Groups Coöperate.

These broadcasts, dedicated to the youth of America, emphasize the many factors of today's high school which train students for responsible citizenship. The broadcasts are being presented thru the coöperation of the radio council and the music department of the Chicago public schools.

Especially popular has become The Tribune news quiz, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, a member of this newspaper's editorial staff, who plays the rôle of "The Principal." Six students are selected from the audience by Announcer Pierre Andre just before going on the air and Mr. Maxwell presents each of the winners with a $5 bill.

"I'm glad I have the answers written down," replied the "Principal" after a show, when one of the spectators commented on the alertness and intelligence of the contestants. The W-G-N sound effects department and Harold Turner, pianist, participate in this part of the entertainment.

Give Information on Graduates.

Information on some of the graduates of Lindblom will be related by Ed Sprague, who takes the character of the "School Engineer," and "Jerry," every school's co-ed, will be back to tell how "super" everything is at Lindblom.

A party of 20 students from Emerson High school in Gary, Ind., also will be guests of THE TRIBUNE Wednesday night. They are senior students who publish the school's year book. Following the broadcast they also will see "Trees to Tribune," a talking movie, and will be taken on a tour of Tribune Tower with a hundred Lindblom students.

Young Pianist

The Young American Artists' series, directed by Charline Marmein, will present Alverna Stetzler, 6413 North Oakley avenue, i a piano recital at 8:15 o'clock Tuesday in Curtiss hall in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue. Miss Stetzler's program will include numbers by Chopin, Beethoven, and Youngfelt.

North Side Amateurs Offer Wide Variety to Stage Fans

The little theater movement on the north side next week will run the gamut of theatrical emotion from slapstick comedy to the hissing homicidal villainies of 1890 melodrama.

Lola Carmichael.
[Youngberg Photo.]

The Park Edgewater Players will illustrate the comic possibilities of modern life with the presentation of three one-act plays Friday evening at the Rogers Park Masonic temple, 1716 Lunt avenue. The plays are Noel Coward's "Hands Across the Sea"; "The Florist Shop," by Winifred Hawkridge, winner of a Harvard university award, and "The Mice Will Play," by Beatrice Farrell, director of the group.

Revival at Northwestern U.

Northwestern university theater will revive Dion Boucicault's melodrama of the hoop skirt days, "The Poor of New York," Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings at the Evanston campus. The play, which will include a murder, two attempted suicides, a snowstorm in the city streets, a tenement fire, and a stage wedding, will be directed by Charles Vance.

The Joyce Kilmer Players will enact the paradoxical "The Virtue of Satan," written by an Evanstonian, William Roeder, this evening at the Women's Club of Evanston. Proceeds will go to the Polish relief committee.

Three one-act plays, "The Boor," "The Valiant," and "Thank You, Doctor," will be presented Sunday evening at Congregation B'nai Zion by the Young People's league. The program will be under the direction of Barney Oldfield. Members of the cast include Shepard Andalman, Francis Steinberg, Joseph Singer, Irving Eidenberg, Monroe Berliner, Mildred Moss, Bernard Silverman, Lewis Goldstein, Ann Sholkow, Judy Sien, and Jack Steinberg.

An operetta, "Gypsy Rover," will be presented Wednesday and Thursday evenings by the St. Luke's Lutheran church choir in the church auditorium, Belmont and Greenview avenues. Leading rôles will be played by Miss Helen Gutowsky, Robert Pomrenke, and Robert Kuhagen. Miss Marga Link is drama coach and Herbert D. Bruening is musical director.

Edna Ferber and George Kaufman's comedy, "The Royal Family," will be given tomorrow and Tuesday evenings at the De Paul Little theater, 64 East Lake street, by the university drama group.

Chase Park Junior Group.

Members of the Chase park junior dramatic group will delve into modern fantasy Thursday evening with the staging of "The Seven Dwarfs Visit Snow White" at the park fieldhouse, 4701 North Ashland avenue. They also will enact two other skits, "The Tea Party" and "Musical Revue."

The cast includes Marjorie Sonnenschien, Elizabeth Stone, Helen Hartman, Rose Mary Giblin, Jean Ann Akers, Jeannie Bolan, Jean Rinchiciso, Jacqueline Johnson, Ronne Johnson, Dolores Robinson, Carol Baker, and Leona Stone.

The problems of high school students will be paraded in a three act comedy, "Poor Dear Edgar," to be enacted Friday and Saturday evenings by the Masqueteers, Ravenswood Methodist church drama group, in the community house, 4511 North Hermitage avenue.

PROMISE CHOICE BITS AT CHURCH RUMMAGE SALE

Winnetka Women Seeking Cash for Charities.

Any article you can name will be available for the early bird at the rummage sale Thursday, sponsored by the Woman's society of the Winnetka Congregational church. The committee in charge has promised variety, but will not guarantee how long that variety will last after the doors of the community house open at 7 o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. Theron Wright, general chairman, and a large committee have been preparing for the sale for months. It benefits the society's philanthropies of which the largest are Onward Neighborhood house, 600 North Leavitt street, and the community house to be built at the Church of the Good Shepherd, 5700 Prairie avenue. Profits last year were more than $2,500.

Assisting Mrs. Wright with general arrangements are Mrs. Stuart Boal, Mrs. Frank Ferry, Mrs. John L. Hamilton, Mrs. Carson Taylor, and Mrs. L. T. Wallace. Refreshments will be sold thru the day.

Offer Collectors' Items.

A feature of the sale will be an auction of collectors' items from 2 to 3:30 o'clock. Mrs. Erwin A. Meyers and Mrs. William H. Rothermel will be auctioneers. Among the items in this season's collection are a hand carved walnut screen, an ivory fan, Hitchcock chairs, a silver tray, and other silver pieces.

One of the most popular booths is expected to be the French room, which contains the nicest wearing apparel. Mrs. Marcus Richards, Mrs. A. Fletcher Marsh, and Mrs. L. T. Wallace, chairman, will be showing evening gowns and wraps and dresses and suits for everyday wear.

More than 500 women take an active part in the rummage sale. Included on the roll call, which is made up of the chairmen and their assistants, are the following: Mrs. Kenneth Mullins, publicity; Mrs. William Warfield, collecting; Mrs. Lee Adams, sorting; Mrs. K. H. Hinrichs, Mrs. H. L. Klagstad, and Mrs. Robert Beach, accessories; Mrs. Felix W. Boldenweck, Miss Ida Morrill, and Miss Caroline Eckstrom, art and lampshades.

CHURCH WOMEN READY TO GIVE MAY BREAKFAST

Evanston Members List Annual Event.

"Life with Mother" will be the theme for the annual May breakfast of the Woman's association of the First Presbyterian Church of Evanston to be held at noon Wednesday in the church. Mrs. Elwood Mattson, president, will preside. Women who have joined the church during the last year will be guests.

The program will consist of readings and musical numbers by Mrs. Walter Dill Scott, Mrs. Clarence F. Stearnes, Mrs. Philip Maxwell, and Mrs. Haydn Miller. Dr. Emery Wylie Luccock, pastor, will conduct an installation service for officers of the auxiliary and the Service guild.

Mrs. William Riach, who will be installed as chairman of the auxiliary, has asked her division chairmen to serve as table hostesses. The group includes Mrs. William H. Avery, Miss Mary Young, Mrs. J. M. Doyle, Mrs. Preston Williams, Mrs. J. J. Trefz and Mrs. Chester Legg. Mrs. William Elmer White will again be president of the guild.

In Charge of Breakfast.

Mrs. William P. Turner Jr., hospitality chairman of the Woman's association, will be in charge of the breakfast, assisted by Mrs. James W. Good, Mrs. Philip Huston, Mrs. William S. Carson, and Mrs. James F. Donica. Mrs. Harry Dow, membership chairman, is in charge of invitations.

The Junior Mission guild will meet at 11 o'clock Tuesday to hear Mrs. D. A. Miller speak on "Christian Women of Today." Mrs. Miller, daughter of a missionary in Japan, is director of religious education in Batavia, Ill.

Miss Teresa Rew will lead the devotions. Grant Holt, a sophomore at Evanston Township High school, will play Morkjes' "Valcik" and the first two movements of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata" on the piano.

Luncheon hostesses will be Mrs. Bert Murphy, chairman, Mrs. R. H. Blanchard, Mrs. C. G. Bennett, Mrs. Otis Green, Mrs. Carl F. Metz, Mrs. Charles R. Morrow, and Mrs. E. D. Baughman.

St. Ansgarius Episcopal.

The Sunday Evening club will meet in the guild hall at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Mrs. Herbert Dent, 5941 North Talman avenue, will be hostess to the Altar guild at a 2 o'clock meeting Tuesday in the hall, 2514 Thorndale avenue. The Ladies' auxiliary will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday in the home of Mrs. Nathaniel Brooks, 5740 North Artesian avenue.

Evanston First Methodist.

Residents of the Methodist Old People's home in Chicago will be guests at the guild meeting Wednesday. The Rev. Arthur T. Clark will conduct the chapel service at 12:10 o'clock and luncheon will be served in the Great hall. A musical program will be presented. Mrs. E. A. Gross and Mrs. Amos Ball of the social service committee are in charge of arrangements. Members are asked to furnish transportation and gifts of cash and flowers.

A joint meeting of the old and new boards of the Mothers' circle will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow night in the home of Mrs. Arthur Kuiper, 1320 Wesley avenue, Evanston.

SEWARD JUNIORS ARE TO PRESENT BENEFIT PLAY

To increase their philanthropic fund, the Seward Park Juniors will present "Tommy's Wife," by Marie S. Warren, at 8 o'clock Friday evening in Seward park gymnasium, Elm and Orleans streets. There will be dancing after the play, with music by the park's swing quartet.

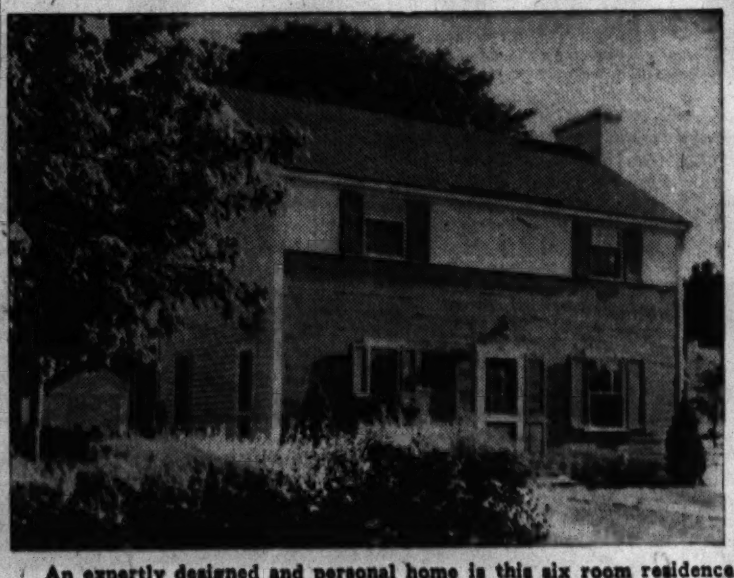
Miss Maryellen Martinez, a member, is directing a cast composed of Josephine Saverino, Sam Buscemi, Clara Zeutschel and Clem Martinez in the leading rôles and Al D'Anna, Virginia H. Benn, Mary McCarter, and Priscilla Benn in supporting parts. Arrangements are being handled by Ellyn Muzio, Wini Schuler, Dorothy Tekip, Frances Saverno, and Marion Carrarro. Miss Florence Gremo will assist at the piano.

North Town Juniors.

The Juniors will hold their annual spring breakfast at 12:30 o'clock today in the Orrington hotel in Evanston. Mrs. Alvin Schulz, program chairman, will introduce Miss Irene Kenny, dramatist, and Miss Winifred Greibel, soprano. Both artists are students at Immaculata High school.

Mrs. Louis Nettelhorst Jr. has been reëlected president, and other board members are Mrs. Schultz, vice president; Miss Beatrice Byers, secretary; Miss Josephine Ohlson, treasurer; Miss Dorothy Tueber, philanthropy; Miss Virginia Roos, program; Mrs. Frank Paul, publicity, and Miss Dorothy Van Natta, social and membership.

Well Designed Residence



An expertly designed and personal home is this six room residence in the contemporary manner at 552 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell Older. The architect was L. Morgan Yost, A. I. A., 930 Spanish court, Wilmette. Approximate cost, with single car, separate garage, including architect's fee, but exclusive of land, $7,250.

P.-T. UNITS PLAN TO HOLD STUDIES IN ORGANIZATION

Classes Will Meet in 39 North Side Schools.

Classes in parent-teacher organization will be held at 39 schools on the north side by the North Side Council of Parent-Teacher Associations. The first session will be Friday morning in the Peirce school fieldhouse, 1423 Bryn Mawr avenue.

Mrs. Herbert Behr, newly elected president, will conduct the meeting. Mrs. Behr and other officers of the council, district 24, were installed recently. They are Mrs. Walter Jasper, Mrs. Otto Weiner, Joseph Tew, and Ross Herr, vice presidents; Mrs. H. O. Keys, recording secretary; Mrs. R. M. Rickey, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. G. A. Althaus, treasurer.

Officers of the Agassiz P.-T. A. will be installed Wednesday afternoon in the school auditorium, 2851 Seminary avenue. They are Mrs. Frank Pearsall, president; Mrs. May Slager, first vice president; Mrs. George Nelson, second vice president; Mrs. Herbert Anderson, recording secretary; Mrs. Arthur Haase, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Edward Rector, treasurer.

"Diet, Health, and Recreation Essential for Good Citizenship" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. Emanuel Falaguerra at the regular meeting of the Blaine P.-T. A. Friday afternoon in the school assembly hall, Southport avenue and Grace street. Newly elected officers include Mildred Quigg, president; Gertrude Wald, first vice president; Rose Bond, second vice president; Martha Nehring, recording secretary; Mrs. William Duffy, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. G. A. Shumeson, treasurer.

"How to Fit the Book to the Child" is the topic of a talk to be given Tuesday afternoon at a meeting of the Le Moyne P.-T. A., 851 Waveland avenue, by Miss Agatha Shea, head librarian director of the juvenile branch of the Chicago public library. Mrs. Dan Kahn, president, who attended the P.-T. A. state convention, will present a report of the proceedings.

Clarence Lineberger, district superintendent of schools, will speak on "Schools for All Children" Tuesday afternoon at the monthly meeting of the William G. Goudy Parent-Teacher association. Mrs. Harry Shayne is president of the group.

Miss Rea Seeger, Tribune fashion editor, will tell how high school girls can dress well and still stay within a rigid budget at the Amundsen P.-T. A. meeting Thursday afternoon.

A one act comedy, "Who Gets the Car?", will be given Friday evening by members of the Armstrong P.-T. A. at their monthly meeting in Indian Boundary fieldhouse, Lunt avenue and Rockwell street. Mrs. M. D. Catton is program chairman.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 6.

May is an excellent time to feed trees. A crowbar will do to make holes about four feet apart and two feet deep at the drip of the branches. Fill the holes with food to within two inches of the top and finish with soil. Water until the ground is soaked. If the ground is soaked before using the crowbar the work will be much easier.

Tuesday, May 7.

It will be easier to buy suitable soil for boxes from the florist than to prepare it at home. Leave plenty of room for watering and later for applying a rich top dressing. Unless one has the proper facilities for growing good plants at home, it is best to buy plants that will become established immediately. Many combinations of different plants can be arranged, but some thrive in full sun while others prefer shade or partial shade. The petunia is one of the finest of all plants for the purpose; the geranium, lantana, ageratum, phlox drummondi, portulaca, and similar kinds all do well.

Wednesday, May 8.

Divide perennials. When sweet peas begin to grow, thin to about six inches apart in the row. Watch for plant lice and begin spraying with nicotine; for attacks of mildew, use sulphur. Sow seeds of virtually all annuals at this time. Make a fine seedbed and do not sow too thick.

Thursday, May 9.

Do not cut all the foliage away from tulips when cutting the blooms for the leaves are necessary for good ripening of the bulbs. Plant dahlias after the ground is warm. Planting late will give better fall bloom. Do not allow rhubarb plants to form seeds or the plants will be weakened. Try a few rows of New Zealand spinach as a hot weather crop. It can be cut several times and it is very fine. Work for a succession of crops in the vegetable garden; always have something ready to plant or sow as soon as one crop is off the ground; conserve space.

Friday, May 10.

It is time to finish tree, shrub, and vine planting. For a low ornamental shrub try the Hansen bush cherry. It has fragrant white flowers in spring, followed by berries resembling small plums. The berries are edible and excellent for preserves. For something different as a hedge, plant the dwarf blue leaf Arctic willow. It grows anywhere in wet or heavy soils and can withstand low temperatures. The oak leaf hydrangea will do well in a shady spot and it is quite unusual.

Saturday, May 11.

Shrubs that flower during midsummer are quite rare, but one called ocean spray is new on the market. It has large clusters of creamy white flowers. Be sure to water evergreens during dry periods. A good lawn mixture consists of 60 per cent Kentucky bluegrass and 40 per cent redtop, with a little rye grass for quick growth and shade while the bluegrass germinates. Feed the lawn with a complete plant food.

ECONOMY, GOOD TASTE COMBINED IN SMALL HOME

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A great many architects at the present time are concerning themselves with small homes of good design. Homes which combine good taste and economy with features both practical and attractive.

Such a home was designed recently by L. Morgan Yost, A. I. A., architect, 930 Spanish court, Wilmette. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell Older and the small six room highly individual house stands at 552 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth.

If you feel you'd like to build a really friendly, personal little home, this contemporary home is a type to consider.

A neat brick walk, cool mustard tan shutters against a rough textured front of soft gray green, and a hospitable door welcome the visitor who walks toward the two story house, with its white exterior walls except for the front façade, and its blue-black roof in effective contrast.

Suited to Small Family.

Inside you find a very individual, attractive interior suited to a small family. [The Older family now numbers three members. The afternoon I saw the house there was a diminutive new arrival, a 2 week old baby girl, making use of a cozy nursery bedroom.]

To the right of the entrance hall is the living room, 11 feet 10 inches by 21 feet. The walls, above a white wainscote, are painted a coral rose, the carpeting is a brown rose which tones in beautifully, the fireplace is of white brick with mirror to the ceiling, and at the far end is a large picture window overlooking the garden and terrace area at the back of the home.

The living room and dining room are completely separated by an intriguing little hallway, with built-in shelves to ceiling with coral rose background, and under these shelves a desk table, phone, and chair. From this hallway are the stairs to the second floor, also carpeted in the same rose brown shade, and with papered walls; a fern pattern on a rosy tan background which reflects the tone of the carpet.

Ceiling Is Silver.

The dining room, 12 feet by 11 feet, is a charming, sunny spot. Here the south wall, with French doors leading out to the porch, is prepared in a silver and blue paper. The ceiling is silver—a striking note—and the three other walls are painted a harmonizing blue. On each side of the French doors are windows with glass shelves for flowering plants and vines.

The kitchen, 8 feet by 9 feet 4 inches, is at the front of the house. Its walls and cabinets are painted a soft tone of blue. The linoleum floor is dominated by a pleasant peach shade which is likewise carried out in the ceiling.

At the front of the house, opening from a small passageway between hall and kitchen, is a coat closet with lavatory opposite. Here in the lavatory the lower wall is a rich brown to complement the brown floor linoleum, while the upper walls are a chartreuse.

Has Three Bedrooms.

On the second floor are three bedrooms. The master bedroom has painted walls of soft green, with olive green upholstery and bedspread. The furniture is pickled light mahogany, the carpeting is rose, and a door from this room leads out to sun deck—for summer living. Door and windows of this room, which are curtained in imported Swedish voile, have a border outline of white and green, harmonizing with green of walls and upholstery.

There is a second bedroom which Mrs. Older calls her "antique" room. Here the walls are painted blue with a captivating border of French little blue and pink nosegays on a background of white. The ceiling of this room in blue and the rug white. And it goes without saying that the nursery, with its soft blue walls and paper in a "youthful and lively bell pattern," is all in the spirit of our modern nursery bedrooms.

Win Awards in R. O. T. C.

As a reward for winning the Sullivan High school R. O. T. C. platoon competition last week Cadet Lieutenant Donald Koch (left), commander of the winning platoon, is given a saber by Cadet Major William Powers, 1st battalion commander and one of the judges. At the same time Cadet Lieutenant Colonel James E. Parlee (right), regimental commander, presented a bronze cup, donated by Rogers Park post of the American Legion, to Cadet Captain Robert Luce, commander of Company C, to which the winning platoon belongs. Second and third places were won by Companies A and B, respectively. Cadet Major Robert Mugalian was the second judge.

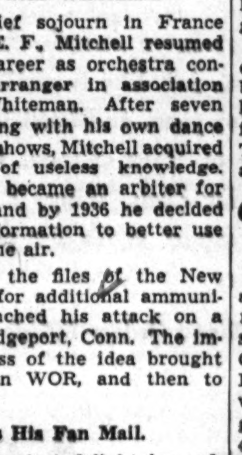
Served with Whiteman for Years.

If you want to know whether or not Nero wore a monocle, who has the largest feet in Hollywood [it isn't Garbo], whether soup is eaten or sipped, and where people make the most noise on New Year's eve ask Al Mitchell, the Answer Man. Al is heard at 10 p. m. Wednesdays and Sundays on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.



Al Mitchell.

Al Mitchell began collecting information from the 1898 World Almanac when he was attending third grade in St. Louis, Mo.

Aside from an insatiable curiosity, Albert spent his youth taking piano lessons, witnessing baseball games thru a knothole, and piloting his father's ABC friction drive automobile perilously thru the streets of St. Louis backward.

To escape the drudgery of mowing the homestead lawn, Mitchell ran away from home at the age of 14 and began his professional career as a musician and singer in a nickelodeon theater. From that time until 1936 he was a professional musician, singer, and master of ceremonies.

Served with Whiteman.

After a brief sojourn in France with the A. E. F., Mitchell resumed his musical career as orchestra conductor and arranger in association with Paul Whiteman. After seven years of touring with his own dance band in stage shows, Mitchell acquired a vast fund of useless knowledge. Backstage he became an arbiter for all disputes, and by 1936 he decided to put his information to better use by going on the air.

He combed the files of the New York library for additional ammunition and launched his attack on a station at Bridgeport, Conn. The immediate success of the idea brought him to station WOR, and then to W-G-N.

Mitchell's greatest delight is reading his fan mail, which contains the majority of "screwball" questions he answers twice a week. On the assumption that all questions have answers, Mitchell has managed to solve such problems as "how high is up," "Which came first, the hen or the egg," and "How long is a string."

Mitchell is the proud father of a beautiful 16 year old girl, Dolly, who has just signed a contract with Paul Whiteman as vocalist. Still attending high school at Norwalk, Conn., Dolly is a radio veteran, having sung on the air for ten years.

—Waller—

Five cadet promotions in the Waller High school R. O. T. C. unit have been announced by the military instructor, Sergt. Alfred Fulton. Capt. Davana Schultz was appointed a major; Second Lieutenant Lon Dawson, a captain; Second Lieutenant Julius Kovats, a first lieutenant; Staff Sergeant William Brotherton and Sergt. Anthony Maurice, second lieutenants.

SCHOOL PATROL BOYS WILL SEE MAJOR BASEBALL

As a reward for a year's duty as safety patrol boys more than 30,000 elementary pupils from some 850 schools in the city and suburbs will be taken to professional baseball games this spring, chaperoned by members of the public high school R. O. T. C. units. Between 2,500 and 3,000 north and west side boys will watch each of four Cubs' games this week, beginning tomorrow and extending thru Thursday.

Following a custom established four years ago, the National and American leagues have donated 92,500 tickets to the Chicago board of education for distribution among 338 city public elementary schools, some 150 suburban public schools, about 300 parochial schools in and near the city, and 50 Lutheran schools.

Tickets are given only for games played during the week—from Monday thru Thursday. This year 13 are Cubs' games at Wrigley field and 12 are White Sox games at Comiskey park. Tomorrow and Tuesday the Cubs play Philadelphia; Wednesday and Thursday, Brooklyn.

August H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education for the school board, is in charge of distributing the tickets. After allowing for games called off on account of bad weather, he said, each boy will get to two games.

Thirty R. O. T. C. cadets are sent each day to supervise the younger boys. Cadets' tickets for this week have been sent to Waller High school for tomorrow's game, Amundsen for Tuesday, Lake View for Wednesday, and Senn for Thursday.

Glencoe Leader Appointed for Red Cross Survey

Walter A. Kellner, 642 Washington avenue, Glencoe, was appointed chairman of the disaster preparedness survey committee of the Glencoe Red Cross unit last week. Mrs. Elmer F. Wieboldt, 5 Briar Lane, Glencoe, was made a member of the unit's general committee. Frank S. Coffin, 463 Washington avenue in the suburb, is chairman of the preparedness committee.

HIGHLAND PARK HIGH SCHOOL TO OFFER CONCERT

The second spring concert by the music department of the Highland Park High school will take place this afternoon in the school auditorium. A featured number will be by the woodwind quintet composed of William Hawes, flute; William Hamlin, bassoon; Robert A. Bryant Jr., French horn; David Worth, oboe, and Enid Ball, clarinet. The quintet won a first rating at the state music contest in De Kalb recently.

Harold Finch, head of the music department, will lead the orchestra. school budget. Members of the music committee sponsoring the concert are Mrs. Arthur Raff, chairman; Mrs. Ernest West, Mrs. Lee Supple, Mrs. Clarence Schaaf, Mrs. J. F. Flanagan, Mrs. J. A. O. Preus, Mrs. Robert Bryant, Mrs. Karl Wagner, Mrs. Harold Bingham, Mrs. Daniel Cobb, and Mrs. Henry C. Hawes, P.-T. A. president, and Miss Minnie Buzard, principal.

HUMANE SOCIETY SECRETARY NOW 40 YEARS ON JOB

G. A. H. Scott Only Came to Call in 1900.

A young lawyer strode up the worn stone steps of the Illinois Humane society, 1145 South Wabash avenue, 40 years ago. He came to talk to John G. Shortall, president, about a minor law case.

George A. H. Scott.

Their business completed, the president told the young man about the workings of the society, how it protected the weak, both animals and men, against inhuman practices; how it prevented wanton and unconscious cruelty. The young man was interested and, as he turned to go, the president offered him a job with the society.

The man took the job. A short time later he became executive secretary. That was 40 years ago and the stone steps were worn even then by thousands of feet plodding toward the anteroom to seek humane treatment of men and animals.

Grooves Deeper Now.

On April 24, forty years later to the day, the same executive secretary, George A. H. Scott, climbed the stone steps. The grooves worn in by millions of footsteps are deeper now.

Mr. Scott, 70 years old and white-haired, spent the day planning the work of the society for the next ten years. The organization, one of the oldest social agencies in the city, was chartered in 1869.

Mr. Scott, who resides at 1548 Sherwin avenue, won't talk much about himself. What he has to say concerns the work of the society.

"We place the emphasis on education today—education that begins in the schools and extends thru a consistent program of supervision in industries where animals are greatly in use," he says. "Once we were deeply concerned with prosecution for cruelty to children and animals, and while we still prosecute where necessary, now every effort is made to correct situations before they reach the courtroom."

Humane Laws Passed.

Mr. Scott cites a long list of laws passed by the state legislature as important aids to the cause of humane treatment of children and animals. He and the society worked tirelessly for the child labor laws of 1905, the delinquency and contributing to delinquency laws of the same year and the nonsupport laws of 1915.

In addition to looking after the welfare of children, the society also cares for lost or unwanted pets, supervises treatment accorded horses, cattle, poultry, zoo animals.

News and Queries
Within and Without the Church
—A Religious Voice of the People—
Edited by the Rev. John Evans

The 50th anniversary number of the Epworth Herald, official periodical of the young peoples' Epworth league of the Methodist church, published in Chicago, was distributed among the delegates of the first general conference of the church at Atlantic City, N. J., last week.

Dr. W. E. J. Gratz.

For religious journalism the anniversary is important. Before the founding editor, the late Dr. Joseph F. Berry [who was to become "the Epworth league bishop"] entered the field, religious journals were generally dull and filled with long articles which were read with interest mostly by their authors.

But Dr. Berry changed all this. Articles were shortened and the whole tempo of the journal was stepped up for readers who read for interest and pleasure instead of spiritual discipline.

Moreover, the people answered with circulation. Within two years there were 100,000 subscribers. In 1891 that was a big circulation even for daily newspapers. Today, the journal perhaps has the largest circulation of any Protestant religious magazine. Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, has been editor of the Herald for the last 16 years.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE indirectly made its gift to the Epworth Herald cause in its second editor, Stephen J. Herben. Dr. Herben, London born son of Belgian parents, was a printer by trade who became the TRIBUNE'S Evanston correspondent where he earned his way thru Northwestern university and Garrett Biblical institute.

Dr. Herben devised many makeup changes in the Herald's format, and as a printer brought new styles to the journal's typography; as a news man, made its columns vital and timely. But Dr. Herben's best job, according to his friends, was the discovery of the editorial genius of an immigrant from an English mill town, Dan B. Brummitt, who had gone as far into the American west as Kansas. Dr. Brummitt, after graduating from Baker university and Drew Theological seminary, was preaching in Arkansas when Dr. Herben called him to Chicago. When Dr. Herben was appointed to other editorial work in New York, Dr. Brummitt became editor.

SYMPHONIC HOUR SALUTES ARMY ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Special Tribute to First Division Planned.

The second of the new W-G-N Symphonic Hours, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be broadcast before an audience of 600 invited guests representing the United States army, the Illinois National Guard, and the National Army Reserves, from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight. The program will be broadcast by W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This program, which is dedicated to the army and all its officers and men, will have as speaker of the evening, Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will take part in a special feature of the program.

Marion Claire to Sing.

An outstanding cast headed by Marion Claire, soprano star of opera, movies, and radio, and the augmented W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus directed by Henry Weber, will be heard in the musical portion of the program.

One of the highlights of the broadcast will be a dramatization, featuring a group of picked radio actors with a background of stirring orchestral accompaniment, in commemoration of the 23d anniversary of the First division of the American expeditionary forces, to be observed this summer.

Col. McCormick will participate in the introduction to this feature with words from an address he first delivered on Aug. 9, 1937, at Cantigny, France. On this occasion a monument erected in commemoration of the 1st division was dedicated.

Bacher Is Producer.

This dramatic interlude is the creation of William A. Bacher, who is directing and producing the Symphonic Hour.

The program:

The Bartered Bride Overture........Smetana
Orchestra.
[a] Les Cloches....................Debussy
[b] By a Lovely Forest Pathway...Griffes
Miss Claire.
The Swan of Tuonella..............Sibelius
Orchestra.
Chorus from "Rigoletto"..............Verdi
Orchestra.
Prelude from Cycle of Life..........Ronald
Miss Claire.
Il est Doux, Il est Bon...........Massenet
Miss Claire.
The Moldau.........................Smetana
Orchestra.
Special Dramatization Honoring America's War Heroes.

Miss Claire, the soloist of the evening, was starred last Thursday in the operetta, "Bittersweet," with James Melton, tenor, on W-G-N-Mutual, and also on the first W-G-N Symphonic Hour presented last Sunday in salute to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Next Sunday the third Symphonic Hour will again salute the Chicago Association of Commerce. More than 3,400 tickets have been requested by members of the association; thus this organization will be honored with several broadcasts.

BISHOP SCARLETT TO BE SUNDAY EVENING SPEAKER

Bishop William Scarlett, head of the Missouri diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, will speak on the weekly broadcast of the Chicago Sunday Evening club, on WIND from 8:15 to 9 p. m. today.

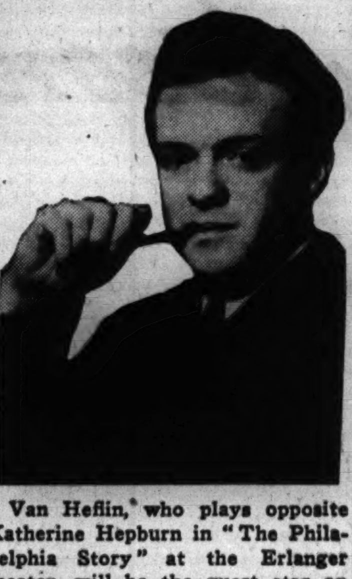
Bishop Scarlett, formerly of the historic old Trinity church in the heart of Wall street, has headed the Missouri diocese since 1933 and is a trustee of the Seabury Western Theological seminary of Evanston. President Clifford W. Barnes will present him for his second appearance before this audience. Edward L. Ryerson, a trustee of the club and prominent Episcopal layman, will also take part.

'TROJAN HORSE' TO BE TOPIC OF ROUND TABLERS

Taking a leaf from the pages of ancient Greek mythology, Louis Gottschalk, chairman of the department of history, and Nicholas Doman, research assistant in political science, both of the University of Chicago, will discuss "The Trojan Horse," on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ.

The subject will refer to the policy and technique of penetration and infiltration which has been employed in Europe, particularly in Scandinavia and central Europe. Doman is a former reserve officer in the Hungarian army.

Guest on W-G-N



Van Heflin, who plays opposite Katherine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story" at the Erlanger theater, will be the guest star on W-G-N's Fifth Row Center production of "Ethan Allen" at 7 p. m. next Friday.

EVERETT WEST TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N SHOW

Romance in Rhythm, directed by Harold Stokes, will feature the singing of Everett West, romantic tenor, with the music of the W-G-N Dance orchestra, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Heard with West will be Edna O'Dell, the Four Grenadiers, and the chorus.

West, who will sing two numbers, is appearing in the Chez Paree show. Since leaving the California Varsity Eight vocal group, West has been featured in floor shows of leading New York, Chicago, and West Coast night clubs.

Edna O'Dell will sing for her solo, "I'm Too Romantic," and with the chorus will do "Last Night's Gardenias." The Four Grenadiers will sing the hit song of the season, "With the Wind and the Rain in Your Hair."

Selections to be done by the chorus and orchestra will include "Little Girl," "I've Got Rhythm," "Charming Little Faker," and "Punchinello."

HEFLIN TO PLAY ETHAN ALLEN ON '5TH ROW CENTER'

Miss Hepburn's Leading Man on W-G-N Show.

Van Heflin, talented young leading man of the stage and radio, will be the guest star on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday. He will be heard in a special radio play, "Ethan Allen," a story of the famous Revolutionary war patriot.

Heflin is appearing at the Erlanger theater, where he is acting as leading man to Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story," Philip Barry's hit play.

In "Ethan Allen," Heflin will portray the title rôle, that of the New England patriot and officer who played an important part in the winning of the war. He will be supported by an all-star cast of radio actors. The program will be directed by Blair Walliser.

Appeared with Miss Claire.

Van Heflin was first seen on the Chicago stage a few seasons ago when he appeared with Ina Claire in S. N. Behrman's "End of Summer." Before becoming an actor, Heflin was a sailor. After attending the State University of Oklahoma, he went to California, and signed as a seaman on a round the world cruise. The ship stopped at New York. Hearing that a rôle in a new show was open, Heflin applied for the part. He was accepted and played in "Mr. Moneypenny." After the show closed, he returned to the sea.

Joins Hedgerow Theater.

Finally, on a voyage home he was persuaded by Dramatist Lynn Riggs to enter the theatrical profession permanently. He joined the Hedgerow theater in Philadelphia. When he felt he was ready for Broadway, Heflin went to New York and was cast in "The Bride of Torosco."

Since then he has appeared in numerous plays and motion pictures. Among his films have been "A Woman Rebels," "Saturday's Heroes," "Flight from Glory," and "Annapolis Salute."

BIDU SAYAO IS SOLOIST TONIGHT ON CONCERT HOUR

The famous aria, "Caro Nome," from "Rigoletto," a group of songs in English and two by Spanish composers appear on the program of Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano, as guest soloist of the Sunday Evening Hour over WBBM at 8 tonight. Wilfred Pelletier will direct the symphony orchestra and chorus. W. J. Cameron is intermission speaker.

Miss Sayao, a pupil of Jean de Reszke and Giuseppe Danise, won early recognition in a performance of Debussy's "The Blessed Damosel," directed by Toscanini. She made her Metropolitan opera debut three years ago singing "Manon."

The Spanish songs on her program are "Lavandera," by Longas, and "Coplas de Curro Dulce," by Obradors. In her English group she is to give "A Spring Morning," by Carey, Watts' "The Poet Sings," and "The Fairy Pipers" by Brewer. Later she sings Nevin's lullaby, "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod," in which the chorus is to join.

'Japan and Far East' Is Topic of Review Stand

"Will Japan Move in the East?"

In the wake of Secretary of State Hull's stern note warning Japan to keep hands off the East Indies, William M. McGovern and Irving Pflaum will discuss this question on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today. Hirosi Acino, council general of Japan in Chicago, will be the special guest on the program.

CINDERELLA TALE IS REVIVED BY TALENT SEARCH

Remember the story of Cinderella and how the fairy Godmother made it possible for her to go to the king's ball? And how, after the ball, the young prince searched far and wide for the young lady whose foot might fit the glass slipper?

Not at all far removed are the Cinderell-ic qualities in the opportunities offered in the current auditions sponsored by the Carters of Elm Street thruout the country. Two amateur actresses, one between the ages of 15 and 25 and another over 25, are to experience the same success and happiness as that enjoyed by Cinderella.

But better then the short lived evening of this belle of fairyland, the clocks of the winners will not strike a 12 o'clock doom on the evening's fun but will continue to run for two weeks. And unlike Cinderella's mere fun of meeting and dancing with the prince, the Carrie Carter protéges will be brought to Chicago [and returned], given a suite of rooms and paid a professional salary for their two weeks appearance in their respective rôles with the Elm Street cast.

Auditions are being held in each of the stations, including W-G-N, carrying the Carters of Elm Street program. Last day for entering is May 8.

'Winterset' to Be Final Great Plays Production

The radio season of Great Plays will end with the presentation of Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," at 1 p. m. today over WENR. James Church will direct the poetic masterpiece, which was successful when first produced on Broadway in 1935. Anderson is the only playwright whose work has been presented in each series of Great Plays. His "Valley Forge" climaxed the first season and his "Elizabeth the Queen" was the final Great Play presented last year.

GARDEN CLUBS GUESTS AT W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

E. Feuermann, Cellist, Is Guest Soloist.

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, conducted by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcast system. Attilio Baggiore, tenor; Mark Love, basso, and Harriet Brewer, contralto, will be the vocalists.

The program will be presented in the main studio of W-G-N before an audience of specially invited guests who are members of garden clubs in Chicago participating in the "share your lilacs" campaign sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Appeared at Ravinia.

Feuermann was born in Austria 37 years ago. A child prodigy, he made his debut at the age of 11. He taught music at the Cologne conservatory. He left Germany in 1934 and made a world tour. His most recent Chicago appearance was at Ravinia last summer, when he played the Dvorak concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Vladimir Golschmann conducting.

Baggiore, Love, Miss Brewer, and the octet will sing a group of American Indian themes, including "Zuni Indian Call"; "Pale Moon," by Logan, and "By the Waters of Minnetonka," by Thurlow Lieurance.

Baggiore will sing "Cielo e Mar," by Amilcare Ponchielli, and "My Wild Irish Rose," by Chauncey Olcott. Other numbers will include the Overture "Le Roi la dit," by Leo Délibès; "Parade" and "Finale," from Ibert's "Divertissement," and Arensky's "Serenade," in which Michael Wilkomirski will play the violin obbligato for the chorus.

Salute Music Week.

The Concert Revue, under the direction of Mr. Weber, will be dedicated to National Music week—which is being observed from May 5 to May 11—with Kathryn Witwer, soprano, as soloist, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday on W-G-N and Mutual.

The program will include a composition of Edward A. MacDowell, the great American composer, in whose commemoration the postoffice will issue a stamp during the week.

The concert orchestra will play "To a Water Lily" and "By a Meadow Brook," from MacDowell's "Woodland Sketches."

Miss Witwer will sing for her solo John Alden Carpenter's "I Am Like a Remnant of a Cloud in Autumn." She also will do "Les Temps des Lilas," by Ernest Chausson.

On Melody Hour

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, who will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, directed by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

RUDOLF SERKIN SOLOIST WITH PHILHARMONIC

The final concert of the season and the last broadcast of its 10th season on the Columbia network, will be given by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra at Carnegie hall, and aired over WIND from 2 to 3:30 p. m. today.

John Barbirolli will conduct and the soloist will be Pianist Rudolf Serkin. Deems Taylor will be intermission commentator.

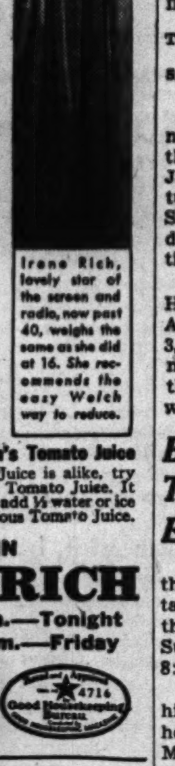
The program will open with the overture to "The Bartered Bride," by Smetana, after which Serkin will play the Mozart Concerto in G major for piano and orchestra, K. 453.

The second portion of the concert will be devoted to two Wagner opera excerpts, the prelude and "Liebestod" from "Tristan and Isolde," and "Waldweben" from "Siegfried."

Why Be Fat

Thousands of women have discovered way to lose excess weight—without following strict diet lists, or taking exercises or drugs.

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—First... eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second.. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.



Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

The ill effects which often attend haphazard funeral plans may be avoided through pre-arrangement. We therefore invite examination of our facilities and consultation as to mortuary practices and costs. Our line offers an acceptable service for every price requirement.

DIVIDED TRAFFIC TO CUT DANGERS

Army Officer Starts Rounds This Week.

The "big day" for Chicagoland's 11,750 R. O. T. C. cadets—the day of the federal inspection for which they have drilled and drilled to the hopeful commands of their youthful officers—is just around the corner. Beginning this week and lasting thru May 27 the inspection ceremonies will take place for the 35 high school units in Chicago and its suburbs. The first nine inspections this week will start Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock when the Hirsch High school regiment is examined at Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street.

Some 620 cadets who have made outstanding records during the current semester will receive medals, nearly all of which will be presented at the time of inspection. Two hundred and thirty-five of the awards will be given by THE TRIBUNE, which each semester donates one medal for every 50 cadets, gold for upperclassmen and silver for freshmen.

Other Medal Donors.

Nearly 200 medals are given by R. O. T. C. headquarters twice a year for efficiency, neatness, success in recruiting, and rifle marksmanship. At the 27 public high schools in the city with R. O. T. C. training these medals will be presented by Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago public school system. Other awards are given by representatives of the American Legion, the Reserve Officers association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary. Cadets who will receive the various medals are selected by the military instructors at the respective schools.

The appointment of Maj. Norman M. Nelsen, attached to the University of Wisconsin, as officer in charge of all inspections here has been announced thru 6th Corps area headquarters. In the inspections he will take into account appearance, neatness, drill, map reading, first aid, combat principles, musketry, and other points in military theory and practice. On the completion of all inspections the best trained units will receive the title of honor schools, the highest possible mark.

At the first inspection of Chicago high school R. O. T. C. units as organized under the National Defence act of 1920, there were two honor schools—Crane Tech and Schurz. That was in 1921. In recent years there have been six or seven honor schools each semester.

Colors for the Best.

To the schools rated No. 1 and No. 2 THE TRIBUNE will present stands of colors embodying the school's emblem and American flag. This ceremony will take place at the annual Michigan avenue review, held about a week after the last inspection and sponsored by the board of education and THE TRIBUNE.

Inspections this week will take place at the following schools [in the event of rain they will be in the school gymnasiums]:

Tuesday—Hirsch, 9 a. m., Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street; Bowen, 1:15 p. m., Bessemer park, 2710 East 89th street.

Wednesday—Du Sable, 9 a. m., Washington park, 51st street and Cottage Grove avenue; Hyde Park, 1:15 p. m., Jackson park, 63d street and Stony Island avenue.

Thursday—Calumet, 9 a. m., school campus, 8100 South Aberdeen street; Harper, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 6520 South Wood street.

Friday—Lindblom, 9 a. m., Ogden park, 64th street and Racine avenue; Austin, 1:15 p. m., Columbus park, Jackson boulevard and Central avenue.

Saturday—Evanston, 9 a. m., school campus, Church street and Dodge avenue, Evanston.

Medals at Evanston High school will not be presented until the school's annual R. O. T. C. banquet, June 1.

ROSARY PLAYERS TO GIVE COMEDY ON TWO NIGHTS

"That Crazy Smith Family," a three act comedy, will be enacted by the Holy Rosary Players next Thursday and Friday nights in the Holy Rosary school hall, 2315 Erie street. Miss Remigia Maggion will direct the production.

This afternoon at 3 o'clock a dress rehearsal performance for children of the school will be offered. At the evening performances alternate casts will be used.

Polish Welfare Party.

The women's auxiliary of the Polish Welfare association is sponsoring a card party in the Mural room of the Morrison hotel at 8 o'clock Wednesday night. Proceeds will further charitable work for needy Polish families.

Her Seafaring Uncle Assists Doll Collector

The doll collection of Miss Rogene Hubbard, 3628 Springfield avenue, looks like a meeting of the league of nations, for she has traveled since she was 5 years old and collected them in many foreign lands. Her uncle, Commodore William G. Livingstone, U. S. N., has added to them on his trips to Alaska, Australia, the Fiji Islands, Hawaii, and the Philippines.

Twenty-three countries are represented in the collection. All were made from native materials. Mrs. Roger Hubbard, Rogene's mother, will display the dolls and talk on them at the Mothers' and Daughters' party to be held by the Irving Park Junior Woman's club at the Normandy house, 800 North Tower court, the afternoon of May 16.

Carried Across Border.

The rakish gypsy, with real hair and glistening teeth, was bought in Gibraltar last year, but Rogene and her father, Dr. Roger Hubbard, carried it across the border into Spain, which was closed off by barbed wire fortifications, until a friendly sentry permitted the whimsy. A French doll from Breton carries a red umbrella and a goose in her basket. Another, from Avignon, wears wooden shoes and a headdress not unlike the doll hats popular with the American public last year.

The Bedouin couple bought at the Sea of Galilee have silken bronzed and tattooed faces of Assyrian cast. The man has an impressive mustache, and his eyes are bloodshot from the sun. He has rings on his fingers, embroidery on his clothes, and leather shoe laces. His wife is barefooted, and paint has muddied the soles of her feet. She is bedecked not only with rings on her fingers and ears, but the ring in her nose is graced with a blue bead. Her real hair falls in numerous decorated braids to her waist.

One from Australia.

A little Italian doll has the most guileless face. A kola bear, made of real kola hide, comes from Australia. Indian children in the American northwest made two tiny leather Indian dolls. The Greek dolls came from a bazar at the Acropolis in Athens. The Avignon doll came from the Palace of the Popes. The near east industries for the benefit of refugees furnished many painstaking reproductions of the natives in Greece.

The Mexican dolls were given by a steam shovel operator who hurt his finger in a landslide in Mexico when the Hubbards toured there. Dr. Hubbard mended the finger, and the Mexican paid him with the dolls. A doll from Louisiana is made of nuts and crêpe paper. The largest doll is made into a tea cozy and was purchased in Damascus.

An interesting feature of the doll exhibit is the photographs of natives which Rogene has brought from the countries she visited.

EASTERN STAR GIRLS TO HOLD FASHION SHOW

A bridge and pinochle party and fashion show will be held under the sponsorship of the Arlington Heights Girls' club of the Eastern Star, at the Presbyterian parish hall, at 8 o'clock Thursday evening. Miss Gloria Wilton is chairman of the club and has appointed the following committee chairmen: Mrs. George Hauff, tickets; Miss Lydia Hausam, refreshments; Miss Gladys Wilton, publicity, and Miss Myrtle Frey, social.

Men's knitted apparel will also be displayed. Models will include Miss Ellen Anderson, Miss Rosemary Heller, Miss Ruth Wenzel, Miss Gloria and Miss Gladys Wilton, Miss Nancy Kumler, Miss Gladys Bradley, Miss Clara Moede, Miss Suzanne Merrell, Miss Geraldine Firnback, Miss Verna Maleske, and Miss Marjorie Baker.

GUILD TO HOLD BLOSSOM TIME DANCE SATURDAY

The Gardenia guild will hold a "Blossom Time ball" in the grand ballroom of the Graemere hotel, Homan avenue and Washington boulevard, Saturday evening. Miss Vernice Kissel, 4335 Cortez street, is chairman of the dance committee, assisted by Miss Wanda Closek, 4328 Cortez street; Miss Eleanor Paeth, 1000 Monitor avenue, and Miss Estelle Sitko, 4254 Crystal street.

Northwest Side Artists' Works Shown in Exhibit

Northwest siders whose paintings are on view at the annual spring exhibit in the galleries of the Club Woman's bureau at Mandel Brothers, are C. W. Christianson, 5133 North St. Louis avenue, Miss Sadie Lowes, 4655 North Hermitage avenue, and Miss Ann M. Sundlof, 1737 Columbia avenue. Miss Lowes' entries are two oil paintings, entitled "Oriental Poppies" and "The Old Bridge." Miss Sundlof has an oil painting entitled "The Old Copper Glue Pot."

Card Party Saturday.

A card party will be given by the Young Ladies' auxiliary of St. Paul's Congregational church, Keeler and Belden avenues, in the church basement at 8 o'clock Saturday night. Miss Hazel Alshanski, 2231 North Kedvale avenue, is president.

Surrounded by Dolls of Many Lands

It's a cosmopolitan gathering when Rogene Hubbard of 3628 North Springfield avenue assembles her dolls for a conference. Products of many lands, they serve as reminders of her travels abroad, and the incidents by which they came into her possession. Augmenting the number which she obtained are others sent to her by an uncle in the United States navy who has remembered her hobby on his visits to foreign ports. Rogene's mother, Mrs. Roger Hubbard, will display the collection at a meeting of the Irving Park Junior Woman's club on May 16.

HAS TESTED WAY TO HANDLE LILACS ON THE BIG DAY

Guild Chairman Tells How She Works.

There's lots to be done about lilacs between the time they bud in the garden and the time they reach the hospitals, and Mrs. William F. Hill, 6069 Navarre avenue, who has headed the Norwood Park Garden guild's Lilac day project for the last three years, has the lilac gathering down to a system. She explains it as follows:

"I just go to my neighbors and tell them we're sending in the lilacs to the hospitals. They always give me armloads and armloads and are glad to do it. I bring them home and place them in wash tubs filled with water. Then I go up to the grocery stores where I trade and ask for wooden boxes.

Prefers Wooden Boxes.

"Cardboard cartons are not as strong as they look, when it comes to moving them around filled with wet lilacs. I like best the wooden boxes with two parts, because the central partition keeps the flowers from sagging.

"I take these home and spend the next few hours tying the lilacs into bunches. I tie them with heavy string, then wad wet newspapers thickly around the stems. When I pack them in the boxes, I put the lilac blossoms up, and pack wet newspapers all thru the bottom of the boxes. This keeps the flowers fresh and prevents them from sagging.

Rope Keeps Flowers in Place.

"Next I tie heavy rope back and forth across the top of the boxes and tie it well. This keeps the flowers in place and allows the boxes to be handled efficiently by the train men. The guild notifies me what train will take the lilacs. Of course, the North Western railroad takes them in free of charge.

"I've worked on this project long enough to know that if the flowers sent in are well packed, and have been wrapped at the stems with wet paper, they will arrive in much fresher condition."

Scout Leaders to Attend Overnight Camp Session

Forty-five volunteer Boy Scout leaders from the northwest side will attend an overnight camp next week-end at Camp Fort Dearborn, Higgins road and the Des Plaines river. They will be given instruction in how to supervise overnight camping with troops. Robert E. Pegel, 3822 North Bell avenue, program director for the Chicago council summer camps at Owasippe, Mich., will have charge of the session.

Edison Park Wheelmen Will Hold Team Race

At 10 o'clock this morning the Edison Park Wheelmen will hold a club team race in the Humboldt Park bowl. The organization is affiliated with the Central A. A. U. and will participate in scheduled races, in addition to a number of club races. Officers are Laddie Matson, president; Art Frey, vice president; Guenther Leuscher, secretary, and Robert M. Daly, treasurer.

ZORA, SLOVAK CHORUS, TO SPONSOR DANCE SATURDAY EVENING

The second annual spring dance of the Slovak chorus, Zora, will be held next Saturday night in the Walnut room of the Midland hotel, 172 West Adams street. John Kurhajec, 954 North Pulaski road is the chairman of the dance committee. Members are Miss Anne Gregor, Miss Emilia Simonides, Miss Betty Placko, Miss Tillie Hrobar, Miss Pauline Vrbik, Miss Emilie Somora, Miss Olga Duresa, Joseph Chorvat, John Stencel, Walter Simonides, and Martin E. Nosko. John W. Golosinec is director of the chorus; John Zidek Jr., the president, and Miss Eleanor Sopocy, the secretary.

CHORAL CLASSES SING TODAY IN MUSIC FESTIVAL

Choral classes at the Park Ridge School for Girls directed by Mrs. Helen Protero Baker, and at Almira Simons park, 1640 Hancock avenue, directed by Miss Lela Hanmer, will be among those in nine community centers in the city which, under the auspices of the Civic Music Association of Chicago, will present its 27th annual festival in Orchestra hall at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Classes taught each week by the association's staff have provided the combined chorus of 600 children which, with the Civic Orchestra of Chicago, will present a program of folk songs of all nations.

The classes, which have been meeting all year, have been composed of 25 to 125 children each, the ages ranging from 5 to 15. Eighty per cent of these children have sung with their groups for five or more years, and many for 10 years.

Marx E. Oberndorfer, musical director of the association, has supervised and coördinated the singing of the neighborhood classes, and he will conduct the Orchestra hall festival. Public contributions have financed the work of this nonprofit organization which was founded in 1913 to develop musical talent and encourage musical appreciation among Chicago children.

Frederick Stock, director of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, is honorary president of the association; Henry B. Vanzwoll is president. Other officers are G. T. Helmuth, first vice president; Mrs. Frederick W. Upham, second vice president; Miss Priscilla Carver, secretary; Edwin S. Fletcher, treasurer, and Miss Werra Schuette, executive secretary.

Safety Films.

Safety education films distributed by the Chicago Motor club will be exhibited Wednesday in the Wicker Park school, 2032 Evergreen avenue. Rules for bicycle riding and crossing streets will be illustrated by cartoons as well as by motion pictures.

MOUNT PROSPECT LIONS FINANCE STREET MARKERS

Future Parties to Help Pay for Project.

The Mount Prospect Lions club is financing the installation of identifying signs at all street intersections in the village, a project expected to be completed before the end of the month. Steel posts already have been set at each of the 136 intersections and the work of installing the signs will begin within the next 10 days.

The new markers will be L-shaped, similar in pattern to those used in Chicago. They will be 4 inches wide and 20 inches long with white letters 3½ inches high on a blue porcelain enamel background. The total cost of buying and erecting the signs will be about $700.

Club Goes in Debt.

Lawrence E. Hodges, president of the Lions, said that it was the intention of the club originally to place only 50 signs at the more prominent intersections. Profits from dances and the fall festival last year would have paid for them, he said.

The decision to put a sign on every corner will leave the club with a debt which it hopes to retire by means of other dances to be held this year and another fall festival Sept. 12, 13, and 14. Last winter the club built a $160 toboggan slide and gave it to the village. It also contributes to the maintenance of the library.

Aid New Residents.

"This town is growing rapidly," Mr. Hodges said. "The new street signs will assist new residents in finding their way about. They also give the town a neat appearance that will impress visitors favorably."

Members of the committee on street signs are Edwin Haberkamp, Dr. Alfred Wolfarth, Gilbert Odenberg, Henry Kruse, and Mr. Hodges.

4 HIGH SCHOOL PAPERS HONORED BY PRESS GROUP

Four northwest side high school newspapers were given superior ratings recently by the All American Critical Service of the National Scholastic Press association.

They are Alvernia High school's Gleaner, the Schurz Times, the Roosevelt Weekly, and the Steinmetz Star. Superior or All American ratings were given to only 216 of the 1,041 student papers entered in the competition.

The North Park College News also received an award last week. The paper was adjudged second in the general competition sponsored by the Illinois College Press association. The award for the best interview story went to Assistant Editor Ernest Nordlinger, 5324 North Bernard street.

Will Arrange Ball to Aid Polish Ambulance Fund

Plane for a benefit ball for the Polish ambulance fund will be discussed at a tea Tuesday afternoon in the Medical and Dental Arts building, 185 North Wabash avenue. Auxiliaries of the Chicago Polish Medical and Dental societies are sponsors for the ball. Mrs. Thaddeus Pierzynski ill preside at the tea.

SCHOOL OF NURSING GROUP IS PLANNING FOR BENEFIT DANCE

Miss Margaret Geisbert is social chairman for the benefit dance to be given by St. Mary of Nazareth School of nursing, at the school ballroom, 1810 North Hermitage avenue, on Tuesday evening. Committees made up of senior nurses include: Publicity, Miss Harriet Goslinowski, Miss Mildred Swiatek, and Miss Dolores Orzada; tickets, Miss Helen Quirk, Miss Antoinette Mnikolaicek, and Miss Helen Szczepaniak; flowers, Miss Viola Dziki, and Miss Peggy Mrotek; check room, Miss Cecilia Mroczek, Miss Catherine Bielski and Miss Virginia Pawlowski; refreshments, Miss Alexandra Malewska, Miss Virginia Fangrat, Miss Mae Henninfeld, Miss Regina Gus, Miss Dorothy Negri, Miss Virginia Bychel and Miss Dorothea Molde.

SCHURZ SCHOOL WILL CELEBRATE AN ANNIVERSARY

Students at Schurz High school will celebrate the first anniversary of the opening of a new social room at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Principal feature of the program will be a service culminating in the lighting of a seven foot candle.

Dancers directed by Miss Elma M. McRea and singers led by Leroy Wetzel will also share in the program. George A. Olson, director of student activities, will have charge of arrangements.

Soprano, Tenor, Organist to Give Musical Tonight

Miss Anne Kruzic, soprano, Marshall Nystrom, tenor, and Theodore W. Wallschlaeger, organist, will give a musical at 8 o'clock tonight in Grace Lutheran church, 2700 North Harlem avenue. Selections from the works of Mozart, Handel, Hageman, and Karg-Elert will be heard.

Talks on Safety.

The Revere Park Improvement association will hear a talk on traffic safety Thursday night at their meeting in the fieldhouse at 2509 Irving Park road. George W. Fleming, general secretary of Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee, will be the speaker. Three sound motion pictures will be exhibited.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

A PRECEDENT at Armour Institute of Technology was set last night by Our Towner Miss Helen Ruoss of Park Ridge. When she stepped upon the stage in the auditorium of the Student Union building to play the rôle of Hilda in "Room Service" she became the first coed to take part in a dramatic production at the engineering school. Miss Ruoss divides her time between working to pay for her education and her studies in architecture. She shared "first" honors last night with Miss Rosemary Mulvihill, a student at the Chicago Teachers' college.

FIRST prize of $50 in the Sargent oratorical contest held at Northwestern university recently went to Kenneth Mansfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Mansfield, 5106 School street. A sophomore in the school of speech, he spoke on the subject "Wishing Won't Make It So." His argument was for a definite and constructive peace program to keep the United States out of war. At Lane Technical High school, his alma mater, he was active in debating, oratory, and extempore speaking.

MR. AND MRS. PHILLIP MEIGEL, residents in Logan Square for 38 years, were entertained by their daughter, Mrs. Arent Thompson, 2615 North Mozart street, recently on their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. Meigel is a retired motorman. For 42 years he was employed on the Rapid Transit lines. They have a son, Frank, and a second daughter, Mrs. Anna Smith. There are eight grandchildren.

UP near the arctic circle in Alaska where "sky pilot" is still a current name for a preacher, the Rev. Paul Benjamin Franklin Carlson has a double claim to the title. He is both a minister and an airplane pilot, the only flying preacher in the territory. He is a graduate of North Park college and took his early flight training at Chicago air ports. His plane is a Fairchild-24, equipped with radio. With it he covers a field stretching 150 miles in each direction from Candle, Alaska. He is 35 years old.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Kotlowski, 6304 Addison street, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last Sunday at a reception given by their daughter, Mrs. Raymond Adams, 3531 North Normandy avenue. About 50 friends and relatives attended. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kotlowski were born in Chicago and they have been residents of the northwest side since they were married. They have a son, Roman.

Charles Kaplan, 2046 North Central Park avenue, is the winner of a $100 prize in the recent playwriting contest sponsored by the dramatic committee of the Jewish People's institute. His play, "And She Be Fair," is an imaginative treatment of the mystery surrounding the painting of the Sistine Madonna by Raphael. The title was taken from a poem by Keats. It will be produced next fall by the institute players. Mr. Kaplan is 21 years old and a senior at the University of Chicago. He is studying English literature with the aim of becoming a teacher.

ANDY PETMEZAS and Pearl Harris will reign as King Louis XIV. and Queen Maria Theresa Friday afternoon at the masquerade ball to be held by the French club at Tuley High school, 1313 North Claremont avenue. Members of French classes from surrounding schools have been invited to join the masquerade. Dorothy Libin is the chairman of the committee. Among her assistants are Elvera Fabro, Mary Kagan, Ruth and Alice Kramer, and Ann Vinitsky.

The Edgewood Community club will hold its seventh annual May dance next Saturday night in the Edgewood Golf clubhouse on Central avenue. Members of the committee are James Bialk, chairman; William O. Busch, William Helden, William Classett, Lester Zonsious, and John Lewandowski.

Barrington Catholic Women Will Give May Party, Dance

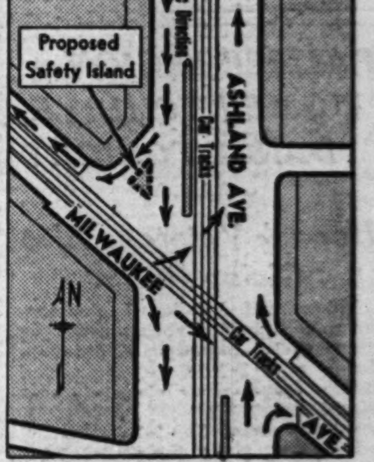
The Barrington Catholic Woman's club, assisted by the Catholic Young People's Social club, will sponsor a May party and dance at the St. Anne auditorium, Barrington, Saturday night, at 8:45 o'clock. Mrs. Clarence Bockelman is president of the club and gerenal chairman for the party. Committee chairmen are Miss Mary Rowan, Mrs. Rose Detrich, Mrs. Mae Murphy, Mrs. Lenore Drauden, Miss Norma Donlea, Miss Evangeline Mountain, Miss Irene Brumm, and Miss Jeanette Hollister.

CHANNELIZATION IS PLANNED FOR NINE CROSSINGS

Walkers to Gain by $50,000 Project.

Hazards to pedestrians and motorists at nine of the northwest side's most dangerous intersections will be lessened within the next eight weeks by means of an engineering device. Details of the plan were released last week to the Chicago Motor club by Joseph J. Butler, commissioner of streets.

The plan is known to safety engineers as channelization of traffic. It consists in the building of concrete safety islands at street intersections. These serve as a refuge for pedestrians crossing wide streets and sort vehicular traffic into proper channels for turning or passing thru the intersection.



The proposed safety island at the corner between Ashland and Milwaukee avenues will help pedestrians cross Ashland avenue, 70 feet wide, with stops at the island and the street car loading platform.

A total of 45 corners in the city will be included in the project. Construction is scheduled to begin in about six weeks and will be finished in two more. The cost, estimated at $50,000, will be paid from motor fuel tax funds. General plans for the project have already been approved by the state department of highways.

Means Better Control.

One of the benefits which will accrue will be more efficient traffic control by means of signal lights. The lights will be placed on the safety islands. Since they will be closer together, the effect will be to decrease the width of the intersection, permitting a shorter pause for traffic changes, a somewhat shortened interval for both red and green lights, and a generally faster flow of traffic.

All motorists desiring to make right hand turns will be shunted into channels where they can make the turn before they come to the busiest part of the intersection. Walkers crossing from the curb to the safety islands will have to watch only for traffic moving in one direction.

Plan Is Praised.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the motor club, praised the plans of the city engineers.

"Channelization serves a threefold purpose," he said. "It eliminates confusion among drivers by confining them to their own lanes, provides havens of refuge for harassed pedestrians, and permits a more efficient control of traffic. The Chicago Motor club heartily approves of these important safety steps. We hope for a further expansion of the program."

Leslie J. Sorenson, city traffic engineer, and his staff have been working for two years analyzing the problem. Extensive channelization has been used in other cities for some years.

Also Gives Approval.

John H. Kerr, chairman of the northwest area council of the motor club, commended the plan as outlined by Mr. Sorenson and Mr. Butler.

"They have prepared a program that will eliminate hundreds of collisions and an untold amount of suffering by those who were formerly victims of unfortunate accidents at these locations," he said. "This is a splendid example of safety engineering."

Northwest side intersections included in the project were selected because of their high accident frequency as shown by accident reports collected during the two year survey. They are:

Ashland-Division-Milwaukee, Pulaski-Milwaukee-School, Pulaski-Rogers-Peterson, Milwaukee-Erie-Sangamon, Elston-Montrose-Pulaski, Elston-Milwaukee-Fry, Central-Higgins, Rogers-Sauganash-Peterson, and Elston-Lawrence.

Edison Park Eastern Star Sponsors Party Thursday

Edison Park Easter Star chapter will sponsor a card party at Schneider's hall, 6713 Olmsted avenue, at 8 o'clock Thursday night. Miss Helen Starke is general chairman, and Miss Edna Meyer and Miss Crystal Howard are ticket chairmen.

Voice of the Northwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Northwest Side, The Tribune.

CAN MOTORISTS READ?

Literacy tests in this country show that we are far behind nothern European countries in the ability of the general public to read and write. I am reminded of that every time I drive down Milwaukee avenue.

There are signs on the west side of the street from Halsted street to Giddings street forbidding parking during the rush hours of the morning, but never during those prescribed hours have I seen the curb free from cars for any considerable distance.

I had always supposed that in a democracy where people made their own laws, they would be likely to respect and obey them or repeal them. The fact that they do neither leaves me no alternative except to conclude that they cannot read and are ignorant of the law.

M. R. S.

PLAYGROUND SUPPORTER.

I was astonished last week to learn that in the recent election more than 900 voters in Elmwood Park refused to endorse a tax to support playgrounds. Fortunately there were some 1,900 progressive citizens with enough public spirit to carry the proposition despite the opposition. Elmwood Park has been lagging behind other suburbs in providing play spaces for years, and present conditions are almost incredible. Fifteen thousand people and not a single playground! Whatever ideas motivated those 900 to vote as they did they were unworthy of residents in a progressive residential suburb. I hope they know that by this time.

MRS. P. D. L.

PALMER LEGION WOMEN TO HAVE DANCE TONIGHT

Honack Veterans Also Giving Party.

Palmer unit, American Legion auxiliary, will hold a spring dance tonight at St. Stanislaus auditorium, Lorel and Belden avenues. Mrs. Marie Koczorowski, chairman, and Mrs. Margaret Zawadzki, co-chairman, are being assisted by Mrs. Tillie Nowicki, Mrs. Marie Kaczmarek, Mrs. Betty Powell, Mrs. Pauline Pawelczyk, Mrs. Wanda Cwik, and Mrs. Docia Connell. Mrs. Lucia Lackowski is president of the unit.

The auxiliary of Henry A. Honack post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold a dance Saturday night at 3945 West North avenue. Mrs. Margaret Shannon is president of the unit.

Announcement is made by the service department of the American Legion that William R. Gephart may have his honorable discharge certificate by calling and identifying himself at the offices, 127 North Dearborn street, where the certificate is being held.

Surface Lines post recently was notified that its rifle team had won the Legion rifle team championship of the United States. In a contest covering 28 states, the Surface Lines team dethroned the Silver Bow team of Butt, Mont. In addition to capturing the McNutt trophy and the national championship, three members of the team won the first three individual honor medals: J. A. Nielsen, 294, M. P. Nielsen, 293; and Andy Nygaard, 292.

COMMUNITY CLUB IS ORGANIZED IN PARK RIDGE

Residents in the northwest section of Park Ridge completed the organization of a new community club last Friday night at a meeting in the Oakton school. The group, known as the Oakton Community club, will be mainly social in its activities.

Officers are Clarence R. Nowack, president; Mrs. J. M. Hansen, vice president; Fred Baker, secretary, and Mrs. C. E. Vetterick, treasurer. Mrs. Hansen is chairman of the program committee and Mrs. Robert Monahan is chairman of the social committee.

Among the organizers are Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Basheleben, Mr. and Mrs. Alfons Glassenhart, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Feuhrer, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hepburn, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kerber, Mr. and Mrs. Erick Lindskoog, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Roe, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Steege, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sampson, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tepperman, Mr. and Mrs. George Thomasma, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Wadeika, and Mr. and Mrs. Morton Wilcox.

Reveal Official Count on State Committee.

James Simpson Jr. of Wadsworth and Edward Sullivan of Chicago were the biggest Chicago district vote getters for state central committeeman in the April primary. This was shown last week with the announcement of the official vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

Simpson, former congressman from the 10th district, topped the Republican candidates, polling 51,982 votes, thereby unseating Committeeman Thomas J. Houston. Simpson got more votes than the three other candidates combined.

Simpson's nearest G. O. P. rival for vote honors was Committeeman Lester J. Norris in the 3d district. Norris, secretary of the state central committee, got 32,742 votes, snowing under four challengers.

Sullivan Is Unopposed.

Sullivan captured Democratic vote getting distinction with a total of 118,234. He was unopposed for the 6th district post being vacated voluntarily by Committeeman Richard M. Sullivan. Sullivan is secretary to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes.

Another newcomer to the committee, former Ald. George D. Kells [28th] in the 7th district, was second high among the Democrats with 110,855 votes. He had no rivals for the committeemanship, relinquished by Joseph F. Higgins, who served two terms.

Cast in School Play

In the cast of "Almost Eighteen," to be presented by the June class of seniors in the Foreman High school auditorium the evenings of May 16 and 17, will be (left to right) Dick Blos, Miss Dolores Meyer, Miss Muriel Schack, Miss Lois Larson, and Dick Kray. Other members enrolled in the play are John Gaidica, Andrew Graczyk, Miss Katherine Erk, Miss Viola Pfeiffer, Frank Kucher, Miss Delores Urban, Miss Jayne Wanhatalo, Rocco Greco, Jo Cancannon, and Eric Lewine.

2 HIGH SCHOOLS ARE TO OFFER VARIETY SHOWS

VonSteuben, Roosevelt Talent Assembled.

Variety shows will be offered this week by students in two northwest side high schools. Thursday and Friday nights 100 students will perform in an "All American Follies" show at Von Steuben High school, 5039 North Kimball avenue. A "Womanless Wedding" and a burlesque on "Pinocchio" will be enacted by members of the Roosevelt Hi-Y club Friday night in the auditorium, Wilson and Kimball avenues.

The Follies will include 22 musical and dramatic acts. Albert Mazeika will be the master of ceremonies. Several students will do imitations of famous stars. Harold Brindel and Lorraine Amsterdam will appear as Nelson Eddy and Jeanette MacDonald; Florence Landsman, Vivian Silberberg, and Virginia Sachs will imitate the Andrews sisters, and Marjorie Talman will be Miss Edgar Bergen.

Others Having Parts.

Others who have prominent parts in the production are Danny Kirchler, comedian; Dorothy Kramer, Betty Jane Nitshe, Sheldon Stein, Ritchie Fryman, and Harriet Newman, dancers; Harold Master, guitar player, and Natalie Belgrave, singer. Lillian Raskin will lead the band.

A cast of 71 boys will have parts in the Hi-Y show at Roosevelt. Fred Drinkwater, John Appelyard, Burton Seidler, George Watson, Howard Feichtmann, Edward Hill, and Robert Benzinger will perform in the "Pinocchio" skit.

In "Womanless Wedding."

'Mathematical Short Cuts' Theme for Women Teachers

A talk on "Mathematical Short Cuts" will be given before the Chicago Women's Mathematical club Saturday noon in the restaurant at 660 Rush street by R. L. Short, St. Louis mathematics teacher. The club is composed of women teaching mathematics in Chicagoland schools and colleges. Members will elect officers. Miss Margaret Collins of Lane High school will be one of the hostesses.

Masonic Lodge to Sponsor Better Living Exposition

The second annual Better Living exposition will be presented on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday nights in the Paul Revere Masonic temple, Wilson and Ashland avenues. F. W. Bainbridge, 6148 North Talman avenue, is master of Paul Revere lodge and M. G. Adams, 1618 Columbia avenue, is chairman of the exposition. Catharine Spengler, hom economist, will conduct a cooking school nightly. The show will be open from 7 o'clock to midnight.

WRITE-IN WINS FOR MANSURE IN ALTERNATE RACE

Seventeen dark horses appeared in the 9th district balloting for alternate delegate to the Republican national convention in the April 9 primary. This was revealed last week with the announcement of the official Cook county vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

This scramble resulted from the failure of more than one candidate to file for 9th district alternate. Paul J. Randolph, the only man to file, and whose name consequently was the only one printed on the ballot, received 11,639 votes.

Friends of Edmond Mansure elected him to the alternate's post by writing in his name on 585 ballots. A similar write-in campaign for Frank S. S. Sims brought him 469 votes. The name of John A. Rogers was written in on 182 ballots.

Seven Get One Each.

Seven candidates got from 3 to 23 votes each via the write-in route. Seven others received one vote each, presumably their own.

Below are tabulated the total votes for alternates in the first nine congressional districts, all of which are in Cook county, and the 10th which includes part of Cook and all of Lake county [the names of candidates who polled less than two votes each are omitted]. The boldface type indicates the winners.

LIKE BUSY LIFE? STUDY ARLINGTON HEIGHTS' METHOD

Town Is a Lot More than Race Track Village.

BY THEODOSIA PAYNTER.

Arlington Heights' slogan is "Be a Good Neighbor." Some sports writer once said that this town was asleep 11 months of the year and only woke up when the race track opened. That remark put the leading ladies of civic life there into action to disprove it.

When this reporter picked Arlington Heights out to visit, she was met at the station by three charming people, taken home to tea by one of them, and told almost more news in an hour than would happen in Chicago's loop. They drove her all around town, past the modern schools, the big manor style fieldhouse in Recreation park, the five churches, and thru a handsome new subdivision. She chatted with Julius Flentie, the mayor; William Meier, assistant village treasurer; G. Rex Volz, the town historian; Hugo Thal, president of the chamber of commerce, and Mrs. Harry Fricke, wife of the Lutheran pastor.

On the 30 minute trip back to Chicago, the reporter concluded that Arlington Heights must be one of the liveliest villages in the state.

Outdoor Dinners Have Started.

This month the hepaticas and spring beauties will be waving in the grasses there, and buds on the trees are already poking out. Birds are looking the place over and singing at the prospect. Trips to the forest preserve for camp dinners, fishing, and boating have already begun.

Mr. Volz, superintendent of Division I of the county forest preserves, whose office is a log cabin in the preserves and whose view includes a robin's nest with eggs in it, has been an amateur historian of the area. It seems the Potawatamis were here hiding behind trees 4½ feet in diameter when, in 1836, Dr. William H. Dunton arrived. The village was started on his farm and was called Dunton. In 1874 the name was changed to Arlington Heights, and now its inhabitants number 5,462.

Mrs. Volz is president of the P.-T. A. and is especially interested in the town's dental project, supported by most of the town organizations and including all school children in its services.

Wage War on Disease.

Mrs. Adele Pino is the school nurse and she has been showing movies designed to promote better care of teeth. Diphtheria immunization has been promoted, and the Lions club, directed by Walter Karstens, president, has sponsored tuberculosis tests for all school children.

Mrs. B. H. Jarvis and Mrs. Ross Richards are active with the Camp Fire girls, which form two divisions, the Chanyate [older girls] and the Ocawasins. They are now practicing or an entertainment to be given this month. The older girls are putting on a shadow play of "Little Orphan Anne" and an amateur hour. The younger ones are presenting a "mellerdramer," written by Mrs. Jarvis, called "Snow White and the Three Little Pigs," the climax of which is when the Old Witch finds her prince charming in the Big Bad Wolf. The orchestra is made up of Old King Cole and his three fiddlers. The king, wearing a necklace of coal, conducts the music with a coal shovel.

List Camp Fire Girls.

The Camp Fire girls are:

Ocawasins—Nurneta Bursn, Betty Davis, Edwina Frederickson, LaEta Garms, Rosemary Heller, Lorraine Jackson, Lois Knaack, Nancy Crumlish, Nancy Kumler, Betty Mae Larson, Jean Meyer, Joan Marie Pate, Pauline Russell, Bernice Schow, Carol Peter, Nan Sommer, Geraldine Williams.

Chanyatis—Jean Blackburn, Carla Bloecker, Patricia Day, Patsy Collins, Carol Engel, Jean Freyermuth, Marion Helfers, Jane Hildebrand, Alberta Hines, Laurel Lawbaugh, Rhoda Manley, Barbara Mors, Catholyn Nichols, Janet Ninneman, Jacqueline Riley, Audrey Sauer, Anne Volz, and Dorothy Williams.

George Volz is working to effect free swimming, two days a week, during the summer at the town pool. Incidental notes on the village and its activities are:

In the high school freshman class boys outnumber girls 2 to 1.

Form Girls' Basketball Team.

The girls' basketball team has just been organized. Miss Violet Buncik is captain, and Miss Florence Proebstle is treasurer. Uniforms are white gabardine slacks and blue-trimmed white satin blouses. These were purchased by business men of the village. Paul Tossman, the new manager of Recreation park is coaching the team.

The Christian Industrial league will send its superintendent to speak at the Presbyterian church on May 19 regarding the league's periodic collection of discarded things which are reclaimed for the benefit of charity.

All told, the sports writer who thought Arlington Heights, "City of Good Neighbors," a quiet town must have been wearing dark glasses.

Attorneys Wed

[Stafford Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Dankowski, both attorneys, were married recently at Our Lady of Grace church. The bride is the former Miss Lucy J. Brudzinski, daughter of Isadore Brudzinski, 3909 Schubert avenue, and her husband is the son of Paul Dankowski, 5439 Mulligan avenue. After a short honeymoon in the east the couple returned to reside temporarily with Mrs. Dankowski's father.

$35,000 CHURCH IS DEDICATED IN CEREMONY TODAY

Mid-West Unit Founded at Prayer Meeting.

Members of the Mid-West Bible church will dedicate a new $35,000 brick building at 3467-71 North Cicero avenue this afternoon. The Rev. Torrey M. Johnson, pastor, has arranged to have Dr. Charles W. Koller, president of Northern Baptist seminary, give the dedicatory address. The Moody church men's chorus, directed by Stratton Shufelt, will supply the music.

The Rev. Torrey Johnson.
[Marshall Photo.]

One of the newest and fastest growing churches on the northwest side, the Mid-West Bible church developed from a prayer meeting held in a vacant store in 1933. It was incorporated on Aug. 2 of that year, and the Rev. Mr. Johnson became the pastor on Oct. 1. At that time the membership totaled only 42. Thirty-eight children were enrolled in the Bible school.

Now the church has 180 members, and there are 275 children in the Bible school. An annual income of $2,221 in 1933 has grown until last year it reached $10,000. The church is an independent organization and the financing of the new building is being done without aid outside the congregation.

First Unit in Program.

The church is the first unit in the proposed building program. Later a $25,000 Sunday school building will be erected on an adjacent site. Construction of the church began last Thanksgiving day.

The church has an auditorium seating 750 persons. Sunday school class rooms have been built along each side of the rectangular hall. Stalls for the choir are around the pulpit in the front of the auditorium. A prayer room and a room for members of the choir and ushers have been provided on either side of the pulpit.

Several members of the congregation assisted in raising funds and planning the church. Among the leaders were Peter L. Kjelstad, chairman of the board; Mrs. Percy S. Moore, president of the women's missionary society; Chester C. Scholl Sr., Sunday school superintendent; James Weir, president of the senior young people's society; Don Gunderson, president of the Pioneer young people's group; Robert Olsen, president of the senior choir, and Marvin Matson, director of music.

First Service in Series.

The dedication service this afternoon will be the first in a series of evangelistic meetings which will continue thru Sunday, May 19. Dr. Charles W. Koller will speak at the evening service at 7:30 o'clock as well as at the dedication in the afternoon. Other meetings and speakers have been scheduled as follows:

Tuesday night—Wendell Loveless, director of radio station WMBI, will speak at 7:30 o'clock.

Wednesday night—The Rev. David H. Johnson, former lawyer and now pastor of Lake View Mission Covenant church, will speak at 7:30 o'clock.

Thursday and Friday nights—Dr. Walter L. Wilson, Kansas City, Kas., preacher, will speak at 7:30 o'clock.

Sunday, May 12—The Wheaton college women's glee club will sing at 3 o'clock. At 7:30 Dr. V. R. Edman, president of the college, will speak.

Tuesday, May 14—Peter Deyneka, director of the Russian Gospel association, will be the speaker.

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Sunday, May 15, 16, 17, and 19—Dr. James R. Graham, a former officer in the United States Marine corps and for 16 years a missionary in China, will be the speaker. During the week he will be heard at 7:45 o'clock in the evening. Sunday he will speak at 11 o'clock, 3 o'clock, and 7:30 o'clock.

DOLL COLLECTOR CLUB TO CONVENE AT SETTLEMENT

A novel meeting of the National Doll and Toy Collectors' club will be held at 1:30 o'clock Saturday at the Chicago Commons settlement, 955 West Grand avenue, and the usual admission fee will be waived in favor of dolls and canned goods contributions for settlement neighbors. The public is invited.

Bernard Ravca, French doll manufacturer, who exhibited at the Paris Exposition of 1925 and at the New York World's Fair, will display dolls.

The dolls received at the door will be given to children in the settlement nursery school and kindergarten. Miss Dorothy Cheney, director of women's work at the commons, is a member of the National Doll and Toy Collectors' club.

Two lovely recent brides are Mrs. John Frederick Sheasby of Evanston and Mrs. Harvey Jensen, 2835 North Richmond street. Mrs. Sheasby is the former Maxine Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur William Anderson of Crystal Lake. The young couple are living in Evanston. Mr. Sheasby's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edward Sheasby of Evanston.

Mrs. Jensen before her marriage was Miss Gladys Marie Sullivan, and her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Sullivan, 3107 North Mango avenue.

SUBURB PLANNING TO DRAFT A NEW ZONE ORDINANCE

Arlington Heights Code Called Obsolete.

A new citizens' committee was organized last Monday night in Arlington Heights to draft a zoning ordinance for the village. The committee, consisting of seven business and professional men, was appointed by village trustees. Henry F. Muller is the chairman and Ralph Jorgensen is the secretary.

Members are A. C. Wilcox, Rudolph Rizzi, E. H. Malzahn, Elmer F. Laurin, and George Sanders. Serving in an advisory capacity will be Paul Taege, building commissioner; Hugo J. Thal, village attorney, and William Meyer Jr., village clerk. The next meeting of the committee will be Monday night, May 13, in the Municipal building.

The new law will be adopted to replace zoning regulations enacted in 1937. This code has been modified from time to time, but during the last five years its defects were found to be too great to be corrected by amendments. The proposal to abandon it in favor of a new one was sponsored in the village board by George F. Schneberger.

Cites Main Flaws.

"There were two main flaws in the old law," Mr. Schneberger said. "In the first place, the character of our town is not what the drafters of the law thought it was or would be. They evidently thought it would be a commercial and industrial village and set aside large portions of the land for these purposes.

"Now it is plain that Arlington Heights is more likely to be a residential suburb, like Wilmette. Consequently much of the property zoned for stores and industrial concerns should be made available for residences.

"The other principal defect in the law was its failure to conform with conditions already in existence in older sections of the town. At the time it was passed several large old homes had been converted to apartment buildings. Some of these fell within areas zoned for apartments; others were in single family residence zones.

Flood of Petitions.

"These exceptions crippled the law from the beginning. The board of appeals was swamped with petitions for exceptions to the code from persons whose neighbors had built apartment buildings or converted large homes before the law was passed. Confusion between single family zones and apartment zones was so great that the law in the last few years has been practically useless.

"We hope to draft a law which will restrict apartment houses to the places where they now are. At the same time it should be possible to reduce the areas zoned for possible apartments in newer sections."

One of the other reasons which prompted the village to draft a new ordinance is the fact that in many of the subdivisions opened between 1916 and 1920 there were 20 year restrictions governing the size of building lots and the value of homes which have now expired. The new law is expected to replace these restrictions.

Veterans' Choice

Miss Gladys Grindley, 1569 Thacker street, Des Plaines, was recently elected "Miss North Western" to attend the American Legion convention in Boston with delegates from North Western post, No. 430, next September. Veterans employed by the Chicago and North Western railroad selected Miss Grindley. Miss Evelyn Freeman, 4841 Montrose avenue, won fourth place.

Sacred Heart Household Plans Annual Card Party

The annual card party of the Sacred Heart household of the Order of Martha, the women's auxiliary of the Catholic Church Extension society, will be held Friday evening in the Belden-Stratford hotel, 2300 Lincoln Park West. Mrs. George Balko is chairman, Mrs. James O'Connor is cochairman, and Mrs. William J. Arnold is president of the organization. Proceeds will be used to help outlying parishes repair their churches.

ECONOMY, GOOD TASTE COMBINED IN SMALL HOME

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A great many architects at the present time are concerning themselves with small homes of good design. Homes which combine good taste and economy with features both practical and attractive.

Such a home was designed recently by L. Morgan Yost, A. I. A., architect, 930 Spanish court, Wilmette. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell Older and the small six room highly individual house stands at 552 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth.

If you feel you'd like to build a really friendly, personal little home, this contemporary home is a type to consider.

A neat brick walk, cool mustard tan shutters against a rough textured front of soft gray green, and a hospitable door welcome the visitor who walks toward the two story house, with its white exterior walls except for the front façade, and its blue-black roof in effective contrast.

Suited to Small Family.

Inside you find a very individual, attractive interior suited to a small family. [The Older family now numbers three members. The afternoon I saw the house there was a diminutive new arrival, a 2 week old baby girl, making use of a cozy nursery bedroom.]

To the right of the entrance hall is the living room, 11 feet 10 inches by 21 feet. The walls, above a white wainscote, are painted a coral rose, the carpeting is a brown rose which tones in beautifully, the fireplace is of white brick with mirror to the ceiling, and at the far end is a large picture window overlooking the garden and terrace area at the back of the home.

The living room and dining room are completely separated by an intriguing little hallway, with built-in shelves to ceiling with coral rose background, and under these shelves a desk table, phone, and chair. From this hallway are the stairs to the second floor, also carpeted in the same rose brown shade, and with papered walls; a fern pattern on a rosy tan background which reflects the tone of the carpet.

Ceiling Is Silver.

The dining room, 12 feet by 11 feet, is a charming, sunny spot. Here the south wall, with French doors leading out to the porch, is prepared in a silver and blue paper. The ceiling is silver—a striking note—and the three other walls are painted a harmonizing blue. On each side of the French doors are windows with glass shelves for flowering plants and vines.

The kitchen, 8 feet by 9 feet 4 inches, is at the front of the house. Its walls and cabinets are painted a soft tone of blue. The linoleum floor is dominated by a pleasant peach shade which is likewise carried out in the ceiling.

At the front of the house, opening from a small passageway between hall and kitchen, is a coat closet with lavatory opposite. Here in the lavatory the lower wall is a rich brown to complement the brown floor linoleum, while the upper walls are a chartreuse.

Has Three Bedrooms.

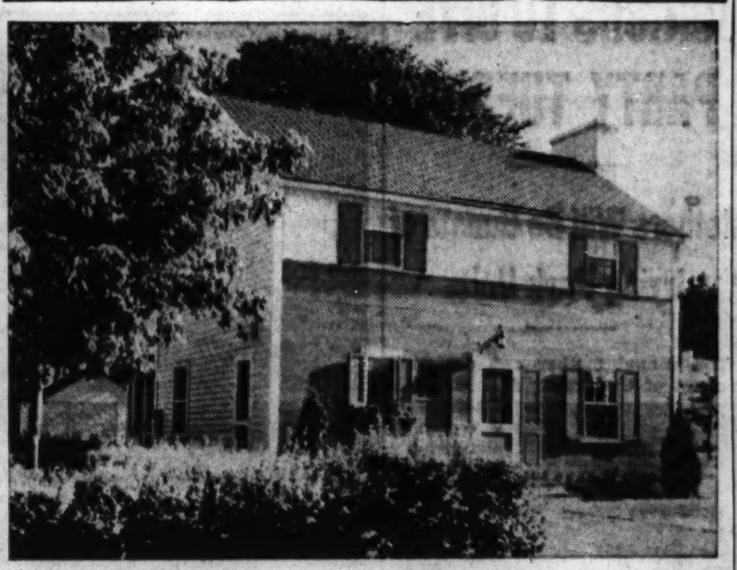
On the second floor are three bedrooms. The master bedroom has painted walls of soft green, with olive green upholstery and bedspread. The furniture is pickled light mahogany, the carpeting is rose, and a door from this room leads out to sun deck—for summer living. Door and windows of this room, which are curtained in imported Swedish voile, have a border outline of white and green, harmonizing with green of walls and upholstery.

There is a second bedroom which Mrs. Older calls her "antique" room. Here the walls are painted blue with a captivating border of French little blue and pink nosegays on a background of white. The ceiling of this room in blue and the rug white. And it goes without saying that the nursery, with its soft blue walls and paper in a "youthful and lively bell pattern," is all in the spirit of our modern nursery bedrooms.

Well Designed Residence



An expertly designed and personal home is this six room residence in the contemporary manner at 552 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell Older. The architect was L. Morgan Yost, A. I. A., 930 Spanish court, Wilmette. Approximate cost, with single car, separate garage, including architect's fee, but exclusive of land, $7,250.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 6.

May is an excellent time to feed trees. A crowbar will do to make holes about four feet apart and two feet deep at the drip of the branches. Fill the holes with food to within two inches of the top and finish with soil. Water until the ground is soaked. If the ground is soaked before using the crowbar the work will be much easier.

Tuesday, May 7.

It will be easier to buy suitable soil for boxes from the florist than to prepare it at home. Leave plenty of room for watering and later for applying a rich top dressing. Unless one has the proper facilities for growing good plants at home, it is best to buy plants that will become established immediately. Many combinations of different plants can be arranged, but some thrive in full sun while others prefer shade or partial shade. The petunia is one of the finest of all plants for the purpose; the geranium, lantana, ageratum, phlox drummondi, portulaca, and similar kinds all do well.

Wednesday, May 8.

Divide perennials. When sweet peas begin to grow, thin to about six inches apart in the row. Watch for plant lice and begin spraying with nicotine; for attacks of mildew, use sulphur. Sow seeds of virtually all annuals at this time. Make a fine seedbed and do not sow too thick.

Thursday, May 9.

Do not cut all the foliage away from tulips when cutting the blooms for the leaves are necessary for good ripening of the bulbs. Plant dahlias after the ground is warm. Planting late will give better fall bloom. Do not allow rhubarb plants to form seeds or the plants will be weakened. Try a few rows of New Zealand spinach as a hot weather crop. It can be cut several times and it is very fine. Work for a succession of crops in the vegetable garden; always have something ready to plant or sow as soon as one crop is off the ground; conserve space.

Friday, May 10.

It is time to finish tree, shrub, and vine planting. For a low ornamental shrub try the Hansen bush cherry. It has fragrant white flowers in spring, followed by berries resembling small plums. The berries are edible and excellent for preserves. For something different as a hedge, plant the dwarf blue leaf Arctic willow. It grows anywhere in wet or heavy soils and can withstand low temperatures. The oak leaf hydrangea will do well in a shady spot and it is quite unusual.

Saturday, May 11.

Shrubs that flower during midsummer are quite rare, but one called ocean spray is new on the market. It has large clusters of creamy white flowers. Be sure to water evergreens during dry periods. A good lawn mixture consists of 60 per cent Kentucky bluegrass and 40 per cent redtop, with a little rye grass for quick growth and shade while the bluegrass germinates. Feed the lawn with a complete plant food.

GARDEN CLUBS IN BARRINGTON AWARD PRIZES

Trees Go to Growers of the Best Plots.

Barrington has developed a community tradition for beautifying and using the out-of-doors, both in private gardens and in public grounds. The Countryside Garden class not long ago erected a stone barbecue fireplace in the North park in the village for picnickers and scouts to use.

The three garden clubs—the Village Garden club, the Barrington Garden club, and the Countryside Garden class, recently distributed the prizes for last summer's gardens entered in a school contest.

Prizes were 16 plum and apple trees, and they have gone to the individuals who had the best gardens. One hundred eighty entries vied for awards, and it is estimated that there will be 220 in this summer's contest.

Seeds Being Distributed.

Seeds are being distributed, and gardens will be inspected three times during the season by committees from the clubs.

Mrs. Henry Zander was general chairman of last year's contests. Miss Beatrice Dean represented the school on the committee.

Gives 26 Trees.

The Village Garden club has given 26 trees this year to beautify bare places in Barrington. There are 10 sugar maples and 16 sycamores. Chairmen for this project are Mrs. J. M. Friedlander, Mrs. F. C. Kirchman, Miss Elizabeth Otis, and Mrs. D. C. Schroeder. Mrs. R. G. Plagge is president.

The club will hold its fifth anniversary in the parlors of St. Paul's church on May 13. Hostesses will be Mrs. R. M. Jurs, Mrs. E. A. Beerman, Mrs. F. C. Fleming, Mrs. J. P. Haffner, Mrs. W. W. Seaverns. Mrs. John Bell will speak on "Civic Improvements for Barrington" and Sydney E. Block of Waukegan will show garden slides.

Spring Concert.

De Soto Male chorus will present its second annual spring concert at 8:30 o'clock Thursday in the Loyola Community theater, 1320 Loyola avenue. Miss Virginia Haskins, coloratura soprano, will appear as guest soloist. Adalbert Huguelet is director of the Knights of Columbus chorus.

YOUTH ALIJAH TO BENEFIT BY ENTERTAINMENT

Muriel Dunkleman, 3750 Lake Shore drive, actress; Marione Kohn, 3800 Lake Shore drive, pianist, and Ruth Doctoroff Levy, dancer, will present a program for the benefit of Youth Alijah at 3:30 o'clock next Sunday afternoon in the Chicago Woman's Club theater, 72 East 11th street. Youth Alijah is a project of Hadassah in which Jews from 15 to 17 years old are transferred from countries of persecution to Palestine

HUMANE SOCIETY SECRETARY NOW 40 YEARS ON JOB

G. A. H. Scott Only Came to Call in 1900.

A young lawyer strode up the worn stone steps of the Illinois Humane society, 1145 South Wabash avenue, 40 years ago. He came to talk to John G. Shortall, president, about a minor law case.

George A. H. Scott.

Their business completed, the president told the young man about the workings of the society, how it protected the weak, both animals and men, against inhuman practices; how it prevented wanton and unconscious cruelty. The young man was interested and, as he turned to go, the president offered him a job with the society.

The man took the job. A short time later he became executive secretary. That was 40 years ago and the stone steps were worn even then by thousands of feet plodding toward the anteroom to seek humane treatment of men and animals.

Grooves Deeper Now.

On April 24, forty years later to the day, the same executive secretary, George A. H. Scott, climbed the stone steps. The grooves worn in by millions of footsteps are deeper now.

Mr. Scott, 70 years old and white-haired, spent the day planning the work of the society for the next ten years. The organization, one of the oldest social agencies in the city, was chartered in 1869.

Mr. Scott, who resides at 1548 Sherwin avenue, won't talk much about himself. What he has to say concerns the work of the society.

"We place the emphasis on education today—education that begins in the schools and extends thru a consistent program of supervision in industries where animals are greatly in use," he says. "Once we were deeply concerned with prosecution for cruelty to children and animals, and while we still prosecute where necessary, now every effort is made to correct situations before they reach the courtroom."

Humane Laws Passed.

Mr. Scott cites a long list of laws passed by the state legislature as important aids to the cause of humane treatment of children and animals. He and the society worked tirelessly for the child labor laws of 1905, the delinquency and contributing to delinquency laws of the same year and the nonsupport laws of 1915.

In addition to looking after the welfare of children, the society also cares for lost or unwanted pets, supervises treatment accorded horses, cattle, poultry, zoo animals.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church
—A Religious Voice of the People—
Edited by the Rev. John Evans

The 50th anniversary number of the Epworth Herald, official periodical of the young peoples' Epworth league of the Methodist church, published in Chicago, was distributed among the delegates of the first general conference of the church at Atlantic City, N. J., last week.

Dr. W. E. J. Gratz.

For religious journalism the anniversary is important. Before the founding editor, the late Dr. Joseph F. Berry [who was to become "the Epworth league bishop"] entered the field, religious journals were generally dull and filled with long articles which were read with interest mostly by their authors.

But Dr. Berry changed all this. Articles were shortened and the whole tempo of the journal was stepped up for readers who read for interest and pleasure instead of spiritual discipline.

Moreover, the people answered with circulation. Within two years there were 100,000 subscribers. In 1891 that was a big circulation even for daily newspapers. Today, the journal perhaps has the largest circulation of any Protestant religious magazine. Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, has been editor of the Herald for the last 16 years.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE indirectly made its gift to the Epworth Herald cause in its second editor, Stephen J. Herben. Dr. Herben, London born son of Belgian parents, was a printer by trade who became the TRIBUNE's Evanston correspondent where he earned his way thru Northwestern university and Garrett Biblical institute.

Dr. Herben devised many makeup changes in the Herald's format, and as a printer brought new styles to the journal's typography; as a news man, made its columns vital and timely. But Dr. Herben's best job, according to his friends, was the discovery of the editorial genius of an immigrant from an English mill town, Dan B. Brummitt, who had gone as far into the American west as Kansas. Dr. Brummitt, after graduating from Baker university and Drew Theological seminary, was preaching in Arkansas when Dr. Herben called him to Chicago. When Dr. Herben was appointed to other editorial work in New York, Dr. Brummitt became editor.

Why Be Fat

Thousands of women have discovered way to lose excess weight—without following strict diet lists, or taking exercises or drugs.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—

First . . . eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second . . mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice

If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ½ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

SYMPHONIC HOUR SALUTES ARMY ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Special Tribute to First Division Planned.

The second of the new W-G-N Symphonic Hours, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be broadcast before an audience of 600 invited guests representing the United States army, the Illinois National Guard, and the National Army Reserves, from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight. The program will be broadcast by W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This program, which is dedicated to the army and all its officers and men, will have as speaker of the evening, Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will take part in a special feature of the program.

Marion Claire to Sing.

An outstanding cast headed by Marion Claire, soprano star of opera, movies, and radio, and the augmented W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus directed by Henry Weber, will be heard in the musical portion of the program.

One of the highlights of the broadcast will be a dramatization, featuring a group of picked radio actors with a background of stirring orchestral accompaniment, in commemoration of the 23d anniversary of the First division of the American expeditionary forces, to be observed this summer.

Col. McCormick will participate in the introduction to this feature with words from an address he first delivered on Aug. 9, 1937, at Cantigny, France. On this occasion a monument erected in commemoration of the 1st division was dedicated.

Bacher Is Producer.

This dramatic interlude is the creation of William A. Bacher, who is directing and producing the Symphonic Hour.

The program:

The Bartered Bride Overture..........Smetana
Orchestra.
[a] Les Cloches..........Debussy
[b] By a Lovely Forest Pathway...Griffes
Miss Claire.
The Swan of Tuonella..........Sibelius
Orchestra.
Chorus from "Rigoletto"..........Verdi
Orchestra.
Prelude from Cycle of Life..........Ronald
Miss Claire.
Il est Doux, Il est Bon..........Massenet
Miss Claire.
The Moldau..........Smetana
Orchestra.
Special Dramatization Honoring America's War Heroes.

Miss Claire, the soloist of the evening, was starred last Thursday in the operetta, "Bittersweet," with James Melton, tenor, on W-G-N-Mutual, and also on the first W-G-N Symphonic Hour presented last Sunday in salute to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Next Sunday the third Symphonic Hour will again salute the Chicago Association of Commerce. More than 3,400 tickets have been requested by members of the association; thus this organization will be honored with several broadcasts.

Guest on W-G-N

Van Heflin, who plays opposite Katherine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story" at the Erlanger theater, will be the guest star on W-G-N's Fifth Row Center production of "Ethan Allen" at 7 p. m. next Friday.

HEFLIN TO PLAY ETHAN ALLEN ON '5TH ROW CENTER'

Miss Hepburn's Leading Man on W-G-N Show.

Van Heflin, talented young leading man of the stage and radio, will be the guest star on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday. He will be heard in a special radio play, "Ethan Allen," a story of the famous Revolutionary war patriot.

Heflin is appearing at the Erlanger theater, where he is acting as leading man to Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story," Philip Barry's hit play.

In "Ethan Allen," Heflin will portray the title rôle, that of the New England patriot and officer who played an important part in the winning of the war. He will be supported by an all-star cast of radio actors. The program will be directed by Blair Walliser.

Appeared with Miss Claire.

Van Heflin was first seen on the Chicago stage a few seasons ago when he appeared with Ina Claire in S. N. Behrman's "End of Summer." Before becoming an actor, Heflin was a sailor. After attending the State University of Oklahoma, he went to California, and signed as a seaman on a round the world cruise. The ship stopped at New York. Hearing that a rôle in a new show was open, Heflin applied for the part. He was accepted and played in "Mr. Moneypenny." After the show closed, he returned to the sea.

Joins Hedgerow Theater.

Finally, on a voyage home he was persuaded by Dramatist Lynn Riggs to enter the theatrical profession permanently. He joined the Hedgerow theater in Philadelphia. When he felt he was ready for Broadway, Heflin went to New York and was cast in "The Bride of Torosco."

Since then he has appeared in numerous plays and motion pictures. Among his films have been "A Woman Rebels," "Saturday's Heroes," "Flight from Glory," and "Annapolis Salute."

GARDEN CLUBS GUESTS AT W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

Cellist Feuermann to Be Soloist.

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, conducted by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcast system. Attilio Baggiore, tenor; Mark Love, basso, and Harriet Brewer, contralto, will be the vocalists.

The program will be presented in the main studio of W-G-N before an audience of specially invited guests who are members of garden clubs in Chicago participating in the "share your lilacs" campaign sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Appeared at Ravinia.

Feuermann was born in Austria 37 years ago. A child prodigy, he made his debut at the age of 11. He taught music at the Cologne conservatory. He left Germany in 1934 and made a world tour. His most recent Chicago appearance was at Ravinia last summer, when he played the Dvorak concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Vladimir Golschmann conducting.

Baggiore, Love, Miss Brewer, and the octet will sing a group of American Indian themes, including "Zuni Indian Call"; "Pale Moon," by Logan, and "By the Waters of Minnetonka," by Thurlow Lieurance.

Baggiore will sing "Cielo e Mar," by Amilcare Ponchielli, and "My Wild Irish Rose," by Chauncey Olcott. Other numbers will include the Overture "Le Roi la dit," by Leo Délibès; "Parade" and "Finale," from Ibert's "Divertissement," and Arensky's "Serenade," in which Michael Wilkomirski will play the violin obbligato for the chorus.

Salute Music Week.

The Concert Revue, under the direction of Mr. Weber, will be dedicated to National Music week—which is being observed from May 5 to May 11—with Kathryn Witwer, soprano, as soloist, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday on W-G-N and Mutual.

The program will include a composition of Edward A. MacDowell, the great American composer, in whose commemoration the postoffice will issue a stamp during the week.

The concert orchestra will play "To a Water Lily" and "By a Meadow Brook," from MacDowell's "Woodland Sketches."

Miss Witwer will sing for her solo John Alden Carpenter's "I Am Like a Remnant of a Cloud in Autumn." She also will do "Les Temps des Lilas," by Ernest Chausson.

'Who Knows?' Is Presented on W-G-N Monday Nights

"Who Knows?" the W-G-N-Mutual network's series on psychic phenomena based on the case histories of Dr. Hereward Carrington, is now heard on Monday nights from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m. The series is directed by Jack Johnstone.

'TROJAN HORSE' TO BE TOPIC OF ROUND TABLERS

Taking a leaf from the pages of ancient Greek mythology, Louis Gottschalk, chairman of the department of history, and Nicholas Doman, research assistant in political science, both of the University of Chicago, will discuss "The Trojan Horse," on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ.

The subject will refer to the policy and technique of penetration and infiltration which has been employed in Europe, particularly in Scandinavia and central Europe. Doman is a former reserve officer in the Hungarian army.

EVERETT WEST TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N 'ROMANCE-RHYTHM'

Romance in Rhythm, directed by Harold Stokes, will feature the singing of Everett West, romantic tenor, with the music of the W-G-N Dance orchestra, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Heard with West will be Edna O'Dell, the Four Grenadiers, and the chorus.

West, who will sing two numbers, is appearing in the Chez Paree show. Since leaving the California Varsity Eight vocal group, West has been featured in floor shows of leading New York, Chicago, and West Coast night clubs.

Edna O'Dell will sing for her solo, "I'm Too Romantic," and with the chorus will do "Last Night's Gardenias." The Four Grenadiers will sing the hit song of the season, "With the Wind and the Rain in Your Hair."

Selections to be done by the chorus and orchestra will include "Little Girl," "I've Got Rhythm," "Charming Little Faker," and "Punchinello."

On Melody Hour

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, who will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, directed by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

CINDERELLA TALE IS REVIVED BY TALENT SEARCH

Remember the story of Cinderella and how the fairy Godmother made it possible for her to go to the king's ball? And how, after the ball, the young prince searched far and wide for the young lady whose foot might fit the glass slipper?

Not at all far removed are the Cinderell-ic qualities in the opportunities offered in the current auditions sponsored by the Carters of Elm Street thruout the country. Two amateur actresses, one between the ages of 15 and 25 and another over 25, are to experience the same success and happiness as that enjoyed by Cinderella.

But better then the short lived evening of this belle of fairyland, the clocks of the winners will not strike a 12 o'clock doom on the evening's fun but will continue to run for two weeks. And unlike Cinderella's mere fun of meeting and dancing with the prince, the Carrie Carter protéges will be brought to Chicago [and returned], given a suite of rooms and paid a professional salary for their two weeks appearance in their respective rôles with the Elm Street cast.

Auditions are being held in each of the stations, including W-G-N, carrying the Carters of Elm Street program. Last day for entering is May 8.

MR. SILO FINISHES 7 YEARS WITH 'ORPHAN ANNIE'

Edmund Clark Sprague, one of the oldest troupers in radio, completes his seventh year as Mr. Silo with the Orphan Annie program this month. Orphan Annie is aired at 5:45 p. m. weekdays on W-G-N.

A veteran of tent shows, "dime museums," stock companies, and chautauquas since his debut in 1883, Ed Sprague has seen just about every form of showmanship ever known and has participated in almost as many. He has played in every state, toured the Mississippi valley in showboats, dodged dust storms and prairie fires in the Dakotas, Kansas, and Nebraska, thought of panning for gold in California, and finally hit pay dirt in radio back in 1931 on W-G-N.

Also a member of the cast of "Citizens of Tomorrow" as Charley Jones, school engineer of every school, Ed's characterization as the guardian of radio's little redhead has made him a favorite of Annie listeners.

MITCHELL KNOWS ANSWERS; TELLS THEM ON W-G-N

If you want to know whether or not Nero wore a monocle, who has the largest feet in Hollywood [it isn't Garbo], whether soup is eaten or sipped, and where people make the most noise on New Year's eve ask Al Mitchell, the Answer Man. Al is heard at 10 p. m. Wednesdays and Sundays on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Al Mitchell.

Al Mitchell began collecting information from the 1898 World Almanac when he was attending third grade in St. Louis, Mo.

Aside from an insatiable curiosity, Albert spent his youth taking piano lessons, witnessing baseball games thru a knothole, and piloting his father's ABC friction drive automobile perilously thru the streets of St. Louis backward.

To escape the drudgery of mowing the homestead lawn, Mitchell ran away from home at the age of 14 and began his professional career as a musician and singer in a nickelodeon theater. From that time until 1936 he was a professional musician, singer, and master of ceremonies.

Served with Whiteman.

After a brief sojourn in France with the A. E. F., Mitchell resumed his musical career as orchestra conductor and arranger in association with Paul Whiteman. After seven years of touring with his own dance band in stage shows, Mitchell acquired a vast fund of useless knowledge. Backstage he became an arbiter for all disputes, and by 1936 he decided to put his information to better use by going on the air.

He combed the files of the New York library for additional ammunition and launched his attack on a station at Bridgeport, Conn. The immediate success of the idea brought him to station WOR, and then to W-G-N.

Mitchell's greatest delight is reading his fan mail, which contains the majority of "screwball" questions he answers twice a week. On the assumption that all questions have answers, Mitchell has managed to solve such problems as "how high is up," "Which came first, the hen or the egg," and "How long is a string."

Mitchell is the proud father of a beautiful 16 year old girl, Dolly, who has just signed a contract with Paul Whiteman as vocalist. Still attending high school at Norwalk, Conn., Dolly is a radio veteran, having sung on the air for ten years.

Northerners to Salute Spring Tuesday Night

Music in keeping with the spring season will be featured by the Northerners in their program from 9:30 to 10 p. m., Tuesday, on W-G-N. The octet will do "Song of May," "Oh, Lady Be Good," and "Shortnin' Bread." Irene Verner, soloist, will sing "Sylvelin." The entire Northerners cast will join in the presentation of "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and selections from Earl Carroll's Vanities, including "Star Lit Hour," and "Angel."

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

CHEER LINDBLOM AT THIS WEEK'S CITIZEN RALLY

W-G-N Show Will Reveal Origin of Slogan.

"This is Lindblom!"

That cry will open the sixth of the "Citizens of Tomorrow" radio shows of W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. The programs, which run a half hour, are sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Butler Laughlin.

How the slogan became a tradition of this 20 year old Chicago high school will be explained during the broadcast which will feature the Lindblom chorus, under the direction of Miss Hannah Rosenthal. As special guest of the evening performance, which will be attended by 600 students from Lindblom, will be Butler Laughlin, the school's principal.

School Groups Coöperate.

These broadcasts, dedicated to the youth of America, emphasize the many factors of today's high school which train students for responsible citizenship. The broadcasts are being presented thru the coöperation of the radio council and the music department of the Chicago public schools.

Especially popular has become The Tribune news quiz, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, a member of this newspaper's editorial staff, who plays the rôle of "The Principal." Six students are selected from the audience by Announcer Pierre Andre just before going on the air and Mr. Maxwell presents each of the winners with a $5 bill.

"I'm glad I have the answers written down," replied the "Principal" after a show, when one of the spectators commented on the alertness and intelligence of the contestants. The W-G-N sound effects department and Harold Turner, pianist, participate in this part of the entertainment.

Give Information on Graduates.

Information on some of the graduates of Lindblom will be related by Ed Sprague, who takes the character of the "School Engineer," and "Jerry," every school's co-ed, will be back to tell how "super" everything is at Lindblom.

A party of 20 students from Emerson High school in Gary, Ind., also will be guests of THE TRIBUNE Wednesday night. They are senior students who publish the school's year book. Following the broadcast they also will see "Trees to Tribune," a talking movie, and will be taken on a tour of Tribune Tower with a hundred Lindblom students.

Eleven Schools in First Series.

Eleven schools are being honored in this first series of "Citizens of Tomorrow." Lake View, Austin, Parker, Wells, and Steinmetz have appeared.

Other schools will appear as follows: May 15, Waller; May 22, Flower; May 29, Roosevelt; June 5, Morgan Park, and June 12, Wright Junior college.

Thirty boys and girls from a school other than the one appearing on the program will be guests at the broadcast each week. Requests for places should come from the principal or superintendent. Address them to Philip Maxwell at THE TRIBUNE.

B'nai B'rith Lodge to Hold Annual Dance This Evening

Abram L. Sachar B'nai B'rith lodge will hold its annual dance this evening at the Morrison hotel. Sol Desman, 5055 Sheridan road, is chairman of the arrangements committee. Other committee members include Nate Kraus, Ben Forrester, Simon Goldstein, Jack Ittin, Nate Schneider, Barney Sterling, Bernie Garber, David Krichiver, William Ruttenberg, Al Brandzel, Morris Osher, Bernard Buchholz, Morton Hahn, Allan Lieb, Jerry Verbin, and Joseph Feldman.

DES PLAINES LODGE OF ELKS GREETS NEW STAFF OF OFFICERS

New officers of the Des Plaines lodge, Order of Elks, were installed at a recent meeting by Franz A. Koehler, past exalted ruler and past district deputy of the northeast Illinois district. Theodore Czarnecki is the new exalted ruler.

Others inducted were: Homer Coffman, esteemed leading knight; Harold J. Ahbe, esteemed loyal knight; James J. Johnson Jr., esteemed lecturing knight; Albert L. Winkelman, secretary; Edwin F. Murphy, treasurer; Torgett Hess, tiler; H. True Wilson, trustee; Walter L. Morava, alternate to the grand lodge convention; Howard A. Becker, chaplain; John Yaccino, esquire; E. G. Gilbertson, inner guard, and Harold Hesse, organist.

Trees Become Tribunes at Last

Allen Martinson (picking up some papers) and Arlene Seares of Steinmetz High school watch papers leaving Tribune presses. The pupils had been guests of the Tribune's "Citizens of Tomorrow" radio program and had seen the sound motion picture "Trees to Tribunes" before joining a selected group for a tour of Tribune Tower. STEINMETZ HIGH CHEERS USHER IN YOUTH PROGRAM

W-G-N Series Emphasizes Democracy's Ideals.

"Ye-a-a-a Steinmetz!"

With a dozen blasts of rah-rah-rah for emphasis, that yell burst lustily last Wednesday night from the throats of 600 students in the auditorium studio of W-G-N. The cheer opened the fifth program of the "Citizens of Tomorrow" series, a Wednesday night broadcast dedicated to the city's secondary schools.

Presented by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, the programs are designed to recall to America that in these times of confused ideologies, "the faith and worth and ideals and patriotism of our young people shine as a beacon to democracy."

Steinmetz night had color as well as sound. Flanking the stage was a color guard of R. O. T. C. cadets.

Colorful Drum Majorettes.

Beside the cadets stood pretty drum majorettes in brief and bespangled white satin uniforms with scarlet plumes on their shakos. In green and white were the cheer leaders, two boys and two girls. They all made a proud showing.

At the center of the stage was the Steinmetz girls' chorus. With Willard L. Groom conducting, the forty young choristers sang Bantock's "Happy Isle" and the song of the city, "Chicago."

The announcer was Pierre Andre. Steinmetz, said Andre in reviewing the school's history, was named, at the suggestion of Mayor Kelly, for the electrical genius, Charles Proteus Steinmetz. One of the newer schools, it graduated its first class only two years ago.

Philip Maxwell, a member of THE TRIBUNE editorial staff, was the master of ceremonies and played the part of the principal in a playlet in which the supporting characters, Jerry, the co-ed, and "every school's engineer," were interpreted by Dorothy Gregory, a senior student at Maine Township high school, and Charles Jones, veteran radio actor.

Three Win $5 Prizes.

Three of six volunteer students who answered a quiz carried away $5 prizes. They were Dorothy Seaborg, freshman, who knew that the distinguished passengers flown to Chicago last week in THE TRIBUNE plane were the new orang-utans in the Lincoln park zoo; Bernard Quay, senior, who answered correctly that Gen. Chang Kai-chek's capital is Chungking, and Joseph Kish, sophomore, who remembered that it was Prime Minister McKenzie King of Canada who visited the President at Warm Springs, Ga., a few days ago.

At the close of the broadcast Principal Daniel F. O'Hearn spoke in praise of the "Citizens of Tomorrow" series, and expressed thanks to Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE for a program pointing to "youth's high destiny under the American way."

The young guests remained for a program of magic by Harlan Tarbell and the motion picture, "From Trees to Tribunes."

SCHOOL PATROL BOYS WILL SEE MAJOR BASEBALL

Cubs, Sox Tickets Are to Reward 30,000.

As a reward for a year's duty as safety patrol boys more than 30,000 elementary pupils from some 850 schools in the city and suburbs will be taken to professional baseball games this spring, chaperoned by members of the public high school R. O. T. C. units. Between 2,500 and 3,000 north and west side boys will watch each of four Cubs' games this week, beginning tomorrow and extending thru Thursday.

Following a custom established four years ago, the National and American leagues have donated 92,500 tickets to the Chicago board of education for distribution among 338 city public elementary schools, some 150 suburban public schools, about 300 parochial schools in and near the city, and 30 Lutheran schools.

Tickets are given only for games played during the week—from Monday thru Thursday. This year 13 are Cubs' games at Wrigley field and 12 are White Sox games at Comiskey park. Tomorrow and Tuesday the Cubs play Philadelphia; Wednesday and Thursday, Brooklyn.

August H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education for the school board, is in charge of distributing the tickets. After allowing for games called off on account of bad weather, he said, each boy will get to two games.

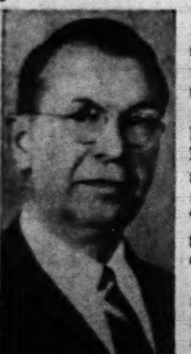
R. O. T. C. YOUTHS AWAIT INSPECTION

ALUMNI TO JOIN IN CRANE TECH 50TH YEAR FETE

Three Day Program Starts May 13.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Crane Technical High school is 50 years old. In the fall of 1890 there were 70 pupils registered in the school, which had no teachers nor text books. It was called the English High and Manual training school and by some it was called "that new fangled place we don't need."



H. H. Hagen.

Crane High school filled a need. A month after the students registered, teachers were hired and carpentry, joinery, cabinet work and mechanical drawing were squeezed in between classes in algebra, English, and civil government.

It grew until now the classrooms stretch along corridors a city block long. They are shops were students work on radios, airplane motors and with all types and kinds of electric machinery. There are no highly polished desks nor silent students. There is the noise of industry and crowds of boys in coveralls working with their hands. H. H. Hagen is principal.

Plan Golden Jubilee.

For three days, May 13, 14 and 15, Crane High school will celebrate its golden anniversary. This is one school where the old grads really won't know the place. So that they can recognize their alma mater a huge sign reading, "Hi Skinee! Meet the Old Bunch," will be flung across the entire front of the school.

The student body of 5,000 will welcome graduates at open house on the first two days when all the shops will be in full operation. The faculty of 178 teachers will explain the equipment, which is constantly brought up-to-date.

The climax to the program will be a banquet Wednesday evening, May 15, in the school banquet hall, 2245 Jackson boulevard, when 1,200 of the 12,500 graduates are expected to attend. There have been 85 commencements held at the school since its beginning.

History in Brochure.

The printing department has prepared souvenir brochures containing pictures of the old and new Crane and of the faculty since the first class. The woodworking department made the model for the souvenir ashtrays bearing the Crane letters.

After the banquet there will be a basketball game between former stars and the present Crane city champions in the gymnasium. A swimming contest will be held in the school's swimming pool.

The graduates with degrees and success records after their names will walk the halls with the Toms and the Harrys who are still plugging at just a job. Crane is sending invitations to all its sons who can be located, from San Francisco to New York City.

In the file of thousands of names is Arthur Vincent, the oldest living graduate found in the Chicago area. He is in the insurance business and resides at 621 William street, River Forest. He is of the class of '93. Sydney McAllister, class of 1897, is now president of the International Harvester company.

Authors Are Graduates.

A younger alumnus, Louis Zara, novelist, is a graduate of 1928. Mr. Zara's recently published novel is "This Land Is Ours." Seven years before, the laboratory tables and work benches graduated another novelist, Meyer Levin, whose latest book is "The Old Bunch."

Other Crane alumni whose names stand out in the list are George Halas, owner of the Bears football team; George Donaghue, superintendent of Chicago parks; Perry McGillivray, Olympic swimmer; Avery Brundage, chairman of the Olympics board of directors; Dr. Robert A. Arens, roentgenologist at Michael Reese hospital; Samuel S. Oman and Sam Lillienthal, prominent architects, and Dr. David M. Gans, professor at the University of Chicago, credited with the disintegration of the hydrogen atom.

Named for Manufacturer.

The R. T. Crane High school, named for the Chicago manufacturer, was the first public technical school in Chicago. It outgrew its small quarters on Monroe street near Halsted street in 14 years when boys realized that here was a school that equipped them for a trade.

In 1904 a new four story combined shop and academic building was opened at Oakley boulevard and Van Buren street and in that year the school was named for the industrialist. In 1924 the square block of building that is the present Crane was completed.

Just four years ago vocational courses were added at Crane. The vocational courses differ from the technical courses in that they offer more intensive training along one line. Boys may now major in automobile, radio, aeronautics, electricity and commercial photography.

They'll Be in the Big Sing

Everybody's singing over at Chase House. There's harmony in dishwashing in the neighborhood homes. It's rehearsal everywhere for the concert sponsored by the Civic Music association which will be given by 600 children this afternoon in Orchestra hall. Five of the voices that will blend in the chorus belong to, left to right, front, Joyce Calvert and Geraldine Calvert; back row, Lily May Joyce, Betty Gene Corlew, and Florence Hester.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

600 Children to Join Today in Annual Sing

It's the Cape Cod chantey that they're singing at the kitchen sinks and the front parlors down near the Chase House settlement. And the Cape Cod chantey will be sung by 600 boys and girls, dark or blonde or brown skinned when they form a chorus at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in Orchestra hall.

Lenore Watkins, 13 years old colored girl who lives at 837 South Wood street, a Chase House songstress, tells why she sings, "It shuh makes yo' happy an' it don't cost ya anything."

Singing is free for Lenore and Joyce, Charlotte, and Audrey and all the gingham dressed girls and the boys in corduroy pants who learn how at the settlement, 211 South Ashland avenue, every Monday afternoon from Mrs. Helen Protheroe Baker. West side children may also go to singing school Tuesday evenings in the Juvenile Detention home, 2240 Roosevelt road, where they are taught by Miss Esther Wright.

Ninth Public Sing.

These classes and the nine others in settlement houses and community centers are conducted by the Civic Music association of Chicago. The festival this afternoon is the ninth annual public sing.

From the classes held all over the city and taught by the association's staff of specially selected teachers, 600 children will be brought together for a program of folk songs of all nations.

This program has been rehearsed during the year by the classes which are composed of from 30 to 125 children who range in age from 5 to 15 years. The singing in the neighborhoods is supervised and coördinated by Marx E. Oberndorfer, musical director of the association. The Civic orchestra of Chicago will accompany the chorus. Hans Lange is conductor, assisted by Clarence Evans.

All-Nations Chorus.

Canada, Armenia, Bohemia, Wales, China, and Japan will be represented in the chorus and on the program. Schubert's "Organ Grinder" will be sandwiched between the Italian folk song "My Bambino" and the French "Panis Angelicus." There will be a blond German lad named Hans beside a Benito whose parents lived in Italy. The Japanese boy will harmonize with the Chinese boy who shares his book with a Russian.

The children will come from the House of Happiness near the stock yards, from a north side nursery, from Marquette park, Grand Crossing park and from the suburbs.

The work of the Civic Music association, a nonprofit organization, is carried on by public contributions. It was founded in 1913 to promote the development of musical talent and to encourage the appreciation and study of music among Chicago's children. Frederick Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, is honorary president.

Other officers are Henry B. Vanzwoll, president; G. T. Hellmuth and Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, vice presidents: Miss Priscilla Carver, secretary; Edwin S. Fetcher, treasurer, and Miss Werra Schuette, executive secretary.

Play in Hinsdale.

"Ceiling Zero" will be the play to be presented tomorrow and Tuesday nights by the Hinsdale Village theater in the Unity church, Hinsdale. Everett Mesenbrink is director.

Broadcasting company, was elected secretary.

Other officers elected at the meeting held Thursday in the Hotel Sherman are W. R. Richer, president; Gordon P. St. Clair, first vice president; Miss Ann Weizbrod, second vice president, and Chester L. Price, treasurer. The Chicago club, which covers all branches of advertising, was formed in 1934 with 75 members. There are now 626 members and 15 affiliated clubs.

LAST week George A. Bauer, park district cashier, retired from his post after almost 32 years of service. Mr. Bauer is a trustee of the park district employés' annuity and benefit fund. He started as a clerk with the former west parks in September, 1908, and was appointed cashier on Dec. 3, 1917. His home is at 1121 North Long avenue.

Mrs. Daisy Frederickson, 5515 West Iowa street, surprised herself last week. She was selected as the week's second prize winner in the "Play Broadcast game" presented over the Mutual Broadcasting system at 7 o'clock every Monday night. Mrs. Frederickson qualified for the award by identifying personalities, current and historic events, title and poems from clews provided on the program. She won $75.

MISS MATTIE LIETZ, a director of the La Grange Art league and a member of the Municipal Art league and the Hoosier and Chicago galleries, recently was honored in her own community of La Grange when her painting "Portuguese Fishermen" was purchased for the Cossitt school in the west suburb. The painting was exhibited in the Hoosier salon a year ago.

THE golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Banks, 633 South Oakland avenue, Villa Park, recently was celebrated with a family dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold T. Sparf, 519 South Villa avenue, in the west suburb. Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Banks assisted in the plans. Mr. Banks is the only son and Mrs. Sparf the only daughter of the couple.

The War Birds, Real Ones, Try Wings Today

BY ON[illegible] FRED SWEET.

Three hundred military subjects eligible for being drafted by the government should war threaten the country will make an 85 mile flight this morning from Toluca, Ill., to their home bases in the west suburban area. The flight starting at 7 o'clock will constitute the first "old bird" race of the season under the sponsorship of the Du Page County Racing Pigeon club.

An "old bird" is a pigeon that has attained the age of at least a year. The homing pigeons owned by 30 pigeon fanciers who are members of the Du Page club will be shipped to Toluca and there liberated by the station master. Each of the birds will be timed on returning to the home loft. The flight is expected to require one and one-half hours.

Other Races Scheduled.

"These remarkable pigeons will be called upon to serve the military forces of the country should it be threatened by war," explained Howard F. Dimmitt of Westmont, a member of the Du Page club. "The heroic world war pigeon, 'Cher Ami,' you may remember, was credited with saving the famous 'lost battalion,' and is now stuffed and on display in the Smithsonian institute.

After today, other races scheduled on Saturdays and Sundays include a race of 100 miles from Chillicothe, Ill.; Bushnell, Ill., 150 miles; Golden, Ill., 200 miles; La Plata, Mo., 270 miles; Marcelline, Mo., 300 miles; Olathe, Kas., 415 miles; Strong City, Kas., 510 miles, and Hutchinson, Kas., 600 miles.

11 Towns Represented.

Officers of the Du Page club are Edgar M. Seldon, 122 East Hickory street, Lombard, president; Joseph Mika, route 1, Downers Grove, vice president; L. L. Starrett, 192 South Craig place, Lombard, secretary-treasurer; Jerome Hermanek, 599 Fairview avenue, Elmhurst, race secretary; R. W. Peters, Elmhurst, assistant race secretary; Howard F. Dimmitt, 105 Naperyille road, Westmont, public relations, and A. H. Kienapple, Elmhurst, sergeant at arms.

The club has members in Batavia, Wheaton, Elmhurst, Villa Park, Lombard, Hinsdale, Westmont, Downers Grove, St. Charles, Glen Ellyn, and Berkeley.

GIRL PIANIST TO MAKE DEBUT WITH ORCHESTRA

A concert will be given by American Concert orchestra Friday evening in the Illinois Music hall, 632 North Dearborn street. Jania Pytlowany, 18 year old pianist, will be guest artist making her public debut.

The orchestra will also play at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in Harrison Technical High school, 2850 West 24th street. Three other units of the Illinois Music project will play next week in west side public schools. The Columbia Concert band will play Wednesday in the Jirka school, 1420 West 17th street, and Thursday in the Farragut school, 2339 South Christiana street.

The Jubilee Singers will appear Tuesday in the Sayre school, 1850 North Newland avenue; Wednesday in the Hay school, 1018 North Laramie avenue, and Friday in Manley High school, 2935 Polk street.

LILAC SHARING CAMPAIGN STIRS WHOLE VILLAGE

Western Springs Is Generous Giver.

How an entire suburban community has become lilac conscious one day each spring due to the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign is demonstrated in Western Springs where the local garden club has been active in the movement since its organization. Last year, the community's contribution reached its peak when two truck loads of blossoms were loaded on a Burlington train for distribution in Chicago hospitals.

"As the years have gone by, the Western Springs Garden club has become more and more active in the campaign," said Mrs. H. R. Norton, the president. "Now, residents of the suburb, whether or not they are interested in the club, bring their lilacs to the train voluntarily. Every one in the village wants to share. They no longer have to be asked to do so."

Must Give Time.

Mrs. Norton said so important had become the program of the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild, that the chairman of the activity was selected not only for her interest in flowers but for her willingness to devote much of her time to the duties that are carried out each Friday morning from lilac day until October, utilizing other flowers as they come in season.

The Western Springs club has two chairmen, Mrs. W. E. Stiegelmeir and Mrs. R. E. Fricke. These two, along with other villagers, receive active coöperation from the railway station master and his assistant. On the appointed day, commuters start bringing their blossoms for the 7.03 o'clock train. The 8.02 is the best loaded train, and the last of the blossoms leave for the city on the 8.39.

The morning of lilac day finds men of the village en route to the station, their arms filled with flowers. Bouquets are suggested, but loose lilacs are acceptable. The usual trek of commuters is supplemented by women of the suburb who leave their homes with floral offerings.

Lilacs Mostly Purple.

Most of the Western Springs lilacs are purple in color, but since the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign conducted by the guild with the coöperation of THE TRIBUNE was instituted, interest has been stimulated in growing blossoms of pale pink and white shades. A few true blue lilacs have been developed. However, the old fashioned blossoms are considered the standbys.

In the suburb there are a number of old homes where lilacs were planted more than 30 years ago. In recent years, an effort has been made to preserve these bushes and prevent their removal, when possible, as new building projects have demanded change. A common phrase heard from new home owners is "We're going to have lilacs."

Mrs. Norton said such interest could only have been possible thru the efforts of the Chicago branch of the National Plant, Flower and Fruit guild in enlisting support of the garden clubs around Chicago.

DUPAGE GIVEN SILVER CUP FOR YULE SEAL SALE

A silver loving cup awarded annually for the highest per capita Christmas seal sale in Illinois was won by the Du Page County Tuberculosis association in 1939 for the sixth consecutive year, according to a recent announcement. Returns from the 1939 fund raising campaign in Du Page county total $10,007.93, a per capita rate of 10.9 cents.

W. P. Shahan, executive secretary of the Illinois Tuberculosis association, presented the cup to a delegation from Du Page county at the annual dinner meeting of the organization's two day conference at La Salle, Ill. The award for the highest gross seal sale in counties of the state, exclusive of Cook county, was lost this year by Du Page to Winnebago county by a margin of $100.

The local Tuberculosis association was represented at the conference by Mrs. Henry B. Glathe, treasurer, and Hugh G. Dugan, vice president, Glen Ellyn; Melville W. Finlayson, director, Elmhurst; Dr. Arthur S. Webb, Du Page County Tuberculosis controler of the sanitarium tax board, Miss Gertrude Berls, executive secretary of the seal sale organization, Wheaton, and Miss Esther Weerts, field nurse, Hinsdale.

2 Order of Moose Lodges to Hold Joint Initiation

Joint initiation of candidates with Forest Park lodge will be conducted Wednesday night at 3240 South Oak Park avenue by Berwyn lodge, Loyal Order of Moose. Friday night the two lodges will hold a double installation of officers at Legion Memorial hall, Circle and Adam streets.

Alumnae Induction.

Trinity High school alumnæ will hold an induction ceremony for the class of 1940 at 8 o'clock Friday night in the school hall in River Forest. Mrs. J. C. O'Keefe, of River Forest, president of the association, will conduct the ceremony. Annual business will be transacted.

Pretty Girls in Pairs

LOIS AND BERNICE BALL.

[Ebert Photo.]

MARY JEANNE AND JOAN LONG.

It's a double dose of talent on the west side this week where pretty girls come in pairs. Sisters won the final honors last Saturday afternoon in the Chicago park district drama tournament. They are Mary Jeanne and Joan Long, 55 North Lotus avenue, who had the leading rôles in the operetta "An Afternoon Tea," a production of the Little Women of Austin Town hall.

Twin sisters, Lois and Bernice Ball, are a pair of queens. They were selected by Episcopal young people from west side churches to represent them in the court of honor at the 15th annual Cathedral ball Friday evening in the Congress hotel. They reside at 324 North Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park.

More twin sisters, Mary and Margaret Steffen, 1040 North Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, will sing at the Loyola university dance Friday night in the Stevens hotel. The dance and card party has been arranged by the Mothers' and Fathers' clubs at Loyola.

Hobby and Antique Show Planned by Women Voters

A hobby and antique show will be held from 10:30 o'clock in the morning until 10:30 p. m. by the Downers Grove League of Women Voters. The exhibit will be in the gymnasium of the Methodist church, 1032 Maple avenue, and will include old glass, quilts, and near east handicrafts. Old costumes will be modeled. Miss Kate Ward will discuss prints at 2:30 and 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. Albert H. Simon will talk on glass.

SOUTH AND WEST UNITS TO HAVE FIRST PARADES

Honor Ratings Hinge on Performance.

The "big day" for Chicagoland's 11,750 R. O. T. C. cadets—the day of the federal inspection for which they have drilled and drilled to the hopeful commands of their youthful officers—is just around the corner. Beginning this week and lasting thru May 27 the inspection ceremonies will take place for the 35 high school units in Chicago and its suburbs. The first nine inspections this week will start Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock when the Hirsch High school regiment is examined at Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street.

Some 620 cadets who have made outstanding records during the current semester will receive medals, nearly all of which will be presented at the time of inspection. Two hundred and thirty-five of the awards will be given by THE TRIBUNE, which each semester donates one medal for every 50 cadets, gold for upperclassmen and silver for freshmen.

Other Medal Donors.

Nearly 200 medals are given by R. O. T. C. headquarters twice a year for efficiency, neatness, success in recruiting, and rifle marksmanship. At the 27 public high schools in the city with R. O. T. C. training these medals will be presented by Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago public school system. Other awards are given by representatives of the American Legion, the Reserve Officers association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary. Cadets who will receive the various medals are selected by the military instructors at the respective schools.

The appointment of Maj. Norman M. Nelsen, attached to the University of Wisconsin, as officer in charge of all inspections here has been announced thru 6th Corps area headquarters. In the inspections he will take into account appearance, neatness, drill, map reading, first aid, combat principles, musketry, and other points in military theory and practice. On the completion of all inspections the best trained units will receive the title of honor schools, the highest possible mark.

At the first inspection of Chicago high school R. O. T. C. units as organized under the National Defence act of 1920, there were two honor schools —Crane Tech and Schurz. That was in 1921. In recent years there have been six or seven honor schools each semester.

Colors for the Best.

To the schools rated No. 1 and No. 2 THE TRIBUNE will present stands of colors embodying the school's emblem and American flag. This ceremony will take place at the annual Michigan avenue review, held about a week after the last inspection and sponsored by the board of education and THE TRIBUNE.

Inspections this week will take place at the following schools [in the event of rain they will be in the school gymnasiums]:

Tuesday—Hirsch, 9 a. m., Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street; Bowen, 1:15 p. m., Bessemer park, 2710 East 89th street.

Wednesday—Du Sable, 9 a. m., Washington park, 51st street and Cottage Grove avenue; Hyde Park, 1:15 p. m., Jackson park, 63d street and Stony Island avenue.

Thursday—Calumet, 9 a. m., school campus, 8100 South Aberdeen street; Harper, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 6520 South Wood street.

Friday—Lindblom, 9 a. m., Ogden park, 64th street and Racine avenue; Austin, 1:15 p. m., Columbus park, Jackson boulevard and Central avenue.

Saturday—Evanston, 9 a. m., school campus, Church street and Dodge avenue, Evanston.

Medals at Evanston High school will not be presented until the school's annual R. O. T. C. banquet, June 1.

Awards at Austin.

Capt. Henry Hofmann, officer's efficiency medal; Sergt. Allan Grieves, noncommissioned officer's efficiency medal; Capt. Henning Johnson, rifle marksmanship medal; Capt. Edward Jacobsen, recruiting medal; Corporals Clinton Anderson and John Ziemba and Sergt. James Dionesotes, neatness medal. THE TRIBUNE medals will be awarded to Second Lieutenants Howard Wicke and Ervin Grabe; First Sergeant Harry Goll; Sergts. Robert Landregan and Malcolm Ball; Corporals Leonard Carlson and Edward Hartmann; and Cadets Arthur Sommers and Garfield Anderson.

First Lieutenant James Barrick will be awarded the Reserve Officers' association medal; Sergt. Michael Armando, United Spanish War Veterans medal; Cadet Robert Jove, Veterans of Foreign Wars medal; Second Lieutenant Carl Weber, American Legion auxiliary medal; and Corporal John Koza, Melin-Romer American Legion post scholastic medal.

Reception.

A reception for new members will be held at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening by the St. Angelas Altar and Rosary society in the church, Potomac and Massasoit avenues. Mrs. John Hughes will be hostess.

Voice of the West Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the West Side, The Tribune.

LILACS—SYMBOL OF CIVILIZATION.

Because of the great interest being taken by villagers in the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign this year, I would like to pass along something I recently read by John C. Wister. He says:

"The lilac, more than any other tree or shrub, has been associated with the history of civilization in the new world ever since the early settlers came from Europe. Today it is more popular than ever, not only on account of the beauty of the common lilac but on account of the great range of size and color of the new and improved varieties which have found their way into many American gardens.

"Now that the better kinds are being grown in quantity by many nurseries no garden, no matter how small, should be without some of the wonderful flowers.

HELP PUPILS PICK A CAREER.

Downers Grove High school is to be congratulated on conducting a vocational night at which students are given an opportunity to learn about occupations. We have had two unfortunate eras in this country. The one came in the wake of the world war when jobs were plentiful and little stress was placed on efficiency. Then came the jobless period with the depression. No wonder students approaching graduation are interested in a survey of prospects and the chance to question leaders in their chosen fields.

Those who can do a thing better than others are the ones in demand. We have a long way to go before we cease to distinguish between what is considered a desirable or less desirable calling, and insist that it is how a job is done that counts.

WANTED—WEST SIDE APARTMENTS.

On the near west side within quick reach of loop businesses and the factory district are blocks of condemned property. Why doesn't a real estate company buy up blocks of this, tear down the old buildings, and put up modern space saving apartments?

People don't ask for fancy wood-carved doors nor colored tile or glass in their bathrooms and kitchens. We ask for living space that is clean and comfortable. I am a working man's wife looking for a place to live. I can't afford the luxury of suburban life. I can't endure life in a condemned building. Wake up, real estate men.

CHILDREN GIVE ANNUAL CONCERT FRIDAY EVENING

Orchestra to Appear at Austin High.

Eighty boys and girls who have traded in hours of playtime for skill on the violin, piano, and saxophone have something to show for it. They are members of the Chicago Children's Festival orchestra and will play in the eighth annual concert at 8 o'clock Friday evening in the Austin High school, 231 North Pine avenue.

The conductor is Harris Vincent Bergh, who is instrumental supervisor of Bellwood public schools, director of the Austin Evening High school orchestra and of the Judson Baptist church orchestra. Mr. Bergh will also direct the children's chorus of 80 voices.

Is Marimba Soloist.

The marimba soloist will be Edward Thuy, accompanied by Miss June Maumel. Edward received a gold medal for the marimba and a silver medal for drum in the recent high school solo contest. Student director of the orchestra will be Ruth Scharer, who was concertmaster in 1938 and violin soloist for the 1939 concert.

Eunice Jacobek will be cello soloist. She has received the highest rating for two years in the Illinois state solo contest. The string quartet, composed of Ruth Scharer, first violin; Richard Fabry, second violin; Charles Nielsen, viola, and Eunice Jacobek, cello, will play several selections.

Will Play Concerto.

Mr. Bergh and Theodore Silavin will play "Concerto for Two Violins," by Bach. Mr. Silavin is concertmaster of the Chicago Civic Symphony orchestra. Martin Rubenstein, a student of Miss Naomi Grant of the American Conservatory of Music, will play a piano solo.

The Children's Festival orchestra has developed from class instrumental instruction in the Chicago elementary schools.

PHOTO SALON TO ACCEPT ENTRIES UNTIL MAY 18

Entries for the Fourth International Photographic salon of Marshall Field & Co. will close on May 18. The exhibit will be held from June 6 thru July 13. Prizes of photographic equipment will be awarded in the amateur division while gold, silver, and bronze medals will be given in the advanced pictorial section.

Any amateur who has not won an award in an international salon or competition may enter that class. The advanced pictorial section is open to both professional and amateur photographers.

Frank R. Fraprie, F. R. P. S., of Boston; Ansel Adams of Yosemite National park, and Harry Shigeta of Chicago are the jury of admission in the advanced group. F. M. Tuckerman and William Langdon of Chicago and Miles J. Martin of Milwaukee will judge the amateur section.

Ladies of Isabella Unit Will Hold Mothers' Party

Juana-Hennepin council, Ladies of Isabella, will hold its annual Mothers' party at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the Graemere hotel. Miss Katherine McCall is chairman. The council has a card party scheduled for Saturday afternoon in Weiboldt's, Ashland avenue and Monroe street.

JAMES SIMPSON LEADS THE FIELD FOR PARTY POST

Reveal Official Count on State Committee.

James Simpson Jr. of Wadsworth and Edward Sullivan of Chicago were the biggest Chicago district vote getters for state central committeeman in the April primary. This was shown last week with the announcement of the official vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

Simpson, former congressman from the 10th district, topped the Republican candidates, polling 51,982 votes, thereby unseating Committeeman Thomas J. Houston. Simpson got more votes than the three other candidates combined.

Simpson's nearest G. O. P. rival for vote honors was Committeeman Lester J. Norris in the 3d district. Norris, secretary of the state central committee, got 32,742 votes, snowing under four challengers.

Sullivan Is Unopposed.

Sullivan captured Democratic vote getting distinction with a total of 118,234. He was unopposed for the 6th district post being vacated voluntarily by Committeeman Richard M. Sullivan. Sullivan is secretary to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes.

Another newcomer to the committee, former Ald. George D. Kells [28th] in the 7th district, was second high among the Democrats with 110,855 votes. He had no rivals for the committeemanship, relinquished by Joseph F. Higgins, who served two terms.

Queens of the May

MILDRED KLEPAL.

CHARLAINE SCOTT.

A southern plantation setting will be built with cardboard and paper flowers for the "Gone with the Wind" junior and senior prom of Morton High school, Cicero. The prom will be held Friday night in the school. Two of the many queens of May who will dance at the party are Mildred Klepal and Charlaine Scott of Berwyn.

SEMINARY HOLDS COMMENCEMENT THURSDAY NIGHT

Maywood School to Hear Synod President.

Chicago Lutheran Seminary, Maywood, will hold its annual commencement Thursday night in the seminary chapel, with the Rev. Calvin F. Stickles of Detroit, president of the Michigan synod, giving the address. Baccalaureate services will be held this afternoon with Dr. Arthur M. Knudsen, divisional secretary of English missions of the United Lutheran church in America, preaching the sermon.

Dr. L. F. Gruber. [Ebert Photo.]

Other commencement activities include a meeting of the alumni association Wednesday morning, to be followed by a reception in the afternoon and a dinner. Officers of the alumni association are the Rev. Harvey C. Clark of Chicago, president, and the Rev. Luther Y. Seibert of Elmhurst, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. L. F. Gruber, President.

Dr. L. Franklin Gruber is president of the seminary, a professional training school for ministers, founded in 1891. For 19 years the seminary occupied the site of what is now the Cubs baseball park, on Addison street. Its present location is the six blocks bounded by Van Buren street, Tenth avenue, Harrison street, and 13th avenue, in Maywood.

Maywood was chosen for the site of the seminary in 1910, after the Addison street property was sold. Present equipment consists of 11 modern brick buildings.

From Various Synods.

Members of the board of directors are from the various supporting synods of the United Lutheran church of America, but it also has students from other Lutheran church bodies.

Graduates are now to be found in 30 state, Alaska, Canada, Sweden, Germany, the Virgin Islands, India, Africa, British Guiana, Japan, and China. More than 20 of the graduates are professors in educational institutions, and six are presidents of synods. The 500 graduates have gone forth far and wide.

Novena Clubs Are to Give Play on Three Evenings

The Novena Auxiliary club and the Novena Ushers' club will present "Ladies of the Jury," by Fred Ballard, Wednesday, Thursday, and next Monday evenings in the Children's theater of Lowell school, Oak Park. Miss Mary Keating and John Barrett have the leading rôles.

RIVERSIDE FRIENDS FETE C. V. CARLSONS ON GOLDEN WEDDING

A recent golden wedding of community-wide interest was that of Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Carlson, 3222 South Harlem avenue, Riverside. More than 200 relatives and friends gathered at the American Legion hall in Berwyn to celebrate the occasion. There were gifts, flowers, and a smörgasbörd during the program of entertainment Mr. Carlson sang several solos.

C. V. Carlson.

Mrs. Carlson.

The Carlsons were married in Wilcox, Pa., where they met at a boarding house. Both were born in Sweden. For a time, Mr. Carlson operated a farm which he owned, but later went into the grocery business.

Coming to Riverside the couple, in 1917, opened a grocery and market at Herrick road and Harlem avenue, and were pioneers in the district when Harlem avenue was a mud road and there were few houses on the nearby open prairie.

Sons and daughters of the couple are Mrs. Elaine Opal, of Texas; Miss Agnes Carlson, of New York; Mrs. Hilma Puhl, of Des Plaines, and Mrs. Nan Magnusson; Chester Carlson, and Mrs. Olive Carlson, of Riverside.

WOMEN 'MATH' TEACHERS WILL MEET SATURDAY

Miss Marie Plapp, mathematics teacher at Marshall High school, is president of the Chicago Woman's Mathematics club which will hold its annual meeting and luncheon Saturday noon in the restaurant at 660 Rush street.

The club, composed of women teachers in schools and colleges of Chicago and vicinity, will hear R. L. Short speak on "Mathematical Short Cuts." Mr. Short is from the Ashland school, St. Louis, Mo.

Miss Mary Jane Hartman of Oak Park High school will be chairman of hostesses. Miss Mary Hradek of Flower High school will serve on this committee. Mrs. Dorothy Norris of Crane Technical High school is club treasurer.

Leads 17 Dark Horses in 9th District.

Seventeen dark horses appeared in the 9th district balloting for alternate delegate to the Republican national convention in the April 9 primary. This was revealed last week with the announcement of the official Cook county vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

This scramble resulted from the failure of more than one candidate to file for 9th district alternate. Paul J. Randolph, the only man to file, and whose name consequently was the only one printed on the ballot, received 11,639 votes.

Friends of Edmond Mansure elected him to the alternate's post by writing in his name on 585 ballots. A similar write-in campaign for Frank S. S. Sims brought him 469 votes. The name of John A. Rogers was written in on 182 ballots.

Seven Get One Each.

Seven candidates got from 3 to 23 votes each via the write-in route. Seven others received one vote each, presumably their own.

Below are tabulated the total votes for alternates in the first nine congressional districts, all of which are in Cook county, and the 10th which includes part of Cook and all of Lake county [the names of candidates who polled less than two votes each are omitted]. The boldface type indicates the winners.

LAWNDALE B'NAI B'RITH AUXILIARY PLANS LUNCHEON

Marks Finish of Earning Fund Drive.

More than 400 members of the Chicago Lawndale B'nai B'rith Woman's auxiliary will attend a luncheon Wednesday noon in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. The party will mark the end of the Earning Fund drive of which Mrs. Arthur X. Elrod is chairman.

Mrs. Arthur Elrod.

Assisting Mrs. Elrod are Mrs. Adele Jeffe and Mrs. Sidney Deutsch, the latter the wife of the president of the Lawndale B'nai B'rith Men's lodge.

Members bringing in the largest amount of money for the fund will receive prizes donated by Mrs. Elrod. Mrs. A. R. Schneider is president of the auxiliary.

Mother's day will be observed by the Lawndale B'nai B'rith Juniors at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon with the second annual fund raising luncheon in the Hotel Chicagoan. Miss Lyla Zagoon, impersonator, and Miss Rose Zagon, pianist, will head the entertainment program. Miss Jean Perlut is chairman of arrangements.

The Kaye E. German Memorial club, which is affiliated with the Fox River sanitarium, will hold a card party at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, May 1, in the Midwest Athletic club, Madison street and Hamlin avenue. Officers of the club elected recently are Hersh Evenstien, president; Allen Greenberg, vice president; Evelyn Deutsch, recording secretary; Ann Hecht, corresponding secretary; Esther Meltzer, secretary, and Morris Mann, treasurer.

The Youth group of the Knessas Israel Nasachsforad temple, 1308 Independence boulevard, will hold its fifth meeting at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening. Those from 18 to 25 years old will arrange a summer program of dramatics, sports, singing, dancing, and picnics. Morris Feinberg is teacher.

Sacred Heart Students Plan to Give Play About Mother

Ninety students will take part in the annual play, "A Day with Our Mother," to be presented this afternoon and tomorrow night at the Sacred Heart academy, Lisle. Principal rôles will be taken by seniors—Marie Picho, Barbara Norkus, Patricia Anderson, Helene Hladik, Marie Giber, Margaret Krajnik, Jacquelin Distell, Marie Jackie, Josephine Krhovsky, Martica Morales, Rose Pacal, Josephine Shindelar, Barbara Beeler, Mathia Nickol, Genevieve Bratrsovsky, Sylvia Musil, Rose Ott, Lorraine Barnickel, and Marian Hock.

LA GRANGE CHOIR SINGS CANTATAS THIS AFTERNOON

Two Chicagoans Will Be Guest Soloists.

Three cantatas will be sung this afternoon during the third annual spring concert of the choir of First Presbyterian church, Elm street and Catherine avenue, La Grange. There will be solos by John Macdonald, bass soloist at St. James Episcopal church in Chicago and a member of the Chicago Opera company, and violin selections by Alfred Aulwur, a member of the Chicago Civic orchestra.

"The Serenade to Music," by Ralph Vaughan Williams, contemporary British composer, will be given for the first time in the Chicago area. The choral work was written in 1938 for a celebration of the 25th anniversary of Sir Henry Wood.

Soloists in Cantata.

Solos in the cantata will be sung by Lois Huebenthal and Leona Jannenga, soprano soloists of the choir; Minnie Brooks, contralto soloist; Russell Besser, tenor, and John Macdonald.

"Rejoice, Ye Christians," by Diedrich Buxtehude, another of the cantatas, in the style now associated with Handel, will include a solo for the entire soprano section, a trio for the three lower voices, a bass solo, three large choruses, and instrumental interludes and fanfares.

The final cantata will be Leo Sowerby's setting of the 48th psalm, "Great Is the Lord." Dr. Sowerby, organist and choir master of St. James' Episcopal church in Chicago, wrote the cantata for the 100th anniversary of St. James church in 1934.

Members of Choir.

This afternoon's concert, starting at 4 o'clock, will be open to the public. An offering will be received.

In 'Outward Bound'

Miss Helen Iarussi, 828 Cabrini street, will play one of the leading roles in "Outward Bound," a fantasy by Sutton Vane. The play will be presented Friday, Saturday, and next Sunday evenings by the Hull House Actors' guild in the Hull House theater, 800 South Halsted street. Proceeds of the play will be added to the De Nancrede Memorial fund for a children's library at the Bowen Country club, the settlement's summer camp near Waukegan. [Paul Stone Photo.]

CHEER LINDBLOM AT THIS WEEK'S CITIZEN RALLY

W-G-N Show Will Reveal Origin of Slogan.

"This is Lindblom!"

That cry will open the sixth of the "Citizens of Tomorrow" radio shows of W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. The programs, which run a half hour, are sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Butler Laughlin.

How the slogan became a tradition of this 20 year old Chicago high school will be explained during the broadcast which will feature the Lindblom chorus, under the direction of Miss Hannah Rosenthal. As special guest of the evening performance, which will be attended by 600 students from Lindblom, will be Butler Laughlin, the school's principal.

School Groups Coöperate.

These broadcasts, dedicated to the youth of America, emphasize the many factors of today's high school which train students for responsible citizenship. The broadcasts are being presented thru the coöperation of the radio council and the music department of the Chicago public schools.

Especially popular has become The Tribune news quiz, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, a member of this newspaper's editorial staff, who plays the rôle of "The Principal." Six students are selected from the audience by Announcer Pierre Andre just before going on the air and Mr. Maxwell presents each of the winners with a $5 bill.

"I'm glad I have the answers written down," replied the "Principal" after a show, when one of the spectators commented on the alertness and intelligence of the contestants. The W-G-N sound effects department and Harold Turner, pianist, participate in this part of the entertainment.

Give Information on Graduates.

Information on some of the graduates of Lindblom will be related by Ed Sprague, who takes the character of the "School Engineer," and "Jerry," every school's co-ed, will be back to tell how "super" everything is at Lindblom.

A party of 20 students from Emerson High school in Gary, Ind., also will be guests of THE TRIBUNE Wednesday night. They are senior students who publish the school's year book. Following the broadcast they also will see "Trees to Tribune," a talking movie, and will be taken on a tour of Tribune Tower with a hundred Lindblom students.

Eleven Schools in First Series.

Eleven schools are being honored in this first series of "Citizens of Tomorrow." Lake View, Austin, Parker, Wells, and Steinmetz have appeared.

Other schools will appear as follows: May 15, Waller; May 22, Flower; May 29, Roosevelt; June 5, Morgan Park, and June 12, Wright Junior college.

Thirty boys and girls from a school other than the one appearing on the program will be guests at the broadcast each week. Requests for places should come from the principal or superintendent. Address them to Philip Maxwell at THE TRIBUNE.

Catholic Tour Club Giving Card Party in Loop Hotel

The "336" Catholic Tour club will hold a card party Thursday night, May 16, in the Hamilton hotel, 20 South Dearborn street. Miss Catherine Meyer is chairman, assisted by Miss Catherine McGlynn. Officers are William Sheehan, president; James Reilly, vice president, and Miss Irene Powers, treasurer. The Rev. James R. Keane is chaplain.

Plan Luncheon.

The 26th annual Mothers' day luncheon of Old Lady of Sorrows Woman's club will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the Graemere hotel.

They Look Businesslike

By the faces of these officers of the Harrison High school R. O. T. C. unit you can see they mean business. And it's O. K. with them if word to that effect gets around to the United States army officers who will inspect their regiment May 22 and compare it with those of 26 other city public high schools. Here, cleaning their rifles, are (left to right) Capt. Edward Krch, Maj. Edward Kristufek, Lieut. Col. Ralph Golusinski, and First Lieutenant Richard Short.

Try Steps for Competition

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 6.

May is an excellent time to feed trees. A crowbar will do to make holes about four feet apart and two feet deep at the drip of the branches. Fill the holes with food to within two inches of the top and finish with soil. Water until the ground is soaked. If the ground is soaked before using the crowbar the work will be much easier. Hollihocks, delphiniums, and phlox should be dusted with sulphur to control fungous diseases. Adopt a regular spraying program. See that the window boxes are painted and in good repair and ready for use by Memorial day. Homemade redwood, hemlock, or cypress boxes will last a long time; use paint the color of the house. Fill them with rich soil.

Tuesday, May 7.

It will be easier to buy suitable soil for boxes from the florist than to prepare it at home. Leave plenty of room for watering and later for applying a rich top dressing. Unless one has the proper facilities for growing good plants at home, it is best to buy plants that will become established immediately. Many combinations of different plants can be arranged, but some thrive in full sun while others prefer shade or partial shade. The petunia is one of the finest of all plants for the purpose; the geranium, lantana, ageratum, phlox drummondi, portulaca, and similar kinds all do well.
ilar kinds all do well. Coleus is very colorful and may be used with other plants for best results. For shade, use the rubber plant, corn plant, date palm, Boston fern, asparagus, tuberous begonia, and other colorful shrubby kinds. For viney things to cover the front of the boxes use English ivy, wandering Jew, Kenilworth ivy, and creeping Charley in shade. In a sunny location the weeping lantana, trailing lobelia, blackeyed clockvine, nasturtiums, vinca, and trailing coleus do well.

Wednesday, May 8.

Divide perennials. When sweet peas begin to grow, thin to about six inches apart in the row. Watch for plant lice and begin spraying with nicotine; for attacks of mildew, use sulphur. Sow seeds of virtually all annuals at this time. Make a fine seedbed and do not sow too thick. Cover fine seeds with burlap or paper held in place with stones to prevent drying out. Disbudding peonies will give much larger blooms. If the peony fails to flower well the cause is usually too deep planting.

Thursday, May 9.

Do not cut all the foliage away from tulips when cutting the blooms for the leaves are necessary for good ripening of the bulbs. Plant dahlias after the ground is warm. Planting late will give better fall bloom. Do not allow rhubarb plants to form seeds or the plants will be weakened. Try a few rows of New Zealand spinach as a hot weather crop. It can be cut several times and it is very fine. Work for a succession of crops in the vegetable garden; always have something ready to plant or sow as soon as one crop is off the ground; conserve space.

Friday, May 10.

It is time to finish tree, shrub, and vine planting. For a low ornamental shrub try the Hansen bush cherry. It has fragrant white flowers in spring, followed by berries resembling small plums. The berries are edible and excellent for preserves. For something different as a hedge, plant the dwarf blue leaf Arctic willow. It grows anywhere in wet or heavy soils and can withstand low temperatures. The oak leaf hydrangea will do well in a shady spot and it is quite unusual. It has pinkish white flowers borne in upright clusters in June. Cannas do very well under city conditions and their brilliant flowers and tropical foliage make them desirable.

Saturday, May 11.

Shrubs that flower during midsummer are quite rare, but one called ocean spray is new on the market. It has large clusters of creamy white flowers. Be sure to water evergreens during dry periods. A good lawn mixture consists of 60 per cent Kentucky bluegrass and 40 per cent redtop, with a little rye grass for quick growth and shade while the bluegrass germinates. Feed the lawn with a complete plant food. The Christmas rose seldom is seen in gardens, but is well worth growing. It flowers during mild weather in December and January with large white flowers with golden centers. Use rich loam and coarse sand and top dress with rotted manure. Plant in a protected place, shaded from the noonday sun.

Talk About New Fire Truck

It was only for a day but Lombard boys made the most of it when they took over village offices as part of recent Youth week activities in the suburb. The proposed purchase of a new fire truck being explained by "President" Philip Troyke, seated at center, meets the approval of "Fire Chief" William Denning. "Chief of Police" William Ellenberger Jr. also is active at the conference. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Morton Students Prepare for Visit to Springfield

Members of the Social Study society of Morton High school and Junior college are sponsoring an historical trip, May 15, to Springfield that will include a visit to the capitol building, the Centennial building, the Supreme Court building, and Lincoln's burial place. The group will also visit New Salem, where guides will conduct them thru the reconstructed pioneer village.

ECONOMY, GOOD TASTE COMBINED IN SMALL HOME

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A great many architects at the present time are concerning themselves with small homes of good design. Homes which combine good taste and economy with features both practical and attractive.

Such a home was designed recently by L. Morgan Yost, A. I. A., architect, 930 Spanish court, Wilmette. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell Older and the small six room highly individual house stands at 552 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth.

If you feel you'd like to build a really friendly, personal little home, this contemporary home is a type to consider.

A neat brick walk, cool mustard tan shutters against a rough textured front of soft gray green, and a hospitable door welcome the visitor who walks toward the two story house, with its white exterior walls except for the front façade, and its blue-black roof in effective contrast.

Suited to Small Family.

Inside you find a very individual, attractive interior suited to a small family. [The Older family now numbers three members. The afternoon I saw the house there was a diminutive new arrival, a 2 week old baby girl, making use of a cozy nursery bedroom.]

To the right of the entrance hall is the living room, 11 feet 10 inches by 21 feet. The walls, above a white wainscote, are painted a coral rose, the carpeting is a brown rose which tones in beautifully, the fireplace is of white brick with mirror to the ceiling, and at the far end is a large picture window overlooking the garden and terrace area at the back of the home.

The living room and dining room are completely separated by an intriguing little hallway, with built-in shelves to ceiling with coral rose background, and under these shelves a desk table, phone, and chair. From this hallway are the stairs to the second floor, also carpeted in the same rose brown shade, and with papered walls; a fern pattern on a rosy tan background which reflects the tone of the carpet.

Ceiling Is Silver.

The dining room, 12 feet by 11 feet, is a charming, sunny spot. Here the south wall, with French doors leading out to the porch, is prepared in a silver and blue paper. The ceiling is silver—a striking note—and the three other walls are painted a harmonizing blue. On each side of the French doors are windows with glass shelves for flowering plants and vines.

The kitchen, 8 feet by 9 feet 4 inches, is at the front of the house. Its walls and cabinets are painted a soft tone of blue. The linoleum floor is dominated by a pleasant peach shade which is likewise carried out in the ceiling.

At the front of the house, opening from a small passageway between hall and kitchen, is a coat closet with lavatory opposite. Here in the lavatory the lower wall is a rich brown to complement the brown floor linoleum, while the upper walls are a chartreuse.

Has Three Bedrooms.

On the second floor are three bedrooms. The master bedroom has painted walls of soft green, with olive green upholstery and bedspread. The furniture is pickled light mahogany, the carpeting is rose, and a door from this room leads out to sun deck—for summer living. Door and windows of this room, which are curtained in imported Swedish voile, have a border outline of white and green, harmonizing with green of walls and upholstery.

There is a second bedroom which Mrs. Older calls her "antique" room. Here the walls are painted blue with a captivating border of French little blue and pink nosegays on a background of white. The ceiling of this room in blue and the rug white. And it goes without saying that the nursery, with its soft blue walls and paper in a "youthful and lively bell pattern," is all in the spirit of our modern nursery bedrooms.

Black and Yellow Bath.

The bath is stunning, with its built-in tub walls of black tile and the other walls painted a sunny yellow. Yellow linoleum flecked with deeper tones carries out the wall colors.

Here on this second floor are built-in wardrobes and drawer and shelf space along one entire hall wall.

The house has copper screens, weatherstrips and insulation. Solid brass hardware is used without, and there is a kitchen ventilating fan.

The approximate cost of this house, including architect's fee and a single detached garage, was $7,250. This was exclusive of land. Cubic contents of house: 22,000 cubic feet.

Getting Pointers on Jobs

The job of hunting for a job is being simplified in Oak Park-River Forest High school at the new placement bureau, a service to graduates and students. L. H. Fritzemeier, placement director, serves as a personality physician so that future employes may suit the employer. Three candidates for secretarial jobs in June getting pointers from the placement head are, left to right, Mina Wood and Patricia Gibbons. Dorothy Victor is filling out an application.

FINDS STUDENTS TOO PRONE TO SHUN OVERALLS

Want White Collar Jobs Says Placement Head.

L. H. Fitezmeier tells people what's the matter with them. He reads a person's future by his personality rather than by his palm or the leaves in his teacup. He is head of the year old placement bureau of Oak Park-River Forest High school, a service to students and alumnæ who want jobs.

Mr. Fritzemeier says the search for a job would be minimized if students these days hadn't such a horror of working in overalls. He says: "Oak Park High school boys have long had the reputation of being fellows who wear wrist watches and major in Latin."

To counteract this he points to the 100 boys among the 800 seniors who are getting vocational training in metal work, wood work, auto mechanics, and mechanical drawing.

Places 80 Per Cent.

The Oak Park placement director put 80 per cent of the boys and girls who registered with him in jobs last year. He did this in the face of the fact that the average high school boy or girl spends two years looking for a job after commencement.

The highest number of girl graduates were placed in typing jobs and the second largest number became stenographers. The largest number of boys were placed in offices as messengers, general clerks, and errand boys. The second highest number went to work as stock clerks.

Mr. Fritzemeier says the average pay for high school girls is $15 a week. The boys in "white collar jobs" get $15 a week and the boys who find factory jobs average $20 as a beginning wage.

Advises, Gives Tests.

So that the 513 young people who registered with Mr. Fritzemeier could get jobs, he acted as vocational counselor, gave vocational aptitude tests, visited managers and personal directors or industries. He says it saves the employer as much time as the job-seeker to set both right on the qualifications of the graduate.

Forty per cent of the graduates from Oak Park High school this June will not go on to college. More than 100 girls trained in typing, stenography and bookkeeping, and in the use of office machines, will be hunting a job. Mr. Fritzemeier's department will be open for the first time all summer by order of the Oak Park board of education.

"Social pressure is making the mechanical type of boy look for white collar jobs," explains Mr. Fritzemeier. In attempting to advise parents not to disparage manual work, he quotes William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors corporation, who began his career in overalls, and who said:

"If I were 21, I would try to get work in a machine shop. If that failed, I would try for a job in a filling station or as apprentice to an electrician or a plumber. In short, I would work with my hands."

Lists Four Requirements.

The Oak Park placement director lists four items, in order of importance, which a boy or girl must have to keep a job. They are reliability, industry, coöperation, and emotional balance.

Mr. Fritzemeier's main job is to find the type of employment that the individual student can do. He has also had to learn much about employers and what they want in a boy or girl. One day a man called him, asking for a brilliant boy.

"Do you mean he has to be brilliant in his school work?" asked the placement director.

"Yes, indeed," said the employer, "he must be smart."

Sent Honor Student.

Mr. Fritzemeier sent him a boy who had never failed to stay on the honor roll. His grades would delight parents and teachers and his report card would be a joy forever. But he lost the job.

The next time the employer called the high school bureau, Mr. Fritzemeier suggested that he name an Oak Park graduate who had made good in his office. "Then," he said, "I can send another boy of that type."

The employer named a lad who had made good and the placement director looked up his high school records. He found that the boy recommended had required six years to pass the high school course, but he had a charming personality and good looks. Then Mr. Fritzemeier knew what the employer meant by "brilliant." He sent that kind of a boy.

AUSTIN HIGH HAS 2 CELEBRITIES, BOTH FRESHMEN

Radio Actor, Woodcarver Win Recognition.

A famous woodcarver and a radio star are freshmen in Austin High school. They go to Hay branch, 1018 North Laramie avenue, with 500 boys and girls. On Thursday afternoons they dance with the girls. Teachers say they are good boys.

The radio star is Cleveland Towne, 648 North Lockwood avenue. He is a freshman in school because he's just 14 years old. Three years ago he had an audition. A contract followed immediately.

He is known from coast to coast as Bunny Gregg of an NBC serial. He plays Jimmy Dobson on Bob Becker's W-G-N program about dogs. He is Peter Sinclair on one WBBM serial and Billy Brown on another. He played with Raymond Massey as Tad Lincoln in the "Cavalcade of America."

Cleveland was a veteran of the air lanes before he was graduated from the eighth grade and will probably retire before he's outgrown his knee pants.

A Regular Fellow.

All the other freshmen at Hays branch like Cleveland because he sings for them at their parties, dances with all the girls and doesn't keep his hair too well combed. A brown lock lops down over his forehead. His eyes are brown and they have a bit of freshman mischief hidden there. The other boys call him a regular fellow.

In addition to acting in five or six radio programs he has to rehearse an hour a day for each. A taxicab rushes him to the studio and scoots him back afterwards. Then Cleveland has to stay after school and make up all his lost work.

"The teachers are wonderful to me," says the young star, "They repeat whole lessons just for me alone. Now isn't that swell?" Already a veteran in one career, Cleveland has plans mapped out for his second. "I'm putting all my money in the bank," he says, "So I can take up medicine."

Has Widowed Mother.

His success story sounds like young Horatio Alger. His mother, Mrs. Clarice Towne, has worked to support her son. His father is dead. About seven years ago she mentioned to a woman with whom she worked that it would be nice to get her son on the radio. The woman told her where to go for an audition. That was all Cleveland needed.

The other pride of Hay branch is John Bassi, 1632 North Lorel avenue, slender and dark eyed. His career started five years ago when he was 10 years old and had a pen knife. He held a one man show in his back yard. For a penny the neighborhood kids could come to see the little swords, boats, and soldiers he carved out of bits of waste.

Then his uncle bought him some tools. That's all John needed. He was asked to enter his carvings in hobby shows.

Recognized by Adults.

He had an exhibit at the Home and Garden show last year in the Coliseum. Every girl in school has a pin with her name carved on it. The teachers have plaques and book ends for wedding presents. A man who saw his work last year suggested he become a member of the Chicago Woodcarvers and Craftsmen club. He is the only boy member. Older men come to meetings once a week to watch him work and get pointers.

Mrs. Ruby Edmonds, Hays branch art teacher who studied under Prof. Emmy Zweibruck, is teaching John all she knows. The school buys him the Honduras mahogany.

"There's just not much folks won't do for you, if there's something you really like to work at," says John.

HINSDALE BOARD STUDIES RAILWAY CROSSING PLANS

Three Proposals Would End Grade Hazard.

Three alternate grade separation proposals prepared by consulting engineers recently were submitted to the Hinsdale village board by R. S. Hopkins, public works commissioner. The engineering firm was employed by the board in February to make an independent survey, and the new findings will be turned over to the Hinsdale plan commission for study.

The plan commission a year ago presented to the village a proposal for traffic bridges over the Burlington railroad, after 13 deaths on grade crossings in the village during a nine year period. Since last summer there have been two more fatal accidents at the Washington street crossing. Of the estimated cost of $1,185,570, a PWA grant was to provide $533,506 and the Burlington railroad and village were to provide $326,032 each.

Poll Against Plan.

The proposal was argued during the summer and a postcard poll revealed that more than half the residents voting were against the proposal, mostly because of the cost. The poll provided a checkup of the original plans and the survey made by Consoer, Townsend & Quinlan, Chicago consulting engineers, was held for future reference.

Plan A is a proposal turned down by the village last August, with slight modifications. Estimated cost $1,500,000.

Plan B is a proposal for an underpass rather than an overpass. The subway, with four automobile lanes, is designed to go under the tracks at the foot of Village place, at the point where the Burlington passenger depot now stands. The south side approach to the subway is a broad driveway extending from Garfield street at the center of the block between Hinsdale avenue and 1st street, westward toward Village place and curving northward under the tracks.

"Y" Approach on North.

The north side approach is a "Y" with separate lanes curving into Chicago avenue in front of the Memorial building. Thus, a motorist going north would turn into the subway approach at Garfield street, drive west toward Village place and curve north under the tracks. Emerging on the north side, he would curve into Chicago avenue.

The plan also provides for a pedestrian overpass at Oak street and pedestrian underpasses at Stough and Clay streets. Estimated cost, $400,000.

Plan C is the same as plan B, except that it also provides for the extension eastward of Chicago avenue on the north side of the railroad until Chicago reaches Park avenue, where an overpass angles southeast across the tracks and into Hinsdale avenue on the south side. Estimated cost, $570,000.

Besides the three proposals of the Chicago firm, the Burlington railway also submitted a plan to cost $755,600.

500 BOY SCOUTS WILL REVEL IN FREE ICE CREAM

Free ice cream, pop, cake, and candy will be given to 500 Austin Boy Scouts at their fun night tomorrow in Columbus park. Erwin Weiner is park supervisor and chairman of scouting activities.

While the boys eat the candy they will see nine reels of motion pictures about scouting, "Popeye, the Sailorman," and "Mickey Mouse." Tickets will be distributed without charge to scoutmasters of 15 troops in the community. James Hosie, 5425 Lexington avenue, will be chairman for the evening.

Members of the program committee are Benjamin Kolkey, Raymond Kelly, Hubert McFadden, and George Faust. W. Arthur McKinney, Chicago council Scout executive, and Jack F. Conley, west district executive, will speak.

Masaryk Center to Hear Talk on Nazi Prejudice

Unscientific racial prejudice of the Nazi régime will be discussed tonight by Dr. Anton J. TWINS TO VISIT BENEFACTOR ON 80TH BIRTHDAY

Recall Escapade That Nearly Cost Lives.

Twin brothers who narrowly missed death in a boyhood escapade on New Year's eve in 1870 will observe their 80th birthday, Thursday, by paying a visit to the friend whom they credit with having saved their lives.

The brothers are Edward J. O'Beirne, 300 Vincent place, Elgin, and William H. O'Beirne of Wooddale, in Du Page county. Their old friend, whom they have made it a birthday custom of visiting for many years, is Mrs. Imogene Youngs, 88, 270 North Gifford street, Elgin.

Start West in Cold.

When they were nine, the O'Beirne boys had chosen one of the coldest days of the winter to run away from home and seek fortunes in the west. As night fell they reached the W. H. Youngs farm on a rural road a few miles west of Elgin and climbed into the hayloft of an open feed shed to sleep. There they were found the next morning by Mr. Youngs, unconscious from the bitter cold and near death. They were brought into the home and thru ministrations of Mrs. Youngs, aided by neighbors, their lives were saved. It was three days before they were completely recovered from the experience.

Born in Hartford, Conn., on May 9, 1860, the O'Beirne boys came to Elgin in 1867. In their early teens they worked on farms for 25 cents a week and "keep." In 1875, they enlisted in the navy, at Erie, Pa.

Both brothers saw service on the U. S. S. Hartford, famed flagship of Admiral Farragut at the battle of Mobile bay. Returning to Elgin as young men they obtained jobs at the Elgin National Watch company and later entered the contracting field.

Sons in Military Service.

During the world war, William held a major's commission and is now a lieutenant colonel in the reserve. Edward's sons are now officers in the navy; Frank a lieutenant approved for promotion to lieutenant commander, and Emmett a lieutenant. Both are Annapolis graduates.

A family party is planned for the 80th birthday anniversary occasion at the O'Beirne home in Elgin.

1ST AID STATION IS ESTABLISHED IN MELROSE PARK

Opening of a Red Cross emergency first aid station at police and fire department headquarters in Melrose Park recently was announced by James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter, American Red Cross.

Located in the Melrose Park city hall, the station will be manned by 13 policemen and firemen trained in advanced Red Cross first aid. Police Chief Robert Wigglesworth will be in charge.

Red Cross emergency first aid stations, more than 5,000 of which are in operation thruout the United States, are located at strategic points on heavily traveled highways to render emergency care to victims of automobile accidents.

HUMANE SOCIETY SECRETARY NOW 40 YEARS ON JOB

G. A. H. Scott Only Came to Call in 1900.

A young lawyer strode up the worn stone steps of the Illinois Humane society, 1145 South Wabash avenue, 40 years ago. He came to talk to John G. Shortall, president, about a minor law case.

George A. H. Scott.

Their business completed, the president told the young man about the workings of the society, how it protected the weak, both animals and men, against inhuman practices; how it prevented wanton and unconscious cruelty. The young man was interested and, as he turned to go, the president offered him a job with the society.

The man took the job. A short time later he became executive secretary. That was 40 years ago and the stone steps were worn even then by thousands of feet plodding toward the anteroom to seek humane treatment of men and animals.

Grooves Deeper Now.

On April 24, forty years later to the day, the same executive secretary, George A. H. Scott, climbed the stone steps. The grooves worn in by millions of footsteps are deeper now.

Mr. Scott, 70 years old and white-haired, spent the day planning the work of the society for the next ten years. The organization, one of the oldest social agencies in the city, was chartered in 1869.

Mr. Scott, who resides at 1548 Sherwin avenue, won't talk much about himself. What he has to say concerns the work of the society.

"We place the emphasis on education today—education that begins in the schools and extends thru a consistent program of supervision in industries where animals are greatly in use," he says. "Once we were deeply concerned with prosecution for cruelty to children and animals, and while we still prosecute where necessary, now every effort is made to correct situations before they reach the courtroom."

Humane Laws Passed.

Mr. Scott cites a long list of laws passed by the state legislature as important aids to the cause of humane treatment of children and animals. He and the society worked tirelessly for the child labor laws of 1905, the delinquency and contributing to delinquency laws of the same year and the nonsupport laws of 1915.

In addition to looking after the welfare of children, the society also cares for lost or unwanted pets, supervises treatment accorded horses, cattle, poultry, zoo animals.

News and Queries
Within and Without the Church
—A Religious Voice of the People—
Edited by the Rev. John Evans

The 50th anniversary number of the Epworth Herald, official periodical of the young peoples' Epworth league of the Methodist church, published in Chicago, was distributed among the delegates of the first general conference of the church at Atlantic City, N. J., last week.

Dr. W. E. J. Gratz.

For religious journalism the anniversary is important. Before the founding editor, the late Dr. Joseph F. Berry [who was to become "the Epworth league bishop"] entered the field, religious journals were generally dull and filled with long articles which were read with interest mostly by their authors.

But Dr. Berry changed all this. Articles were shortened and the whole tempo of the journal was stepped up for readers who read for interest and pleasure instead of spiritual discipline.

Moreover, the people answered with circulation. Within two years there were 100,000 subscribers. In 1891 that was a big circulation even for daily newspapers. Today, the journal perhaps has the largest circulation of any Protestant religious magazine. Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, has been editor of the Herald for the last 16 years.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE indirectly made its gift to the Epworth Herald cause in its second editor, Stephen J. Herben. Dr. Herben, London born son of Belgian parents, was a printer by trade who became the TRIBUNE's Evanston correspondent where he earned his way thru Northwestern university and Garrett Biblical institute.

Dr. Herben devised many makeup changes in the Herald's format, and as a printer brought new styles to the journal's typography; as a news man, made its columns vital and timely. But Dr. Herben's best job, according to his friends, was the discovery of the editorial genius of an immigrant from an English mill town, Dan B. Brummitt, who had gone as far into the American west as Kansas. Dr. Brummitt, after graduating from Baker university and Drew Theological seminary, was preaching in Arkansas when Dr. Herben called him to Chicago. When Dr. Herben was appointed to other editorial work in New York, Dr. Brummitt became editor.

SYMPHONIC HOUR SALUTES ARMY ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Special Tribute to First Division Planned.

The second of the new W-G-N Symphonic Hours, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be broadcast before an audience of 600 invited guests representing the United States army, the Illinois National Guard, and the National Army Reserves, from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight. The program will be broadcast by W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This program, which is dedicated to the army and all its officers and men, will have as speaker of the evening, Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will take part in a special feature of the program.

Marion Claire to Sing.

An outstanding cast headed by Marion Claire, soprano star of opera, movies, and radio, and the augmented W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus directed by Henry Weber, will be heard in the musical portion of the program.

One of the highlights of the broadcast will be a dramatization, featuring a group of picked radio actors with a background of stirring orchestral accompaniment, in commemoration of the 23d anniversary of the First division of the American expeditionary forces, to be observed this summer.

Col. McCormick will participate in the introduction to this feature with words from an address he first delivered on Aug. 9, 1937, at Cantigny, France. On this occasion a monument erected in commemoration of the 1st division was dedicated.

Bacher Is Producer.

This dramatic interlude is the creation of William A. Bacher, who is directing and producing the Symphonic Hour.

The program:

The Bartered Bride Overture........Smetana
Orchestra.
[a] Les Cloches........Debussy
[b] By a Lovely Forest Pathway...Griffes
Miss Claire.
The Swan of Tuonella........Sibelius
Orchestra.
Chorus from "Rigoletto"........Verdi
Orchestra.
Prelude from Cycle of Life........Ronald
Miss Claire.
Il est Doux, Il est Bon........Massenet
Miss Claire.
The Moldau........Smetana
Orchestra.
Special Dramatization Honoring America's War Heroes.

Miss Claire, the soloist of the evening, was starred last Thursday in the operetta, "Bittersweet," with James Melton, tenor, on W-G-N-Mutual, and also on the first W-G-N Symphonic Hour presented last Sunday in salute to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Next Sunday the third Symphonic Hour will again salute the Chicago Association of Commerce. More than 3,400 tickets have been requested by members of the association; thus this organization will be honored with several broadcasts.

'TROJAN HORSE' TO BE TOPIC OF ROUND TABLERS

Taking a leaf from the pages of ancient Greek mythology, Louis Gottschalk, chairman of the department of history, and Nicholas Doman, research assistant in political science, both of the University of Chicago, will discuss "The Trojan Horse," on the University of Chicago Round Table at 1:30 p. m. today over WMAQ.

The subject will refer to the policy and technique of penetration and infiltration which has been employed in Europe, particularly in Scandinavia and central Europe. Doman is a former reserve officer in the Hungarian army.

On Melody Hour

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, directed by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

GARDEN CLUBS GUESTS AT W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

Cellist Feuermann to Be Soloist.

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, conducted by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcast system. Attilio Baggiore, tenor; Mark Love, basso, and Harriet Brewer, contralto, will be the vocalists.

The program will be presented in the main studio of W-G-N before an audience of specially invited guests who are members of garden clubs in Chicago participating in the "share your lilacs" campaign sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Appeared at Ravinia.

Feuermann was born in Austria 37 years ago. A child prodigy, he made his debut at the age of 11. He taught music at the Cologne conservatory. He left Germany in 1934 and made a world tour. His most recent Chicago appearance was at Ravinia last summer, when he played the Dvorak concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Vladimir Golschmann conducting.

Baggiore, Love, Miss Brewer, and the octet will sing a group of American Indian themes, including "Zuni Indian Call"; "Pale Moon," by Logan, and "By the Waters of Minnetonka," by Thurlow Lieurance.

Baggiore will sing "Cielo e Mar," by Amilcare Ponchielli, and "My Wild Irish Rose," by Chauncey Olcott. Other numbers will include the Overture "Le Roi la dit," by Leo Délibès; "Parade" and "Finale," from Ibert's "Divertissement," and Arensky's "Serenade," in which Michael Wilkomirski will play the violin obbligato for the chorus.

Salute Music Week.

The Concert Revue, under the direction of Mr. Weber, will be dedicated to National Music week—which is being observed from May 5 to May 11—with Kathryn Witwer, soprano, as soloist, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday on W-G-N and Mutual.

The program will include a composition of Edward A. MacDowell, the great American composer, in whose commemoration the postoffice will issue a stamp during the week.

The concert orchestra will play "To a Water Lily" and "By a Meadow Brook," from MacDowell's "Woodland Sketches."

Miss Witwer will sing for her solo John Alden Carpenter's "I Am Like a Remnant of a Cloud in Autumn." She also will do "Les Temps des Lilas," by Ernest Chausson.

'Who Knows?' Is Presented on W-G-N Monday Nights

"Who Knows?" the W-G-N-Mutual network's series on psychic phenomena based on the case histories of Dr. Hereward Carrington, is now heard on Monday nights from 9:15 to 9:30 p. m. The series is directed by Jack Johnstone.

Miss Hepburn's Leading Man on W-G-N Show.

Van Heflin, talented young leading man of the stage and radio, will be the guest star on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday. He will be heard in a special radio play, "Ethan Allen," a story of the famous Revolutionary war patriot.

Heflin is appearing at the Erlanger theater, where he is acting as leading man to Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story," Philip Barry's hit play.

In "Ethan Allen," Heflin will portray the title rôle, that of the New England patriot and officer who played an important part in the winning of the war. He will be supported by an all-star cast of radio actors. The program will be directed by Blair Walliser.

Appeared with Miss Claire.

Van Heflin was first seen on the Chicago stage a few seasons ago when he appeared with Ina Claire in S. N. Behrman's "End of Summer." Before becoming an actor, Heflin was a sailor. After attending the State University of Oklahoma, he went to California, and signed as a seaman on a round the world cruise. The ship stopped at New York. Hearing that a rôle in a new show was open, Heflin applied for the part. He was accepted and played in "Mr. Moneypenny." After the show closed, he returned to the sea.

Joins Hedgerow Theater.

Finally, on a voyage home he was persuaded by Dramatist Lynn Riggs to enter the theatrical profession permanently. He joined the Hedgerow theater in Philadelphia. When he felt he was ready for Broadway, Heflin went to New York and was cast in "The Bride of Torosco."

Since then he has appeared in numerous plays and motion pictures. Among his films have been "A Woman Rebels," "Saturday's Heroes," "Flight from Glory," and "Annapolis Salute."

BIDU SAYAO IS SOLOIST TONIGHT ON CONCERT HOUR

The famous aria, "Caro Nome," from "Rigoletto," a group of songs in English and two by Spanish composers appear on the program of Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano, as guest soloist of the Sunday Evening Hour over WBBM at 8 tonight. Wilfred Pelletier will direct the symphony orchestra and chorus. W. J. Cameron is intermission speaker.

Miss Sayao, a pupil of Jean de Reszke and Giuseppe Danise, won early recognition in a performance of Debussy's "The Blessed Damosel," directed by Toscanini. She made her Metropolitan opera debut three years ago singing "Manon."

The Spanish songs on her program are "Lavandera," by Longas, and "Coplas de Curro Dulce," by Obradors. In her English group she is to give "A Spring Morning," by Carey, Watts' "The Poet Sings," and "The Fairy Pipers" by Brewer. Later she sings Nevin's lullaby, "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod," in which the chorus is to join.

RUDOLF SERKIN SOLOIST WITH PHILHARMONIC

The final concert of the season and the last broadcast of its 10th season on the Columbia network, will be given by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra at Carnegie hall, and aired over WIND from 2 to 3:30 p. m. today.

John Barbirolli will conduct and the soloist will be Pianist Rudolf Serkin. Deems Taylor will be intermission commentator.

The program will open with the overture to "The Bartered Bride," by Smetana, after which Serkin will play the Mozart Concerto in G major for piano and orchestra, K. 453.

The second portion of the concert will be devoted to two Wagner opera excerpts, the prelude and "Liebestod" from "Tristan and Isolde," and "Waldweben" from "Siegfried."

'Japan and Far East' Is Topic of Review Stand

"Will Japan Move in the East?"

In the wake of Secretary of State Hull's stern note warning Japan to keep hands off the East Indies, William M. McGovern and Irving Pflaum will discuss this question on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today. Hirosi Acino, council general of Japan in Chicago, will be the special guest on the program.

Guest on W-G-N

Van Heflin, who plays opposite Katherine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story" at the Erlanger theater, will be the guest star on W-G-N's Fifth Row Center production of "Ethan Allen" at 7 p. m. next Friday.

MR. SILO FINISHES 7 YEARS WITH 'ORPHAN ANNIE'

Edmund Clark Sprague, one of the oldest troupers in radio, completes his seventh year as Mr. Silo with the Orphan Annie program this month. Orphan Annie is aired at 5:45 p. m. weekdays on W-G-N.

A veteran of tent shows, "dime museums," stock companies, and chautauquas since his debut in 1883, Ed Sprague has seen just about every form of showmanship ever known and has participated in almost as many. He has played in every state, toured the Mississippi valley in showboats, dodged dust storms and prairie fires in the Dakotas, Kansas, and Nebraska, thought of panning for gold in California, and finally hit pay dirt in radio back in 1931 on W-G-N.

Also a member of the cast of "Citizens of Tomorrow" as Charley Jones, school engineer of every school, Ed's characterization as the guardian of radio's little redhead has made him a favorite of Annie listeners.

CINDERELLA STORY IS REVIVED BY CARTERS OF ELM ST. SEARCH

Remember the story of Cinderella and how the fairy Godmother made it possible for her to go to the king's ball? And how, after the ball, the young prince searched far and wide for the young lady whose foot might fit the glass slipper?

Not at all far removed are the Cinderell-ic qualities in the opportunities offered in the current auditions sponsored by the Carters of Elm Street thruout the country. Two amateur actresses, one between the ages of 15 and 25 and another over 25, are to experience the same success and happiness as that enjoyed by Cinderella.

But better then the short lived evening of this belle of fairyland, the clocks of the winners will not strike a 12 o'clock doom on the evening's fun but will continue to run for two weeks. And unlike Cinderella's mere fun of meeting and dancing with the prince, the Carrie Carter protéges will be brought to Chicago [and returned], given a suite of rooms and paid a professional salary for their two weeks appearance in their respective rôles with the Elm Street cast.

Auditions are being held in each of the stations, including W-G-N, carrying the Carters of Elm Street program. Last day for entering is May 8.

'Winterset' to Be Final Great Plays Production

The radio season of Great Plays will end with the presentation of Maxwell Anderson's "Winterset," at 1 p. m. today over WENR. James Church will direct the poetic masterpiece, which was successful when first produced on Broadway in 1935. Anderson is the only playwright whose work has been presented in each series of Great Plays. His "Valley Forge" climaxed the first season and his "Elizabeth the Queen" was the final Great Play presented last year.

[ADVERTISMENT]

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

BISHOP SCARLETT TO BE SUNDAY EVENING SPEAKER

Bishop William Scarlett, head of the Missouri diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, will speak on the weekly broadcast of the Chicago Sunday Evening club, on WIND from 8:15 to 9 p. m. today.

Bishop Scarlett, formerly of the historic old Trinity church in the heart of Wall street, has headed the Missouri diocese since 1933 and is a trustee of the Seabury Western Theological seminary of Evanston. President Clifford W. Barnes will present him for his second appearance before this audience. Edward L. Ryerson, a trustee of the club and prominent Episcopal layman, will also take part.

Northerners to Salute Spring Tuesday Night

Music in keeping with the spring season will be featured by the Northerners in their program from 9:30 to 10 p. m., Tuesday, on W-G-N. The octet will do "Song of May," "Oh, Lady Be Good," and "Shortnin' Bread." Irene Verner, soloist, will sing "Sylvelin." The entire Northerners cast will join in the presentation of "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and selections from Earl Carroll's Vanities, including "Star Lit Hour," and "Angel."

Why Be Fat

Thousands of women have discovered way to lose excess weight—without following strict diet lists, or taking exercises or drugs.

IF you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—First. . . eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second . . mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice

If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

MITCHELL KNOWS ANSWERS; TELLS THEM ON W-G-N

If you want to know whether or not Nero wore a monocle, who has the largest feet in Hollywood [it isn't Garbo], whether soup is eaten or sipped, and where people make the most noise on New Year's eve ask Al Mitchell, the Answer Man. Al is heard at 10 p. m. Wednesdays and Sundays on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Al Mitchell.

Al Mitchell began collecting information from the 1898 World Almanac when he was attending third grade in St. Louis, Mo.

Aside from an insatiable curiosity, Albert spent his youth taking piano lessons, witnessing baseball games thru a knothole, and piloting his father's ABC friction drive automobile perilously thru the streets of St. Louis backward.

To escape the drudgery of mowing the homestead lawn, Mitchell ran away from home at the age of 14 and began his professional career as a musician and singer in a nickelodeon theater. From that time until 1936 he was a professional musician, singer, and master of ceremonies.

Served with Whiteman.

After a brief sojourn in France with the A. E. F., Mitchell resumed his musical career as orchestra conductor and arranger in association with Paul Whiteman. After seven years of touring with his own dance band in stage shows, Mitchell acquired a vast fund of useless knowledge. Backstage he became an arbiter for all disputes, and by 1936 he decided to put his information to better use by going on the air.

He combed the files of the New York library for additional ammunition and launched his attack on a station at Bridgeport, Conn. The immediate success of the idea brought him to station WOR, and then to W-G-N.

Mitchell's greatest delight is reading his fan mail, which contains the majority of "screwball" questions he answers twice a week. On the assumption that all questions have answers, Mitchell has managed to solve such problems as "how high is up," "Which came first, the hen or the egg," and "How long is a string."

Mitchell is the proud father of a beautiful 16 year old girl, Dolly, who has just signed a contract with Paul Whiteman as vocalist. Still attending high school at Norwalk, Conn., Dolly is a radio veteran, having sung on the air for ten years.

EVERETT WEST TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N 'ROMANCE-RHYTHM'

Romance in Rhythm, directed by Harold Stokes, will feature the singing of Everett West, romantic tenor, with the music of the W-G-N Dance orchestra, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Heard with West will be Edna O'Dell, the Four Grenadiers, and the chorus.

West, who will sing two numbers, is appearing in the Chez Paree show. Since leaving the California Varsity Eight vocal group, West has been featured in floor shows of leading New York, Chicago, and West Coast night clubs.

Edna O'Dell will sing for her solo, "I'm Too Romantic," and with the chorus will do "Last Night's Gardenias." The Four Grenadiers will sing the hit song of the season, "With the Wind and the Rain in Your Hair."

Selections to be done by the chorus and orchestra will include "Little Girl," "I've Got Rhythm," "Charming Little Faker," and "Punchinello."

Columbus Park Will Hold Annual Gym Demonstration

Columbus park will hold its annual gymnasium demonstration at 8 o'clock Thursday and Friday evenings in the recreation building, Congress street and Central avenue. The program will show the routine gymnastics taught by the Chicago park district. Miss Adelaide Goodheart and James Kelly are directing the 275 participants. More than 500 persons can be seated in the bleachers built for the exhibit.

JUBILEE CALLS STUDENTS BACK TO WENTWORTH

Dinner and Exhibit Mark 50th Year.

Former Wentworth school pupils—grown older, plumper, richer, wiser—will meet again this week at celebrations of the school's golden jubilee. The alumni organization has arranged for a banquet Tuesday in Hamilton park fieldhouse for all former pupils, graduates, teachers, and principals. An anniversary program and historical exhibit will be held Thursday evening at the school, 6950 South Sangamon street.

William H. Campbell.

This particular week was set as the jubilee period because two former principals, William H. Campbell, 1900-13, and James E. McDade, 1917-'28, could be here for the programs. Another former principal, Robert White, will be a visitor also. Mr. White became assistant superintendent of schools before he retired. Mr. Campbell was an examiner for the Chicago board of education from 1913 to 1926, and he has traveled much since retiring. Mr. McDade served as assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools, 1928-'36, and he has become known as an advocate of individual instruction.

Educators to Attend.

D. S. Wentworth, son of the educator for whom the school was named, will be among the special guests. Invitations to the ceremonies have been accepted provisionally by Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools; [illegible] Minnie Fallon, assistant superintendent in charge of elementary schools, and Daniel J. Beeby, teacher and writer, who started his career at Wentworth under Lincoln P. Goodhue, the first principal. Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, board of education member, will be a guest.

James E. McDade.

Miss Angela M. Cylkowski, district superintendent of schools, has been assisting the present principal, Claude L. Williams, with plans. Contributions toward the historical exhibit have been coming from all parts of the country. A Chicago publishing house has given a dozen educational items by Lincoln Goodhue. There is an Illinois history by Mr. Campbell and material for the individual technique developed by Mr. McDade while Wentworth principal. The present principal will have articles and one text in the exhibit.

Long a Practical School.

The school is situated on what was known as the Hetty Green property 50 years ago. Near the Chicago Teachers college, Wentworth has been a practice school for many years. Many Chicago teachers have had their first teaching experience, as student instructors at Wentworth.

In the 'way-back-when days pupils at Wentworth passed their winter recess periods skating on the frozen ponds in the vicinity.

For a time Wentworth was developing into an industrial elementary school, but that trend was dropped about 10 years ago when the junior high school régime began operating.

The Wentworth Parent-Teacher association was organized in 1908, and before that a Mothers' club had been active. Mrs. Harry Litterst, president of the P.-T. A., and the P.-T. A. chorus are assisting with the jubilee events.

Alumni in Decade Units.

On Thursday the assembly hall will be divided into "decades" so that pupils of the same general period will sit together. The play to be given that evening is directed by Miss Elizabeth Fogarty. School chorus numbers have been rehearsed under Mrs. Theresa Kinney, assistant principal; Miss Elam Cambourn, and James Johnstone. Miss Loretta Cox and Miss Audry Jacobs are in charge of the dance group.

Assisting with the school entertainment and with the banquet are members of the newly organized Wentworth graduates. Albert Arndt is treasurer of the group, Mrs. Glenora Roller Bauer, secretary, and Mrs. Florence Lindmark Hansen, banquet ticket chairman.

Among former principals are: Humphrey Moynihan, now principal at Fort Dearborn school; Charles W. Brittan, now principal at Henderson school, and Miss Bernice Eddy, now principal at Tonti.

Plans Travel Talk.

C[illegible], lecturer, and newspaper man, will give the last in his series of travel talks at 8:15 o'clock Thursday evening at Grand Crossing park, 76th street and Ingleside avenue.

How'll We Pay the Army?

"King" Patricia Cleary, "Queen" Margaret O'Hearn, and "Prime Minister" Ida Ostarello have to do some rapid planning when the royal treasury is exhausted and the army demands a pay day. Everything is settled happily when Hollywood visitors arrive and offer a fat fee for filming the whole kingdom of "Eurolania," one of those musical comedy countries. The story is told in the St. Louis academy operetta, "Royalty in Rhythm," which will be staged in Hill auditorium, Fenger High school, Tuesday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock and Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock. Miss Lois Murphy is the director, and Miss Helen Pech is in charge of the singing. Strauss music will be used, and orchestrations will be by De Paul university.

Hail Lindblom at This Week's Citizen Show

That cry will open the sixth of the "Citizens of Tomorrow" radio shows of W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. The programs, which run a half hour, are sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Butler Laughlin.

How the slogan became a tradition of this 20 year old Chicago high school will be explained during the broadcast which will feature the Lindblom chorus, under the direction of Miss Hannah Rosenthal. As special guest of the evening performance, which will be attended by 600 students from Lindblom, will be Butler Laughlin, the school's principal.

School Groups Coöperate.

These broadcasts, dedicated to the youth of America, emphasize the many factors of today's high school which train students for responsible citizenship. The broadcasts are being presented thru the coöperation of the radio council and the music department of the Chicago public schools.

Especially popular has become The Tribune news quiz, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, a member of this newspaper's editorial staff, who plays the rôle of "The Principal." Six students are selected from the audience by Announcer Pierre Andre just before going on the air and Mr. Maxwell presents each of the winners with a $5 bill.

"I'm glad I have the answers written down," replied the "Principal" after a show, when one of the spectators commented on the alertness and intelligence of the contestants. The W-G-N sound effects department and Harold Turner, pianist, participate in this part of the entertainment.

Give Information on Graduates.

Information on some of the graduates of Lindblom will be related by Ed Sprague, who takes the character of the "School Engineer," and "Jerry," every school's co-ed, will be back to tell how "super" everything is at Lindblom.

A party of 20 students from Emerson High school in Gary, Ind., also will be guests of THE TRIBUNE Wednesday night. They are senior students who publish the school's year book. Following the broadcast they also will see "Trees to Tribune," a talking movie, and will be taken on a tour of Tribune Tower with a hundred Lindblom students.

Paragraphs About People You May Know

FOUR Latin scholars from Aquinas Dominican High school went to Knox college, Galesburg, yesterday to compete in the state Latin contest. All survived the sectional elimination, giving Acquinas first place in that competition, and all were given ratings of superior in the district examinations. The girls are Betty Ryan, 7742 Clyde avenue; Johanna Husslein, 7324 Phillips avenue; Catherine Walsh, 7255 Constance avenue, and Alice Hitzeman, 6106 Richmond avenue. If Betty, who took the fourth year examinations, is declared one of the seven winners in the state contest, she will receive a scholarship to a midwestern university or college.

TEN Our Towners will turn comics Tuesday and Wednesday evenings when the Nazareth Walther league presents a three act comedy entitled "That's One on Bill" in the church hall, 60th street and Spaulding avenue. Kenneth Kohn will play the leading rôle, supported by Martin Kuhn, Arthur Wunglueck, Henry Mathefs, Harry Lindbloom, Ruth Bunde, Shirley Krause, Ruth Lynd, Carola Novak, and La Verne Rantz. Miss Edna Bless is directing the production.

Three amateur actresses from the south area have been assigned important rôles in "The Royal Family," the George Kaufman-Edna Ferber comedy which will be produced by the De Paul university Little Theater group Monday and Tuesday evenings in the De Paul Little theater, 64 East Lake street. They are Miss Elizabeth Rozek of 5127 Nashville avenue; Miss Henriette Borowski of East Chicago, and Miss Jacqueline Pearse, 9857 Hamilton avenue. The play, based on the Barrymore family, is the sixth major production of the season for the theater.

William C. Schaubel, who has been tenor soloist at Trinity Episcopal church, 26th street and Michigan avenue, will be special guest at a celebration today. He will sing solos at the 11 o'clock service and later will be fêted at a luncheon to be given by friends in the parish and a gift will be presented to him. The celebration is being sponsored by the Rev. John R. Pickells, rector of Trinity church, and the wardens and vestrymen of the parish. Mr. Schaubel is librarian of the Northerners, radio singers, and a member of the Oriental consistory quartet, the Hamilton chorus, and the Medinah chanters.

Oak Forest Can Solve Problems Without Laws

Red-haired, fiftyish John Anderson, owner of a feed and hatchery company in Oak Forest, is telling anyone who cares to inquire that the Oak Forest sewage situation is corrected.

What is more, Anderson points out, the Oak Foresters have taken care of everything without incorporating. And that point Anderson considers important because, he says, "all the property owners came out here for freedom and we're going to keep it. Why should we incorporate and pay fees to officials when we're getting along all right the way we are"

Anderson is general spokesman for the Oak Forest sewage problem because he is head of the newly organized Taxpayers' Protective and Improvement association.

Other Citizens Raise Issue.

The sewage problem came up this spring when a group of citizens of Bremen township, where Oak Forest is located, started a campaign to force the unincorporated community to install better sewage facilities. They charged that Oak Forest sewage ran in open ditches near wells at the infirmary where there are nearly 4,000 patients. Such a situation might cause an epidemic, Bremen residents said.

The county, according to William J. Tuohy, assistant state's attorney, has no authority in the matter and the new zoning ordinance is not applicable. Tuohy said that he believed the only way an authority could be created would be for Oak Foresters to incorporate and form a health district. Tuohy pointed out that the infirmary uses Chicago city water and sanitary district sewerage facilities, thus reducing epidemic danger.

Ditch Given Spring Cleaning.

But regardless of authority the drainage ditch has undergone a spring cleaning, and plans are to make that cleaning a monthly affair.

Anderson explains, "We've hired Paul Fremont to collect the rubbish from everybody who will pay him 25 cents a month for the job."

Anderson says that everyone along the drainage ditch has a good septic tank. He declares that stagnant water standing in the ditch in summer becomes odorous because of decaying vegetation. No Oak Forest septic tanks run into the ditch, he says. Members of the improvement association are planning to investigate the tanks at other points along the ditch.

The improvement association has 50 members now and expects to take in 50 more at the next meeting. The association meets the first Tuesday of each month. Dues are $1 a year.

Room to Keep Out of Trouble.

"Houses are 200 feet apart out here," Anderson says, "so we don't need a judge and a policeman and a dog catcher and a building inspector

SOUTH AND WEST UNITS TO HAVE FIRST PARADES

Honor Ratings Hinge on Performance.

The "big day" for Chicagoland's 11,750 R. O. T. C. cadets—the day of the federal inspection for which they have drilled and drilled to the hopeful commands of their youthful officers—is just around the corner. Beginning this week and lasting thru May 27 the inspection ceremonies will take place for the 35 high school units in Chicago and its suburbs. The first nine inspections this week will start Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock when the Hirsch High school regiment is examined at Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street.

Some 620 cadets who have made outstanding records during the current semester will receive medals, nearly all of which will be presented at the time of inspection. Two hundred and thirty-five of the awards will be given by THE TRIBUNE, which each semester donates one medal for every 50 cadets, gold for upperclassmen and silver for freshmen.

Other Medal Donors.

Nearly 200 medals are given by R. O. T. C. headquarters twice a year for efficiency, neatness, success in recruiting, and rifle marksmanship. At the 27 public high schools in the city with R. O. T. C. training these medals will be presented by Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago public school system. Other awards are given by representatives of the American Legion, the Reserve Officers association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary. Cadets who will receive the various medals are selected by the military instructors at the respective schools.

The appointment of Maj. Norman M. Nelsen, attached to the University of Wisconsin, as officer in charge of all inspections here has been announced thru 6th Corps area headquarters. In the inspections he will take into account appearance, neatness, drill, map reading, first aid, combat principles, musketry, and other points in military theory and practice. On the completion of all inspections the best trained units will receive the title of honor schools, the highest possible mark.

At the first inspection of Chicago high school R. O. T. C. units as organized under the National Defence act of 1920, there were two honor schools—Crane Tech and Schurz. That was in 1921. In recent years there have been six or seven honor schools each semester.

Colors for the Best.

To the schools rated No. 1 and No. 2 THE TRIBUNE will present stands of colors embodying the school's emblem and American flag This ceremony will take place at the annual Michigan avenue review, held about a week after the last inspection and sponsored by the board of education and THE TRIBUNE.

Inspections this week will take place at the following schools [in the event of rain they will be in the school gymnasiums]:

Tuesday—Hirsch, 9 a. m., Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street; Bowen, 1:15 p. m., Bessemer park, 2710 East 89th street.

Wednesday—Du Sable, 9 a. m., Washington park, 51st street and Cottage Grove avenue; Hyde Park, 1:15 p. m., Jackson park, 63d street and Stony Island avenue.

Thursday—Calumet, 9 a. m., school campus, 8100 South Aberdeen street; Harper, 1:15 p. m., school campus. 6520 South Wood street.

Friday—Lindblom, 9 a. m., Ogden park, 64th street and Racine avenue; Austin, 1:15 p. m., Columbus park, Jackson boulevard and Central avenue.

Saturday—Evanston, 9 a. m., school campus, Church street and Dodge avenue, Evanston.

Medals at Evanston High school will not be presented until the school's annual R. O. T. C. banquet, June 1.

The following southwest side cadets will receive medals at inspection ceremonies this week:

Calumet.

Capt. Geza Novosel, officer's efficiency medal; Sergt. Emil Konrath, noncommissioned officer's efficiency medal; Second Lieutenant Kenneth Holloran, band efficiency medal; First Lieutenant Raymond Laschober, recruiting medal; and Cadets Martin Nienhouse and James Smith, neatness medals. TRIBUNE medals have been earned by Sergts. Richard March and Edward Martin, Corporals Ted Sedlack, William Schaefer, and Myron Berg, and Cadets Bernard Burke and Kenneth Lind.

The United Spanish War Veterans medal will go to Capt. Martin Kennelly; Reserve Officers association medal to Lieut. Col. Gerald S. Noble; Veterans of Foreign Wars medal to Sergt. Patrick Ekman; Legion auxiliary medal to First Lieutenant Jack Hoyt, and that of O'Donnell-Eddy post of the Legion to Second Lieutenant Ralph Barry.

Harper.

First Lieutenant Robert Leahy, officer's efficiency medal; Sergt. Steve Leonardo, noncommissioned officer's efficiency medal; Sergt. George Schulte, band efficiency medal; Cadet Paul Ruehl, recruiting medal; and

A choir romance culminated in the recent wedding of Miss Grace D. Stevesson and Roger H. Bragg in St. Stephen's Methodist church, 113th and State streets. Mrs. Bragg is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. T. Stevesson, 11439 Wallace street. Her husband, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan E. Bragg, 12040 Harvard avenue, is a soloist with an orchestra and is known on the radio as Harlan Rogers. Mr. and Mrs. Bragg are now in New York. [Bloom Photo.]

Mrs. Rudolph Svidergol was Miss Grace Willis, daughter of Mrs. Grace Willis, 230 West 64th street, before her marriage recently to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Svidergol of Carrolltown, Pa. The ceremony took place in Peace Memorial church. Mr. and Mrs. Svidergol are now residing at 1155 West 83d street. [Conrad Photo.]

CHURCH'S FIRST HOME A STORE—75 YEARS AGO

Trinity Lutheran to Hold Celebration.

Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, 31st street and Lowe avenue, the oldest Lutheran church on the south side, is celebrating its diamond anniversary this week. Three special services today, one on Tuesday, one on Wednesday, and the Diamond Jubilee banquet on Thursday will be held in observance of the church's 75 years in the community.

The Rev. Arthur H. C. Both. [Volk Studio.]

Only three ministers besides the founder, the Rev. J. P. Beyer, have been called to the pulpit. They were the Rev. Ferdinand Doederlein, the Rev. Louis Lochner, and, for the last 30 years, the Rev. Arthur H. C. Both.

Prof. Edward Koehler of River Forest will preach today's first service, which will be in German, at 9:30 o'clock. He will preach in English at the second service at 10:45 o'clock. A reunion of confirmation classes will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon with the Rev. F. C. Eseman of Racine, Wis., in the pulpit.

Balance of Program.

Christian education and young people's work will be the theme of the meeting Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock. On Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 there will be a special lecture for Ladies' Aid members. The banquet will be served by the Trinity Ladies' Aid at 6:30 Thursday.

The exact date of the organization of the church has been lost, but it is believed to have taken place some time in May, 1865. The church is an outgrowth of the Christian Day school.

The story of the school goes back to a day in the spring of 1865 when the Rev. J. P. Beyer, pastor of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran church, now at Roosevelt road and Ashland avenue, was walking down Archer avenue and saw a group of German immigrant children playing in the street.

Rented Vacant Store.

He thought the children should have a school, and he found a vacant store and rented it as a schoolroom. He built seats and desks from $3 worth of lumber, then went from house to house and asked parents to send their children to the Evangelical Lutheran school. He had no teacher, but he felt that one would come.

On the evening of the day he had solicited pupils, Beyer received a call from a German immigrant in need of help. The applicant turned out to be a teacher from Germany.

Only three children came for the first day's lessons, but the classes were filled before the first week closed. Beyer began preaching regularly at the school, and thus Trinity church began.

New Site in 1906.

When the congregation was formally organized, lots were purchased at Canal street and 25th place. A combination school and church building was erected. Later, it was replaced by one of the finest Lutheran church homes of its period. The Canal street and 25th place site was abandoned in 1906 for the present location.

Trinity church started mission schools in the Town of Lake, Bridgeport, Brighton, and the far south side. These schools eventually became congregations. They are: St. Martini, organized in 1884, at 51st street and Marshfield avenue; Holy Cross, 1886, at 31st place and Racine avenue; St. Andrews, 1888, at 37th and Honore streets, and Timothy, 1933, at 83d and Paulina streets.

Trinity church services were exclusively in German at first. Now the services are in English, altho one German service is held each Sunday for the older men and women of the congregation.

ST. RITA SCHOOL ALUMNI TO MEET TOMORROW NIGHT

St. Rita High school alumni will meet in regular monthly session tomorrow evening at the clubrooms in the school gymnasium, 63d street and Oakley avenue. Dr. James J. Gardner, club president, will have charge of the meeting. Members will discuss plans for a banquet next month. This year's alumni dinner will be in honor of St. Rita's 167 June graduates, a testimonial to Coach John Connelly who is leaving the school after 14 years of service, and the 1915 class's silver jubilee.

Luncheon to Be Sponsored by Loring School Mothers

The Mothers' club of the Loring school, 10650 South Longwood drive, will sponsor a dessert luncheon and card party on Wednesday at 1 o'clock in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Mrs. Carroll L. Griffith is chairman in charge of the party which is for the benefit of the school.

LANDMARK TORN DOWN.

Old-timers out here in Blue Island are missing an old landmark these days. I'm one of them, and I get a severe attack of the "blues" every time I go past the southwest corner of York and Greenwood streets and look at the hole in the ground where the old Sorgenfrei house used to stand. Of course a fine new place is going to be built in its place, but we old-timers don't like change. Makes us feel that much older.

I think the old house deserves a little story. William Sorgenfrei, who came to Blue Island from Brandenburg, Germany, in 1854, put up the house about 80 years ago. He was a wagon maker and a good one. He made his house to last. It did. It was still a good house when the wreckers arrived.

The place had nine rooms with 12 foot high ceilings. There were three fireplaces, one in the basement, one on the first floor, and one on the second. The windows were those old-fashioned long ones, and the inside woodwork was maple. Christian Krueger, another Blue Island pioneer, built the house. William Sorgenfrei died in the early '90s at the age of 90 years. He had three wives, and he left seven children, but the house was eventually sold out of the family.

OLD-TIMER.

BUSY BRANCH LIBRARY.

Our Auburn Park library will be two years old on Thursday. Any kind of an anniversary is always a good opportunity to boast a little, and we're proud of our branch. If there were any question about whether a branch should be established here it has surely been answered now. The library has done a landoffice business, with books practically kept warm in being passed around.

LIBRARY PATRON.

SLIDES TO GIVE EARLIER VIEWS OF CHICAGO LAWN

Historical Society to Hold Reunion Today.

The Chicago Lawn library, 6234 South Kedzie avenue, will be the headquarters for a reunion today of members of the Chicago Lawn Historical society. The program will take place from 2 to 6 o'clock.

Old newspaper clippings, old programs, pictures, souvenirs which have been lent to the society will be on exhibit. In addition, a group of slides depicting Chicago Lawn history will be shown.

Gaar Williams Cartoons.

A feature of the exhibit will be a frieze of Gaar Williams cartoons, "Among the Folks in History," from THE TRIBUNE files.

Also on display will be a portfolio belonging to John F. Eberhart, founder of Chicago Lawn, and from 1859 to 1869, Cook county superintendent of schools.

In Charge of Tea.

Miss Alice Morrison is in charge of the tea arrangements today. Daughters of Chicago Lawn's "old settler" families will pour. They are Mrs. Mildred Lear Miller, Mrs. Warren Schlieske, Mrs. Retta Bourne Kearney, Miss Alice Johnson, Mrs. Brennetta Tindall, Miss Alice Brening, Miss Lois Swartz, and Miss Bernice Crane.

Assisting Richard O. Helwig, historical society president, on the reception committee will be Mrs. May Bowlby Tweedie, Mrs. Eleanor Martin Herrschner, Mrs. Helen Gaskin Cravener, Mrs. Dolly Fulton Cognzc, Foster F. Martin, John Wallin, Mr. and Mrs. Fay Richard, and Mary Connolly.

SOUTHWEST SIDE SCHOOL EDITORS WIN RECOGNITION

Southwest district high schools were among those in the award list announced by the 1940 all-American critical service of the National Scholastic Press association, sponsored by the University of Minnesota.

Among high schools of more than 2,500 enrollment the Calumet Crier of Calumet High school was judged all-American, or definitely superior in its field. The Times of Tilden Technical High school scored all-American among boys' high school weekly papers. The Englewood Evening Star, an evening school paper, received all-American honors also.

First class honor rating went to Englewood High school for the "E" Weekly, to Hirsch High school for its biweekly, and to Morgan Park High school for its weekly.

Bloom Township High school at Chicago Heights took second class honors. Second class rating went to the Kanka-Keynote of Kankakee Hign school.

JAMES SIMPSON LEADS THE FIELD FOR PARTY POST

Reveal Official Count on State Committee.

James Simpson Jr. of Wadsworth and Edward Sullivan of Chicago were the biggest Chicago district vote getters for state central committeeman in the April primary. This was shown last week with the announcement of the official vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

Simpson, former congressman from the 10th district, topped the Republican candidates, polling 51,982 votes, thereby unseating Committeeman Thomas J. Houston. Simpson got more votes than the three other candidates combined.

Simpson's nearest G. O. P. rival for vote honors was Committeeman Lester J. Norris in the 3d district. Norris, secretary of the state central committee, got 32,742 votes, snowing under four challengers.

Sullivan Is Unopposed.

Sullivan captured Democratic vote getting distinction with a total of 118,234. He was unopposed for the 6th district post being vacated voluntarily by Committeeman Richard M. Sullivan. Sullivan is secretary to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, and held a similar place under Mayor William E. Dever.

Here are the official vote totals for state central committeeman in the first ten congressional districts, the asterisks denoting incumbents and the bold face type designating the winners:

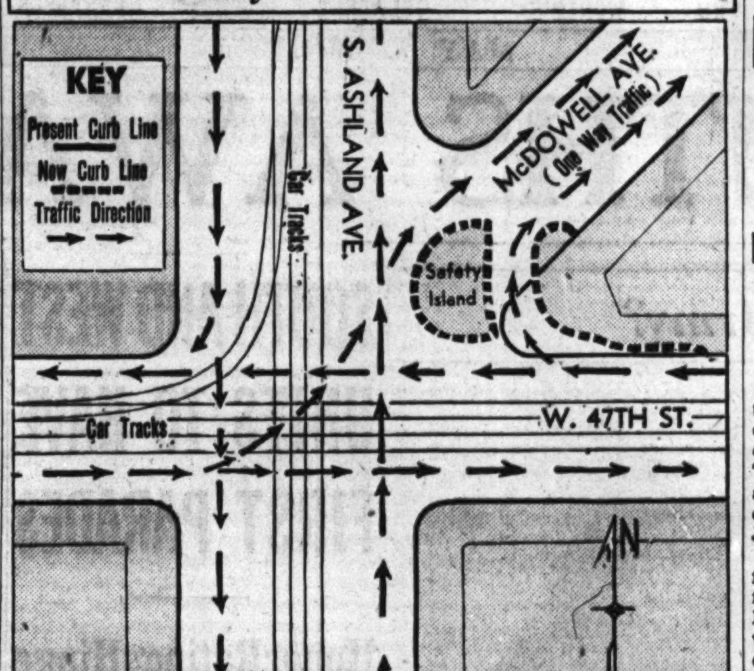
The first nine districts are wholly within Cook county. The 10th includes part of Cook and all of Lake county.

Safety for Pedestrians



Pedestrians crossing from the southeast corner of 47th street and Ashland avenue to the northeast corner of McDowell and Ashland avenues are to have a safety island under the $50,000 city-wide channelization plan for dangerous intersections. The present distance between the two corners is 104 feet. The safety island, 34 feet wide, will cut the span into two distances of 22 and 48 feet each. A further safety measure at this point will be making McDowell avenue into a one way street for northeast traffic only. The present McDowell-47th street curbline will be moved back to accommodate travel between it and the island. The stoplight at that point will be relocated on the island.

MOTOR CHANNELS TO AID WALKERS DODGE TRAFFIC

Islands to Reduce Wide Street Crossings.

Four of the southwest side's most dangerous street intersections will be channelized to reduce pedestrian and automobile traffic hazards in a citywide $50,000 program in which 45 intersections will be remapped for safety.

Southwest intersections on the channelization list are: Ashland-McDowell-47th street; Western-Blue Island-26th; Narragansett-Archer-55th, and Sacramento-Archer-42d street.

Reduce Wide Crossings.

Primarily, the plans call for a reduction in width of pedestrian crossings and one-way traffic on various streets. At the Ashland-McDowell-47th street intersection, the Ashland street crossing is now 104 feet wide without protection.

Under the new plan, the stop light will be moved nearer the pedestrian walk and a safety zone established so that the crossing will be divided into two spans, one 22 feet, the other, 48 feet. This will provide an exceptionally wide safety island, 34 feet, which will function as deterrent to two-way traffic on McDowell as well as a pedestrian stop. Traffic will run northeast only on McDowell after the change is made.

Will Route Vehicles.

Plans set up for the other intersections are similar. All have been designed to cut down long, unprotected crossings for pedestrians and to keep vehicles in special lanes.

The entire project for the city will be financed from motor fuel tax funds. State approval has been given, and work is to begin soon.

Plan Luncheon.

A luncheon meeting of the Hyde Park Travel club executive board will take place Friday at the home of the social chairman, Mrs. Donald R. Cowan, 4527 Greenwood avenue.

ST. MARTIN PARISH HEARS YOUNG PRIEST IN FIRST HIGH MASS

The Rev. Vincent Andrew Nels of the Congregation of Most Precious Blood, Carthogenia, O., celebrated his first solemn high mass last Sunday in St. Martin's church, 59th street and Princeton avenue. The pastor, the Rev. Francis J. Schikowski, was the assisting priest.

The Rev. Vincent A. Nels.

Others taking part in the mass were: the Rev. John J. Nels, deacon; the Rev. Joseph Schmeler, subdeacon; the Rev. Mathias Kauth, and the Rev. Rufus Esser, masters of ceremony. The sermon was given by the Rev. Max Herber of Canton, O.

Priests attending included: the Rev. Cornelius Smith, St. Bernard's hospital; the Rev. Louis Bohnenberger, St Philomena church; the Rev. John Schon, professor at St. Joseph's college, Collegeville, Ind., and the Rev. Urban Siegrist, also a professor at St. Joseph's.

Catholic Slovak Women Mark Anniversary Today

Unit 15 of the First Catholic Slovak Ladies' union of St. Simon's church, 52d street and California avenue, will celebrate its first anniversary at 3 o'clock today in the church. A dinner will be served in the parish hall at 6 o'clock. Special guests will be Mrs. Helen A. Kocan, supreme president; Mrs. Anna K. Hruskovich, supreme auditor, and Mrs. Marie Osadjan, supreme trustee. Mrs. Maria Hrabina, head of the central district drill teams, will be the principal speaker.

WRITE-IN WINS FOR MANSURE IN ALTERNATE RACE

Leads 17 Dark Horses in 9th District.

Seventeen dark horses appeared in the 9th district balloting for alternate delegate to the Republican national convention in the April 9 primary. This was revealed last week with the announcement of the official Cook county vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

This scramble resulted from the failure of more than one candidate to file for 9th district alternate. Paul J. Randolph, the only man to file, and whose name consequently was the only one printed on the ballot, received 11,639 votes.

Friends of Edmond Mansure elected him to the alternate's post by writing in his name on 585 ballots. A similar write-in campaign for Frank S. S. Sims brought him 469 votes. The name of John A. Rogers was written in on 182 ballots.

Seven Get One Each.

Seven candidates got from 3 to 23 votes each via the write-in route. Seven others received one vote each, presumably their own.

Below are tabulated the total votes for alternates in the first nine congressional districts, all of which are in Cook county, and the 10th which includes part of Cook and all of Lake county [the names of candidates who polled less than two votes each are omitted]. The boldface type indicates the winners.

PIONEER PICNIC IS PLANNED BY THIRD DISTRICT

Pageant, Dedication on Palos Park Schedule.

Mrs. George Ward. [Marshall Studio.]

Third district members of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs will attend a pioneer picnic in Palos Park on Friday. A nature study hike, hayrack ride, vehicle parade, cabin dedication, and a pageant are on the picnic schedule of events which will begin at 11 o'clock in the morning.

A bus will convey picnickers from Halsted and 63d streets to the junction of Routes 54 and 45, stopping in the ski jump parking space. Visitors will ride on hayracks from there to the nearby 92 year old log cabin which will be dedicated to Palos pioneers.

Mrs. George Ward, District 3 conservation chairman, is in charge of the nature study tour. Spring wild flowers, upland song birds, and the "braided tree" will be noted.

An oldtime vehicle parade, arranged by descendants of the Robson family, early Palos settlers, will take place at noon. Members are to bring box lunches, and there will be a refreshment period after the parade.

Will Dedicate Cabin.

The afternoon program will begin at 1:30 with ceremonies dedicating the log cabin. Mrs. Hattie Pashley will tell the history of the building. It was put up in 1848 by George Lintz, whose descendants still reside in Palos. Roberts Mann, maintenance superintendent of the Cook County Forest Preserve, will place the memorial plaque on the cabin.

A pageant, "Pioneers in Review," will be presented by members of the Palos Woman's club. Other features will be the "Square Dancers of 1890," presented by Mrs. Frank Yunker; "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair," sung by Mrs. Ben Hyinki, and a dramatization of "A Wedding Invitation," by Mrs. Don Smith and Mrs. A. L. Bruckner.

Among special guests for the day will be Mrs. S. E. Byerrum, Warrenville, state conservation chairman; Mrs. Thomas Gifford, District 3 president; Joseph Reichart, manager of Division 5 of the forest preserve, and Roberts Mann. The 20 District 3 conservation chairman will be in pioneer costumes.

Beverly Hills Woman's Club.

At a special meeting of the board of directors, Mrs. Reid M. Bennett, 9060 Pleasant avenue, was named president to complete the term of the late Mrs. J. A. M. Robinson. Mrs. Bennett is a past president of the club.

Mrs. F. O. McDermott, retiring publicity chairman, is now assistant to the treasurer, Mrs. O. J. Bliss.

Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. C. S. Darling, third vice president, will be delegates to the state federation convention to be held May 13-16 at the Hotel Sherman. Alternates are Mrs. Guy P. Palmers, assistant program chairman, and Mrs. J. W. Hopkinson, home and education chairman. Mrs. Bennett will represent the club at the general federation council on May 20 in Milwaukee.

Brainerd Woman's Club.

Mrs. Edward R. Walter, president, has announced the following standing committee appointments; Mrs. William Brunney, program chairman; Mrs. George Kinnear, assistant program chairman; Mrs. Roy McAfee, membership; Mrs. Edward Johnson, house; Mrs. Edward Sunderland, tea chairman.

Mrs. Walter has announced departments of work appointments, also. They are: Mrs. Earl Whitman, American citizenship; Mrs. Robert Smith, art; Mrs. Raymond Fern, drama; Mrs. Ralph James, garden; Mrs. Hoyt Corley, international relations; Mrs. Fred Kaiser, literature; Mrs. William Long, motion picture and radio; Mrs. Edward Babel, publicity; Mrs. Albert Teed, public health and hygiene; Mrs. Ernest Beler, spring luncheon, and Mrs. Gale Adams, junior woman's club contact chairman.

Altho the club year is over, the Brainerd members will extend their community service program to assist in a St. George's hospital benefit to be given Friday evening at 8 o'clock in St. Sabina's hall, 78th and Throop streets.

Under the direction of Mrs. Rupert Hoye, drama chairman, the drama department will present a one-act play, "Joint Owners in Spain." In the cast are Mrs. Gale Adams, Mrs. Grace Sass, Mrs. Frank Case, and Mrs. Ernest Beler. Mrs. Edward Schlageter, past president of the Brainerd Woman's club and president of the Service Club of St. George's hospital, is arranging the benefit.

Chicago Lawn Woman's Club.

The annual spring luncheon will take place Tuesday at 1 o'clock at the Windermere East hotel, 1642 East 56th street. After the luncheon the club chorus, under the direction of Helen Protheroe Baker, will sing. Mrs. S. C. Hand, president, will introduce Mrs. W. M. Rennie, first vice president of District 3, and Mrs. Reese K. Miller, president of the Chicago Lawn Junior Woman's club. Mrs. A. C. Stevesson, incoming president, will introduce new officers and chairmen. Mrs. O. H. Bruhn, club historian, will read her résumé of the year's activities.

Mrs. J. H. Whalen, program chairman, has arranged to have Norma Johns, dramatic recitalist, give "The Romance of Old Heidelberg," made up of adaptations of stories. A musical background for the reading will be provided by Mark Hallett, pianist.

Mrs. J. R. Thetford, social chairman, is in charge of the luncheon and party plans. Assisting her are Mrs. Richard Tweedie, Mrs. Homer Best, and Mrs. Edward Clark.

Morgan Park Woman's Club.

Because the Morgan Park club has recently celebrated its 50th anniversary, it will be especially honored by its representation on various committees for the federation convention at the Sherman hotel. Mrs. E. J. Lehman, general federation director for Illinois, will preside at the Golden Jubilee luncheon which is planned for May 13 at noon. Mrs. Harold F. Wood, vice president of the Morgan Park club, will assist.

On the convention banquet committee will be Mrs. Floyd J. Moore and Mrs. B. I. Meyer. Mrs. Harold Durling of the Morgan Park club will be on the convention registration committee, and Mrs. F. Z. Gifford on the house committee. Mrs. J. J. Bickel, Morgan Park past president, will appear at the luncheon speaker's table in a costume of the 50 years ago period. Mrs. Clyde Stow, president, will also be in an 1890 outfit.

A musical program will be given at the luncheon by members of the club chorus. Singing will be Mrs. A. V. Fowler, Mrs. B. J. Odell, Mrs. R. A. Rushton, and Mrs. Harry Pocock. Mrs. Ralph Olsen will be accompanist. Singers and pianist will be dressed in 1890 fashions.

In Finery of 50 Years Ago

When first settlers came to Palos Park the womenfolk wore outfits like these, their descendants think. Members of district 3, Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will have a pioneer picnic Friday in Palos Park, and these and other old time costumes will be worn in scenes from a pageant, "Pioneers in Review." All dressed up in finery of 50 years ago are Mrs. S. H. Sadd, left, conservation chairman of the Morgan Park Woman's club; Mrs. H. E. Lidster, Englewood Woman's club; Mrs. Mayme Kitching, Chicago Lawn Woman's club, and Mrs. George B. Ward, right, general chairman of the district 3 conservation department.

ENGLEWOOD WOMAN'S CLUB UNIT SELECTS STAFF OF OFFICERS

Mrs. Ernest Van Duser. [Moffett Photo.]

Mrs. Ernest Van Duser is the new president of the Intermediate division of the Englewood Woman's club. Serving with her are Mrs. Irvin Fox, 1st vice president; Mrs. David Robertson, 2d vice president; Mrs. Harold Bishop, recording secretary; Mrs. Charles Roth, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Roy Shields, treasurer; Mrs. Roy Winkler, department of American home; Mrs. Milton Carr, art and music chairman; Mrs. Herbert Turner, drama; Mrs. Albert Wells, literature; Mrs. Henry Hoffman, public welfare; Mrs. Franklin Carson, publicity; Mrs. John Wright, hospitality; Mrs. Harry Hall, social chairman, and Mrs. Lovell Nelson, director at large.

The club is beginning its annual series of summer bridge parties. The second party will take place at 1 o'clock tomorrow at Mrs. Carson's home, 2340 North Commonwealth avenue. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Bishop, Mrs. Carr, Mrs. Edward Durkee, and Mrs. Winkler.

Lindblom Girls Will Give Style Show for Mothers

A style show and tea party will make up the Mothers' day program to be given by Lindblom High school girls' organizations on Friday at 2:30 in Keeler hall. Professional mannequins will model fashions. Butler Laughlin, principal, will welcome the mothers. Rita Walker will give the toast, and Mrs. Hannah Rosenthal will direct the chorus in two songs.

OAK FOREST CAN SOLVE PROBLEMS WITHOUT LAWS

to split fees. We have room enough to keep out of trouble."

A delegation from the improvement group goes up and down the ditch occasionally and, where necessary, suggests a little cleaning.

The drainage trench is about 12 miles long and begins at Mokena and runs northeast thru Tinley Park, Oak Forest, Midlothian, and Robbins into the canal.

Oak Forest was first settled in 1909 when employés of the infirmary began putting up homes there. The smallest lot is 50 by 300 feet, or one-half acre, and many residents have five acre tracts.

Anderson moved to Oak Forest in 1929, a retired building contractor. "I lost all my money in three months, so I had to go to work again. But I'm not going to work too hard because there's no sense in earning a lot of money just to lose. I like it out here because there's no rushing around, no big business. I hope we keep it that way."

An Oak Forest booster is John Anderson, but not an incorporation advocate. He says he listened to incorporation talk and then he "told everybody what was what." Evidently the majority of Oak Foresters agreed with him. He says that Oak Forest has a Methodist church, a Lutheran church, two women's clubs and a garden club, and all of them keep plenty going on without organizing the community, too.

MUSIC TO MARK SEASON'S CLOSE FOR CLUB WOMEN

Luncheon Also Planned for Wednesday.

Homewood Woman's club will close the year's activities with a luncheon on Wednesday at Olympia Fields Country club. Mrs. W. C. Glass, vice president and program chairman, has arranged the afternoon's entertainment for the 124 members and their guests.

The club chorus, directed by Mrs. G. C. Gallati, will song. Mercedes, Ida, and Elisita Navarro will sing Latin American songs. Two of the sisters will wear the national costume of Mexico, and the third will wear the costume of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec.

Mrs. Russell Anderson, retiring president, will preside at the luncheon and will present retiring board members. She will then introduce the newly elected president, Mrs. Karl P. Schmidt, who will introduce the new officers. Among the especially invited guests are Mrs. Thomas Gifford, District 3 president; Mrs. E. C. Paulsen, president of the Homewood juniors, and Mrs. Bernard Wilson, past president of the juniors.

Orland Park Woman's Club.

The first spring luncheon will take place Thursday at the Big Run Country club. The occasion will be in celebration of the organization's seventh year as a District 3 club. Special guests will be Mrs. Thomas Gifford, Mrs. W. M. Rennie, Mrs. D. W. Leggott, and Mrs. William H. Walker.

Newly elected officers of this unit are Miss Adalla Schmadeke, first vice president; Mrs. Stewart Loebe, recording secretary, and Mrs. Ella Loebe, treasurer.

Palos Heights Woman's Club.

The annual meeting will take place Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the community school. Election of officers and the reading of annual reports will take place. The club will hold its first spring luncheon on May 15 at 1 o'clock in the Green Shutters tearoom, La Grange.

The board will meet tomorrow at 1:30 o'clock in the home of Mrs. Claude Saum.

La Rabida Isabella Circle to Give Party Saturday

La Rabida circle, Daughters of Isabella, will sponsor a charity card party Thursday evening in the Auburn Park Masonic hall, 78th street and Union avenue. Mrs. Nonie Delahanty is chairman. Assisting her are Mrs. Sarah A. Peterson, Mrs. Margaret Satek, Mrs. Nonie Cummings, Mrs. Mary Bray, Mary Metzler, Adele Lennon, Lucille Lennon, Isabel Erxleben, and Grace Bronkema.

Weds in California

Mrs. John D. Ravott of San Diego, Cal., is the former Miss Madelyn Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Marshall of Summit. Her marriage took place recently in California. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Ravott of Huntington Park, Cal. [Brown Studio.]

CENTER TO HAVE A PAGEANT ON VISITING DAY

Visiting day at the House of Happiness settlement, 3052 South Gratten avenue, is planned for Friday. A pageant depicting the work of the house will be given at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 8 o'clock in the evening. Each program will be preceded and followed by tours of both buildings at the settlement. Titled "The House in Action," the pageant is in five parts—"The House Creates and Educates," "The House at Play," "The House Helps," "The House Outdoors," and "The House Speaks." Primary children will be in the first act.

BANQUET TO END THE SEASON FOR HOMEWOOD CLUB

Juniors Also Will Greet New Official Staff.

Mrs. Homer Tripp.

Members of the Homewood Junior Woman's club will close the season with a mother-daughter banquet at 7 o'clock Wednesday night in the main dining room of the Cherry Hill Country club. Mrs. Homer Tripp is chairman of the banquet arrangements.

Miss Jeraldine Hank will be toastmistress. She will introduce Mrs. Thomas Gifford, district 3 president; Miss Helen Stoll, retiring president of district 3 juniors, and Mrs. Russell Andersen, retiring president of Homewood Senior club.

Mrs. Bernard Wilson, retiring president, will present the outgoing board and the incoming president, Mrs. C. Paulsen, who will introduce the new board. Members are Mrs. Homer Tripp, first vice president; Mrs. William Crowley, second vice president; Mrs. William Carrier, secretary; Mrs. William Vincent, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Robert Burdett, treasurer; Miss Hank, program chairman; Mrs. Roy Augustson, American home; Mrs. G. T. Pfeifer, literature; Mrs. David Davis, drama; Miss Margaret Peterson, philanthropy; Mrs. Elwood Clark and Mrs. Margaret Cook, social chairmen, and Mrs. Norman Morgan.

After the new officers are installed a play, "Right About Faces," will be given.

MARTINS CHOOSY ABOUT RENTING JUST ANY HOUSE

It Has to Be Right, Says Blue Island Bander.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

So you want some martins in that birdhouse in your back yard?

It's not so easy, according to Alfred Reuss Jr., 12910 Mozart street, Blue Island. There are rules and regulations in this martin business, he says. Reuss has been banding birds since 1934 and has been self-appointed Blue Island martin census taker for four years. He has advice for martin house owners.

Briefly, the birdhouse pole should be 25 to 40 feet tall. It shoud be out in the open and preferably near wires, because martins like wire perches. The compartments in the house should be at least 8 by 8 inches square, and the entrance should be 2½ inches in diameter and near the platform. Martins' feet are poorly developed, and they have to waddle rather than to hop into their houses.

Success at Last.

Yes, that's expert advice. The trouble with it, Reuss says, is that he has been trying to get martins for five years, and just a few weeks ago a pair stopped at his house for the first time. He doesn't know yet whether they'll decide to stay. He has painted his martin house green this year, and he thinks that may help. He thinks so because he knows a fellow who had a red martin house, painted it green, and, presto, a dozen martins dropped in and stayed where just one pair had lived before.

Reuss says: "There were 252 pair nesting in Blue Island last year. About the first week in June, we'll take a survey." With Reuss on this survey project is Karl Bartel, another Blue Island bird bander.

When Reuss talks about martins, he means the large swallows known as purple martins or progne subis, in scientific terminology. This swallow formerly was abundant in towns and villages of North America, but house sparrows have driven it from many localities.

Martins eat mosquitoes, small moths, insects in general. And why do people build martin houses and hope for martins, Reuss says it's for the same reasons that they buy a bowl of goldfish, take in a stray dog, watch a flea circus!

Bands Winter Residents.

Reuss' chief project in bird study is his winter trapping project at Palos Park. Since 1935 he has caught 1,600 birds that winter here rather than fly south. Reuss has listed the tufted titmouse, blackcapped chickadee, downy woodpecker, hairy woodpecker, junco, bluejay, cardinal, purple finch, golden crowned kinglet, and many others that find Illinois winters quite balmy enough. He weighs his birds before he releases them. The lightest one he ever caught was a golden crowned kinglet, 5.3 grams, or one-fifth once. A cardinal is one of the heavier birds, averaging 48.7 grams, or nearly 2 ounces.

In summer Reuss goes with Bartel and another Blue Island bird bander, Frederick Labahn Jr., to Oak Hill cemetery, where they check migratory birds. Banding birds is simply clipping a little metal ring with numbers about one of the bird's legs. The purpose of it is to compile the bird story of this continent and of the entire western hemisphere. Banders must have licenses from the United States biological survey. Any one finding a banded bird is asked to write to the survey department so that the bird's flight may be checked.

Duck Banding License.

Bartel has a special duck banding license and works out at the Orland slough. Duck banding rights are difficult to obtain, for the government office wants to be sure the applicant isn't looking for an easy way to supply duck dinners to his friends.

Reuss is 24 and works in his father and uncle's grocery store. His cousin, Labahn, is a year older and is employed at a tire supply company in Chicago. Bartel is 26 and works at a lawn mower repair shop. The three became interested in birds back in Audubon society days at Blue Island grammar schools. They found out about birdbanding in a magazine article, and, as each became 18, he applied for a license.

PHOTO SALON TO ACCEPT ENTRIES UNTIL MAY 18

Entries for the Fourth International Photographic salon of Marshall Field & Co. will close on May 18. The exhibit will be held from June 6 thru July 13. Prizes of photographic equipment will be awarded in the amateur division while gold, silver, and bronze medals will be given in the advanced pictorial section.

Any amateur who has not won an award in an international salon or competition may enter that class. The advanced pictorial section is open to both professional and amateur photographers.

Frank R. Fraprie, F. R. P. S., of Boston; Ansel Adams of Yosemite National park, and Harry Shigeta of Chicago are the jury of admission in the advanced group. F. M. Tuckerman and William Langdon of Chicago and Miles J. Martin of Milwaukee will judge the amateur section.

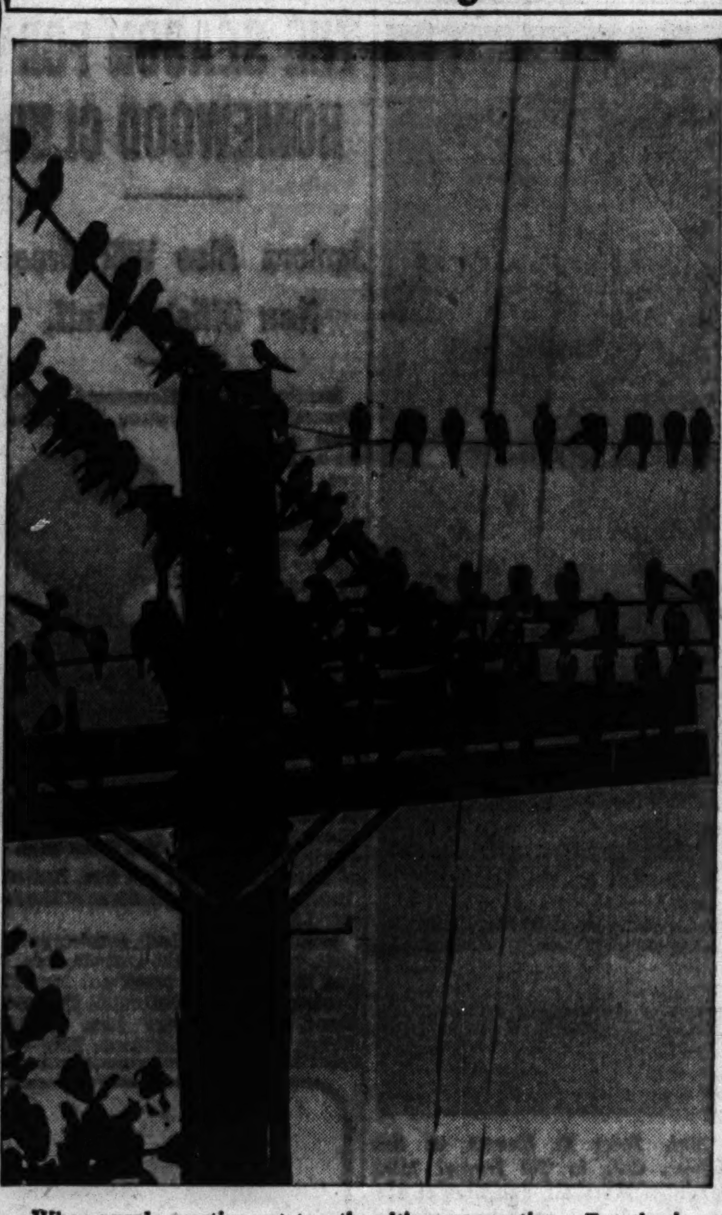
Martins Get Together



When purple martins get together it's a convention. But they're a fastidious lot, as many a home owner can testify who has tried to lure them into the apartment house on a pole in his back yard. That is the contention of Alfred Reuss Jr., who is going to take a martin census in Blue Island. This picture shows how martins congregate before they start their fall migration southward.

ECONOMY, GOOD TASTE COMBINED IN SMALL HOME

Has Kitchen at Front; Terrace in Rear.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A great many architects at the present time are concerning themselves with small homes of good design. Homes which combine good taste and economy with features both practical and attractive.

Such a home was designed recently by L. Morgan Yost, A. I. A., architect, 930 Spanish court, Wilmette. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell Older and the small six room highly individual house stands at 552 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth.

If you feel you'd like to build a really friendly, personal little home, this contemporary home is a type to consider.

A neat brick walk, cool mustard tan shutters against a rough textured front of soft gray green, and a hospitable door welcome the visitor who walks toward the two story house, with its white exterior walls except for the front façade, and its blue-black roof in effective contrast.

Suited to Small Family.

Inside you find a very individual, attractive interior suited to a small family. [The Older family now numbers three members. The afternoon I saw the house there was a diminutive new arrival, a 2 week old baby girl, making use of a cozy nursery bedroom.]

To the right of the entrance hall is the living room, 11 feet 10 inches by 21 feet. The walls, above a white wainscote, are painted a coral rose, the carpeting is a brown rose which tones in beautifully, the fireplace is of white brick with mirror to the ceiling, and at the far end is a large picture window overlooking the garden and terrace area at the back of the home.

Ceiling Is Silver.

The dining room, 12 feet by 11 feet, is a charming, sunny spot. Here the south wall, with French doors leading out to the porch, is prepared in a silver and blue paper. The ceiling is silver—a striking note—and the three other walls are painted a harmonizing blue. On each side of the French doors are windows with glass shelves for flowering plants and vines.

The kitchen, 8 feet by 9 feet 4 inches, is at the front of the house. Its walls and cabinets are painted a soft tone of blue. The linoleum floor is dominated by a pleasant peach shade which is likewise carried out in the ceiling.

At the front of the house, opening from a small passageway between hall and kitchen, is a coat closet with lavatory opposite. Here in the lavatory the lower wall is a rich brown to complement the brown floor linoleum, while the upper walls are a chartreuse. Between upper and lower wall is a pale yellow border with delicate white flowers. The fixtures are white.

Has Three Bedrooms.

Stairs from this same front hallway lead to basement below with a forced warm air, gas heating plant, and space for future recreation room with natural woodburning fireplace.

On the second floor are three bedrooms. The master bedroom has painted walls of soft green, with olive green upholstery and bedspread. The furniture is pickled light mahogany, the carpeting is rose, and a door from this room leads out to sun deck—for summer living. Door and windows of this room, which are curtained in imported Swedish voile, have a border outline of white and green, harmonizing with green of walls and upholstery.

There is a second bedroom which Mrs. Older calls her "antique" room. Here the walls are painted blue with a captivating border of French little blue and pink nosegays on a background of white. The ceiling of this room in blue and the rug white. And it goes without saying that the nursery, with its soft blue walls and paper in a "youthful and lively bell pattern," is all in the spirit of our modern nursery bedrooms.

VISITING NURSES CHEER SICK, TOO, BY LILAC GIFTS

Flowers Like a Picnic to City Shut-ins.

"Hospital patients do see flowers, but our patients see four walls, week in and week out, sometimes year in and year out!" Thus Miss Marion Kirkcaldy, head of the Visiting Nurse association station at 734 West 47th street, illustrates what lilacs mean to the shut-ins and the sick of her district.

Miss Kirkcaldy has been at her station for 20 years, serving the ill of the stockyards area and going as far east as the lake. She and her corps of 30 nurses are looking forward to lilac day, the occasion when blooms are distributed to hospitals and to many welfare organizations in the city.

The flowers are contributed thru the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild and THE TRIBUNE.

Meets Spiritual Needs.

"Our patients expect the nurses, of course," Miss Kirkcaldy explains, "but when the nurse comes with a bouquet of flowers—well, then she ministers to the spiritual as well as the physical needs. We get the summer flowers, but the lilacs come first, so they mean much after the dull days of winter."

Miss Kirkcaldy says the flowers represent a message of good will between the "haves" and the "have nots," and they "provide a little boost for the sick one. Really, a few flowers for one of our patients is the equivalent of going to a picnic."

Perhaps the greatest good the flowers do, the veteran nurse believes, is to give the patient the sense that someone, somewhere is thinking of him. "A short, snappy sickness is the best kind," she says, "because folks do remember for a little while. But when the months and years go on, the patient is shut away from the world, forgotten, often alone.

Helps Permanently Ill.

"We try to see that the long-time sick ones get the flowers. We have many accident cases, men, women, children, crippled for life. We have the old. It is bad enough to be old and sick, but to be old, sick and alone—anyone in that situation needs lilacs, all right!"

The nurses go to homes where there are no flower containers, so they hunt a fruit jar, a milk bottle, anything that will hold water and blossoms.

Miss Kirkcaldy suggests that the strong, sweet scent of the lilacs is "a welcome contrast to the aroma we frequently have out here." So the patients have perfume as well as beauty in the bouquets.

Altho the flowers are already divided many, many ways, V. N. A. representatives find that many of their patients want to share their bouquets. Consequently the blossoms that were meant for one often are divided among several friends.

The nurses fix the flower lists so that the most seriously ill are remembered first. If one patient should be so fortunate as to receive flowers every week, it would be because of the seriousness of his condition. Most surprised and pleased, perhaps, are the new mothers. "They usually think that they have received all they could possibly expect," Miss Kirkcaldy explains, "and they are almost awed that we bring flowers, too."

Care for 1,000 Monthly.

Miss Kirkcaldy and her nurses care for an average of 1,000 patients each month. They must often build fires, fix meals, clean up the house or the children as well as care for the patient. Yet, they are glad to deliver flowers, too, for "doing an extra kindness is good for the nurses," Miss Kirkcaldy says.

This year's lilac day will be the 12th annual occasion for sharing the flowers. The exact date will be announced when guild workers know the lilacs will bloom. Suburban trains will carry the flowers to Chicago, and TRIBUNE trucks will make deliveries.

Guild members point out that the flowers should be cut the night before and placed in cold water. They last better that way than when picked just before shipment.

Brainerd Community Choir to Give Concert Thursday

The choir of Brainerd Community church, 88th and Throop streets, will give its annual concert Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock. The women's chorus and two soloists, Miss Lois Willy, soprano, and Julian Berg, bass, will take part in the program. Richard Caul is now in his third season as director. Accompanists are Miss Mary Moore and Keith Roberts.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, May 6.

May is an excellent time to feed trees. A crowbar will do to make holes about four feet apart and two feet deep at the drip of the branches. Fill the holes with food to within two inches of the top and finish with soil. Water until the ground is soaked. If the ground is soaked before using the crowbar the work will be much easier.

Tuesday, May 7.

It will be easier to buy suitable soil for boxes from the florist than to prepare it at home. Leave plenty of room for watering and later for applying a rich top dressing. Unless one has the proper facilities for growing good plants at home, it is best to buy plants that will become established immediately. Many combinations of different plants can be arranged, but some thrive in full sun while others prefer shade or partial shade. The petunia is one of the finest of all plants for the purpose; the geranium, lantana, ageratum, phlox drummondi, portulaca, and similar kinds all do well.

Wednesday, May 8.

Divide perennials. When sweet peas begin to grow, thin to about six inches apart in the row. Watch for plant lice and begin spraying with nicotine; for attacks of mildew, use sulphur. Sow seeds of virtually all annuals at this time. Make a fine seedbed and do not sow too thick.

Thursday, May 9.

Do not cut all the foliage away from tulips when cutting the blooms for the leaves are necessary for good ripening of the bulbs. Plant dahlias after the ground is warm. Planting late will give better fall bloom. Do not allow rhubarb plants to form seeds or the plants will be weakened.

Friday, May 10.

It is time to finish tree, shrub, and vine planting. For a low ornamental shrub try the Hansen bush cherry. It has fragrant white flowers in spring, followed by berries resembling small plums. The berries are edible and excellent for preserves. For something different as a hedge, plant the dwarf blue leaf Arctic willow. It grows anywhere in wet or heavy soils and can withstand low temperatures. The oak leaf hydrangea will do well in a shady spot and it is quite unusual. It has pinkish white flowers borne in upright clusters in June. Cannas do very well under city conditions and their brilliant flowers and tropical foliage make them desirable.

Saturday, May 11.

Shrubs that flower during midsummer are quite rare, but one called ocean spray is new on the market. It has large clusters of creamy white flowers. Be sure to water evergreens during dry periods. A good lawn mixture consists of 60 per cent Kentucky bluegrass and 40 per cent redtop, with a little rye grass for quick growth and shade while the bluegrass germinates. Feed the lawn with a complete plant food.

Miss Mary Ellen Fox, 8011 Evans avenue, is chairman, and Miss Betty Foley, 8044 Justine street, is a member of the spring informal dance committee of Phi Theta Chi sorority. The party will take place Saturday evening in the Mural room of Hotel Morrison.

Served with Whiteman for Years.

Al Mitchell.

If you want to know whether or not Nero wore a monocle, who has the largest feet in Hollywood [it isn't Garbo], whether soup is eaten or sipped, and where people make the most noise on New Year's eve ask Al Mitchell, the Answer Man. Al is heard at 10 p. m. Wednesdays and Sundays on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Al Mitchell began collecting information from the 1898 World Almanac when he was attending third grade in St. Louis, Mo.

Aside from an insatiable curiosity, Albert spent his youth taking piano lessons, witnessing baseball games thru a knothole, and piloting his father's ABC friction drive automobile perilously thru the streets of St. Louis backward.

To escape the drudgery of mowing the homestead lawn, Mitchell ran away from home at the age of 14 and began his professional career as a musician and singer in a nickelodeon theater. From that time until 1936 he was a professional musician, singer, and master of ceremonies.

Served with Whiteman.

After a brief sojourn in France with the A. E. F., Mitchell resumed his musical career as orchestra conductor and arranger in association with Paul Whiteman. After seven years of touring with his own dance band in stage shows, Mitchell acquired a vast fund of useless knowledge. Backstage he became an arbiter for all disputes, and by 1936 he decided to put his information to better use by going on the air.

He combed the files of the New York library for additional ammunition and launched his attack on a station at Bridgeport, Conn. The immediate success of the idea brought him to station WOR, and then to W-G-N.

Mitchell's greatest delight is reading his fan mail, which contains the majority of "screwball" questions he answers twice a week. On the assumption that all questions have answers, Mitchell has managed to solve such problems as "how high is up," "Which came first, the hen or the egg," and "How long is a string."

Mitchell is the proud father of a beautiful 16 year old girl, Dolly, who has just signed a contract with Paul Whiteman as vocalist. Still attending high school at Norwalk, Conn., Dolly is a radio veteran, having sung on the air for ten years.

Drexel Park Presbyterian Will Observe Father's Day

Father's day will be observed at today's services in the Drexel Park Presbyterian church, 64th street and South Marshfield avenue. The Rev. Clinton C. Cox will preach at 11 this morning, and at 8 o'clock this evening the Young Married Couples club will present "The Man They Forgot."

HUMANE SOCIETY SECRETARY NOW 40 YEARS ON JOB

G. A. H. Scott Only Came to Call in 1900.

A young lawyer strode up the worn stone steps of the Illinois Humane society, 1145 South Wabash avenue, 40 years ago. He came to talk to John G. Shortall, president, about a minor law case.

George A. H. Scott.

Their business completed, the president told the young man about the workings of the society, how it protected the weak, both animals and men, against inhuman practices; how it prevented wanton and unconscious cruelty. The young man was interested and, as he turned to go, the president offered him a job with the society.

The man took the job. A short time later he became executive secretary. That was 40 years ago and the stone steps were worn even then by thousands of feet plodding toward the anteroom to seek humane treatment of men and animals.

Grooves Deeper Now.

On April 24, forty years later to the day, the same executive secretary, George A. H. Scott, climbed the stone steps. The grooves worn in by millions of footsteps are deeper now.

Mr. Scott, 70 years old and white-haired, spent the day planning the work of the society for the next ten years. The organization, one of the oldest social agencies in the city, was chartered in 1869.

Mr. Scott, who resides at 1548 Sherwin avenue, won't talk much about himself. What he has to say concerns the work of the society.

"We place the emphasis on education today—education that begins in the schools and extends thru a consistent program of supervision in industries where animals are greatly in use," he says. "Once we were deeply concerned with prosecution for cruelty to children and animals, and while we still prosecute where necessary, now every effort is made to correct situations before they reach the courtroom."

Humane Laws Passed.

Mr. Scott cites a long list of laws passed by the state legislature as important aids to the cause of humane treatment of children and animals. He and the society worked tirelessly for the child labor laws of 1905, the delinquency and contributing to delinquency laws of the same year and the nonsupport laws of 1915.

In addition to looking after the welfare of children, the society also cares for lost or unwanted pets, supervises treatment accorded horses, cattle, poultry, zoo animals.

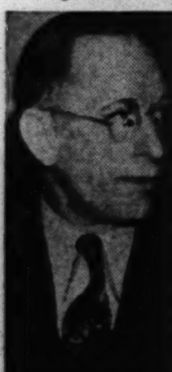
News and Queries Within and Without the Church
—A Religious Voice of the People—
Edited by the Rev. John Evans

The 50th anniversary number of the Epworth Herald, official periodical of the young peoples' Epworth league of the Methodist church, published in Chicago, was distributed among the delegates of the first general conference of the church at Atlantic City, N. J., last week.



Dr. W. E. J. Gratz.

For religious journalism the anniversary is important. Before the founding editor, the late Dr. Joseph F. Berry [who was to become "the Epworth league bishop"] entered the field, religious journals were generally dull and filled with long articles which were read with interest mostly by their authors.

But Dr. Berry changed all this. Articles were shortened and the whole tempo of the journal was stepped up for readers who read for interest and pleasure instead of spiritual discipline.

Moreover, the people answered with circulation. Within two years there were 100,000 subscribers. In 1891 that was a big circulation even for daily newspapers. Today, the journal perhaps has the largest circulation of any Protestant religious magazine. Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, has been editor of the Herald for the last 16 years.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE indirectly made its gift to the Epworth Herald cause in its second editor, Stephen J. Herben. Dr. Herben, London born son of Belgian parents, was a printer by trade who became the TRIBUNE's Evanston correspondent where he earned his way thru Northwestern university and Garrett Biblical institute.

Dr. Herben devised many makeup changes in the Herald's format, and as a printer brought new styles to the journal's typography; as a news man, made its columns vital and timely. But Dr. Herben's best job, according to his friends, was the discovery of the editorial genius of an immigrant from an English mill town, Dan B. Brummitt, who had gone as far into the American west as Kansas. Dr. Brummitt, after graduating from Baker university and Drew Theological seminary, was preaching in Arkansas when Dr. Herben called him to Chicago. When Dr. Herben was appointed to other editorial work in New York, Dr. Brummitt became editor.

Why Be Fat

Thousands of women have discovered way to lose excess weight—without following strict diet lists, or taking exercises or drugs.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—First... eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second.. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

SYMPHONIC HOUR SALUTES ARMY ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Special Tribute to First Division Planned.

The second of the new W-G-N Symphonic Hours, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be broadcast before an audience of 600 invited guests representing the United States army, the Illinois National Guard, and the National Army Reserves, from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight. The program will be broadcast by W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This program, which is dedicated to the army and all its officers and men, will have as speaker of the evening, Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will take part in a special feature of the program.

Marion Claire to Sing.

An outstanding cast headed by Marion Claire, soprano star of opera, movies, and radio, and the augmented W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus directed by Henry Weber, will be heard in the musical portion of the program.

One of the highlights of the broadcast will be a dramatization, featuring a group of picked radio actors with a background of stirring orchestral accompaniment, in commemoration of the 23d anniversary of the First division of the American expeditionary forces, to be observed this summer.

Col. McCormick will participate in the introduction to this feature with words from an address he first delivered on Aug. 9, 1937, at Cantigny, France. On this occasion a monument erected in commemoration of the 1st division was dedicated.

Bacher Is Producer.

This dramatic interlude is the creation of William A. Bacher, who is directing and producing the Symphonic Hour.

The program:

The Bartered Bride Overture........Smetana
Orchestra.
[a] Les Cloches....................Debussy
[b] By a Lovely Forest Pathway...Griffes
Miss Claire.
The Swan of Tuonella..............Sibelius
Orchestra.
Chorus from "Rigoletto"..............Verdi
Orchestra.
Prelude from Cycle of Life..........Ronald
Miss Claire.
Il est Doux, Il est Bon...........Massenet
Miss Claire.
The Moldau.........................Smetana
Orchestra.
Special Dramatization Honoring America's War Heroes.

Miss Claire, the soloist of the evening, was starred last Thursday in the operetta, "Bittersweet," with James Melton, tenor, on W-G-N-Mutual, and also on the first W-G-N Symphonic Hour presented last Sunday in salute to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Mr. Bacher is one of radio's best known directors and producers. He is currently directing the production of the Chicago Theater of the Air on W-G-N-Mutual.

Next Sunday the third Symphonic Hour will again salute the Chicago Association of Commerce. More than 3,400 tickets have been requested by members of the association; thus this organization will be honored with several broadcasts.

On Melody Hour

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, who will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, directed by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

The program will be presented in the main studio of W-G-N before an audience of specially invited guests who are members of garden clubs in Chicago participating in the "share your lilacs" campaign sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Appeared at Ravinia.

Feuermann was born in Austria 37 years ago. A child prodigy, he made his debut at the age of 11. He taught music at the Cologne conservatory. He left Germany in 1934 and made a world tour. His most recent Chicago appearance was at Ravinia last summer, when he played the Dvorak concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Vladimir Golschmann conducting.

In the Pageant of Melody program Feuermann will play a number of his own selections.

Baggiore, Love, Miss Brewer, and the octet will sing a group of American Indian themes, including "Zuni Indian Call"; "Pale Moon," by Logan, and "By the Waters of Minnetonka," by Thurlow Lieurance.

Baggiore will sing "Cielo e Mar," by Amilcare Ponchielli, and "My Wild Irish Rose," by Chauncey Olcott. Other numbers will include the Overture "Le Roi la dit," by Leo Délibès; "Parade" and "Finale," from Ibert's "Divertissement," and Arensky's "Serenade," in which Michael Wilkomirski will play the violin obbligato for the chorus.

Salute Music Week.

The Concert Revue, under the direction of Mr. Weber, will be dedicated to National Music week—which is being observed from May 5 to May 11—with Kathryn Witwer, soprano, as soloist, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday on W-G-N and Mutual.

The program will include a composition of Edward A. MacDowell, the great American composer, in whose commemoration the postoffice will issue a stamp during the week.

The concert orchestra will play "To a Water Lily" and "By a Meadow Brook," from MacDowell's "Woodland Sketches."

Miss Witwer will sing for her solo John Alden Carpenter's "I Am Like a Remnant of a Cloud in Autumn." She also will do "Les Temps des Lilas," by Ernest Chausson.

RUDOLF SERKIN SOLOIST WITH PHILHARMONIC

The final concert of the season and the last broadcast of its 10th season on the Columbia network, will be given by the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra at Carnegie hall, and aired over WIND from 2 to 3:30 p. m. today.

John Barbirolli will conduct and the soloist will be Pianist Rudolf Serkin. Deems Taylor will be intermission commentator.

The program will open with the overture to "The Bartered Bride," by Smetana, after which Serkin will play the Mozart Concerto in G major for piano and orchestra, K. 453.

The second portion of the concert will be devoted to two Wagner opera excerpts, the prelude and "Liebestod" from "Tristan and Isolde," and "Waldweben" from "Siegfried."

'Tristan and Isolde' Music Scheduled on Music Hall

Elsa Zebranska, mezzo-soprano, and Jan Peerce, tenor, will sing the love duet from the second act of "Tristan and Isolde" as a feature of the Radio City Music Hall on the Air, at 11 a. m. over WENR. Erno Rapee will conduct the orchestra in the Prelude to Act I. of "Lohengrin," "Rhine Journey" from "Siegfried" and the Overture to "Die Meistersinger."

Guest on W-G-N

Van Heflin, who plays opposite Katherine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story" at the Erlanger theater, will be the guest star on W-G-N's Fifth Row Center production of "Ethan Allen" at 7 p. m. next Friday.

HEFLIN TO PLAY ETHAN ALLEN ON '5TH ROW CENTER'

Hepburn's Leading Man on W-G-N.

Van Heflin, talented young leading man of the stage and radio, will be the guest star on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday. He will be heard in a special radio play, "Ethan Allen," a story of the famous Revolutionary war patriot.

Heflin is appearing at the Erlanger theater, where he is acting as leading man to Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story," Philip Barry's hit play.

In "Ethan Allen," Heflin will portray the title rôle, that of the New England patriot and officer who played an important part in the winning of the war. He will be supported by an all-star cast of radio actors. The program will be directed by Blair Walliser.

Appeared with Miss Claire.

Van Heflin was first seen on the Chicago stage a few seasons ago when he appeared with Ina Claire in S. N. Behrman's "End of Summer." Before becoming an actor, Heflin was a sailor. After attending the State University of Oklahoma, he went to California, and signed as a seaman on a round the world cruise. The ship stopped at New York. Hearing that a rôle in a new show was open, Heflin applied for the part. He was accepted and played in "Mr. Moneypenny." After the show closed, he returned to the sea.

Joins Hedgerow Theater.

Finally, on a voyage home he was persuaded by Dramatist Lynn Riggs to enter the theatrical profession permanently. He joined the Hedgerow theater in Philadelphia. When he felt he was ready for Broadway, Heflin went to New York and was cast in "The Bride of Torosco."

Since then he has appeared in numerous plays and motion pictures. Among his films have been "A Woman Rebels," "Saturday's Heroes," "Flight from Glory," and "Annapolis Salute."

MR. SILO FINISHES 7 YEARS WITH 'ORPHAN ANNIE'

Edmund Clark Sprague, one of the oldest troupers in radio, completes his seventh year as Mr. Silo with the Orphan Annie program this month. Orphan Annie is aired at 5:45 p. m. weekdays on W-G-N.

A veteran of tent shows, "dime museums," stock companies, and chautauquas since his debut in 1883, Ed Sprague has seen just about every form of showmanship ever known and has participated in almost as many. He has played in every state, toured the Mississippi valley in showboats, dodged dust storms and prairie fires in the Dakotas, Kansas, and Nebraska, thought of panning for gold in California, and finally hit pay dirt in radio back in 1931 on W-G-N.

Also a member of the cast of "Citizens of Tomorrow" as Charley Jones, school engineer of every school, Ed's characterization as the guardian of radio's little redhead has made him a favorite of the millions of Annie listeners.

EVERETT WEST TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N 'ROMANCE-RHYTHM'

Romance in Rhythm, directed by Harold Stokes, will feature the singing of Everett West, romantic tenor, with the music of the W-G-N Dance orchestra, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Heard with West will be Edna O'Dell, the Four Grenadiers, and the chorus.

West, who will sing two numbers, is appearing in the Chez Paree show. Since leaving the California Varsity Eight vocal group, West has been featured in floor shows of leading New York, Chicago, and West Coast night clubs.

Edna O'Dell will sing for her solo, "I'm Too Romantic," and with the chorus will do "Last Night's Gardenias." The Four Grenadiers will sing the hit song of the season, "With the Wind and the Rain in Your Hair."

Selections to be done by the chorus and orchestra will include "Little Girl," "I've Got Rhythm," "Charming Little Faker," and "Punchinello."

Northerners to Salute Spring Tuesday Night

Music in keeping with the spring season will be featured by the Northerners in their program from 9:30 to 10 p. m., Tuesday, on W-G-N. The octet will do "Song of May," "Oh, Lady Be Good," and "Shortnin' Bread." Irene Verner, soloist, will sing "Sylvelin." The entire Northerners cast will join in the presentation of "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and selections from Earl Carroll's Vanities, including "Star Lit Hour," and "Angel."

CHILD CUSTODY EPISODES COMING IN W-G-N SERIAL

Kay Chase, author and member of the Painted Dreams cast, heard over W-G-N daily at 11:30 a. m., has finished studying court records in preparation for an exciting custody battle. With stacks of notes relating to famous trials, she has built a series of episodes around Lily and her 3 month old baby which promises to be full of human interest.

Mrs. Oliphant is determined to have Lily's baby and secures Lily's signature of release without the poor mother realizing what it is she has signed. Livingstone Smallwood, lawyer friend and adviser, points out to Lily the likely consequences: The probable efforts of Mrs. Oliphant to establish her false claim and a probable necessity of fighting and defeating that claim in court.

BISHOP SCARLETT TO BE SUNDAY EVENING SPEAKER

Bishop William Scarlett, head of the Missouri diocese of the Protestant Episcopal church, will speak on the weekly broadcast of the Chicago Sunday Evening club, on WIND from 8:15 to 9 p. m. today.

Bishop Scarlett, formerly of the historic old Trinity church in the heart of Wall street, has headed the Missouri diocese since 1933 and is a trustee of the Seabury Western Theological seminary of Evanston. President Clifford W. Barnes will present him for his second appearance before this audience. Edward L. Ryerson, a trustee of the club and prominent Episcopal layman, will also take part.

'Japan and Far East' Is Topic of Review Stand

"Will Japan Move in the East?" In the wake of Secretary of State Hull's stern note warning Japan to keep hands off the East Indies, William M. McGovern and Irving Pflaum will discuss this question on the Northwestern University Reviewing Stand over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting System from 10:15 to 10:30 a. m. today. Hirosi Acino, council general of Japan in Chicago, will be the special guest on the program.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too
When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

FATHER PRAISES R. O. T. C.

It always amuses me to hear high school boys of today going around jeering at the R. O. T. C. and deriding boys who take it seriously. I am only a father, not a student, so I'm not in close contact with the boys and consequently can't say that the cadets are actually superior to the noncadets, but it certainly looks like it from what I've seen around the school and in my home. My boy is a cadet at Bowen High school, and those of his friends who aren't in the training are round shouldered, lazy, and almost shabby looking, not to mention the fact that they're always ill at ease in the presence of a grownup. On the other hand, my son, I'm happy to say, is alert, neat, straight, and confident. Is R. O. T. C. instruction the reason for the difference? I think so. I know this: I wish they'd had it in my day.

LOOKING FOR LIGHTS.

After many months of talk and little action they finally announced recently that sodium vapor lights were going to be installed at 67th street and Cicero avenue. I have yet to see them. What ever became of the project? Meantime people are still in danger of getting killed there, especially in bad weather.

JAMES SIMPSON LEADS THE FIELD FOR PARTY POST

Reveal Official Count on State Committee.

James Simpson Jr. of Wadsworth and Edward Sullivan of Chicago were the biggest Chicago district vote getters for state central committeeman in the April primary. This was shown last week with the announcement of the official vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

Simpson, former congressman from the 10th district, topped the Republican candidates, polling 51,982 votes, thereby unseating Committeeman Thomas J. Houston. Simpson got more votes than the three other candidates combined.

Simpson's nearest G. O. P. rival for vote honors was Committeeman Lester J. Norris in the 3d district. Norris, secretary of the state central committee, got 32,742 votes, snowing under four challengers.

Sullivan Is Unopposed.

Sullivan captured Democratic vote getting distinction with a total of 118,234. He was unopposed for the 6th district post being vacated voluntarily by Committeeman Richard M. Sullivan. Sullivan is secretary to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, and held a similar place under Mayor William E. Dever.

Another newcomer to the committee, former Ald. George D. Kells [28th] in the 7th district, was second high among the Democrats with 110,855 votes. He had no rivals for the committeemanship, relinquished by Joseph F. Higgins, who served two terms.

Here are the official vote totals for state central committeeman in the first ten congressional districts, the asterisks denoting incumbents and the bold face type designating the winners:

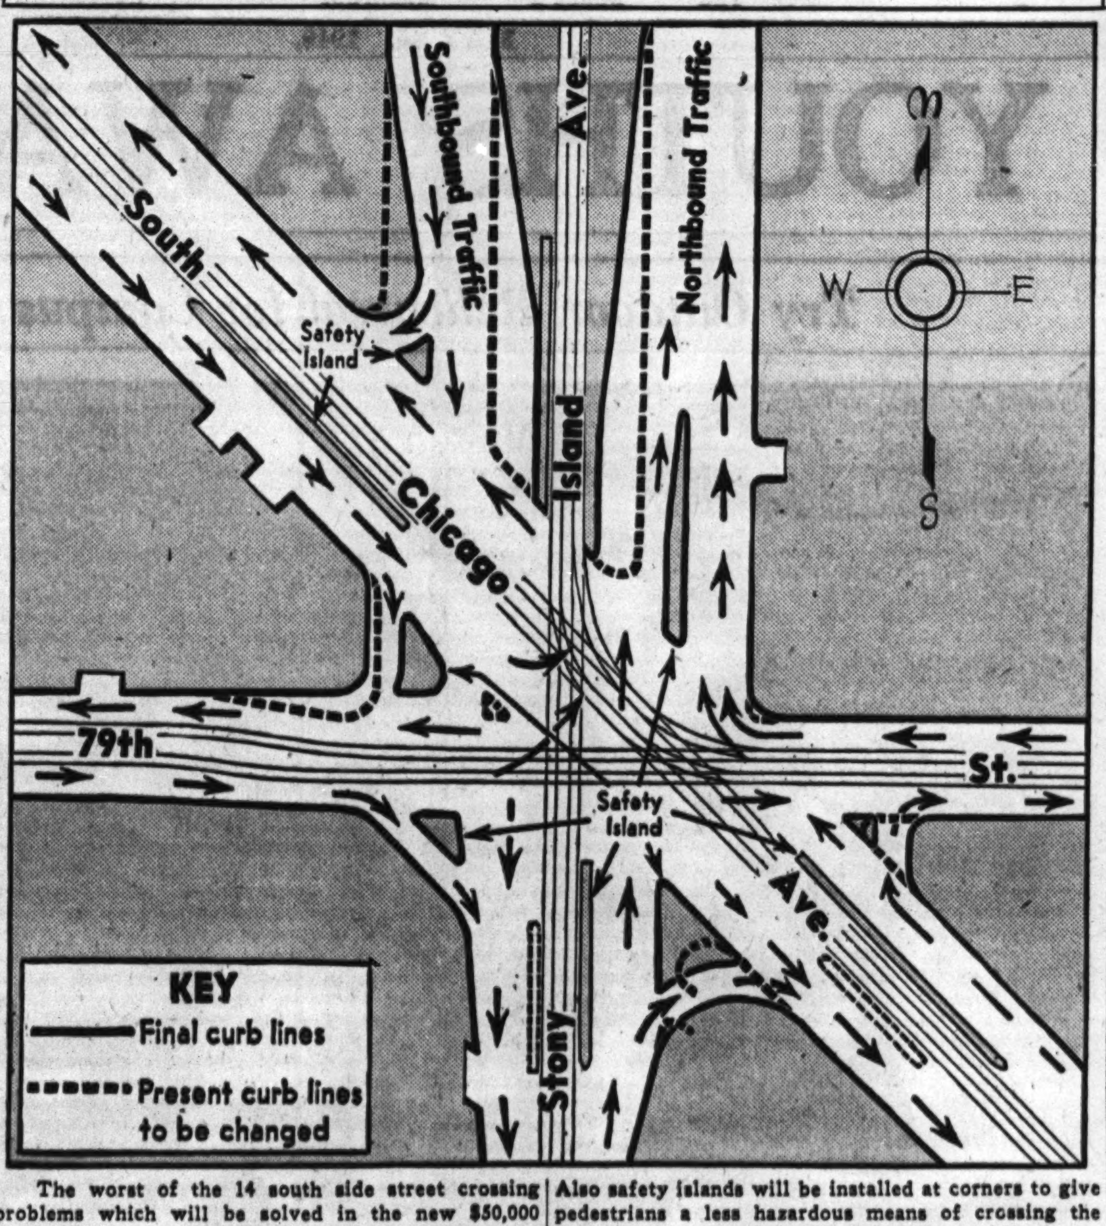
Means Smoother Flow of Traffic



The worst of the 14 south side street crossing problems which will be solved in the new $50,000 channelization program is the one at 79th street and South Chicago and Stony Island avenues. The parkways along the car tracks on Stony Island just north of South Chicago avenue will be removed in order to effect a smoother flow of traffic across the intersection. Also safety islands will be installed at corners to give pedestrians a less hazardous means of crossing the three way intersection. Motorists who wish to turn right must pass inside the safety islands. Work on the project will be started in about six weeks, according to the Chicago Motor club, which recommended the program.

P.-T. PRESIDENTS WILL REPORT AT SESSION TUESDAY

Oakenwald Unit Plans to Welcome Guests.

Southeast council of District 1 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold a president's report tea as guest of the Oakenwald P.-T. A. Tuesday in the school building, 4071 Lake Park avenue. Special guests will be Mrs. F. Russell Lyons, chairman of the Chicago Affairs committee and president-elect of the state congress; Mrs. W. S. Anderson, retiring director of District 1, and Mrs. Frank Williams, newly elected director of District 1.

Each president will give a report and introduce the president-elect of her association, together with the elected officers who will serve during the year. Mrs. P. J. Scheid, president of the Southeast council, will preside, and Mrs. Henry Fritz, 9534 Escanaba avenue, is social chairman.

The Rev. H. H. Goodwell will speak on "Youth's Responsibility to the Home" at the Mother's day meeting of the Tilden High school P.-T. A. Wednesday in the school, 4747 South Union avenue. In the morning the mothers will tour the school and at noon they will have luncheon with their sons. Mrs. Harry Halverson will preside at the meeting and Mrs. Arthur Guiladeau will install the new officers. Mrs. Harry Halverson, Mrs. Ralph Snyder, and Mrs. Carl Hansen represented the Tilden P.-T. A. at the state convention in Rock Island recently.

Kozminski P.-T. A.—The mothers' drama group will present a comedy entitled "Bargain Cure" at the last meeting of the year Friday afternoon in the auditorium of the school. The play will be directed by Theodore Kundrat of the adult education WPA program sponsored by the board of education. Mrs. Max H. Oppenheimer, president, will preside at the meeting and reports of the 1940 Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers convention at Rock Island will be given by delegates.

Mrs. Raymond Green, chairman of the newly organized summer roundup, has announced that a spring canvass of the community in search of children who will enter first grade at Kozminski will be conducted in order to have each child examined by doctors and dentists before school opens in the fall.

Park Manor P.-T. A.—"Health and the Public School" is the theme for the last meeting of the year in the school assembly hall Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Angela Cylkowski, district superintendent of schools, will be guest speaker. A Maypole dance will be given by pupils of the school and new officers will be installed.

Myra Bradwell P.-T. A.—A board meeting will be held at the Swedish club, 7330 Ridgeland avenue, Wednesday noon. Business will be discussed after the smorgasbord.

Avalon Park P.-T. A.—Members will be given a tour thru a food plant at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, May 14. Mrs. Oliver Olin, recreational chairman, is in charge of arrangements for transportation.

O'Keeffe P.-T. A.—The final meeting of the school year will be held Friday afternoon in the school auditorium. A flag raising ceremony by the patrol boys will be followed by the introduction and installation of the newly elected officers. They are Mrs. H. J. Goldberger, president; Mrs. B. L. Thompson, vice president; Mrs. L. L. Delson, recording secretary; Mrs. F. R. Carlson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. L. Shapiro, treasurer, and Mrs. Julia Thiel, auditor.

"What a Mother Should Know About Tuberculosis" is the title of the talk to be given by Mrs. Mary Palmer, special lecturer for the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook county, before the Henry Clay P.-T. A., 13231 Burley avenue, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A sound film, "Behind the Shadows," will be shown.

Community Club to Hear Author Speak on Liberty

The Southside Community club will meet at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the South Side Hebrew congregation, 74th street and Chappel avenue, to hear Carl Lyle Steiner speak on "The Blessings of Liberty." He is the author of the book, "The Real Meaning of the American Constitution."

LEGION WOMEN TO INITIATE NEW CLASS THIS WEEK

Eaton Priddy unit, American Legion auxiliary, will initiate a large class of new members Wednesday night at headquarters, 7936 Cottage Grove avenue. The formal initiation will be under the direction of Mrs. Evelyn La Chapelle, third district director, assisted by Mrs. Milan Stiles, alternate director. Eaton Priddy post of Chatham, and members of all auxiliary units of the 3d district will be guests.

Officers to be installed by Chesterfield squadron, Sons of the American Legion, this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Tuley Park fieldhouse, are Thomas Delaney Jr., captain; George Hiller, first lieutenant; Hugh McKee Jr., second lieutenant; James Cross Jr., adjutant; Fred G. Schroeter Jr., finance officer; John Hogan Jr., sergeant at arms; Robert E. Kinstedt, historian; and Joseph Zimmerman Jr., chaplain.

Surface Lines post recently was notified that its rifle team had won the Legion rifle team championship of the United States. In a contest covering 28 states, the Surface Lines team dethroned the Silver Bow team of Butte, Mont. In addition to capturing the McNutt trophy and the national championship, three members of the team won the first three individual high honor medals: J. A. Nielsen, 294; M. P. Nielsen, 293; and Andy Nygaard, 292.

CHURCH'S FIRST HOME A STORE—75 YEARS AGO

Trinity Lutheran to Hold Celebration.

Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church, 31st street and Lowe avenue, the oldest Lutheran church on the south side, is celebrating its diamond anniversary this week. Three special services today, one on Tuesday, one on Wednesday, and the Diamond Jubilee banquet on Thursday will be held in observance of the church's 75 years in the community.

The Rev. Arthur H. C. Both. [Volk Studio.]

Only three ministers besides the founder, the Rev. J. P. Beyer, have been called to the pulpit. They were the Rev. Ferdinand Doederlein, the Rev. Louis Lochner, and, for the last 30 years, the Rev. Arthur H. C. Both.

Prof. Edward Koehler of River Forest will preach today's first service, which will be in German, at 9:30 o'clock. He will preach in English at the second service at 10:45 o'clock. A reunion of confirmation classes will take place at 4 o'clock this afternoon with the Rev. F. C. Eseman of Racine, Wis., in the pulpit.

Balance of Program.

Christian education and young people's work will be the theme of the meeting Tuesday evening at 7:45 o'clock. On Wednesday afternoon at 1:30, there will be a special lecture for Ladies' Aid members. The banquet will be served by the Trinity Ladies' Aid at 6:30 Thursday.

The exact date of the organization of the church has been lost, but it is believed to have taken place some time in May, 1865. The church is an outgrowth of the Christian Day school.

The story of the school goes back to a day in the spring of 1865 when the Rev. J. P. Beyer, pastor of the Immanuel Evangelical Lutheran church, now at Roosevelt road and Ashland avenue, was walking down Archer avenue and saw a group of German immigrant children playing in the street.

Rented Vacant Store.

He thought the children should have a school, and he found a vacant store and rented it as a schoolroom. He built seats and desks from $3 worth of lumber, then went from house to house and asked parents to send their children to the Evangelical Lutheran school. He had no teacher, but he felt that one would come.

On the evening of the day he had solicited pupils, Beyer received a call from a German immigrant in need of help. The applicant turned out to be a teacher from Germany, and Beyer hired him for the school.

Only three children came for the first day's lessons, but the classes were filled before the first week closed. Beyer began preaching regularly at the school, and thus Trinity church began.

New Site in 1906.

When the congregation was formally organized, lots were purchased at Canal street and 25th place. A combination school and church building was erected. Later, it was replaced by one of the finest Lutheran church homes of its period. The Canal street and 25th place site was abandoned in 1906 for the present location.

Trinity church started mission schools in the Town of Lake, Bridgeport, Brighton, and the far south side. These schools eventually became congregations. They are: St. Martini, organized in 1884, at 51st street and Marshfield avenue; Holy Cross, 1886, at 31st place and Racine avenue; St. Andrews, 1888, at 37th and Honore streets, and Timothy, 1933, at 83d and Paulina streets.

Trinity church services were exclusively in German at first. Now the services are in English, altho one German service is held each Sunday for the older men and women of the congregation.

SORORITY OPENS 4 DAY MEETING NEXT THURSDAY

National officers will be elected at the opening meeting of the four-day convention of Phi Lambda Delta sorority next Thursday at the Congress hotel. Mrs. Ann Jeuk, president, and Lothorial King, convention chairman, will preside.

The officers will be installed at the annual banquet in the hotel on Friday night, at which time Filada degrees and special honors also will be conferred. The convention will be held in the Congress Casino on Saturday and the convention will close with a Mother's day luncheon in the Florentine room on Sunday afternoon.

The officers of Phi Lambda Delta beside Mrs. Jeuk are Lothorial King, vice president; Jewel Fonda, second vice president; Eileen Root, treasurer; Leona Brodt, recording secretary; Blanche Steadman, corresponding secretary; Beulah Bergholt, custodian of supplies; Jeanette Jodor, editor; Martha Meyers, publicity chairman.

How the Lilacs Cheer Tour of Visiting Nurse

"Hospital patients do see flowers, but our patients see four walls, week in and week out, sometimes year in and year out!" Thus Miss Marion Kirkcaldy, head of the Visiting Nurse association station at 734 West 47th street, illustrates what lilacs mean to the shut-ins and the sick of her district.

Miss Kirkcaldy has been at her station for 20 years, serving the ill of the stockyards area and going as far east as the lake. She and her corps of 30 nurses are looking forward to lilac day, the occasion when blooms are distributed to hospitals and to many welfare organizations in the city.

The flowers are contributed thru the "Share Your Lilacs" campaign sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower and Fruit guild and THE TRIBUNE.

Meets Spiritual Needs.

"Our patients expect the nurses, of course," Miss Kirkcaldy explains, "but when the nurse comes with a bouquet of flowers—well, then she ministers to the spiritual as well as the physical needs. We get the summer flowers, but the lilacs come first, so they mean much after the dull days of winter."

Miss Kirkcaldy says the flowers represent a message of good will between the "haves" and the "have nots," and they "provide a little boost for the sick one. Really, a few flowers for one of our patients is the equivalent of going to a picnic."

Perhaps the greatest good the flowers do, the veteran nurse believes, is to give the patient the sense that someone, somewhere is thinking of him. "A short, snappy sickness is the best kind," she says, "because folks do remember for a little while. But when the months and years go on, the patient is shut away from the world, forgotten, often alone.

Helps Permanently Ill.

"We try to see that the long-time sick ones get the flowers. We have many accident cases, men, women, children, crippled for life. We have the old. It is bad enough to be old and sick, but to be old, sick and alone—anyone in that situation needs lilacs, all right!"

The nurses go to homes where there are no flower containers, so they hunt a fruit jar, a milk bottle, anything that will hold water and blossoms.

Miss Kirkcaldy suggests that the strong, sweet scent of the lilacs is "a welcome contrast to the aroma we frequently have out here." So the patients have perfume as well as beauty in the bouquets.

Altho the flowers are already divided many, many ways, V. N. A. representatives find that many of their patients want to share their bouquets. Consequently the blossoms that were meant for one often are divided among several friends.

The nurses fix the flower lists so that the most seriously ill are remembered first. If one patient should be so fortunate as to receive flowers every week, it would be because of the seriousness of his condition. Most surprised and pleased, perhaps, are the new mothers. "They usually think that they have received all they could possibly expect," Miss Kirkcaldy explains, "and they are almost awed that we bring flowers, too."

Care for 1,000 Monthly.

Miss Kirkcaldy and her nurses care for an average of 1,000 patients each month. They must often build fires, fix meals, clean up the house or the children as well as care for the patient. Yet, they are glad to deliver flowers, too, for "doing an extra kindness is good for the nurses," Miss Kirkcaldy says.

This year's lilac day will be the 12th annual occasion for sharing the flowers. The exact date will be announced when guild workers know the lilacs will bloom. Suburban trains will carry the flowers to Chicago, and TRIBUNE trucks will make deliveries.

Guild members point out that the flowers should be cut the night before and placed in cold water. They last better that way than when picked just before shipment.

Students of Aquinas High school will present a Mothers' day program at the meeting of the Aquinas High School Mothers' club at 2 o'clock Thursday in the school auditorium, 72d street and Clyde avenue. The program will be followed by the annual meeting and election of officers.

Mrs. George P. Boysen, 2304 East 77th street, chairman of the house committee, will be assisted by Mrs. Edward Van Reeth, 7631 Merrill avenue; Mrs. Laurence A. Goddard, 7539 Yates avenue; Mrs. W. J. Cleary, 8422 Dante avenue; Mrs. Joseph Strub, 1519 East 86th street; Thomas Jordan, 3397 Archer avenue; Mrs. S. J. Mills, 7656 Luella avenue, ad Mrs. M. J. McGrath, 1715 East 86th place.

Mrs. John J. O'Neill, 6442 Sacramento avenue, is president of the organization.

Problems Facing Chicago Theme for Church Forum

"Some Problems Facing Chicago" will be the subject of a talk by Ald. Paul H. Douglas [5th], professor of economics at the University of Chicago, for the Sunday Community Forum of Grace Presbyterian church, 3600 Vincennes avenue, at 5 o'clock today. Ald. Douglas will be introduced by Ald. Earl S. Dickerson [2d]. A musical program and the election of officers and appointment of committees for the coming year will follow his talk.

Try Outdoor Rehearsal for Campus Sing

One of the nice things about spring is that it has taken co-eds like these outdoors on the University of Chicago campus. Members of the Esoteric club, the girls opened their songsheets under a budding tree last week to practice for the university's third annual interclub sing to be held on the Ida Noyes hall terrace, 59th street and Kimbark avenue, at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The Esoteric club will offer "We Pledge to Esoteric" and "Come Sing, My Sisters." Above are Betty Lou Furry (front center) and (left to right) Doris Daniels, president of the organization; Janet Wagner, Shirley Latham, Anne Haight, Marge Brown, and Jane Myers. Thirteen campus clubs will participate in the contest and several hundred persons are expected to attend. Last year the Pi Delta Phi club won, followed by Chi Rho Sigma and Quadrangular.

CHEER LINDBLOM AT THIS WEEK'S CITIZEN RALLY

W-G-N Show to Tell Origin of Slogan.

"This is Lindblom!"

That cry will open the sixth of the "Citizens of Tomorrow" radio shows of W-G-N at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening. The programs, which run a half hour, are sponsored by THE TRIBUNE.

Butler Laughlin.

How the slogan became a tradition of this 20 year old Chicago high school will be explained during the broadcast which will feature the Lindblom chorus, under the direction of Miss Hannah Rosenthal. As special guest of the evening performance, which will be attended by 600 students from Lindblom, will be Butler Laughlin, the school's principal.

School Groups Coöperate.

These broadcasts, dedicated to the youth of America, emphasize the many factors of today's high school which train students for responsible citizenship. The broadcasts are being presented thru the coöperation of the radio council and the music department of the Chicago public schools.

Especially popular has become The Tribune news quiz, which is conducted by Philip Maxwell, a member of this newspaper's editorial staff, who plays the rôle of "The Principal." Six students are selected from the audience by Announcer Pierre Andre just before going on the air and Mr. Maxwell presents each of the winners with a $5 bill.

"I'm glad I have the answers written down," replied the "Principal" after a show, when one of the spectators commented on the alertness and intelligence of the contestants. The W-G-N sound effects department and Harold Turner, pianist, participate in this part of the entertainment.

Give Information on Graduates.

Information on some of the graduates of Lindblom will be related by Ed Sprague, who takes the character of the "School Engineer," and "Jerry," every school's co-ed, will be back to tell how "super" everything is at Lindblom.

A party of 20 students from Emerson High school in Gary, Ind., also will be guests of THE TRIBUNE Wednesday night. They are senior students who publish the school's year book. Following the broadcast they also will see "Trees to Tribune," a talking movie, and will be taken on a tour of Tribune Tower with a hundred Lindblom students.

Thirty boys and girls from a school other than the one appearing on the program will be guests at the broadcast each week. Requests for places should come from the principal or superintendent. Address them to Philip Maxwell at THE TRIBUNE.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY TO HEAR POLITICAL RESUME OF WOODLAWN

Dr. Charles E. Merriam, head of the political science department at the University of Chicago, will speak at the spring meeting of the Woodlawn Historical society at 8 o'clock Friday evening at the Woodlawn branch library, 6247 Kimbark avenue. The title of his address will be "Early Political History of Woodlawn and to the Present Day."

Dr. Van Tuyl.

Edward J. Chladek is program chairman and Dr. Harry I. Van Tuyl is president of the society. Mrs. Paul I. Pierson will be assisted at the tea table by Mrs. Van Tuyl. Vocal selections will be given by Mrs. Arlene Ross and her daughter, Marilyn.

Dr. Van Tuyl is assisted by Mrs. Pierson, vice president; Mrs. Nettie Goss, recording secretary; Miss Margaret Huleatte, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur C. Bennett, treasurer; Miss Julia Baker, librarian; Frank M. Phillis, membership, and Mrs. George Payson, publicity.

ST. JOHN CADET GUARDS CHOSEN FOR HEIL VISIT

Cadet Captain Robert Arens of 6825 Constance avenue has been appointed commander of the honor guard to Gov. Julius Heil of Wisconsin for the occasion of his visit to St. John's Military academy, Delafield, Wis., scheduled for May 28. The governor's annual visit includes an inspection of the academy's R. O. T. C. regiment.

Other Chicago cadets appointed to official positions in the guard are Charles E. Bachman, 6859 Oleander avenue, commander of the 2d platoon; William H. Jacob, 6120 North Knox avenue, guidon bearer; Norbert C. Smith, 6201 North Knox avenue, a sergeant, and Roy G. Mitchell, 5653 Winthrop avenue, a guide.

Others among the 60 members of the guard are Leslie F. Carpenter, 647 Linden street, Oak Park; Alexander and Anthony Andros, 2244 Winona street; Bertram C. Cushway, 9729 South Hoyne avenue; Robert G. Dammann, 6554 North Maplewood avenue; Constantine Damofle, 163 West Oak street; Lawrence E. Gilford, 508 Aldine avenue; Robert E. Hennessey, 7946 Avalon avenue; John R. Horton, 2003 West 103d street; Fred O. Kalinka, 4174 North Clarendon avenue; Joseph W. Krupicka, 6500 Cermak road, Berwyn; Joseph F. Kunz, 4500 Montana street; Winfield C. Rice Jr., Stevens hotel, and Eugene L. Solomon, 14 West Elm street.

Plans Travel Talk.

C. Franklin Smith, traveler, lecturer, and newspaper man, will give the last in his series of travel talks at 8:15 o'clock Thursday evening at Grand Crossing park, 76th street and Ingleside avenue.

CHANNELIZATION TO CUT DANGER AT 14 CROSSINGS

Traffic and Pedestrians Both to Benefit.

[Diagram on page 2.]

Fourteen of the south side's most hazardous street crossings will benefit from the new $50,000 program to eliminate pedestrian and traffic problems at 45 of the city's busiest intersections. Work on the project is expected to begin within six weeks, according to the South Area Council of the Chicago Motor club, which has been advocating the plan.

Details of the proposal, which were sent to area council members last week by Commissioner of Streets Joseph J. Butler, indicate that the work will consist primarily of channelization.

Serve Three Purposes.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the Motor club, explained that the plans of the city engineers will serve three purposes: [1] eliminate confusion among vehicles by confining them to their own lanes, [2] provide havens of refuge for harassed pedestrians, and [3] permit a more efficient control of traffic.

South side intersections which will receive channelization treatment are: Commercial, South Chicago and 93d; Cottage Grove, South Chicago and 71st; Cottage Grove, Vincennes and 35th; Ewing and Indianapolis; Ewing, 95th and Avenue L; Indiana, Cottage Grove and Cermak; Stony Island, South Chicago and 79th; Stony Island and 69th; Wentworth, Vincennes and 75th; Yale, Vincennes and 75th; Yates, South Chicago and 87th; Mackinaw and 92d; Perry, Vincennes and 71st, and South Chicago and 95th.

Help for Pedestrians.

An illustration of the safety these alterations will give pedestrians may be found at the South Chicago-Stony Island-79th street crossing. At the present time a pedestrian at the southwest corner of 79th street and Stony Island avenue who wishes to get to the southeast corner of 79th street and South Chicago avenue usually travels across 124 feet of street with no protection. When the channelization is effected, he may cross in four "jumps," the longest of which is 42 feet.

The project will be financed from motor fuel tax funds. State approval has been given and only a few details must be cleared up before work begins.

HYDE PARK HIGH PLANS TO PUT OUT HANDBOOK

A new "acquaintance" handbook will be published by students at Hyde Park High school soon under the authorization of Joseph Gonnelly, principal. The book will explain student requirements, rules and purposes of clubs, describe extracurricular activities, and give names of grade advisers.

The book is being written and edited by members of the Hyde Park weekly newspaper staff and the journalism class, directed by Miss Evelyn Slater. Lucille Buck, 6039 Woodlawn avenue, is chairman of the staff.

BISHOP OF MISSOURI WILL BE SPEAKER AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

The Rt. Rev. William Scarlett, Episcopal bishop of Missouri, will speak on the "Failure of Imagination" before the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall. Clifford W. Barnes will preside.

The Rt. Rev. William Scarlett.

Educated at Harvard and the Episcopal Theological seminary at Cambridge, Mass., Bishop Scarlett is regarded, even by those outside his communion, as a contemporary religious pioneer. He is liberal in his views and sponsored inter-faith services in Christ Church cathedral, St. Louis. He was elevated to the episcopate in 1933.

The speaker at the 7 o'clock meeting will be Dr. Henry Smith Leiper, American secretary of the World Council of Churches. For many years Dr. Leiper was a student missionary in China. The music at the earlier meeting will be sung by Ebenezer Lutheran church choir conducted by George Carlson.

JUVENILE CRIME PROMPTS URBAN LEAGUE PARLEY

The Chicago Urban league will make a systematic effort to solve the juvenile crime and vice problem as it pertains particularly to the south central area tomorrow. A conference to be held at the Bethesda Baptist church, 5301 South Michigan avenue, will include a panel discussion in the afternoon and a town meeting in the evening. The citizens committee on juvenile delinquency and the Chicago law enforcement commission are coöperating in the campaign.

One of the highlights of the afternoon session will be incidents told by police officers in the district, according to Mrs. Lovelyn Evans, general chairman of the citizens committee which has been conducting a crime-prevention drive for two months. The committee will give reports on conferences with P.-T. A. officials, school principals and teachers, business men, neighborhood improvement clubs, and youth agencies which have helped to analyze the problem.

Speakers in the panel discussion will be Richard Jones, department store manager; Melville Killiner, realtor; Mrs. Ruth Jackson, principal of Colman school; Mrs. Sadye Brown, representing P.-T. A.'s; the Rev. H. N. Marbly of St. Matthew's Methodist church; Mrs. Mattie Waters, instructor at the Urban League School for Girls; and Lieut. Harry Costello of the police department.

Officers Charles McGuire, James Foster, Earl Wilson and Sylvester Washington of the 48th street police station, commanded by Capt. William Byrne, will be present. Officers McGuire and Foster have been assigned to a special detail working with the youth department of the league.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

FOUR Latin scholars from Aquinas Dominican High school went to Knox college, Galesburg, yesterday to compete in the state Latin contest. All survived the sectional elimination, giving Acquinas first place in that competition, and all were given ratings of superior in the district examinations. The girls are Betty Ryan, 7742 Clyde avenue; Johanna Husslein, 7324 Phillips avenue; Catherine Walsh, 7255 Constance avenue, and Alice Hitzeman, 6106 Richmond avenue. If Betty, who took the fourth year examinations, is declared one of the seven winners in the state contest, she will receive a scholarship to a midwestern university or college.

Betty Ryan. [College studio.]

Miss Bernice Markunis of 2231 East 67th street, will conduct the spring festival concerts to be given by the schools of Mount Prospect, Wilmette, and Norwood Park this month. A graduate of Hyde Park High school, Miss Markunis will receive her degree in music education in June.

THE difficult technique of fencing has been fairly well mastered by Art Cohen, Leon Strauss, and Herb Winter of Hyde Park High school. They comprise the school's first string fencing team which won all but one of its meets this year and took third in the state tournament held recently in Bartlett gymnasium of the University of Chicago under the auspices of the Amateur Fencing League of America. Hyde Park's second stringers were Carl Hoecker, Ross Beyon, and Don Walberg.

William C. Schaubel, who has been tenor soloist at Trinity Episcopal church, 26th street and Michigan avenue, will be special guest at a celebration today. He will sing solos at the 11 o'clock service and later will be fêted at a luncheon to be given by friends in the parish and a gift will be presented to him. The celebration is being sponsored by the Rev. John R. Pickells, rector of Trinity church, and the wardens and vestrymen of the parish. Mr. Schaubel is librarian of the Northerners, radio singers, and a member of the Oriental consistory quartet, the Hamilton chorus, and the Medinah chanters.

TEN Our Towners will turn comics Tuesday and Wednesday evenings when the Nazareth Walther league presents a three act comedy entitled "That's One on Bill" in the church hall, 60th street and Spaulding avenue. Kenneth Kohn will play the leading rôle, supported by Martin Kuhn, Arthur Wunglueck, Henry Mathefs, Harry Lindbloom, Ruth Bunde, Shirley Krause, Ruth Lynd, Carola Novak, and La Verne Rantz. Miss Edna Bless is directing the production.

Three amateur actresses from the south area have been assigned important rôles in "The Royal Family," the George Kaufman-Edna Ferber comedy which will be produced by the De Paul university Little Theater group Monday and Tuesday evenings in the De Paul Little theater, 64 East Lake street. They are Miss Elizabeth Rozek of 5127 Nashville avenue; Miss Henriette Borowski of East Chicago, and Miss Jacqueline Pearse, 9857 Hamilton avenue. The play, based on the Barrymore family, is the sixth major production of the season for the theater.

MICHIGAN TOWNS ARE READY FOR BLOSSOM FETE

Nearly half a million visitors are expected to visit St. Joseph and Benton Harbor this week for the 18th annual blossom festival. Climax of the event will be a floral parade on Saturday which will include miles of floats, hundreds of Michigan's pretty girls, 35 bands, and marching units of various types.

The queen of the festival will be chosen tomorrow evening from young ladies representing 21 Michigan communities. The queen will be crowned by Miss Patricia Donnelly of Detroit, Mich., Miss America of 1939, at a coronation pageant Tuesday evening.

The week's program will include a photo salon in the Whitcomb hotel, St. Joseph; an art exhibit in the St. Joseph Y. M. C. A.; a horticulture exhibit, with Elmer Beamer commissioner of agriculture, in charge, on Tuesday; an acrobatic show, queen's dinner, and industrial ball on Thursday; a pet parade and a mummers' parade on Friday, and a baton twirling contest and a "Night of Nights" ball on Saturday.

ARMOUR ANNUAL JUNIOR WEEK TO BEGIN TUESDAY

Armour institute's 35th annual Junior week will begin Tuesday with open house from 7 to 10 o'cock in the evening and continue again on Wednesday from 1 to 10 p. m. Mechanica,l electrical, civil, and chemical engineering, physics, and chemistry laboratories will be open. The research foundation will be open, also. Climaxing the week's activities will be the junior informal Friday evening at the Westward Ho country club.

SOUTH AND WEST UNITS TO HAVE FIRST PARADES

Honor Ratings Hinge on Performance.

The "big day" for Chicagoland's 11,750 R. O. T. C. cadets—the day of the federal inspection for which they have drilled and drilled to the hopeful commands of their youthful officers—is just around the corner. Beginning this week and lasting thru May 27 the inspection ceremonies will take place for the 35 high school units in Chicago and its suburbs. The first nine inspections this week will start Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock when the Hirsch High school regiment is examined at Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street.

Some 620 cadets who have made outstanding records during the current semester will receive medals, nearly all of which will be presented at the time of inspection. Two hundred and thirty-five of the awards will be given by THE TRIBUNE, which each semester donates one medal for every 50 cadets, gold for upperclassmen and silver for freshmen.

Other Medal Donors.

Nearly 200 medals are given by R. O. T. C. headquarters twice a year for efficiency, neatness, success in recruiting, and rifle marksmanship. At the 27 public high schools in the city with R. O. T. C. training these medals will be presented by Col. William F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics for the Chicago public school system. Other awards are given by representatives of the American Legion, the Reserve Officers association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and the United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary. Cadets who will receive the various medals are selected by the military instructors at the respective schools.

The appointment of Maj. Norman M. Nelsen, attached to the University of Wisconsin, as officer in charge of all inspections here has been announced thru 6th Corps area headquarters. In the inspections he will take into account appearance, neatness, drill, map reading, first aid, combat principles, musketry, and other points in military theory and practice. On the completion of all inspections the best trained units will receive the title of honor schools, the highest possible mark.

At the first inspection of Chicago high school R. O. T. C. units as organized under the National Defence act of 1920, there were two honor schools—Crane Tech and Schurz. That was in 1921. In recent years there have been six or seven honor schools each semester.

Colors for the Best.

To the schools rated No. 1 and No. 2 THE TRIBUNE will present stands of colors embodying the school's emblem and American flag. This ceremony will take place at the annual Michigan avenue review, held about a week after the last inspection and sponsored by the board of education and THE TRIBUNE.

Inspections this week will take place at the following schools [in the event of rain they will be in the school gymnasiums]:

Tuesday—Hirsch, 9 a. m., Grand Crossing park, Ingleside avenue and 78th street; Bowen, 1:15 p. m., Bessemer park, 2710 East 89th street.

Wednesday—Du Sable, 9 a. m., Washington park, 51st street and Cottage Grove avenue; Hyde Park, 1:15 p. m., Jackson park, 63d street and Stony Island avenue.

Thursday—Calumet, 9 a. m., school campus, 8100 South Aberdeen street; Harper, 1:15 p. m., school campus, 6520 South Wood street.

Friday—Lindblom, 9 a. m., Ogden park, 64th street and Racine avenue; Austin, 1:15 p. m., Columbus park, Jackson boulevard and Central avenue.

Saturday—Evanston, 9 a. m., school campus, Church street and Dodge avenue, Evanston.

Medals at Evanston High school will not be presented until the school's annual R. O. T. C. banquet, June 1.

The following south side cadets will be awarded medals at the inspections to be held this week:

Hirsch.

Capt. Bernard Mamet, officer's efficiency medal; Sergt. David Bolle, noncommissioned officer's efficiency medal; Corporal Donald Melvoin, band efficiency medal; Cadets Richard Saxe and John Milne, neatness medals; First Lieutenant William Savage, recruiting medal; Second Lieutenant Edward Smith and Capt. Robert Elghammer, rifle marksmanship medals. Tribune medals will go to Capt. Arthur Markus, Capt. Robert Elghammer, First Sergeant John Johnston, Corporal Howard Powell, and Cadets Gordon Williamson and Harold Duffy.

Maj. Leroy Bieringer, Reserve Officer association medal; First Lieutenant Donald Estrin, United Spanish War Veterans medal; Corporal George Shoemaker, Veterans of Foreign Wars medal; and Staff Sergeant Robert Maher the American Legion auxiliary medal. Medals awarded by Eaton Priddy Legion post will go to Capt. William Presler, Capt. Robert Robinette, First Sergeant Howard Shapira, Sergeant William Cristy, and Cadets Robert Hornbeck and John Roblin.

Bowen.

First Lieutenant Robert Shaw, officer's efficiency medal; Sergeant Richard A. Fogg, noncommissioned offi-

FATHER PRAISES R. O. T. C.

It always amuses me to hear high school boys of today going around jeering at the R. O. T. C. and deriding boys who take it seriously. I am only a father, not a student, so I'm not in close contact with the boys and consequently can't say that the cadets are actually superior to the noncadets, but it certainly looks like it from what I've seen around the school and in my home. My boy is a cadet at Bowen High school, and those of his friends who aren't in the training are round shouldered, lazy, and almost shabby looking, not to mention the fact that they're always ill at ease in the presence of a grownup. On the other hand, my son, I'm happy to say, is alert, neat, straight, and confident. Is R. O. T. C. instruction the reason for the difference? I think so. I know this: I wish they'd had it in my day.

LOOKING FOR LIGHTS.

After many months of talk and little action they finally announced recently that sodium vapor lights were going to be installed at 67th street and Cicero avenue. I have yet to see them. What ever became of the project? Meantime people are still in danger of getting killed there, especially in bad weather.

Community Club to Hear Author Speak on Liberty

The Southside Community club will meet at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the South Side Hebrew congregation, 74th street and Chappel avenue, to hear Carl Lyle Steiner speak on "The Blessings of Liberty." He is the author of the book, "The Real Meaning of the American Constitution."

JAMES SIMPSON LEADS THE FIELD FOR PARTY POST

Reveal Official Count on State Committee.

James Simpson Jr. of Wadsworth and Edward Sullivan of Chicago were the biggest Chicago district vote getters for state central committeeman in the April primary. This was shown last week with the announcement of the official vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

Simpson, former congressman from the 10th district, topped the Republican candidates, polling 51,982 votes, thereby unseating Committeeman Thomas J. Houston. Simpson got more votes than the three other candidates combined.

Simpson's nearest G. O. P. rival for vote honors was Committeeman Lester J. Norris in the 3d district. Norris, secretary of the state central committee, got 32,742 votes, snowing under four challengers.

Sullivan Is Unopposed.

Sullivan captured Democratic vote getting distinction with a total of 118,234. He was unopposed for the 6th district post being vacated voluntarily by Committeeman Richard M. Sullivan. Sullivan is secretary to Corporation Counsel Barnet Hodes, and held a similar place under Mayor William E. Dever.

Another newcomer to the committee, former Ald. George D. Kells [28th] in the 7th district, was second high among the Democrats with 110,855 votes. He had no rivals for the committeemanship, relinquished by Joseph F. Higgins, who served two terms.

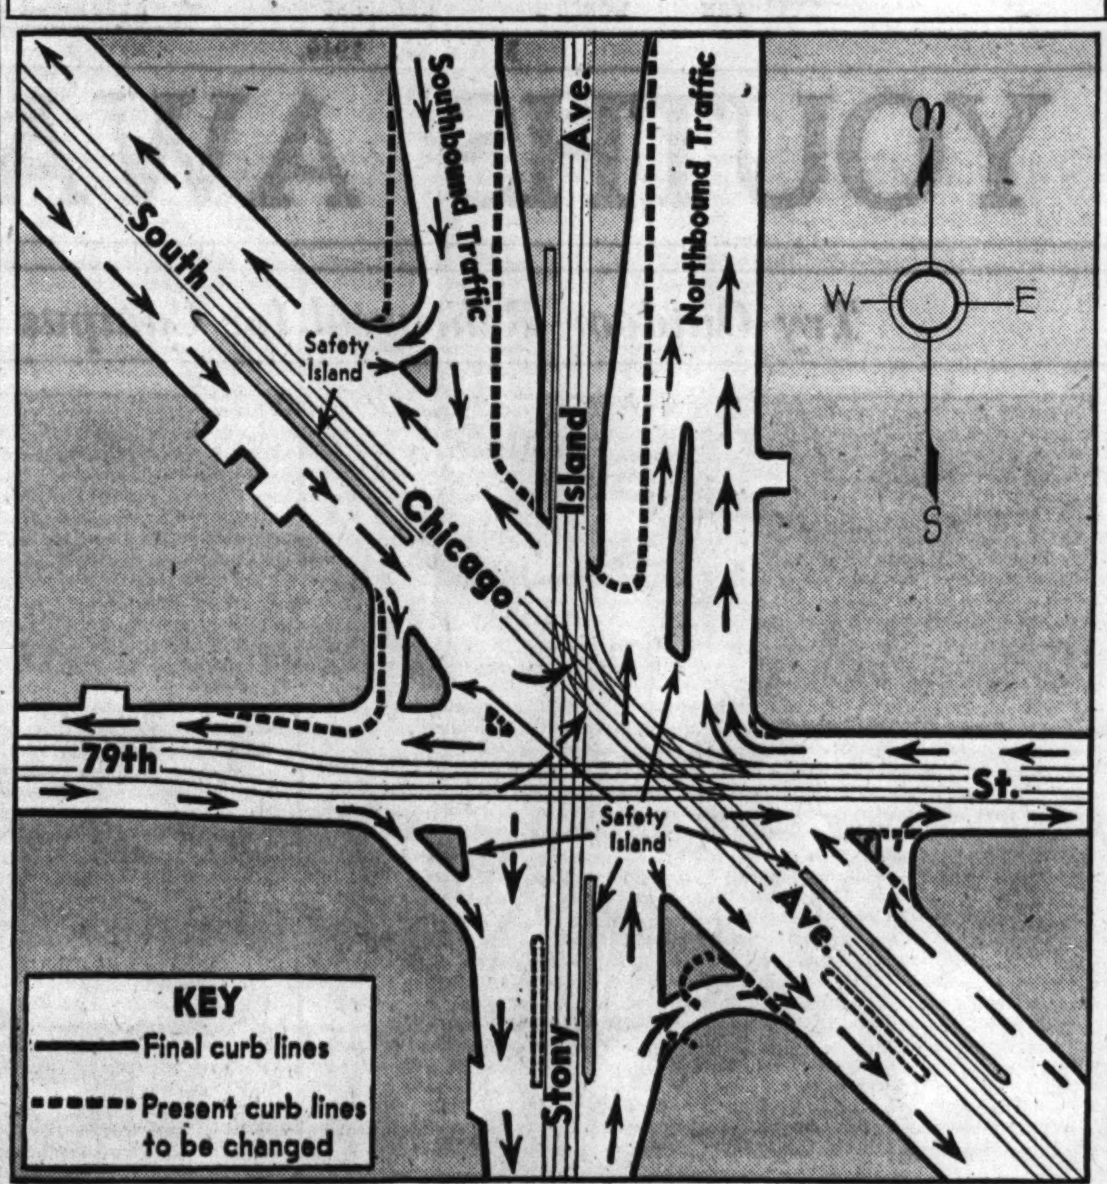
The first nine districts are wholly within Cook county. The 10th includes part of Cook and all of Lake county.

Means Smoother Flow of Traffic



The worst of the 14 south side street crossing problems which will be solved in the new $50,000 channelization program is the one at 79th street and South Chicago and Stony Island avenues. The parkways along the car tracks on Stony Island just north of South Chicago avenue will be removed in order to effect a smoother flow of traffic across the intersection. Also safety islands will be installed at corners to give pedestrians a less hazardous means of crossing the three way intersection. Motorists who wish to turn right must pass inside the safety islands. Work on the project will be started in about six weeks, according to the Chicago Motor club, which recommended the program.

LEGION WOMEN TO INITIATE NEW CLASS THIS WEEK

Eaton Priddy unit, American Legion auxiliary, will initiate a large class of new members Wednesday night at headquarters, 7936 Cottage Grove avenue. The formal initiation will be under the direction of Mrs. Evelyn La Chapelle, third district director, assisted by Mrs. Milan Stiles, alternate director. Eaton Priddy post of Chatham, and members of all auxiliary units of the 3d district will be guests.

Officers to be installed by Chesterfield squadron, Sons of the American Legion, this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Tuley Park fieldhouse, are Thomas Delaney Jr., captain; George Hiller, first lieutenant; Hugh McKee Jr., second lieutenant; James Cross Jr., adjutant; Fred G. Schroeter Jr., finance officer; John Hogan Jr., sergeant at arms; Robert E. Kinstedt, historian; and Joseph Zimmerman Jr., chaplain.

Surface Lines post recently was notified that its rifle team had won the Legion rifle team championship of the United States. In a contest covering 28 states, the Surface Lines team dethroned the Silver Bow team of Butte, Mont. In addition to capturing the McNutt trophy and the national championship, three members of the team won the first three individual high honor medals: J. A. Nielsen, 294; M. P. Nielsen, 293; and Andy Nygaard, 292.

P.-T. PRESIDENTS WILL REPORT AT SESSION TUESDAY

Oakenwald Unit Plans to Welcome Guests.

Southeast council of District 1 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold a president's report tea as guest of the Oakenwald P.-T. A. Tuesday in the school building, 4071 Lake Park avenue. Special guests will be Mrs. F. Russell Lyons, chairman of the Chicago Affairs committee and president-elect of the state congress; Mrs. W. S. Anderson, retiring director of District 1, and Mrs. Frank Williams, newly elected director of District 1.

Each president will give a report and introduce the president-elect of her association, together with the elected officers who will serve during the year. Mrs. P. J. Scheid, president of the Southeast council, will preside, and Mrs. Henry Fritz, 9534 Escanaba avenue, is social chairman.

The Rev. H. H. Goodwell will speak on "Youth's Responsibility to the Home" at the Mother's day meeting of the Tilden High school P.-T. A. Wednesday in the school, 4747 South Union avenue. In the morning the mothers will tour the school and at noon they will have luncheon with their sons. Mrs. Harry Halverson will preside at the meeting and Mrs. Arthur Guilladeau will install the new officers. Mrs. Harry Halverson, Mrs. Ralph Snyder, and Mrs. Carl Hansen represented the Tilden P.-T. A. at the state convention in Rock Island recently.

Kozminski P.-T. A.—The mothers' drama group will present a comedy entitled "Bargain Cure" at the last meeting of the year Friday afternoon in the auditorium of the school. The play will be directed by Theodore Kundrat of the adult education WPA program sponsored by the board of education. Mrs. Max H. Oppenheimer, president, will preside at the meeting and reports of the 1940 Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers convention at Rock Island will be given by delegates.

Mrs. Raymond Green, chairman of the newly organized summer roundup, has announced that a spring canvass of the community in search of children who will enter first grade at Kozminski will be conducted in order to have each child examined by doctors and dentists before school opens in the fall.

Park Manor P.-T. A.—"Health and the Public School" is the theme for the last meeting of the year in the school assembly hall Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Angela Cylkowski, district superintendent of schools, will be guest speaker. A Maypole dance will be given by pupils of the school and new officers will be installed.

Myra Bradwell P.-T. A.—A board meeting will be held at the Swedish club, 7330 Ridgeland avenue, Wednesday noon. Business will be discussed after the smorgasbord.

Avalon Park P.-T. A.—Members will be given a tour thru a food plant at 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, May 14. Mrs. Oliver Olin, recreational chairman, is in charge of arrangements for transportation.

O'Keeffe P.-T. A.—The final meeting of the school year will be held Friday afternoon in the school auditorium. A flag raising ceremony by the patrol boys will be followed by the introduction and installation of the newly elected officers. They are Mrs. H. J. Goldberger, president; Mrs. B. L. Thompson, vice president; Mrs. L. L. Delson, recording secretary; Mrs. F. R. Carlson, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. L. Shapiro, treasurer, and Mrs. Julia Thiel, auditor.

"What a Mother Should Know About Tuberculosis" is the title of the talk to be given by Mrs. Mary Palmer, special lecturer for the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook county, before the Henry Clay P.-T. A., 13231 Burley avenue, at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. A sound film, "Behind the Shadows," will be shown.

CALUMET REGION MUSIC FESTIVAL HEARD TONIGHT

500 Musicians to Take Part in Program.

More than five hundred singers and instrumentalists will participate in the third annual Calumet Region Music festival at 8:15 o'clock this evening in the Roosevelt High school auditorium, East Chicago. The program is sponsored by the Calumet center of the Indiana university extension division, in coöperation with the city schools of Hammond, Whiting, East Chicago, Gary, Hobart, and other Lake county communities.

Robert L. Sanders.

Music will be presented by the Calumet Symphony orchestra and the East Chicago Male chorus, both conducted by Robert J. White; the Hammond Orpheus choir, conducted by George Calder; the Farrar Choral club of East Chicago, conducted by Miss Mary Lou Clark; the Hammond combined Mothersingers, conducted by Miss Mildred Harder; the Public Service Male chorus of Hammond, conducted by Mr. Calder; the Gary Municipal chorus, conducted by John M. Wigent, and the Michigan City Civic chorus, directed by H. E. Ten Harkle.

Will Be Guest Conductor.

Guest conductor will be Robert L. Sanders, American composer and dean of the Indiana university school of music. Mr. Sanders, who has been guest conductor for the Chicago Symphony and the Illinois Symphony orchestras during recent years, will direct the orchestra in one of his own compositions, a rural fantasy of four original melodies entitled "Saturday Night—a Barn Dance."

Miss Lillian Christopher, music teacher in the East Chicago public schools, will be guest soloist, singing "The Wren" [Benedict], accompanied by the orchestra, with a flute obbligato by John Melton.

Officers of Groups.

Officers of the East Chicago chorus are George L. Plimpton Jr., president; L. H. Bevan, vice president and business manager, and R. H. Smith, secretary treasurer. Officers of the Hammond choir are P. Craig Livesay, president; Mrs. Bertha Feltzer, vice president; Miss Lillian Kothe, secretary; Alexander Sampson, treasurer, and Mrs. Dorothy McLead, librarian.

Officers of the Farrar choral club are Dorothy Johnston, president; Eleanor Aldrin, vice president; Elouise Schuyler, secretary treasurer, and Alona Lisle and Jane Olson, librarians.

An open house from 2 until 5 o'clock this afternoon will open the extension center's annual exhibit in fine arts. Stanley Bielecky, extension lecturer in fine arts, will discuss the oil paintings, water colors, charcoal, pastel pencil, and crayons by students in the credit and noncredit courses. The exhibit, which is free to the public, will continue thru the week.

Miss Dorothy Martin of Bloom Township High school is a member of the committee, Miss Mildred Taylor of Fenger is program chairman and Miss Bernice von Horn of Lindblom is one of the hostesses.

This year's officers include Miss Helen White, vice president, and Miss Clara Haertel, secretary, both of Englewood High school.

Plan Luncheon.

WALTHER GROUP READY TO HOLD ITS 20TH RALLY

The 20th rally of the Chicago South Shore zone of the Walther league will take place this afternoon and evening at the Timothy Evangelical Lutheran church, 83d and Paulina streets. Members of the junior and senior young people's groups of eight Lutheran churches will participate in the program.

Miss Eleanor Puhr, 1745 West 89th street, president of the Timothy senior league, will give the welcome, and Miss Irene Stancik, 13510 Brandon avenue, member of the zone board, will give the response. Hugo Malte, vice president of the northern Illinois district of the Walther league, will extend district greetings. Miss Ellen Langrehr, 1268 West 74th street, chairman of the nominating committee, will present the slate for election.

The Rev. Otto Thieme, pastor of the host church, will give the inspirational address. The rally collection will be turned over to the Lutheran mission in Oak Park.

Separate conferences for seniors and juniors will be held. In the senior session a topic discussion on "Courtship and Marriage" will be presented by the zone Knowledge chairman, Robert C. Osterreich, 9031 Houston avenue. A variety of topics will be discussed in the junior session under the leadership of William Busch of Dolton, zone junior counselor.

HUMANE SOCIETY SECRETARY NOW 40 YEARS ON JOB

G. A. H. Scott Only Came to Call in 1900.

A young lawyer strode up the worn stone steps of the Illinois Humane society, 1145 South Wabash avenue, 40 years ago. He came to talk to John G. Shortall, president, about a minor law case.

George A. H. Scott.

Their business completed, the president told the young man about the workings of the society, how it protected the weak, both animals and men, against inhuman practices; how it prevented wanton and unconscious cruelty. The young man was interested and, as he turned to go, the president offered him a job with the society.

The man took the job. A short time later he became executive secretary. That was 40 years ago and the stone steps were worn even then by thousands of feet plodding toward the anteroom to seek humane treatment of men and animals.

Grooves Deeper Now.

On April 24, forty years later to the day, the same executive secretary, George A. H. Scott, climbed the stone steps. The grooves worn in by millions of footsteps are deeper now.

Mr. Scott, 70 years old and white-haired, spent the day planning the work of the society for the next ten years. The organization, one of the oldest social agencies in the city, was chartered in 1869.

Mr. Scott, who resides at 1548 Sherwin avenue, won't talk much about himself. What he has to say concerns the work of the society.

"We place the emphasis on education today—education that begins in the schools and extends thru a consistent program of supervision in industries where animals are greatly in use," he says. "Once we were deeply concerned with prosecution for cruelty to children and animals, and while we still prosecute where necessary, now every effort is made to correct situations before they reach the courtroom."

Humane Laws Passed.

Mr. Scott cites a long list of laws passed by the state legislature as important aids to the cause of humane treatment of children and animals. He and the society worked tirelessly for the child labor laws of 1905, the delinquency and contributing to delinquency laws of the same year and the nonsupport laws of 1915.

In addition to looking after the welfare of children, the society also cares for lost or unwanted pets, supervises treatment accorded horses, cattle, poultry, zoo animals.

News and Queries Within and Without the Church
—A Religious Voice of the People—
Edited by the Rev. John Evans

The 50th anniversary number of the Epworth Herald, official periodical of the young peoples' Epworth league of the Methodist church, published in Chicago, was distributed among the delegates of the first general conference of the church at Atlantic City, N. J., last week.

Dr. W. E. J. Gratz.

For religious journalism the anniversary is important. Before the founding editor, the late Dr. Joseph F. Berry [who was to become "the Epworth league bishop"] entered the field, religious journals were generally dull and filled with long articles which were read with interest mostly by their authors.

But Dr. Berry changed all this. Articles were shortened and the whole tempo of the journal was stepped up for readers who read for interest and pleasure instead of spiritual discipline.

Moreover, the people answered with circulation. Within two years there were 100,000 subscribers. In 1891 that was a big circulation even for daily newspapers. Today, the journal perhaps has the largest circulation of any Protestant religious magazine. Dr. W. E. J. Gratz, has been editor of the Herald for the last 16 years.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE indirectly made its gift to the Epworth Herald cause in its second editor, Stephen J. Herben. Dr. Herben, London born son of Belgian parents, was a printer by trade who became the TRIBUNE's Evanston correspondent where he earned his way thru Northwestern university and Garrett Biblical institute.

Dr Herben devised many makeup changes in the Herald's format, and as printer brought new styles to the journal's typography; as a news man, made its columns vital and timely. But Dr. Herben's best job, according to his friends, was the discovery of the editorial genius of an immigrant from an English mill town, Dan B. Brummitt, who had gone as far into the American west as Kansas. Dr. Brummitt, after graduating from Baker university and Drew Theological seminary, was preaching in Arkansas when Dr. Herben called him to Chicago. When Dr. Herben was appointed to other editorial work in New York, Dr. Brummitt became editor.

Why Be Fat

Thousands of women have discovered way to lose excess weight—without following strict diet lists, or taking exercises or drugs.

Irene Rich, lovely star of the screen and radio, now past 40, weighs the same as she did at 16. She recommends the easy Welch way to reduce.

If you want to take off ugly fat easily and pleasantly all you have to do is—First. . . eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating. Second.. mix ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice with ¼ of a glass of water and drink before meals and at bedtime. Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably. But you do not suffer a hungry moment. There are no strict diet lists, strenuous exercises or taking drugs. Yet!—in a test conducted by Dr. Damrau of New York, with this method among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, an average weight loss of seven pounds was registered per month. This remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men as it is for overweight women. There is only one thing to watch. Eat sensibly, which means you avoid over-eating; and be sure to use Welch's Grape Juice—always made from the pick of the grape crop; always full strength; always pure.

Try This Amazing Welch's Tomato Juice
If you think all Tomato Juice is alike, try Welch's new, vitamin-rich Tomato Juice. It is so rich and thick you can add ⅓ water or ice and still have a most delicious Tomato Juice.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach comfort, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

SYMPHONIC HOUR SALUTES ARMY ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Special Tribute to First Division Planned.

The second of the new W-G-N Symphonic Hours, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be broadcast before an audience of 600 invited guests representing the United States army, the Illinois National Guard, and the National Army Reserves, from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight. The program will be broadcast by W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system.

This program, which is dedicated to the army and all its officers and men, will have as speaker of the evening, Lieut. Gen. Stanley H. Ford, commander of the 6th corps area. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, will take part in a special feature of the program.

Marion Claire to Sing.

An outstanding cast headed by Marion Claire, soprano star of opera, movies, and radio, and the augmented W-G-N concert orchestra and chorus directed by Henry Weber, will be heard in the musical portion of the program.

One of the highlights of the broadcast will be a dramatization, featuring a group of picked radio actors with a background of stirring orchestral accompaniment, in commemoration of the 23d anniversary of the First division of the American expeditionary forces, to be observed this summer.

Col. McCormick will participate in the introduction to this feature with words from an address he first delivered on Aug. 9, 1937, at Cantigny, France. On this occasion a monument erected in commemoration of the 1st division was dedicated.

Bacher Is Producer.

This dramatic interlude is the creation of William A. Bacher, who is directing and producing the Symphonic Hour.

The program:

The Bartered Bride Overture........Smetana
Orchestra.
[a] Les Cloches..........Debussy
[b] By a Lovely Forest Pathway...Griffes
Miss Claire.
The Swan of Tuonella..........Sibelius
Orchestra.
Chorus from "Rigoletto"..........Verdi
Orchestra.
Prelude from Cycle of Life........Ronald
Miss Claire.
Il est Doux, Il est Bon..........Massenet
Miss Claire.
The Moldau..........Smetana
Orchestra.
Special Dramatization Honoring America's War Heroes.

Miss Claire, the soloist of the evening, was starred last Thursday in the operetta, "Bittersweet," with James Melton, tenor, on W-G-N-Mutual, and also on the first W-G-N Symphonic Hour presented last Sunday in salute to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Mr. Bacher is one of radio's best known directors and producers. He is currently directing the production of the Chicago Theater of the Air on W-G-N-Mutual.

Next Sunday the third Symphonic Hour will again salute the Chicago Association of Commerce. More than 3,400 tickets have been requested by members of the association; thus this organization will be honored with several broadcasts.

MR. SILO FINISHES 7 YEARS WITH 'ORPHAN ANNIE'

Edmund Clark Sprague, one of the oldest troupers in radio, completes his seventh year as Mr. Silo with the Orphan Annie program this month. Orphan Annie is aired at 5:45 p. m. weekdays on W-G-N.

A veteran of tent shows, "dime museums," stock companies, and chautauquas since his debut in 1883, Ed Sprague has seen just about every form of showmanship ever known and has participated in almost as many. He has played in every state, toured the Mississippi valley in showboats, dodged dust storms and prairie fires in the Dakotas, Kansas, and Nebraska, thought of panning for gold in California, and finally hit pay dirt in radio back in 1931 on W-G-N.

Also a member of the cast of "Citizens of Tomorrow" as Charley Jones, school engineer of every school, Ed's characterization as the guardian of radio's little redhead has made him a favorite of the millions of Annie listeners.

'Tristan and Isolde' Music Scheduled on Music Hall

Elsa Zebranska, mezzo-soprano, and Jan Peerce, tenor, will sing the love duet from the second act of "Tristan and Isolde" as a feature of the Radio City Music Hall on the Air, at 11 a. m. over WENR. Erno Rapee will conduct the orchestra in the Prelude to Act I. of "Lohengrin," "Rhine Journey" from "Siegfried" and the Overture to "Die Meistersinger."

EVERETT WEST TO BE FEATURED ON W-G-N 'ROMANCE-RHYTHM'

Romance in Rhythm, directed by Harold Stokes, will feature the singing of Everett West, romantic tenor, with the music of the W-G-N Dance orchestra, from 9:30 to 10 p. m. tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual network. Heard with West will be Edna O'Dell, the Four Grenadiers, and the chorus.

West, who will sing two numbers, is appearing in the Chez Paree show. Since leaving the California Varsity Eight vocal group, West has been featured in floor shows of leading New York, Chicago, and West Coast night clubs.

Edna O'Dell will sing for her solo, "I'm Too Romantic," and with the chorus will do "Last Night's Gardenias." The Four Grenadiers will sing the hit song of the season, "With the Wind and the Rain in Your Hair."

Selections to be done by the chorus and orchestra will include "Little Girl," "I've Got Rhythm," "Charming Little Faker," and "Punchinello."

HEFLIN TO PLAY ETHAN ALLEN ON '5TH ROW CENTER'

Van Heflin, talented young leading man of the stage and radio, will be the guest star on Fifth Row Center over W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 7 to 7:30 p. m. next Friday. He will be heard in a special radio play, "Ethan Allen," a story of the famous Revolutionary war patriot.

Heflin is appearing at the Erlanger theater, where he is acting as leading man to Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story," Philip Barry's hit play.

In "Ethan Allen," Heflin will portray the title rôle, that of the New England patriot and officer who played an important part in the winning of the war. He will be supported by an all-star cast of radio actors. The program will be directed by Blair Walliser.

Appeared with Miss Claire.

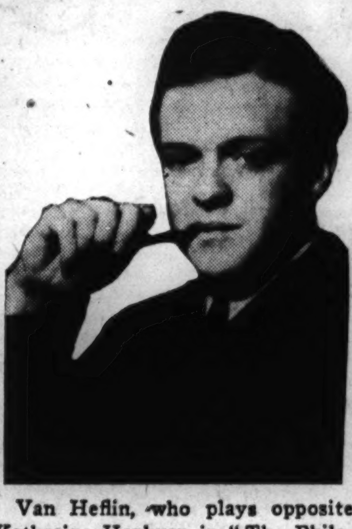
Van Heflin was first seen on the Chicago stage a few seasons ago when he appeared with Ina Claire in S. N. Behrman's "End of Summer." Before becoming an actor, Heflin was a sailor. After attending the State University of Oklahoma, he went to California, and signed as a seaman on a round the world cruise. The ship stopped at New York. Hearing that a rôle in a new show was open, Heflin applied for the part. He was accepted and played in "Mr. Moneypenny." After the show closed, he returned to the sea.

Joins Hedgerow Theater.

Finally, on a voyage home he was persuaded by Dramatist Lynn Riggs to enter the theatrical profession permanently. He joined the Hedgerow theater in Philadelphia. When he felt he was ready for Broadway, Heflin went to New York and was cast in "The Bride of Torosco."

Since then he has appeared in numerous plays and motion pictures. Among his films have been "A Woman Rebels," "Saturday's Heroes," "Flight from Glory," and "Annapolis Salute."

Guest on W-G-N



Van Heflin, who plays opposite Katherine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story" at the Erlanger theater, will be the guest star on W-G-N's Fifth Row Center production of "Ethan Allen" at 7 p. m. next Friday.

GARDEN CLUBS GUESTS AT W-G-N MELODY PAGEANT

E. Feuermann, Cellist, Is Guest Soloist.

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, conducted by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday on W-G-N and the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcast system. Attilio Baggiore, tenor; Mark Love, basso, and Harriet Brewer, contralto, will be the vocalists.

The program will be presented in the main studio of W-G-N before an audience of specially invited guests who are members of garden clubs in Chicago participating in the "share your lilacs" campaign sponsored by the Chicago Plant, Flower, and Fruit guild and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Appeared at Ravinia.

Feuermann was born in Austria 37 years ago. A child prodigy, he made his debut at the age of 11. He taught music at the Cologne conservatory. He left Germany in 1934 and made a world tour. His most recent Chicago appearance was at Ravinia last summer, when he played the Dvorak concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Vladimir Golschmann conducting.

In the Pageant of Melody program Feuermann will play a number of his own selections.

Baggiore, Love, Miss Brewer, and the octet will sing a group of American Indian themes, including "Zuni Indian Call"; "Pale Moon," by Logan, and "By the Waters of Minnetonka," by Thurlow Lieurance.

Baggiore will sing "Cielo e Mar," by Amilcare Ponchielli, and "My Wild Irish Rose," by Chauncey Olcott. Other numbers will include the Overture "Le Roi la dit," by Leo Délibès; "Parade" and "Finale," from Ibert's "Divertissement," and Arensky's "Serenade," in which Michael Wilkomirski will play the violin obbligato for the chorus.

Salute Music Week.

The Concert Revue, under the direction of Mr. Weber, will be dedicated to National Music week—which is being observed from May 5 to May 11—with Kathryn Witwer, soprano, as soloist, from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. Thursday on W-G-N and Mutual.

The program will include a composition of Edward A. MacDowell, the great American composer, in whose commemoration the postoffice will issue a stamp during the week.

The concert orchestra will play "To a Water Lily" and "By a Meadow Brook," from MacDowell's "Woodland Sketches."

Miss Witwer will sing for her solo John Alden Carpenter's "I Am Like a Remnant of a Cloud in Autumn." She also will do "Les Temps des Lilas," by Ernest Chausson.

On Melody Hour

Emanuel Feuermann, the world famous cellist, who will be guest soloist on the Pageant of Melody, directed by Henry Weber, from 9:15 to 10 p. m. Wednesday, on W-G-N and the Mutual network.

MITCHELL KNOWS ANSWERS; TELLS THEM ON W-G-N

Served with Whiteman for Many Years.

If you want to know whether or not Nero wore a monocle, who has the largest feet in Hollywood [it isn't Garbo], whether soup is eaten or sipped, and where people make the most noise on New Year's eve ask Al Mitchell, the Answer Man. Al is heard at 10 p. m. Wednesdays and Sundays on W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

Al Mitchell.

Al Mitchell began collecting information from the 1898 World Almanac when he was attending third grade in St. Louis, Mo.

Aside from an insatiable curiosity, Albert spent his youth taking piano lessons, witnessing baseball games thru a knothole, and piloting his father's ABC friction drive automobile perilously thru the streets of St. Louis backward.

To escape the drudgery of mowing the homestead lawn, Mitchell ran away from home at the age of 14 and began his professional career as a musician and singer in a nickelodeon theater. From that time until 1936 he was a professional musician, singer, and master of ceremonies.

Served with Whiteman.

After a brief sojourn in France with the A. E. F., Mitchell resumed his musical career as orchestra conductor and arranger in association with Paul Whiteman. After seven years of touring with his own dance band in stage shows, Mitchell acquired a vast fund of useless knowledge. Backstage he became an arbiter for all disputes, and by 1936 he decided to put his information to better use by going on the air.

He combed the files of the New York library for additional ammunition and launched his attack on a station at Bridgeport, Conn. The immediate success of the idea brought him to station WOR, and then to W-G-N.

Mitchell's greatest delight is reading his fan mail, which contains the majority of "screwball" questions he answers twice a week. On the assumption that all questions have answers, Mitchell has managed to solve such problems as "how high is up," "Which came first, the hen or the egg," and "How long is a string."

Mitchell is the proud father of a beautiful 16 year old girl, Dolly, who has just signed a contract with Paul Whiteman as vocalist. Still attending high school at Norwalk, Conn., Dolly is a radio veteran, having sung on the air for ten years.

HOME NURTURE OF LOYALTY, IS MIDDAY THEME

The theme of the Midday Service for this week will be "The Home Nurture of Loyalty." The program, under the direction of Dr. John L. Dickson, is broadcast daily except Saturday and Sunday over W-G-N at 12:35 p. m. Speakers for the week:

Monday—The Rev. Willis Ray Wilson, North Austin Methodist church.

Tuesday—The Rev. W. Albert Diman, Second Baptist church.

Wednesday—The Rev. Father T. A. Meehan, Church of the Immaculate Conception, Elmhurst.

Thursday—Rabbi Felix Mendelsohn, Temple Beth-Israel.

Friday—The Rt. Rev. Samuel P. Spreng, bishop of the Evangelical church, Naperville.

Effective Speaker

One of the south side's most effective speakers is Rita Gross of 8220 Rhodes avenue, a senior at Mercy High school. She recently was named champion orator by four different American Legion posts and also took first place in the oratory tournament sponsored by Englewood High school. Judges at the Legion contests gave her a perfect score. Miss Gross is editor in chief of the Parnassian, school magazine.

Kiwanians Plan to Visit Crippled Children School

Englewood Kiwanians will go to the Christopher School for Crippled Children, 51st street and Artesian avenue, at noon Tuesday as luncheon guests of the school. Two performances of a Tom Thumb circus will be given for the children.

WRITE-IN WINS FOR MANSURE IN ALTERNATE RACE

Leads 17 Dark Horses in 9th District.

Seventeen dark horses appeared in the 9th district balloting for alternate delegate to the Republican national convention in the April 9 primary. This was revealed last week with the announcement of the official Cook county vote by County Clerk Michael J. Flynn.

This scramble resulted from the failure of more than one candidate to file for 9th district alternate. Paul J. Randolph, the only man to file, and whose name consequently was the only one printed on the ballot, received 11,639 votes.

Friends of Edmond Mansure elected him to the alternate's post by writing in his name on 585 ballots. A similar write-in campaign for Frank S. S. Sims brought him 469 votes. The name of John A. Rogers was written in on 182 ballots.

Seven Get One Each.

Seven candidates got from 3 to 23 votes each via the write-in route. Seven others received one vote each, presumably their own.

Below are tabulated the total votes for alternates in the first nine congressional districts, all of which are in Cook county, and the 10th which includes part of Cook and all of Lake county [the names of candidates who polled less than two votes each are omitted]. The boldface type indicates the winners.

Two alternate delegates are elected by the voters of each major political party in each congressional district every presidential election year. The alternates ordinarily have no voice in the party conventions, but may be advanced to full delegate status in the event the elected delegates are unable to serve. Both delegates and alternates are elected, not merely nominated, in the primaries.

Cobbler Brings Cheer

Scenes like this in the Grand Crossing Community Aid center, 77th street and Ingleside avenue, between 2 and 4 o'clock Tuesdays and Thursdays, account for the cheer of neighborhood families these days. David (left) and Raymond, for instance, know they can take their shoes to George Plancher, a WPA cobbler, to have them repaired free, and they know their brothers and sisters sometimes receive clothing from the center. Recently Mrs. Daniel Foreman, director of the center, made an appeal to spring cleaners for old but usable clothing and shoes for the needy.

USED GARMENTS ARE SOUGHT TO CLOTHE NEEDY

Grand Crossing Center Makes Appeal.

An appeal to spring house cleaners to donate used but wearable clothing to the Grand Crossing Community Aid center was made last week by Mrs. Rose Foreman, founder and director of the center. Headquarters of the center is Grand Crossing park fieldhouse, 77th street and Ingleside avenue.

Because hundreds of neighborhood children have been outfitted with footwear and hundreds of adults have been provided with wearing apparel, Mrs. Foreman said the supply of clothing is depleted. All clothing is sorted and cleaned by cleaning establishments in the community free of charge and shoes are repaired by WPA cobblers at the center, which is open from 2 until 4 o'clock Tuesdays and Thursdays.

In addition to Mrs. Foreman and Capt. Patrick Brady of the Grand Crossing police station, the center committee includes Miss Florence Dau Walter, Miss Antonia Rago, Dr. H. B. Fox, Msgr. Ambrose J. Murray of St. Francis De Paula church, Rabbi Benjamin L. Teller of Am Echod Congregation, James J. Sullivan, Michael F. Mulcahy, Ernest L. Rea, Miss Antoinette DeRoulet, Marlow Connors, George R. Thompson, Mrs. J. J. Weathered, and Mrs. R. J. Sahn.

HONOR AWARDS TO BE GIVEN 119 AT 'Y' BANQUET

One hundred nineteen men, women and boy members of the South Chicago Y. M. C. A. will receive honors at the annual award banquet and homecoming celebration at 6:15 o'clock Wednesday. The awards will be given in recognition of leadership and athletic achievement, according of Kenneth Nygaard, chairman of the lay staff council.

Mr. Nygaard will preside, assisted by Fordyce Coburn as toastmaster, the Rev. William O. Homer of St. Jude's Episcopal church, who will pronounce the invocation, and Carl Sommer, leading group singing accompanied by Miss Aldana Algmin. The awards will be presented by B. M. Livezey, A. L. Armantrout, F. R. Ward, F. A. Lauerman, Horace Wulf, and Dr. Elmer Ebert, members of the board of directors, and Mrs. E. P. McLaughlin, member of the women's committee.

Special recognition will be given to John V. Hanberg, chairman of the board of directors, for 10 years' service as a board member, and to Miss Alice Weeks, for 10 years' service as a lay staff worker and volley ball team member. Both will receive blankets. Five year service blankets will be presented to Miss Wanda Novak, Mrs. Othella Bouche McCord, George Haas, and Dave Barder.

This WEEK in the GARDEN

Monday, May 6.

May is an excellent time to feed trees. A crowbar will do to make holes about four feet apart and two feet deep at the drip of the branches. Fill the holes with food to within two inches of the top and finish with soil. Water until the ground is soaked. If the ground is soaked before using the crowbar the work will be much easier.

Tuesday, May 7.

It will be easier to buy suitable soil for boxes from the florist than to prepare it at home. Leave plenty of room for watering and later for applying a rich top dressing. Unless one has the proper facilities for growing good plants at home, it is best to buy plants that will become established immediately. Many combinations of different plants can be arranged, but some thrive in full sun while others prefer shade or partial shade. The petunia is one of the finest of all plants for the purpose; the geranium, lantana, ageratum, phlox drummondi, portulaca, and similar kinds all do well.

Wednesday, May 8.

Divide perennials. When sweet peas begin to grow, thin to about six inches apart in the row. Watch for plant lice and begin spraying with nicotine; for attacks of mildew, use sulphur. Sow seeds of virtually all annuals at this time. Make a fine seedbed and do not sow too thick.

Thursday, May 9.

Do not cut all the foliage away from tulips when cutting the blooms for the leaves are necessary for good ripening of the bulbs. Plant dahlias after the ground is warm. Planting late will give better fall bloom. Do not allow rhubarb plants to form seeds or the plants will be weakened.

Friday, May 10.

It is time to finish tree, shrub, and vine planting. For a low ornamental shrub try the Hansen bush cherry. It has fragrant white flowers in spring, followed by berries resembling small plums. The berries are edible and excellent for preserves. For something different as a hedge, plant the dwarf blue leaf Arctic willow. It grows anywhere in wet or heavy soils and can withstand low temperatures. The oak leaf hydrangea will do well in a shady spot and it is quite unusual. It has pinkish white flowers borne in upright clusters in June. Cannas do very well under city conditions and their brilliant flowers and tropical foliage make them desirable.

Saturday, May 11.

Shrubs that flower during midsummer are quite rare, but one called ocean spray is new on the market. It has large clusters of creamy white flowers. Be sure to water evergreens during dry periods. A good lawn mixture consists of 60 per cent Kentucky bluegrass and 40 per cent redtop, with a little rye grass for quick growth and shade while the bluegrass germinates. Feed the lawn with a complete plant food.

ECONOMY, GOOD TASTE COMBINED IN SMALL HOME

Has Kitchen at Front and Terrace in Rear.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

A great many architects at the present time are concerning themselves with small homes of good design. Homes which combine good taste and economy with features both practical and attractive.

Such a home was designed recently by L. Morgan Yost, A. I. A., architect, 930 Spanish court, Wilmette. The owners are Mr. and Mrs. Grenfell Older and the small six room highly individual house stands at 552 Melrose avenue, Kenilworth.

If you feel you'd like to build a really friendly, personal little home, this contemporary home is a type to consider.

A neat brick walk, cool mustard tan shutters against a rough textured front of soft gray green, and a hospitable door welcome the visitor who walks toward the two story house, with its white exterior walls except for the front façade, and its blue-black roof in effective contrast.

Suited to Small Family.

Inside you find a very individual, attractive interior suited to a small family. [The Older family now numbers three members. The afternoon I saw the house there was a diminutive new arrival, a 2 week old baby girl, making use of a cozy nursery bedroom.]

To the right of the entrance hall is the living room, 11 feet 10 inches by 21 feet. The walls, above a white wainscote, are painted a coral rose, the carpeting is a brown rose which tones in beautifully, the fireplace is of white brick with mirror to the ceiling, and at the far end is a large picture window overlooking the garden and terrace area at the back of the home.

Ceiling Is Silver.

The dining room, 12 feet by 11 feet, is a charming, sunny spot. Here the south wall, with French doors leading out to the porch, is prepared in a silver and blue paper. The ceiling is silver—a striking note—and the three other walls are painted a harmonizing blue. On each side of the French doors are windows with glass shelves for flowering plants and vines.

The kitchen, 8 feet by 9 feet 4 inches, is at the front of the house. Its walls and cabinets are painted a soft tone of blue. The linoleum floor is dominated by a pleasant peach shade which is likewise carried out in the ceiling.

At the front of the house, opening from a small passageway between hall and kitchen, is a coat closet with lavatory opposite. Here in the lavatory the lower wall is a rich brown to complement the brown floor linoleum, while the upper walls are a chartreuse. Between upper and lower wall is a pale yellow border with delicate white flowers. The fixtures are white.

Has Three Bedrooms.

Stairs from this same front hallway lead to basement below with a forced warm air, gas heating plant, and space for future recreation room with natural woodburning fireplace.

On the second floor are three bedrooms. The master bedroom has painted walls of soft green, with olive green upholstery and bedspread. The furniture is pickled light mahogany, the carpeting is rose, and a door from this room leads out to sun deck—for summer living. Door and windows of this room, which are curtained in imported Swedish voile, have a border outline of white and green, harmonizing with green of walls and upholstery.

There is a second bedroom which Mrs. Older calls her "antique" room. Here the walls are painted blue with a captivating border of French little blue and pink nosegays on a background of white. The ceiling of this room in blue and the rug white. And it goes without saying that the nursery, with its soft blue walls and paper in a "youthful and lively bell pattern," is all in the spirit of our modern nursery bedrooms.

Black and Yellow Bath.

The bath is stunning, with its built-in tub walls of black tile and the other walls painted a sunny yellow.

The approximate cost of this house, including architect's fee and a single detached garage, was $7,250. This was exclusive of land. Cubic contents of house: 22,000 cubic feet.

Victory Is Their Goal

Nothing short of victory will satisfy Cadet Lieutenant Colonel John Smith (left), head of the R. O. T. C. unit at Lew Wallace High school in Gary, as he encourages five eager students. He is thinking of the federal inspection May 22 when his regiment will be compared with units from three other Gary high schools. Other officers are (left to right) Lieut. Ernest Wineland, Lieut. Richard W. N. Wagner, Maj. Fred Stanley, Capt. George Foley, and Capt. Milton Slosson.

Dressler; Veterans of Foreign Wars medal, Second Lieutenant Clifford Johnson; American Legion auxiliary medal, Second Lieutenant Richard A. Rozynek; and the Legion's Burke O'Mally post medal to Cadet Robert J. Salvatore.

Du Sable.

Lieut. Col. Raymond E. McEwen, officer's efficiency medal; Serg. Robert H. Jarrett, noncommissioned officer's efficiency medal; First Lieutenant Albert S. Miller, band efficiency medal; Sergt. Herman L. Phillips, recruiting medal; Sergt. Vernon L. Martin, Corporal Byron W. Turnquest, and Cadet Irving C. Harris, neatness medals. Tribune awards will be presented to First Lieutenant Acia Singleton, Sergt. Frank Crossley, Sergt. Ernest Oliver, Corporals Walter Smith and Joseph Young, First Lieutenant James T. Coggins, and Cadet Percy W. Sims.

Other wards: United Spanish War Veterans medal, Corporal Wallace Lockett; Reserve Officers association medal, Maj. Leroy Stephens; American Legion auxiliary medal, Maj. Sidney M. Colin, and Veterans of Foreign Wars medal, First Lieutenant Howard R. Scott.

Hyde Park.

Capt. Jean Loomis, officers' efficiency medal; Sergt. Frank Vibrans, noncommissioned officer's efficiency medal; Capt. John Crane, band efficiency medal; Capt. Claude Waltrip, recruiting medal; and Sergeants Leland Foxworthy, Edward Egbert, and Staff Sergeant Irwin Hite, neatness medals. These seven will receive The Tribune medals; Master Sergeant Charles Franc, First Sergeant William O'Daniel, Lieut. Robert Mander, Sergeants James Leonard, Warren Leonard, and Sidney Meirs, and Cadet Robert Brinkworth.

Sergt. Bernard Day will be awarded the United Spanish War Veterans medal; Capt. Louis Weile the Reserve Officers association medal, Corporal James Warwick the Veterans of Foreign Wars medal, Lieut. James Moriarity the Legion auxiliary medal, and Sergeants Claude Cole, Martin Nolan, and Robert Eastman will get medals from Woodlawn post of the Legion.

—Fenger—

Fenger High school's R. O. T. C. unit will adopt the regimental form of organization next fall, it has been announced by Sergt. William Robinson, military instructor. This move has been made necessary because of the continued increase in R. O. T. C. enrollment which has rendered the battalion form unwieldly. It leaves only seven of the city's 27 high school units which are not organized as regiments. There are 326 cadets at Fenger.

Two South Side Cadets Win Honors at Riverside

Two south siders have won honors in the cadet corps at Riverside Military academy, Gainesville, Ga. They are Robert F. Brandwein, son of Henry G. Brandwein, 5131 Ingleside avenue, and Harry Alfred Nebenzahl, son of Mrs. J. D. Nebenzahl, 1725 East 53d street. For having made a general average of 95 per cent or more, Cadet Brandwein was listed on the current honor roll of the academy, while Cadet Nebenzahl was awarded a merit ribbon for having accumulated 100 merits above all deductions.

HIRSCH TO HAVE PREP COURSE FOR R. O. T. C. ROOKIES

Not discouraged by the failure of similar systems at several other schools, Sergt. Sulo V. Ojala, military instructor at Hirsch High school, has announced that he will conduct a special preparatory course next year, apart from the school R. O. T. C. unit, for freshmen who desire military training. The need for such a course, Sergt. Ojala pointed out, is due to the fact applications by freshmen for R. O. T. C. membership have far exceeded the government quota for uniforms in the upper three classes, and that selection of those to be admitted should be based on merit rather than "first come, first serve."

Sergt. S. V. Ojala.

Sergt. Ojala said that all freshmen who desired, probably about 100, will be allowed to take the course, but that it will be made clear to them and to their parents that they are not a part of the school's R. O. T. C. unit.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

MAY 5, 1940

Below: June Preisser, the fluid-muscled darling whose prowess, glamor, dancing and tumbling did things to Mickey Rooney's heart in "Babes in Arms." Her next film? "Strike Up the Band!"

Daisies maybe won't tell—but just see how sunflowers are giving Martha Scott and William Holden away! In "Our Town," her first film, Miss Scott plays the same role she had in the stage production.

Lucille Ball, who has been vacationing in New York, is back at work on the RKO lot. She's making a movie with James Ellison called "The Romantic Mr. Hinklin."

Left: Here's the girl who became a star overnight. Joan Fontaine! Will we ever forget her in "Rebecca"? Echo answers "No!"

Clare Boothe's Comedy, 'Margin for Error,' Opens Tomorrow

Intolerance of Naziism Theme of New Play

By Cecil Smith.

Clare Boothe, who has made quite a name for herself in the field of acid-tongued, wisecracking farce comedy, seems to have fallen into the habit of contributing an annual success to the American stage. Two seasons ago she brought forth "The Women," with its candid camera view of what Miss Boothe claimed were the private thoughts and actions of women in moments uninhibited by the presence of the male sex. Last year, in "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," she lampooned the movie industry's search for an actress to play the rôle of Scarlett O'Hara in a comedy which she belatedly explained to be an allegory upon the threat of hidden Fascism in this country.

Now along comes "Margin for Error," which relights the Grand Opera house for an indefinite engagement beginning tomorrow evening. The new play conveys its intended social implications without the necessity of an expository preface, altho it has one by the author's editor-husband, Henry R. Luce.

• • •

If Miss Boothe was disturbed by the tendencies of Nazism when she wrote "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," she is inflamed by them in "Margin for Error." While it takes more than Hitler's ideology to rob her of her sense of humor, she nevertheless comes out into the open in her attempt to unmask the intolerance and inhumanity she finds in the Nazi conception of social behavior.

It would be misleading, however, to convey the impression that "Margin for Error" is a political treatise, or that it lacks the emphasis upon entertainment and humor which characterized Miss Boothe's earlier plays. The new play is a melodramatic comedy, focussed upon a German consul in an unnamed American city. Halfway thru the action the consul is murdered, by person or persons unknown. The rest of the plot is devoted to an attempt, in the best "whodunit" manner, to discover the identity of the murderer. This task is complicated by the unusual fact that almost any one in his right mind might have been quite happy to do away with so unattractive a character.

Some of her most effective pleading of her anti-Nazi cause the author puts in the mouth of an appealing young Jewish policeman, somewhat generically named Moe Finkelstein. A brash and hot-headed but forthright and honest fellow, Officer Finkelstein serves as a sympathetic symbol of the Jewish minority. Other characters involved in the plot are a newspaper man, who is in love with the consul's unhappy wife, and the consul's secretary, whose political outlook is materially changed after German agents discover that one of his grandparents was "non-Aryan."

• • •

Kurt Katch, a graduate of the Max Reinhardt school in Vienna, plays the part of the consul. A refugee from the very government whose representative he impersonates in the play, Mr. Katch undertakes his first English speaking rôle in "Margin for Error." When Maurice Schwartz brought him to this country 18 months ago he could speak no English. By now he has made English the fifth language he speaks fluently, and he has taken out his first papers here.

Josephine Dunn, a one-time Ziegfeld beauty, will be seen as the consul's wife. Unless she appeared here in Ziegfeld productions, about which I do not know, this is her Chicago stage debut. She has played in many motion pictures.

The important rôle of the consul's secretary will be undertaken by Morgan Farley, whose last appearance here was of a distinguished order, as the steward of the ghostly vessel in "Outward Bound" last fall. Others in the cast are Sheldon Leonard, Don Terry, Alexander Clark, John McKee, Cyrilla Dorne, and Edward Nannery. The play is produced by Aldrich and Myers, producers of John Barrymore's success, "My Dear Children." "Margin for Error" is the final item in this season's Theater Guild-American Theater society subscription list.

• • •

Another equally important première, whose practical appeal is limited to those who understand Yiddish, takes place at the Civic Opera house Thursday evening. For four performances [Thursday thru next Sunday evenings; no matinée] Maurice Schwartz will appear with his Yiddish Art theater in "Salvation." Written by Sholem Asch, author of "The Nazarene," "Salvation" played for 20 weeks at the Yiddish Art theater in New York. It is now in the midst of a tour which has already included Boston, Montreal, Toronto, Detroit, and Buffalo.

LEADING LADY IN DRAMA

Maurice Schwartz's leading lady in "Salvation" is Judith Abarbanel. The Sholem Asch drama will be given four times at the Civic Opera house, starting Thursday.

The scene of "Salvation" is laid in Poland, among the Chassidic Jews of the Napoleonic period. Its theme, epitomized by Rabbi Mendele, the character portrayed by Mr. Schwartz, is that "it is very difficult to be a Jew." From its historical point of view, therefore, "Salvation" is occupied with another facet of the very problem that preoccupies Miss Boothe in "Margin for Error."

The Yiddish Art theater is America's foremost company engaged in the production of Yiddish plays. Since 1919 Mr. Schwartz has headed the group and given direction to its artistic ideals. The cast of "Salvation" includes Judith Abarbanel, Julius Adler, Isadore Cashier, Anna Appel, Morris Strassberg, and Ben Zion Katz. The production is staged by Mr. Schwartz, with scenic designs by Alex Chertov and incidental music by Sholem Secunda.

In the face of these new entries upon the theatrical scene, let it not be forgotten that the Selwyn theater now houses one of the two best plays of the year [the other being—have you guessed?—"Life with Father"]. "The Little Foxes," with Tallulah Bankhead, Patricia Collinge, Frank Conroy and a first rate cast, is no dreary essay in sociological realism. Its audiences find it to be one of the most completely exciting and absorbing dramas in many seasons. It is swift, tense, magnificently projected theater, to which, for once in a blue moon, it is completely accurate to apply the overworked adjective "thrilling."

The sudden illness of Alexander Woollcott and the abrupt discontinuance of performances by the San Francisco company of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" has caused some confusion among those who failed to observe that the report came from the west coast. The Chicago company of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" is in excellent health, from Clifton Webb on thru the entire personnel of the cast, and the comedy continues to enjoy prosperity at the Harris theater as it enters its 20th week. Beginning tomorrow evening the Monday performances will be omitted, in order to provide a free night for the company each week. The future of the San Francisco company is uncertain, tho a rumor has been bruited about to the effect that Edwart Everett Horton is being approached for the Woollcott rôle.

George Le Soir, the addle-pated, other wordly minister of "Life with Father" at the Blackstone theater, was prominent in Chicago dramatic activities as far back as 1907. In that year the New theater, a high hat local producing enterprise backed by Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, Marshall Field, Potter Palmer and others, was founded. Here a repertory theater was started, with "Engaged" the first play and Rex Beach's "The Spoilers" the most important. In the company Mr. Le Soir served as character comedian. His chief associates were Chrystal Herne, James Durkin, Catherine Doucet, and Sheldon Lewis. The New theater lived from September, 1907, to January, 1908, and then quietly expired. "Two obstacles proved insurmountable," Mr. Le Soir recalls. "First was the turning away of any one appearing at the door in street attire, the rule being that all ticket holders must come in evening clothes. The second obstacle was that the 32 stockholders exercised the right to select the plays."

The Theater Guild and the management of the Erlanger theater are firm in their reiteration of Saturday, May 18, as the closing date for Katharine Hepburn in "The Philadelphia Story." On June 1 Miss Hepburn must be in Hollywood to resume the picture work she has neglected for two seasons. Before going west she will return east for 10 days' vacation with her mother.

"The Lady Is Right," an original musical satire, will be the next production of the Chicago Repertory group. Performances will be given May 25 and 26, June 1, 2, 8, and 9, in Foresters theater, 1016 North Dearborn street. The book and lyrics are by David De Koven and Maurice Lorber, and the music is by Sonny Vale. All are members of the group. Donald Murray and Alan Peters will be codirectors of the production.

"Echoes," by Clarence M. Shapiro, and "The Sympathetic Touch," by Harold S. Darling, were adjudged the winning plays in the playwriting contest sponsored by the Federation of Little Theaters in coöperation with the Chicago Drama league. The judges were Milton Olin, Alan Wallace, and Roger L. Sergel. Both plays will be given workshop production this week in Curtiss hall in the Fine Arts building. "The Sympathetic Touch" will be presented Thursday under the direction of C. Henry Nathan. On Friday "Echoes" will be given under the direction of Kurt Wohlgemuth. Casts for both plays have been selected from members of the federation, which includes 33 little theater groups in and around Chicago. Each performance will be followed by a discussion group conducted by Frank Hurburt O'Hara, Harold A. Ehrensperger, and Sue Ann Wilson.

Edna Ferber's "Stage Door" continues as the attraction of the Guild theater, 616 Church street, Evanston. Performances will be given Thursday thru Sunday evening this week and for the two following weeks. The guild season will continue thru the summer, with the theater air-conditioned before the advent of hot weather.

Roy Roberts, who appeared at the Erlanger theater in "Ladies and Gentlemen" in March, wants to become an actor-producer next season. He is on the lookout for a good play, preferably a first play by a young dramatist. Manuscripts may be sent to him at the Lambs club, 130 West 44th street, New York City.

Wins Howard Award.

The first Sidney Howard Memorial award of $1,500 was made to Robert Ardrey, author of this season's "Thunder Rock." The award was established by the late dramatist's colleagues in the Playwrights' company in his memory; it is given annually to the new American playwright who, having had no previous substantial success in the theater, has had one or more plays produced in New York during the current season. Mr. Ardrey also is author of "Star-Spangled," "How to Get Tough About It," and "Casey Jones."

New Cafe Has South Sea Lure and Sin Lin Ap

Something of the languorous ease of a Polynesian island well off the steamship lanes has been transplanted to Chicago's near north side by a quiet, well-tanned chap called Don the Beachcomber. At the Walton street address where once was a smart French restaurant, and more recently a stout English tavern, Don has created a bit of the south seas as authentic as a Pacific sunset, and as enchanting as a Hula moon.

Don the Beachcomber's is not a night club by the standard that requires loud music in the swing tradition, a place to do the rhumba, a dance team, and an imitator of Lionel Barrymore. There is music, but it has the lulling effect of a gentle rain. Nobody dances—customer nor hired hand—and that means that every one has plenty of room to sit, sip, and sup. There is excitement aplenty in the tropical setting . . . the angel fish in a wall aquarium, and the grotesque Hawaiian gods . . . the sharks' jaws and the coral beds . . . the bamboo walls and the rough hewn floors . . . the Japanese fishnet floats transformed into soft lighting chandeliers. And there is a zest to the Polynesian food found in no occidental menu. Let Denny, the beachcombing boss of the Hawaiian serving staff, concoct a heaping plate of, say, Lun Dao Yuk, Hung Yun Gai Ding, Sin Lin Ap, and Chow Ha, as only Chef Jone Lee can prepare it, and you have an excellent explanation of why no show is needed to keep the customers entertained.

Contractural complexities have made Carmen Miranda's increasingly sensational stay at the Colony club a matter of many alterations. Three different closing dates were annulled by press of business. Now the word is that next Sunday night will be her last. Miss Miranda already has carved her name high on that marble plaque reserved for great entertainers at the Colony. Her sly, impish humor, her abundance of well controlled vitality, and her irrepressible love of her native songs and dances belie that badly conceived billing—"Brazilian Bombshell." There is nothing explosive about Miranda. Her appeal is subtle and gracious. When she sings "O, Johnny" her pleasure over her fast growing knowledge of English is infectious. And when eyes, hands, and body join an amazingly facile voice in enacting some of her unpronounceable songs, there is little doubt left as to the appeal of this little coffee cocktail.

Carmen Miranda. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Carrying on at the Colony are the eight La Playa dancers, headed by exotically beautiful Grace Conrad and her brother, Bob. Fantasia and her Rhumboleros, and Carlos Molina and his suave orchestra, featuring the singing of Bobby Ramos, provide the musical background.

A flurry of openings is marking the current era in Chicago night life. Out at the Merry Garden ballroom, Freddie Daw and his Miamiland band opened last night. Mary Jane Dodd is the featured singer.

Harry's New Yorker marks its sixth anniversary with a show featuring as usual the perpetual motion madness of Ralph [Cookie] Cook, the only emcee now living who can run amok sitting down. Margie Kelly, Hart and Allison, Allan Rogers, June Glory, and the Winnie Hoveler girls lend him handsome support.

L'Aiglon restaurant will have one of its rare openings tomorrow night when Manuel Contreras and his rhumba orchestra replace Ennio Bolognini, the cheerful cellist and his international gypsies. Conchita is the featured singer.

Kay Kyser comes back to Chicago for a dance appearance Saturday when he and Ginny Simms and the gang play a one nighter with Jack McLean at the Trianon ballroom.

The Panther room of the Hotel Sherman introduces Bud Freeman and his Summa Cum Laude orchestra to the loop Friday night. Stuff Smith, of the hot fiddle, will bring Jonah Jones and the rest of his band in at the same time as alternate. Lee Wylie, songstress, will be the third featured attraction.

Bernie Cummins reëntered the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel last night, according to the schedule. Dorothy Dorben's girls continue to be the perennial attraction of the floor shows there.

Charles Baum's orchestra, with Don Francisco's rhumba band alternating, open in the Empire room of the Palmer House May 16. In the show, which will be called "The Merriel Abbott Revue" will be the Singing Marines, with Blanche Bradley; Bob Du Pont, juggler; the Three Arnolds, comedy knockabouts; Dorothy Dale, tap dancer; Gary Stone, master of ceremonies, and the Abbott dancers.

Bob Crosby is auditioning girl singers, hunting for another featured vocalist. He's introducing prospects to the Sunday afternoon Bob Cat sessions at the Blackhawk restaurant, to get the reaction of a typical Crosby crowd. Ruth Wehlan and Margie Exter, University of Chicago sophomores, were tryouts last Sunday.

Boswelling the Bistros:

With all her new material, including an unfortunate distortion of "South of the Border," Sophie Tucker still hits her high level at Chez Paree when she swings into "Some of These Days." Her "Bright Young Man with a Future" is the hit of the new crop. . . . The Bismarck hotel plans a new street level cocktail lounge about June 1. . . . Last night was the seventh anniversary of the Empire room. Miss Merriel Abbott, dance director and producer; Fritz Hagner, ringside table auctioneer, and his assistant, Ernest Bender, are the only members of the original staff still on duty. . . . Dick Jurgens goes into the Trianon for the May 4-10 period, while Lawrence Welk plays at the Aragon. Dick returns north for May 11 and 12, and then is followed by Ted Weems on the 14th. Jack McLean starts at the Trianon the 11th. . . . Voted the "serenest siren" of the late hour club circuit is Tange DeVoe, current hit of the Club So Ho lineup. . . . New entertainment feature of the Ranch is Gene Ramon, husky voiced guitarist who remembers all the haunting old tunes.

HAS ROLE IN MURDER PLAY

The first of this week's theatrical openings is "Margin for Error," which will go into the Grand Opera house on Monday. Cyrille Dorne will be in this tale of a German consul's murder. [Talbot Photo.]

Vaudeville

Stage and screen shows are being held over at the Chicago theater for a second week. The former presents Hattie McDaniel, the Andrews Sisters, the Juvelys, the Debonairs, and "Red" Skelton with Edna Stillwell. On the screen is "Buck Benny Rides Again," with Jack Benny. On Friday the Marx Brothers will bring their new condensed musical, "Go West," to the theater.

Johnny "Scat" Davis with his youthful orchestra and vocalists, Bill Owen and Julie Sherwin, is making music for the patrons of the State-Lake theater this week. His co-performers include Jimmy Byrnes, tap dancer; Sammy Cohen, screen comedian, and many others. The current film presents Wallace Beery and Dolores Del Rio in "The Man from Dakota."

Johnny Davis.

At the Rialto theater Myrna Dean is continuing for another week in the stage show, and Charles Country and Kenny Brenna are reunited as the production's stellar comedians. "Outside the Three-Mile Limit," with Jack Holt, is the motion picture.

Bennington School

The Bennington School of the Dance, which sponsored dance festivals each summer from 1934 to 1939, has become the Bennington School of the Arts, and for next summer's festival it will feature drama, music, and theater design besides dancing. Three major works will be presented, each being performed three times: a dance work, a play, and a program of music. Martha Graham will produce the first of these items. The play will be an adaptation by Francis Fergusson of material in "Huckleberry Finn." It will be called "The King and the Duke" and will have incidental dances directed by Martha Hill. The dates of the festival will be Aug. 9 to 17, inclusive. The summer school term preceding it will have on its faculty Miss Graham, Miss Holm, Miss Hill, Louis Horst, Erick Hawkins, Norman Lloyd, Arch Lauterer, Helen Priest, Bessie Schonberg, and Lincoln Kirstein.

Ukrainian Opera

A Ukrainian opera, "Taras Bulba," made its first American appearance at New York's Mecca Temple auditorium recently. The performance was sponsored by the Musical Artists of America, Inc., and was conducted by Walter Grigaitis. Leading rôles were sung by Sidor Belarsky, Nastia Oukrainskyaya, Ivan Velikanoff, and Helmi Rosnell. The libretto is based on a story by Gogol, and Mykola Lysenke [1842-1912] is the composer. Since it was impossible to get an orchestral score from Europe owing to wartime transportation difficulties, Mr. Grigaitis was forced to reorchestrate the work from a vocal score.

Notes of Music and Musicians

Under the auspices of the St. Nicholas Greek community of Chicago a concert of music and dancing by Greek artists will be given in the Civic Opera house tonight as part of an Hellenic Byzantine Spring festival.

An important feature of the evening will be the Chicago debut of Nicholas Moscona, bass of the Metropolitan Opera company. He was born in Athens, Greece, in 1909. Altho he worked away at singing lessons and learning operatic rôles during his youth, this was only a hobby, and his studies were primarily those of a budding lawyer. In 1936 the governor of Athens heard Moscona at the church where he was soloist and procured a scholarship from the Greek government for the singer to study opera in Milan, Italy. There he was eventually engaged by the famous opera house, La Scala, and while performing there he was heard and engaged for the Metropolitan by the latter's manager, Edward Johnson.

Nicholas Moscona.

Besides several songs and arias, a group of authentic Greek folk songs will be sung by Mr. Moscona tonight. It will be their first performance in America.

The other featured performers on the program will be Vassos Kanellos and his daughter, Xenea, who will present several Greek dances, of which they are familiar and authoritative exponents.

Six artists will participate in a benefit concert being held in the Auditorium Recital hall tonight by the Chicago chapter of the Self-Help of Emigrés from central Europe society. They will be Maria Hussa, soprano; Freda Trepel and Leo Podolsky, pianists; Leopold Foederl, violinist; Carl Alwin, accompanist for Mme. Hussa, and Hans H. Rosenwald, commentator. The program will be as follows:

Ballad, A Flat Major .... Chopin
Freda Trepel.
"Ganymed" .... Schubert
"Rastlose Liebe" .... Schubert
"Die Nacht" .... Strauss
"Cäcilie" .... Strauss
Maria Hussa.
Sonata for Piano and Violin .... Franck
Leo Podolsky and Leopold Foederl.
"Les Funérailles" .... Liszt
Freda Trepel.
"Lebewohl" .... Wolf
"Storchenbotschaft" .... Wolf
Aria, from "Madame Butterfly" .... Puccini
Czardas, from "The Bat" .... Johann Strauss
Maria Hussa.

Two flourishing local operatic groups will be represented by presentations in downtown concert halls tonight. At the Woman's Club theater the American Opera company will continue its now weekly performances with Verdi's "Rigoletto." The cast will include Nancy Reeder as Gilda, Rachel Hile as Maddalena, Eleanor Bedrit as Giovanna, Gennadi Gordejev as the Duke, Walter Blickle as Rigoletto, Charles Hax as Sparafucile, and Edward Early as Borsa.

At the same time the Chicago Concert and Opera guild will be staging another work by Verdi, "Il Trovatore," at the Goodman theater. The rôle of Leonora will be sung by Frieda Bleicher, Azucena by Jeannette Barron, Inez by Jeanne E. Morris, Manrico by Arthur Wilkinson, Count di Luna by Erwin Feld, Ferrando by Al Bragagnola, Ruiz by Frank Lakowski, and the Gypsy by John Backlund. Silvio Insana will direct.

Continuing the influx of choral groups the Oriana a cappella choir will give its annual spring concert in the Goodman theater on Wednesday night. As its part in celebrating the current National Music week the ensemble will devote much of its concert to works by American composers. Three of them are Chicagoans: Leo Sowerby, Felix Borowski, and Rossetter G. Cole. Mr. Cole's work, "I Know the Way of the Wild Blush Rose," is dedicated to the Oriana choir and, like Mr. Borowski's composition, will receive its first Chicago performance on Wednesday. Paul Vernon is the conductor of the choir.

Last night Leo Podolsky opened his fifth annual spring series of concerts of piano music, played by his students in the Sherwood Recital hall of the Fine Arts building. The series will continue this afternoon with a program at 3:15, and programs tomorrow and Tuesday night, both at 8:15. Mr. Podolsky has shown considerable initiative in devoting each series to a survey of some phase of piano literature. In the past they have touched on the piano concerto, dance forms, the sonata form, and nationalism in music. This year the programs are concerned with the evolution of piano music in France from the 16th century to the present. The series enjoys the special patronage of M. Rene Weiller, consul general of France in Chicago.

Attention is called to the motion picture that will follow the current "Harvest" into the World playhouse. It is called "The First Film Concert" and is a feature length attraction, employing the services of such distinguished artists as Ninon Vallin and Elizabeth Schumann, sopranos; Alfred Cortot and Alexander Brailowsky, pianists, and Jacques Thibaud, violinist.

Two pianists will give recitals on Tuesday night. Hannah Shaykin will give hers in Kimball hall. Alverna Stetzler will be presented on the Young American Artists' series in Curtiss hall.

Musical Groups Will Honor Tschaikowsky's Centenary

3 Programs on Week's Tribute to Composer

By Edward Barry.

Next Tuesday is the 100th anniversary of the birth of Peter Ilyich Tschaikowsky. On that evening Maria Kurenko, soprano, assisted by the Chicago Symphonic choir under Walter Aschenbrenner's direction, will present an all-Tschaikowsky program in Orchestra hall. Also honoring the composer during his centenary week are the Illinois Symphony orchestra, Izler Solomon conducting, and the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, George Dasch conducting. The former organization will play Tschaikowsky's fifth symphony in the course of its Studebaker theater concert of tomorrow evening. The business men offer the same work in Orchestra hall Wednesday night.

The hundredth anniversary of his birth finds Tschaikowsky near the crest of one of the swells which have been alternately raising him and lowering him in the world's estimation ever since his music began to make its way. The big virtuoso conductors vie with one another for the privilege of conducting performances of the fourth, fifth and sixth symphonies; the greatly increased vogue of the dance has made much of Tschaikowsky's relatively obscure theater music thoroly familiar; radio has contributed to his fame by programming more of his works than those of almost any other composer, and—most important of all—the pundits who evaluate art and by their authority create and destroy fashions have been forced to admit that a reëxamination of Tschaikowsky's music makes the adverse judgments of the preceding generation seem very much too severe.

• • •

There was a time—and that not many years ago—when sophisticates were wont to remark to one another that Tschaikowsky was something like measles. You got it once, usually in youth, and were then immune for life. There was undeniably some basis for such a judgment, for much of Tschaikowsky's music is very close in spirit to the tear stained novels and sentimental poetry which are part of the traditional artistic fare of adolescence. His content is often trite, his statement overly explicit. Time and time again his taste plays him false.

Yet any fair assessment of Tschaikowsky will take account of the following three facts: [a] He is not alone among composers—even among the very best composers—in his occasional sentimentality or triteness and in his lapses from taste. [b] Much of his music is entirely free of these faults. [c] His utter sincerity and the greatness of his creative ability more than outweigh his defects. The truth seems to be that Tschaikowsky's music has in it—if not the stuff of immortality—at least the qualities which will insure it a very long life.

• • •

Tschaikowsky was born in Votkinsk, Russia, on May 7, 1840. He first studied for the law, but gave up this profession to throw himself whole heartedly into music. This took considerable courage, for there was really no such thing as a stable musical profession in Russia in those days. However, by subjecting himself to the drudgery of a heavy teaching schedule he managed to eke out some sort of a livelihood. By denying himself leisure and even cutting into the time needed for sleep he succeeded in making a start as a composer.

This period ended in 1877, when Tschaikowsky was 37 years old. It was then that his remarkable friendship with Nadejda von Meck, a rich Moscow widow, began. "Remarkable" is really too mild a word, for this was a friendship conducted entirely by letter. The two principals never spoke to each other. Mme. von Meck settled an annuity on the composer because she liked his music and knew his circumstances. It was this annuity which permitted Tschaikowsky to enjoy the leisure necessary to a composer's career.

His fame grew apace, both in his own country and in western Europe and America. He came to the United States in 1891 to conduct in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore.

This does not mean that Tschaikowsky's music had easy sledding in all quarters. He showed enough German and Italian influence in his writings to draw down upon his head the criticisms of those who believed that Russia's musical salvation lay in the direction of intense nationalism. On the other hand, western Europe found much of his music a little exotic—what with its gloomy Russian coloring and the deep melancholy of its tunes—and refused at first to accept it whole heartedly. Compared to most other composers of equal rank, however, Tschaikowsky enjoyed a remarkable degree of public acceptance even during his lifetime.

• • •

Altho Tschaikowsky escaped in large measure the twin fates of so many composers—penury and lack of contemporary understanding—his life was not a happy one. He was a poorly adjusted man and a frequent sufferer from melancholia. Indeed there is a strong suspicion that his death—which took place on Nov. 6, 1893—was really suicide. He asked for a glass of ordinary water in a restaurant, and persisted in his demand even after he was informed that water from the regular St. Petersburg supply was possibly contaminated. He drank the water and died of cholera a few days later.

In her concert of Tuesday night Mme. Kurenko is offering a much broader view of Tschaikowsky's music than we usually enjoy. She is to sing excerpts from the completely unfamiliar operas, "Mazeppa," "The Enchantress," and "Iolanthe," as well as a miscellany of seldom or never performed single songs. The choir will present examples of the composer's liturgical music and will assist Mme. Kurenko in at least one of her operatic excerpts. Accompaniments Tuesday evening are to be supplied by Sergei Tarnowsky, pianist, and Doriss Briggs, harpist.

• • •

Tschaikowsky's fifth symphony, which is to be performed this week by both the Illinois Symphony orchestra and the Chicago Business Men's orchestra, is undoubtedly its composer's most popular large scale work. Altho one might deplore the fact that the two orchestras did not talk the matter over and decide to present different symphonies, there is no denying that this No. 5 is an excellent example of the mature Tschaikowsky. It has a superbly rich orchestral texture and is filled from end to end with flowing, wonderfully expressive melodies.

Besides the Tschaikowsky work, tomorrow evening's program of the Illinois Symphony orchestra consists of Ravel's "Mother Goose" suite, Debussy's rhapsody for clarinet and orchestra, the same composer's "Nocturnes," and the Hadley concertino for piano and orchestra. The last named work has never been heard here.

Soloist in the clarinet rhapsody is to be Carmen Schiavone. Marie Zorn, pianist, has the solo part in the Hadley concertino. Miss Zorn made her New York debut only this spring.

• • •

The Chicago Business Men's orchestra will bring its 1939-'40 activities to a close Wednesday night. Plans are already under way for a gala 1940-'41 season to mark the 20th year of the orchestra's uninterrupted existence. It was founded by George Lytton in 1921 to provide nonprofessional musicians—merchants, doctors, lawyers, technical workers, etc.—with an opportunity to taste the pleasures of ensemble playing.

Soloist with the business men Wednesday is Ennio Bolognini, the able Chicago musician who formerly served the Chicago Symphony orchestra as first cellist. His vehicle will be the Saint-Saëns concerto. The rest of the program consists of Rossini's "Semiramide" overture, Sibelius' "Finlandia," and the Tschaikowsky fifth symphony.

IN TSCHAIKOWSKY RECITAL

Maria Kurenko, soprano, will give a recital in Orchestra hall on Tuesday night, singing an all-Tschaikowsky program. She will be assisted by the Chicago Symphonic choir, directed by Walter Aschenbrenner.

Current Music News

This afternoon in Orchestra hall the Civic Music association of Chicago will present its 27th music festival. The two participating ensembles will be a chorus of 600 children, directed by Marx E. Oberndorfer, and the Civic orchestra, conducted by Hans Lange. Choral settings of folk songs from Canada, Armenia, Bohemia, Wales, China, Japan, Rumania, Portugal, America, and Italy, and songs by Grieg, Schubert, Franck, Rimsky-Korsakoff, and Mendelssohn will be sung by the children. The orchestra will accompany them and play three selections as well.

The dinner at the Arts club tonight in honor of Dr. Frederick A. Stock, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will be followed by a program of his compositions. Claire Dux, soprano, accompanied by a string and piano ensemble, will sing a group of songs written for her by Dr. Stock; his First Quartet will be played by the Philharmonic String quartet of Chicago, and a chamber orchestra, led by Dr. Stock, will play a work written by him for the occasion and dedicated to the president and members of the Arts club.

Vincent Geraci will demonstrate his virtuosity and the versatility of his instrument, the piano-accordion, in a recital in Kimball hall this afternoon. His program eschews the popular field and includes transcriptions of Mendelssohn's Overture to "A Midsummer Night's Dream," a prelude and fugue by Bach, the first movement of Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony, Chopin's "Revolutionary" Etude, and pieces by Saint-Saëns, Sibelius, Ponschielli, and Geraci himself.

The annual recital of Grace Judd Zapel, soprano, will take place today in the Auditorium Recital hall. A wide variety of songs—Italian, German, French, Spanish, and Russian—is listed on the extensive program. Leo Kopp, a conductor of the Chicago City Opera company, will be her accompanist.

Zeta chapter of Phi Beta fraternity will present Margaret H. Wood, soprano; Frederick Newell Wood, tenor, and Francis S. Moore, organist, in a concert in Kimball hall tomorrow night for the benefit of its scholarship fund. For the program, aside from solo groups by the artists, Mr. and Mrs. Wood will sing duets from Bach's Mass in B minor, Mozart's "Cosi fan tutte," and Debussy's "L'Enfant Prodigue," and a song by Schumann, "A Thousand Greetings."

On Wednesday night Cybelle Abt, soprano, will offer a song recital in Kimball hall. Numerous operatic arias are included among the numbers scheduled on the program.

Ralph Vaughan Williams' Serenade to Music will be given its first performance in and about Chicago by the choir of the First Presbyterian church of La Grange at a musical service this afternoon. Buxtehude's "Rejoice, Beloved Christians," and Leo Sowerby's "Great Is the Lord" are other cantatas on the program. Paul Chandler Hume is the organist and choirmaster, and assisting soloists will include John Macdonald, bass, and Alfred Aulwurm, violinist. The service will start at 4 o'clock.

Several new transcriptions and compositions, still in manuscript form, will be played by the Northwestern University Concert band at its concert in the National College of Education auditorium, 2700 Sheridan road, Evanston, today at 3:30. These will include a Rhapsody, "King Orry," by Wood; Mississippi Rhapsody and the first movement from a Concerto for Tympani, both by Weinberger; Frangkiser's Ozark Suite, and Engleman's "A Cocktail Cabinet." Glenn Cliffe Bainum will direct the band, and Olive Arthur, soprano, will be the guest soloist.

Herbert Butler will conduct the Hull House Symphony orchestra in its second concert of the season this afternoon at Bowen hall, 800 South Halsted street, at 3:30 o'clock. The program features Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony, which is being played on two other occasions in Chicago this week. The soloists will be Theodore Behr, playing the first movement of Beethoven's Third Piano Concerto; Bertina Corimby, playing the first movement of Mozart's Fifth Violin Concerto, and Linda Hogdson, playing the first movement of Brahms' First Piano Concerto.

Mendelssohn's seldom played Third or "Scotch" Symphony in A minor will open the program of the American Concert orchestra, which is playing in the Illinois Music Concert hall, 632 North Dearborn street, on Friday at 8:15 o'clock. Jania Pytlowany, pianist, will be soloist in the last two movements of Mozart's "Coronation" Concerto in D, and Benjamin Blackman, violinist, will be heard with the ensemble in the first movement of Mendelssohn's E minor Concerto. The program will close with Bantock's Serenade, "In the Far West," and Dvorak's "First Slavonic Dance." As usual, Ralph Cissne will conduct.

At the Central church service in Orchestra hall this morning William Hughes will lead the choir in anthems by Protheroe, Gounod, and Tschaikowsky. In the evening at the 7 o'clock meeting the Ebenezer Lutheran Church choir, conducted by George Carlson, will supply the choral music. Selections from Haydn's "Creation" will be featured by the Sunday Evening Club choir at the following service. Edgar Nelson will direct this group.

Suggestions on College Credit Surveys Made

Which university for my son?—which college for my daughter?—what is the endowment at college A?—what is the faculty rating at college B? Answers to these and other questions will be found in "Higher Education," by Dr. John Evans, education editor. On sale at Tribune Public Service Offices, 1 South Dearborn street, or Tribune Tower. Price 10 cents, by mail 13 cents.

By the Rev. John Evans.

The tense situation between institutions of higher education and standardizing agencies, which has attracted considerable attention in the educational field, makes the report of the special committee on "The Evaluation of Accrediting Procedures," recently presented to the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, of opportune interest. The report covers a year's work of research and is confined to those two aspects of the issues between the institutions and agencies which came in for most criticism at the conference of the American Council on Education held last April in Washington, D. C., viz.: accreditation in its various aspects and continuing reports on the structure, organization, and operation of the member institutions.

The method adopted by the committee was first to communicate with representatives of all institutions surveyed during the last five years asking for confidential comments on the information sought, the schedules used, and the nature of the survey. It then collated this information and summarized it in the first part of the report under six headings, only three of which this article considers in detail. Each of these summaries is immediately followed by the committee's recommendations. In the latter portion, on continuing reports, the committee states only its recommendations which are made "in an endeavor to avoid misunderstanding and to meet the rather widespread criticism of the present method of securing institutional information for accreditation and for reports on the status of the member institutions."

• • •

In summarizing suggestions from the institutions regarding the selection and conduct of examiners the committee has formulated its recommendations at the same time. It was suggested that:

1. The examining team should include at least one member from institutions of the same group as the institution being examined;

2. Examiners should be selected in the light of special circumstances that may relate to the local situation, so they may conform to the proprieties expected;

3. Examiners should be informed on the nature of the institution being examined and on any aspect involving public relations;

4. Examiners should be tactful in their criticisms of the institution, avoid gratuitous observations, and distinguish between friendly advice and what might be interpreted as dogmatism in their conversations with representatives of the institutions being examined.

The committee recommended "that all these suggestions should be carried out so far as possible."

• • •

Under the section of the report devoted to procedure is summarized the criticisms that inadequate consideration is given to "the success of the students who have attended the institution, both in their continued study and in their chosen occupations." To this the committee counters that while the desirability of giving such consideration is recognized there are "almost insuperable difficulties in making such determinations on a basis that permits valid comparison."

The gist of the answer lies in the last two words quoted, and the committee recommends to the commission on institutions of higher education, from which body the committee's authority is derived, "a continued study of this complex problem."

Four other suggestions on procedure also were made, the first three of which are irreconcilable with the fourth. Summarized these are:

1. That examiners' visits are too brief to gain an adequate appreciation of the institution;

2. That inadequate consideration is given to teaching competence;

3. That too little time is spent in visiting classes;

4. That the cost of the survey is too high.

The committee considers that in view of the necessity of maintaining competency in examinations the present charges for survey are not excessive; furthermore, that significant classroom visitation on a comprehensive basis involves more than an additional day or two, and this would be impossible without an increase cost "to which objection is made."

But in answer to the objection that contacts with the faculty are not always sufficiently inclusive or representative, the committee recommends that examiners make these contacts with the faculty as broad as possible, "taking care to obtain representative faculty points of view on institutional problems."

• • •

Under the section of the report on general policy the committee deals with two objections to the present accrediting procedure:

1. That emphasis is still on quantitative standards, in spite of the commission's statement that quantitative standards have been discarded in favor of qualitative standards.

"There has been much confusion in the discussion of quantitative and qualitative standards," the committee's report reads. "If it is implied by these comments that it was the intention of the commission, in adopting the new procedures, to abandon all quantitative standards, this is a misconception. Both qualitative and quantitative standards must be used in order properly to evaluate the efficiency of the institution. Whenever quantitative standards are used they should be applied in a flexible manner."

2. That there is a tendency to stress the weaknesses of the institution being surveyed rather than its strength.

"It is obvious an evaluation of an institution and its program calls for a discussion of weaknesses as well as strengths," is the committee's answer. "In so far as space in the report is concerned, the elaboration of weaknesses will probably assume greater prominence than the discussion of strengths, especially if the recommendations are adverse."

At the conclusion of that half of the report dealing with accreditation, the committee notes that most of the replies to the secretary's requests comment on the improvement of present over former standards, and it expresses its appreciation of the consrutctive suggestions submitted by the surveyed institutions.

Bach Festival

The most famous Bach festival in America, that which takes place at Bethlehem, Pa., will be held on Friday and Saturday, May 17 and 18, in the Packer Memorial church of Lehigh university. For the second consecutive season Ifor Jones will conduct the Bethlehem Bach choir and members of the Philadelphia orchestra in the programs. On Friday afternoon and evening the concerts will be devoted to seven church cantatas and the Suite in B minor. Then on Saturday, as has been the custom, the Mass in B minor will be given. The Kyrie and Gloria portions will be sung in the afternoon, starting at 2:30. At 5 o'clock the remainder of the Mass will be given. This will be the 33d complete performance of the Mass at these festivals, which originated in 1900. Before each session Bach chorales will be played by the Moravian Trombone choir from the church belfry.

2 Concerts to Be Given by U. of Chicago

By Cecil Smith.

Without the slightest intention of observing national music week, which begins today, and indeed without even the advance knowledge that national music week was an impending celebration, the University of Chicago presents two concerts of contrasting nature at the beginning and at the end of the week. This afternoon in Rockefeller Memorial chapel on the Midway, the university choir and symphony orchestra and the choir of the Fourth Presbyterian church will join forces in a festival program of works for large chorus and orchestra. Next Sunday evening, in smaller Mandel hall, the Collegium Musicum, a student instrumental ensemble of chamber proportions, will play three of the six "Brandenburg" concertos of Johann Sebastian Bach.

These concerts, falling accidentally at a time when the virtues of amateur musical activity are being held to public notice, at least serve to illustrate the university's desire to interest its students in participation in classic and modern instrumental and choral music.

• • •

Both Mack Evans, director of the university choir, and Barrett Spach, director of the Fourth Presbyterian church choir, will appear as conductors this afternoon. The music on the program was first prepared separately by the two choirs, and later rehearsed in the total ensemble.

Mack Evans.

An outstanding feature of today's concert will be the first Chicago performance of the "Magnificat" for chorus, contralto soloist, and orchestra. Maurine Parzybok, contralto soloist of the Fourth Presbyterian church, who has already been heard at the university as Dido in Purcell's opera "Dido and Æneas" and as soloist in Brahms' "Rhapsody for Male Chorus and Alto Solo," will sing the solo part. The "Magnificat" represents an attempt upon its composer's part to recapture the original oriental spirit of the poem of the "Magnificat," a text which for hundreds of years has been inevitably treated in a more formal, liturgical manner.

• • •

Unless I am mistaken, the program also includes another première, of Lili Boulanger's "Psalm 24," for chorus, tenor solo, brasses, timpani, harp and organ. The composer, who died in 1918 at the age of 25, was the sister of Mlle. Nadia Boulanger, the eminent French musical theorist and pedagog who visited Chicago last year. The tenor solo in the psalm will be sung by Paul Nettinga, tenor of the Fourth Presbyterian church.

With Anna Burmeister, soprano of the Fourth church, and Mr. Nettinga as soloist, Gustav Holst's dramatic "Psalm 86" will be sung. The program also includes works by J. S. Bach, Kastalsky, Leisring, and Tallis. Frederick Marriott, organist and carilloneur of the university, will play the organ parts.

• • •

Next Sunday evening's Bach concert in Mandel hall will be conducted by Siegmund Levarie, the young Viennese scholar and conductor who took over the direction of the University of Chicago Symphony orchestra in the autumn of 1938. The three "Brandenburg" concertos of his choice [Nos. 1, 4, and 5] will be played in an instrumentation approximating as closely as possible the sound of a performance in Bach's day, except that modern instruments will replace some of the now archaic instruments for which Bach wrote.

The first of the concertos dedicated to the margrave of Brandenburg contains such unusual difficulties that it is rarely heard nowadays. There are solo parts for two horns requiring considerable virtuosity. In this concerto the first horn part will be played by Helen Kotas, a student in the university's department of music, who has been appointed for next year to the horn section of the Pittsburgh Symphony orchestra under Fritz Reiner.

In the Fourth concerto, scored for strings and flutes, the first flute part will be performed by Wesley Krogdahl, also a university student, and winner of first place in recent state tryouts for the orchestra to be conducted in South America this summer by Leopold Stokowski.

Mr. Krogdahl will also play in the Fifth concerto, which has solo parts for flute, violin, and piano. Jean Williams, who won a competition to play the Stravinsky Piano Concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in 1936, will be the pianist, and Lucy Nielson, a 16 year old student who also has appeared with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will be the solo violinist.

Vienna Festival.

The eighth international music festival of the Permanent Council for the International Coöperation of Composers will be held in Vienna from June 23 thru 30. E. N. von Reznicek will be in charge.

Good Morning!

These firsts of months do roll around with the most amazing speed! Here we are in May again, with daylight saving under way and April's sunshine and tantrums behind us.

Several movies made April an outstanding month cinematically.

"Rebecca"—Now there WAS one for the books! . . . "didn't think they could do it," said the original review . . . "capture the suspense, the horror, the beauty and the strange eeriness of 'Rebecca' the book. But they have. . . . The screen version is subtle, electrifying—and almost as fascinating as the novel, which I thought, by all odds, the best story I'd read in years. . . . "In its way as remarkable a film as was 'Gone With the Wind'—and Fontaine as great as Leigh. . . ." Joan Fontaine, Laurence Olivier and Judith Anderson featured in the movie.

* *

"Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet"—"Easily takes its place in the ranks of great screen biographies. . . . An intelligent revelation of the life and works of the Jewish scientist who gave the world 606. . . . Edward G. Robinson gives an earnest and believable performance. . . ."

* *

"It's a Date"—" . . . Deanna Durbin has a considerably more sophisticated rôle than is usual with her . . . gives superb account of herself . . . Kay Francis delightful . . . Walter Pidgeon—yum! . . . Dialog's snappy, situations intrigue, direction is smart . . ."

* *

"Johnny Apollo"—Unpredictable father and son movie. You NEVER know what's going to happen next . . . quietly forceful. . . . All characterizations are ably drawn. . . . Tyrone Power really goes to town. . . . Lloyd Nolan keen. . . . Charlie Grapewin and Edward Arnold do slick jobs. . . ."

* *

"Harvest"—"A soul satisfying experience. . . . Quiet, beautiful, refreshing—a classic of simplicity . . ." [French production.]

* *

"Broadway Melody of 1940"—"A really classy musical . . . tasteful, sparkling and cohesive thruout; given to bright patter and incidental surprise. . . . Eleanor Powell pleasing and sincere, Astaire great, George Murphy's art adds luster. . . . Nice direction, lavish staging, etc, etc . . ."

"Buck Benny Rides Again"—Mr. Benny hies him to the lone prair-ee for this number. He is, as always, happy and at ease. . . . Rochester, with Mr. Benny's admiring aid, almost steals the show. . . . Audiences love him. . . . Settings are smart, photography is splendid and the director did a neat job. . . . A small bear, Carmichael, is a considerable asset to the scheme of things. . . ." which concludes our résumé for the nonce.

See you tomorrow.

In Chicago the following theaters also will show the serial: American, Devon, Vogue, Maryland, Stratford, East Side, Grove, Jeffery, Oakland Square, North Center, Buckingham, Alamo, Broadway-Strand, Roseland, Atlantic, Midwest, Peoples, Admiral, Shore, Oakley, Michigan, Kedzie, Illington, Gayety, Drake, Portage, Symphony, Biograph, Byrd, Crawford, Davis, Irving, Douglas, Boulevard, Brighton, Halfield, Thalia, Logan, Imperial, Gold, Luna, Fox, Regent, Avaloe, Frolic, Nita, Jeff, Hub, Alvin, Cosmo, Garden, Adelphi, Parkway, Grand, and States.

Piano Series

The Adult Education council has announced the six pianists it will present on its consistently and phenomenally successful Musical Arts Piano series for the 1940-'41 season. Rudolph Serkin, voted the pianist most welcome for a return appearance by the series audience, will play on Nov. 5. Beveridge Webster, a young American who has appeared twice with the Chicago Symphony, will give his first Chicago recital on the series on Dec. 3. Artur Rubinstein, needing no introduction, will follow on Jan. 7. Wanda Paul, the winner of this season's auditions for young Chicago artists, will give her award recital on Feb. 4. Vronsky and Babin, popular duo-pianists, will give their concert on March 4, and Robert Casadesus, French virtuoso, will bring the series to a close on March 18. Subscriptions are now available from the council, 224 South Michigan avenue.

This Is Theater Medal Time Once More on Broadway

2 Committees Pick Best Plays of the Season

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special].—Along with the tulips in Holland and the apple blossoms in Normandie, which continue to function in song despite the rumble of the mechanized units, this is actor medal time on Broadway.

The two major awards of the theater are being made. The New York Drama Critics' circle is selecting the best play of the year written by an American dramatist, and the Pulitzer prize committee is making its annual award.

Rumors have been rife, as usual. But upsets are always possible. The critics have been waiting to have a peek at two late spring productions, Robert Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night," and William Saroyan's "Love's Old Sweet Song." Not, I feel certain, with any other object than that of being fair to all candidates.

The Pulitzer committeemen, representing a large and unwieldy panel of judges, it obliged to move more slowly. First, as I understand the custom, reports are brought in from the Broadway front by a subcommittee of three experienced playgoers, with recommendations. These reports are considered by the committee as a whole and usually accepted. Sometimes unanimously, occasionally after a debate.

This season there is not likely to be time for the play jury to report on the belated Sherwood and Saroyan items before the date set for the awards, which is the first Monday in May. Wagers are being freely offered, therefore, that the Howard Lindsay-Russel Crouse comedy, "Life with Father," will win the prize.

Russel Crouse.

The Pulitzer committeemen, other things being equal, are inclined to favor the happier American comedies. They have two others to choose from: the Kaufman-Hart "The Man Who Came to Dinner" and the Thurber-Nugent "The Male Animal." But the Lindsay-Crouse item is closer to the heart of the American family, and likewise the American stage tradition, and is therefore a lively favorite.

The critics' circle is normally inclined to give first preference to dramas of deeper significance and to the bolder and more progressive experiments in the theater. Last year the critics struggled thru 10 ballots because, with their rule that only by a three-fourths' vote could a prize play be selected, they could not decide between Sherwood's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and Lillian Hellman's "The Little Foxes." Two held out stubbornly for the novelty of the year, Saroyan's "My Heart's in the Highlands," a fantastic one act affair of which not much has been heard since. The two believed it represented the most important dramatic contribution of the year to the American theater by an American author.

This year this same onrushing Saroyan had two plays to be considered—"The Time of Your Life," a lightly cynical comedy of character which, he says, he dashed off in six days, and which was played for 185 performances on Broadway, and "Love's Old Sweet Song," which is next week's tardy entrant.

Serious plays figuring in the critics' list included Maxwell Anderson's "Key Largo," a fair success, with Paul Muni playing the lead; Sidney Kingsley's "The World We Make," which had a respectable run with Margo of the movies prominent in the cast; the Ernest Hemingway-Benjamin Glazer "The Fifth Column," which Franchot Tone is carrying thru till June, and the Sherwood "There Shall Be No Night," which is advantaged by its timeliness [being a story of the Finns' defense against the Russians], by the presence of Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt in the cast, and by the fact that it is a fresh impression in the critical minds.

• • •

However, it is not only the major play awards that create excitement at this time of year. There are something like a dozen women's matinée clubs that also offer their felicitations and a scroll or a medal to the best this and the best that in the theater.

Two weeks ago the Drama Study Club, Inc., with a membership of more than a thousand, decided that Eddie Dowling, actor and co-producer of "The Time of Your Life," was entitled to a medal for being "The outstanding personality and contributor to the New York theater" for 1939-'40.

Eddie Dowling.

Last week the Theater Club, Inc., with a 600 membership, gave its medal [medals in this instance] to Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse for their job of bringing "Life with Father" to the stage. It was, said the club, the best American play of the year.

This week Eleanor Roosevelt came to New York to do the honors for Robert Porterfield of the Barter theater, Abingdon, Va. Mr. Porterfield's committee of distinguished playgoing laymen agreed that Dorothy Stickney, wife of co-Author Howard Lindsay and leading woman of the New York "Life with Father" company, was entitled to the Barter theater annual award for "the outstanding performance given by an American actor during the current New York season." This award includes an acre of land on the side of a Virginia mountain at Abington, together with a citation and a mess of garden truck. It also makes Miss Stickney a Virginia neighbor of Laurette Taylor, who was awarded last year's acre for her performance in "Outward Bound."

This week, too, Gertrude Lawrence was given a plaque by the Comedia Theater club, another group of a thousand or more interested playgoers, for her contribution of the season as the heroine of "Skylark." Thus does Miss Lawrence, the most popular of England's recent contributions in personnel to the American theater, take her place among the season's elect. She has been credited with being the salvation of Samson Raphaelson's comedy of the advertising man who tricked his wife out of a vacation by interesting her in an adopted baby. Certainly it would not be the same play without her. But it is also a comedy of sound human values and, as you will probably see when it reaches the stock company circuit, any number of capable actresses will be able to earn impressive audience reactions with it.

Plan O'Casey Play.

Next fall should see the production by Eddie Dowling of a new comedy by Sean O'Casey, called "Purple Dust." It deals with a "town family which has taken up country life in the wild part of Ireland." Another play by the same great Irish playwright, "The Star Turns Red," was recently put on in London by the Unity theater, where the critics liked his poetic style, but not his ideas or plot.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1940: By Ely Culbertson.]

Perhaps the easiest way of insulting any bridge player is to tell him he does not even know when to open the bidding. He looks upon this department of the game with the familiarity of long experience rather than that of intimate knowledge; he has long since digested the superficial requirements for opening bids—two and a half honor tricks with a five card biddable suit; three honor tricks with a four card biddable suit—and, satisfied that that is all there is to it, devotes his time and great talent to "more advanced" bidding problems.

Actually, by taking such a complacent attitude, Mr. Average Player is doing himself a great injury. Far from being easily summed up or codified, the opening bid is much more than a department of bidding—it is part and parcel of one's bridge philosophy. Naturally, text books cannot elaborate on points which are being presented to the absolute beginner. It is vital to drive the general requirements for opening the bidding into the neophyte's mind. He cannot even sit down at the bridge table and get started unless he has at least a vague conception of when to bid and what, and when to pass. The intelligent and ideal way of teaching bridge would be to follow the text book style and then, after the pupil has been conducted thru the entire course, to start all over again and clarify, modify, and enlarge upon the same points that were brought out in the first review. Unfortunately, this ideal method cannot be put over for the simple reason that when the average man or woman completes the course for the first time, he or she is convinced that there is nothing more to learn and that only actual experience is required to "take off the rough edges."

The opening bid is by no means the only department that must be studied over and over from different points of view. But in this article I shall attempt to point out how incomplete is the average knowledge on this subject.

Compare the following six hands:

1. ♠6 5 4 ♥A K 3 ♦A K 5 ♣7 6 4 2	4. ♠A J 9 8 6 4 ♥K Q 9 3 ♦4 2 ♣4
2. ♠6 5 4 ♥A K 4 2 ♦A 3 2 ♣K 3 2	5. ♠A 10 9 8 5 ♥K Q 10 8 3 ♦3 2 ♣4
3. ♠A K 7 4 3 ♥6 3 ♦A 7 5 ♣6 4 2	6. ♠J 10 ♥K 10 9 7 ♦A J 10 8 6 5 ♣3

Even in elementary text books the point is stressed that distribution has an important bearing on the number of honor tricks required for a bid. Unfortunately, at the time the student is called upon to absorb the honor trick requirements and the meaning thereof, his capacity is highly limited and the collateral information about distribution falls upon virtually deaf ears. This would be unimportant, if, after he had become fairly proficient, he went back and made a new study of the opening bid field. But, as I have said, he rarely does this; either laziness or self-satisfaction usually intervenes. Thus, if we give the above six hands to the average player and ask him which of these he would open, the answer would almost invariably be that only Nos. 1, 2, and 3 contain opening bid requirements. The others [he would say] should be passed on the first round and bid secondarily. And in making these statements he would reveal his utter ignorance of the philosophy of opening bids! O, true enough, only Nos. 1, 2, and 3 contain the requisite honor tricks. No. 4 is a plus value short. No. 5 is a full half trick short, and No. 6 is "beyond the pale," containing only one and a half plus honor tricks. But what a shortsighted survey this is!

Perhaps it will come as a shock to most readers, but allow me to assure them that only hand No. 6 would be passed by most experts, and that even that hand would be opened by some of the leading masters. Indeed, given their choice between the four honor trick hand, No. 1, and the less than two honor trick hand, No. 6, many of them would prefer to be dealt the latter. What is more, their logic would be unimpeachable because it would be based on probable losers.

Let us count these losers in all six hands, making no effort to go into fractions, but simply attempting to arrive at a rough valuation—the sort of valuation that the expert makes at a glance. Hand No. 1 containing four honor tricks also contains eight losers by even the most optimistic count, i. e., three spades, one heart, one diamond, and at least three clubs. Actually, the club suit might be called worthless, but let us be liberal to the devotees of honor tricks. Hand No. 2 has three losing spades, roughly one losing heart, two losing diamonds, and two losing clubs, a total of eight, and note that we have given the holder of this hand every consideration, conceding him a winner in the club king and in the fourth heart. Hand No. 3 contains about nine losers—a couple of spades, the two hearts, two diamonds, and the three clubs. Now we come to the hands which are sub par in respect to honor tricks. Note how the losers begin to evaporate. Our rough and unscientific, but logical, count discloses a couple of losing spades, a couple of losing hearts, two diamonds and one club—a total of only seven. On hand No. 5, we figure to lose a couple of spades, two hearts, two diamonds, and one club—also a total of seven. Hand No. 6—the opening of which would appall most players—contains only seven to eight losers, that is, a couple of spades, two to three hearts, one or two diamonds, and one club.

Thus, our comparison shows us that far from being the best hands potentially, Nos. 1, 2, and 3 are not as strong as the other three. Naturally, when I say not as strong, I am referring exclusively to the offensive potentialities. It goes without saying that if the opponents do much bidding, I would prefer to hold hand No. 1, but this is certainly no more than half the story. It is quite true that for purposes of teaching and for partnership understanding, honor tricks must be reckoned on a defensive basis. But like all other good things at bridge this can be carried too far. To open the bidding wisely, safely and correctly, the nicest possible balance must be struck between offensive and defensive objectives.

It is not wise or safe to shade honor-trick requirements too far, because in doing so one runs up against two distinct dangers: [a] that partner, not being able to realize one's bid has been based largely on distribution, will carry the auction to an unmakeable slam, and [b] that the opponents will do considerable bidding and that partner, counting on the opener for minimum honor-tricks, will double and run into a crushing redouble. The first danger, tho a real one, can be mitigated considerably by "putting on the breaks" after the opening bid, i. e., the player who opens the bidding because of good distribution, but whose honor-trick value is below par, can make weak rebids and thereby usually keep partner out of the slam levels. The second danger is largely offset, because when a player opens the bidding with such subpar hands as those described he is able to rescue his partner from premature doubles, i. e., to say in effect, "No doubt, partner, your double is perfectly sound based on my opening bid, but I am now informing you that that bid was shaded insofar as defensive values were concerned." So much for the compensation that can be applied to the defensive side of the picture.

For the offensive side the hands in question speak for themselves: They contain more than enough winners for an opening bid and their top trick strength is so little short of "orthodox" that it should not materially effect any contract which is logically and legitimately reached. To put it another way, if a player has two winners more than his partner can expect he need not be unduly alarmed over the fact that he is a half honor trick short of expectations.

Naturally, in violating the letter of the law respecting opening bid requirements real judgment must be used. Hence, my recommendation is that players honestly and humbly examine their own bridge talent and experience to determine whether they are able to apply such judgment. If they have reached the point that they can do so, I urge them to take slight liberties with the "book requirements."

An article by Mr. Culbertson appears in the feature section of The Tribune each weekday.

South's contract is six spades [a truly remarkable contract, I admit, but then, this is a double dummy problem]. West opens a trump. How can South take twelve tricks against this opening lead and against the best subsequent defense? [Admittedly, South would be defeated by a club opening, but the problem is not that double dummy.]

Answer—South overtakes dummy's spade jack and draws all the trumps, discarding the A-K-Q of diamonds and the club or a low heart from dummy. He then leads the ten of diamonds to dummy's jack, overtakes dummy's diamond eight on the return, cashes the diamond seven—and now throws East on lead by exiting with the diamond deuce. East must return a heart up to dummy, trapping West's singly guarded king en route.

Buenos Aires Opera Season Opens May 15

With fall and winter approaching in the southern hemisphere the Teatro Colón in Buenos Aires is preparing for its regular opera season. Opening on May 15 and closing late in October, this five months' session is rated as the longest opera season in the western hemisphere.

As at the Chicago Civic and Metropolitan Opera houses, the répertoire is international. French, German, and Italian operas are sung in the languages the original librettos used. Italian and French works will predominate during the first three months of the season, while the German items will be concentrated in the weeks following Aug. 15. There will also be the customary production of a new Argentine opera by a native composer.

• • •

Floro M. Ugarte, general director of the Colón, has decided not to experiment this year with the staging of any new contemporary operas, with the exception of the new native work. Cimarosa's "Le Astuzie Femminili" ["Women's Wiles"] in Ottorino Respighi's arrangement will be given for the first time in Buenos Aires. The other Italian and the French pieces will be more or less standard to patrons of the South American opera house. Only two Wagnerian works will be included in the German répertoire, "Die Walküre" and "Parsifal." There will be, however, new productions of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" and Gluck's "Alceste." Weinberger's "Schwanda" and Johann Strauss's "The Gypsy Baron," new to the répertoire last year, also will be done.

As for singers, many of them will be artists well known in this country: Marjorie Lawrence, Irene Jessner, Zinka Milanov, Risë Stevens, René Maison, Kurt Baum, Herbert Hanssen, and Emanuel List. There will be several prominent recruits from Italy, including some who were not permitted to come to the United States this season, for the main Italian opera seasons will be over about the time the one in Buenos Aires begins. The Argentine singers who will take leading rôles will include Isabelle Marengo, Pedro Mirassou, Marcello Urizar, and Sara Meneks. Incidentally, the Teatro Colón has a popular priced season in November when it gives young native singers a chance to gain operatic experience and public recognition.

Marjorie Lawrence.

• • •

The conductors for this year will be Gino Marinuzzi, Albert Wolff, Erich Kleiber, and Ferruccio Calusio. Mr. Kleiber, besides having charge of the German répertoire, will offer a series of Beethoven concerts, including a presentation of the Missa Solemnis, in which he will use the opera orchestra and chorus.

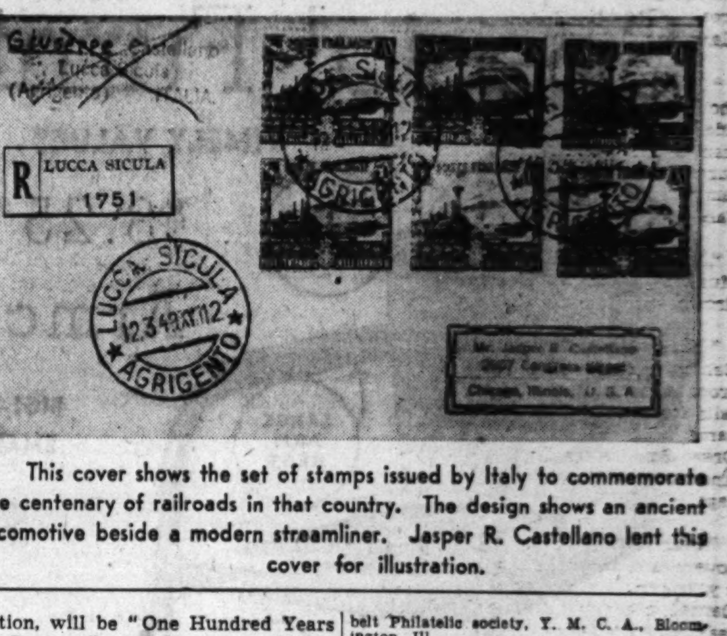
The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.



This cover shows the set of stamps issued by Italy to commemorate the centenary of railroads in that country. The design shows an ancient locomotive beside a modern streamliner. Jasper R. Castellano lent this cover for illustration.

The 5 cent value of the educator's group is the 14th example of the Famous Americans series of commemorative postage stamps. The blue stamp honors Frances E. Willard and was placed on sale on March 28, at Evanston, where she spent so much of her life.

Frances E. Willard.

The design measures 85-100 by 98-100 inch and follows the pattern of the lower values of the group. The curved plates for the rotary press contain 280 subjects arranged in four panes of 70 each. Plates bearing numbers 22530, 22531, and 22532 were prepared in January and the initial printing of 20 million stamps was started with plates 22530 and 22532 on Feb. 1, 1940. The plates are of the electric eye, convertible type, with markings arranged to permit the perforation of the sheets on any of the electric eye perforators.

The portrait of Miss Willard used for this stamp is taken from a photograph provided by the Washington, D. C., public library. William A. Roach prepared the design, James R. Lowe engraved the portrait, Carl T. Arlt the frame, and James T. Vail and William B. Wells the lettering.

Frances E. Willard was born at Churchville, N. Y., on Sept. 28, 1839. She attended Milwaukee Female college in 1857 and graduated from Northwestern Female college in Evanston in 1859. In succeeding years she taught at the Woman's college in Evanston and was its president from 1871 to 1874. The woman's college was amalgamated into Northwestern university in 1873 and Miss Willard occupied the position of dean of women. Her prominence in the Woman's Christian Temperance union dates from 1874, when she became corresponding secretary of the national organization. From 1879 until her death she was national president of the W. C. T. U., as it was familiarly known, and from 1887 until her death she also was president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union. In 1890 she became president of the Woman's National council, which represented nearly all the women's societies in the United States.

Thruout her later life she was active in the cause of woman's suffrage and in the affairs of the national Prohibition party. Miss Willard was the author of many books and was the editor of various temperance magazines. She died at New York City on Feb. 18, 1898.

William Gabel, 10600 Thrush avenue, Cleveland, O., will have cachets for Lindbergh's hop to Paris, May 21; Memorial day, May 30; Flag day, June 14; Father's day, June 16, and the battle of Bunker Hill, June 17. Send covers ready to go 10 days before the event and include 1 cent per cover for forwarding.

Today's program of the World Is Yours, presented by NBC in coöperation with the Smithsonian Institution and the United States Office of Education, will be "One Hundred Years of Postage," at 3:30 p. m., CDST., NBC-Red network.

The postoffice department has announced that there will be no stamp to commemorate the centenary of adhesive postage stamps. It appears the issuance of such a stamp might be interpreted as an unneutral act. Many collectors and philatelic writers are still importuning the department for this stamp, but it is unlikely there will be any change in the decision.

The Pan American union, Washington, D. C., announces it hopes to make available to collectors at its headquarters in Washington all stamps issued by the Latin American republics in honor of its 50th anniversary. Argentina, Bolivia, Ecuador, and Panama have agreed to send stamps for this purpose. Brazil, Chile, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Paraguay, and Venezuela have not yet agreed to the proposition. Consignments of 15,000 sets of stamps have been requested by the union and whatever are received will be sold at face value. Interested collectors should write to the Pan American union at once.

Frank Zaracki, 2763 Dupont street, Omaha, Neb., will sponsor a cachet for "Golden Spike Days" and Gracie Allen for President. This is an annual event in Omaha, where every one celebrates Union Pacific days. Send your name and address, the stamp which you wish used, and 1 cent forwarding fee. The envelope with cachet will be provided by Mr. Zaracki. Deadline is May 15.

C. Johnson, Box 185, Council Bluffs, Ia., will sponsor several cachets during the 50th anniversary of Wyoming statehood. Send Mr. Johnson your name and address for full details.

The Union Philatelic of Montreal, 4350 St. Denis street, Montreal, Que., celebrates the centenary of the Penny Black stamp from May 31 to June 2, 1940. A poster stamp in colors pictures the original stamp and Rowland Hill, the inventor. Full details can be obtained from the Union Philatelic.

The current number of Philatopic Monthly, the house organ of the Empire Stamp company, 349 Lippincott street, Toronto, Ont., contains the first instalment of an article on New Zealand centenary stamps, an article on perforations, an instalment of the Philatelic Encyclopaedia, and other interesting features. A copy will be mailed to any collector who writes to the Empire Stamp company.

"King Lear"

Despite the ravages that mobilization has made in actors' ranks in London, one of the finest conceivable casts has been assembled by John Gielgud for a production of Shakespeare's "King Lear" at the Old Vic theater. Supporting Mr. Gielgud, who is taking the title rôle, are Lewis Casson as Kent, Nicholas Hannen as Gloucester, Jack Hawkins as Edmund, Robert Harris as Edgar, Stephen Haggard as The Fool, Andrew Cruickshank as Cornwall, Harcourt Williams as Albany, Jessica Tandy as Cordelia, Cathleen Nesbitt as Goneril, and Fay Compton as Regan. Scenery and costumes were designed by Roger Furse. Performances started the middle of this month.

Woman's Club Hears Exciting Talk on Crime

Crime is quite an odd subject to meet twice in a week. But it took the Woman's Athletic club to handle it scientifically at one of their Tuesday mornings. And it became Col. Thomas Gowenlock to have a dinner at the Racquet club for the men who lead Chicago's force of detectives, some of whom are veterans of the great war.

Dr. James M. Hepbron of Baltimore, Md., head of the crime commission, lectured Tuesday before the Woman's Athletic membership. His topic was "Hail Felon, Well Met," and he handled it excitingly and on the constructive side. His experience includes service with the United States intelligence of the war and navy departments during the last war, and crime and police methods, penal systems and prisons in 17 countries. Dr. Hepbron spent four months in the prison outside of Paris which is a model of up-to-dateness. Each felon has a room not a cell, and in it are the tools of his handicraft. When he walks out into his private yard for exercise, his head and shoulders are covered by a mask of coarse sacking. The jailer raises his hat when he knocks at the felon's door and addresses him politely. Everything is done to build the man up. Only members of his family who have a good record are permitted to visit him. When he returns to society he hasn't at least learned any new dodges in prison.

• • •

The crime bill in America costs every citizen $120 a year, said Dr. Hepbron, and this is largely because of its tie-up with corrupt politics. England has no such conditions, and law breakers in Great Britain are sure of being caught and punished.

The distinguished lecturer showed the 10 jumps by which a caught criminal was able to evade a prison sentence in the United States, and they were all crooked politics.

It was a sensational morning for a club of gentlewomen an . a good prologue to the Racquet club dinner in honor of Capt. John Prendergast, Capt. Walter Storms, Lieut. Kyran Phelan and other brave officers who are our local Scotland Yard.

There were about a hundred members dining that night, informal dress was the rule, and the eight guests of honor were seated at their long table where Col. and Mrs. Gowenlock were hosts. Among the fair ladies invited to entertain the heads of our police were Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, a noted beauty; Mrs. Leander J. McCormick, Mrs. Potter Palmer Jr., Mrs. John Ames, Miss Marie Louise Hulburd, and Mrs. Byron Harvey Jr.

• • •

After dinner the entire company foregathered in the lounge and the officers gave brief sketches on exciting moments in their varied careers. Col. Gowenlock introduced each man after Capt. Edwin J. Daly had read from his record telling of promotions and scrimmages under fire. Also mentioned were the sums voted each officer after these gun battles with notorious thugs. Pitifully small they seemed, and some of the millionaires present looked startled—the rewards of bravery were hardly as much as the household cigaret bill. It was a more than interesting soirée, with the story of the solving of our most recent crimes.

It was a buffet dinner, "grabeteria" like Palm Beach, and the Saddle and Cycle is also copying that noted resort in having Sunday evening Keno or "Lucky" parties, as the Italians call them. These are entirely devoid of mental strain. All the player has to do is to put a button on a number when it is called and shout "keno" when his numbers are all covered. The purses were sometimes very large in Florida, where the cards cost one or two dollars.

• • •

Manners, they say, make the man, and last week at a luncheon in honor of Dr. Z. T. Koo of Shanghai at the Arts club, one felt convinced of it. Dr. Koo's quiet courtesy in dealing with the Japanese, already by the million in China, was more effective than any amount of raves and rants.

A few of the many Friends of China lunching that day had come expecting to hear an address from Ambassador Wellington Koo whose wife is such a fashionable Chinese beauty in the Chinese embassy at Paris. But I remembered this Dr. Koo of old, when he so charmingly wound up his philosophical discourse by slipping a flute out of the folds of his silken robe and playing a plaintive ditty of his native land. It is wonderful to see people who keep their manners in stressful days like these, and don't call names or anything. Dr. Koo said that time and education cure nearly everything, and then he described the multitude of Chinese colleges that had moved to far western China. It was a fascinating discourse, showing how the soul of a country and its long traditions can be saved. Indeed, it seemed to us that Dr. Koo was a bit condescending, even patronizing, toward the invader. Mrs. Harley MacNair had seated with her at the high table Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Paul Shorey, Mrs. Tiffany Blake, Mrs. Paul Welling, and Mrs. William B. Hale, also Col. George Langhorne, Dr. MacNair, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Valentine, Mrs. H. B. Voorhees, and Mrs. Edward Waller were among the luncheon givers.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Valentine's tea Monday afternoon enlivened Ritchie place when guests came to meet Miss Oliva Osborne of New York, their daughter-in-law to be. The fiancée of Josephine Valentine Jr. is a charming brunette.

The house, which is a museum of beautiful Chinese objects of art, screens, bronzes, and potteries, was elaborately decorated with huge bouquets of white spring flowers. Joe Valentine is the last to get married, John and Jane having hopped off some years ago. They, too, found their fates at the age of 24 years, but being, so to speak, the hour of destiny among the Valentines.

Another Chicago man whose engagement was announced last week is Albert P. Dewey, brother of Charles S. Dewey. Ad Dewey's fiancée is Miss Felicia Fiske, daughter of Mrs. Frederick Frelinghuysen of New York. The romance is a Florida one of the late season, but the friendship is rather an old one. Albert Dewey's first wife was Gwendolyn Ffoulke of Washington and there are two children of that marriage.

Highly picturesque happenings are going forward these days in Paris, where fashionable women are operating canteens and doing their bit for the empires. Among the canteen waiters balancing a tray and trying to win the war for England is Lord Fermoy, not quite young enough for the trenches. Fermoy was born in New York and named James Maurice Burke-Roche, one of twin sons. His mother was Fanny Work, a famous beauty whose father was Frank Work, an early day millionaire and owner of race horses. His brother, the Hon. Francis Burke-Roche, is to be met in Paris or Vichy or Cannes almost any old time. The twins had quite an inheritance and Lord Fermoy sits in parliament. Just now, unable to fight, he is being a waiter, a good one, they say.

Apropos of canteens, the bridge party Tuesday next at the Casino is going off with the utmost success. The proceeds of the afternoon, already large, will be applied to a service for antiaircraft crews stationed about the Paris sector.

Mrs. H. C. Bangs and Mrs. Frank Loesch are co-chairmen, and a committee of 35 includes Mrs. Walter Dill Scott, Mrs. James H. Winston. Mrs. H. B. Voorhees, Mrs. John Howard, Mrs. W. Montgomery McGovern, and Mrs. W. H. Hubbard.

Mrs. Larz Anderson of Boston is chairman of the American committee. And in Paris her cousin, Mrs. John H. Bacon, well known to all women who shop chez Molyneux, is head of the American interests subscribing to these canteens. Seven hundred dollars in gifts have already been contributed to the bridge party as well as current expenses. Mrs. Walter B. Wolf is staging a fashion show of young lovelies at tea time and the door prizes, they say, are unique, nice and numerous.

Among the charming things and persons that happen as regularly as spring rolls round is Mrs. Mary Breckinridge's morning talk May 15 at the Fortnightly. This wonderful Louisville woman, high bred and fascinating, is the founder and head of the Kentucky Frontier Nursing service.

The work of her people is among Kentucky mountaineers, scattered widely in the uplands. Many young girls from our first families have volunteered and served a term or two with Mrs. Breckinridge in the mountains. Nothing more romantic can be imagined than being a courier or a nurse in this region. There are few roads if any, only trails and rough scattered dwellings of the inhabitants, and the frontier girls get about on horseback. Here is a sample of the landscape from a letter by a novice: "On we rode until we saw the river, deep, wide, a terrible thick yellow color. To our amazement our guide struck right across, deeper and deeper in the hideous yellow current. The water was up to the saddle, but we reached the other side only to hear that it was the first of several fords. The next was at the mouth of Hell-for-Certain and looked wild and deep. The current was swift and I felt huge rocks underfoot as my horse gamely made her way over. As for myself, after that trip, nothing seems impossible."

Of all American charities, that of the Frontier Nursing service seems to me the most easily understood. The people they serve are our own people and many are in direst need. Nancy Blaine and Barbara Ingersoll have joined the Chicago committee which is headed by Mrs. Donald R. McLennan.

Mrs. Breckenridge has cousins in Chicago, being related to the various Wallers whose origins were in Kentucky.

The Casino was the scene, one balmy evening last week, of a soirée with a Gallo-Roman atmosphere, and a distinguished company to absorb it. Col. Donald Armstrong, U. S. A., in service here, was the guest of honor of the Italy America society. This society is two sided: It fêtes worth-while Italians on their travels, and equally well, it presents outstanding Americans coming this way.

Col. Armstrong, who is a splendid type of officer, handsome, tall, well set up, was military attaché of the American embassy at Paris after the world war. He also had a post in Italy. During a seven year residence in Paris he studied Cæsar's campaign in Gaul, and the subject of his talk was "Modern Aspects of the Roman Army." The address was delightful, explaining as it did the successful warfare of Cæsar, the make-up of his legions, and their weapons. A legion, we heard, was composed of 6,000 men, about the strength of a present day United States division. Col. MacKintosh who sat in the audience and is an authority on arms, had fabricated an enormously heavy short sword in its copper scabbard. He had also made a small model catapult, which was the stone throwing cannon of 2,000 years ago, and these were exhibited.

Among the guests were Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Wentworth Field, Mrs. Hambleton Kirk, Miss Mary Nixon of Florence, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hamill, Countess Giulio Bolognesi, Mrs. Rensselaer Cox, Miss Elsie McCormick, Mrs. Benjamin Rosenthal, Mrs. Ira N. Morris, Mrs. James Offield, and Robert Hall McCormick.

• • •

Skipping from bella Italia to la belle France, there was an exciting election day at the Alliance Française in the handsome library where the French hold forth. Robert Hall McCormick must be considerable of a juggler to hold presidential office with both the Italian and French societies, which he has done with éclat these many years. He was reëlected, and Mrs. Ralph James was a fourth termite, elected with much applause. Mr. McCormick had what the French call a "laryngite," so he made no address, but René Weiller gave his benediction from the dais to the proceedings. The directors to continue are Nathan MacChesney, Col. Harold Sperling, William Nitze, Walter R. Kirk, Carter H. Harrison, Ira Nelson Morris, and Robert H. McCormick.

The ladies who will serve as vice presidents are Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. John Crerar, Mrs. Moise Dreyfus, Mrs. James H. Winston.

Mrs. M. W. Dickinson is chairman of the music, concerts, etc., for the coming year. Reports were read, treasurer's, Red Cross, etc., and library. After which the alliance was wrapped up in tar paper with moth balls until October shall have rolled around once more.

MARRIED ON APRIL 6

Mrs. Ralph E. Stouffer Jr. is the former Florence Sprafka, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John J. Sprafka of Oak Park. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stouffer of Riverside took place April 6. Mr. Stouffer and his bride are at home on the near north side.

Phi Beta Music Fraternity Having Special Program

Inasmuch as the first day of Music week coincides with Founder's day of the Phi Beta fraternity, a special program has been arranged by members of the group to take place at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in the Rose Crystal room of the Auditorium building. Miss June Trede, vice president of the Gamma chapter of the organization, will participate in the program. Other soloists will be Miss Barbara Hamilton, president, Miss Violet Trede, and Robert Hamilton.

Decorations, menus, and wine lists of 40 years ago will prevail again on Saturday evening, when members of the Germania club of Chicago hold an old-fashioned May party. Hans Eschenburg, who has been a member of the club for over 51 years, will be the special guest and severest critic of the atmosphere which will have been recreated from the reports of all the meetings held at the club since its founding.

Members of the Cameo salon will hold the last meeting of their 21st season this evening at 50 East Huron street. The program, which will be entirely American, will include an original one-act play by the president, Elizabeth G. Hess; colored moving pictures, "Gems of American Scenery," presented by Dr. Lewis Tint; and songs by Gladys Reid and Reid Hilligard.

Lake Geneva's Country Club Opens Season

By Rose Cour.

LAKE GENEVA, WIS.

Resplendent with gay new furnishings, rugs, and draperies, the Lake Geneva Country club, said to be next to the oldest golf club in the United States, opened its forty-third season recently.

Spring green and rose are the predominating colors in the new chairs and sofas in the big living and dining rooms with rugs and window hangings in harmonizing shades, while the women's lounge has been done over in pale blue and ivory. As always, the gayest room is the cocktail lounge with modernistic metal furniture and decorations in the club colors, azure and yellow. For contrast with the up-to-the-minute scene, a pair of handsome old carriage lamps light the bar, relics from Albert F. Madlener's brougham.

Four deer heads, gifts of Tracy Drake, have been retained in the dining room, and in the living room moose heads contributed by Henry Bartholomay, and mountain sheep from Jackson Hole, Wyo., gifts of John Borden, still gaze down upon the frivolities of country club life. More recent gifts adorn the attractive dining porch which overlooks the lake and the golf course. High on the east wall is a splendid specimen of sailfish caught by Mrs. Henry C. Bartholomay at Palm Beach, while a fine tarpon spreads its fins on the south wall, the catch of Jeannette Peterkin [Mrs. Daniel Peterkin] at Shark River, Fla. The tarpon on the north wall fell a victim to the rod of Vaughn L. Alward at Bataband, Cuba.

The present clubhouse built of stone in English country house style was erected in 1914 upon the site of the original clubhouse. This was a simple white frame building overshadowed by large verandas, designed by Ernest Walker, a Chicago architect.

While the Lake Geneva Country club was organized in 1897, the lake boasts of an even earlier private golf course which was built at The Butternuts by Nathaniel K. Fairbanks for himself and other of his lake shore neighbors who were golfing enthusiasts. These pioneer golfers, including George C. Walker, first president of the club; William Borden, secretary and treasurer; Edward E. Ayer, Gen. Henry Strong, and Julian M. Rumsey, leased several acres on the south shore of the lake and laid out a golf course of five or six holes which later grew to nine and eventually to eighteen holes. By this time the club had purchased several hundred acres of the Seymour N. Hatch farm. [Mr. Hatch was one of the first settlers in southern Wisconsin and procured his land from the government in the first land sale of Wisconsin territory in 1839.]

Chairman of the first house committee was Mr. Rumsey's sister, Miss Eliza Voluntine Rumsey. Other early members of the club were Charles L. Hutchinson, Martin A. Ryerson, Henry H. Porter, Kellogg Fairbank, Dr. Ralph N. Isham, Benton Sturges, E. Lee Jones, Simeon B. Chapin, Samuel Allerton, Levi Z. Leiter, Richard T. Crane, C. K. G. Billings, Gordon Harry Selfridge, S. E. Egan, Tracy Drake, Otto Young, and Hubbard Carpenter. The latter was secretary of the club for twenty-seven years. The first professional employed by the club was John Conacher from St. Andrews, Scotland. George Butler, superintendent of the grounds, has served in that capacity since the founding of the club.

• • •

While a long winding driveway led thru the links, then as now, to the highway, the majority of early members, altho they owned fine stables and numerous equipages, arrived by boat at the club's long piers. There were about thirty private steam yachts on the lake in 1900 and many of these were to be seen every summer day drawn up at the club docks. On Saturday evenings they arrived laden with lovely ladies in décolleté gowns who danced to the strains of the famous Johnny Hand's orchestra.

Older members of the club, in debating upon what costume women golfers wore, brought out the fact that women did not play golf in the late '90s and the early 1900s at Lake Geneva. The wives, sweethearts, and sisters of the men golfers, attired in stiff full white dresses that swept the ground, congregated on the clubhouse veranda overlooking the links and made beautiful articles of "fancy work," embroidering elaborate sofa cushions, making Battenberg lace or crocheting delicately hued "fascinators."

One daring young female, however, deserted the rocking chair brigade to become Lake Geneva's first girl golfer, smacking the white ball down the course with her brother and his friends. She was Mary Borden, sister of John Borden, the explorer, and daughter of the club's first secretary-treasurer. Miss Borden went to Europe after her graduation from Vassar, and when the world war began was in France, where she organized and ran a large field hospital. She became the wife of Brigadier General E. L. Spears of the British army in 1918. Miss Borden is a famous novelist and is also considered one of London's most brilliant and best dressed hostesses. At Lake Geneva she is mostly remembered in pinafores.

• • •

Altho one of the oldest country clubs in the country, the Lake Geneva club also might well be called the club of youth as it is one of the few older clubs that has opened its doors, welcomed the children of its members, and urged them to use its facilities. This, say many members, is proving to be not only an excellent thing for the youngsters and for the club, but also for the lake and its future. Three years ago when the movement was first started there were 42 junior members and this number has more than doubled in the last year with most of the old lake families well represented. Sports, of course, are the chief interest of the young people, and special instructors in both golf and tennis have been engaged for their benefit.

The present directors of the club are Henry C. Bartholomay, Armin W. Brand, Dr. William P. Finney, Harry N. Gifford, Sangston Hettler, Henry Porter Isham, Augustus Kinloch Maxwell, Otto Madlener, William Nelson Pelouze, Daniel Peterkin Jr., William H. Sills Jr., William M. Spencer, Lawrence H. Whiting, and Earle J. Zimmerman.

Alsace Legend Presages Early End of Warfare

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

How long will the war last? Probably no one knows, but that does not prevent speculation, not to say superstition, from hazarding a guess. Quite widespread, at the moment, is the recalling of an old legend, one of the many that come from Alsace. Not far from Strasburg is a spring, hallowed by a shrine. The story goes that whenever France is at war, the spring dries up, by anticipation, some weeks before the conflict begins. And when peace is in sight, the spring begins to spout again. It appears that shortly before the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, the spring stopped and then started up when peace was near. Again in 1914, abrupt stoppage, and resumption in early autumn of 1918 a few weeks before the armistice. In August of 1939 the spring ceased to flow and all the Alsatians who heard of it believed war was inevitable. And now, within recent days, the spring is spouting anew, and word is going around, both in military and civil circles, that the end of the conflict is in sight.

This story, or fact, probably has little weight with the plans of the high command. Perhaps the same may be said for certain gossip which is going the rounds in Cannes. It is said the duke of Windsor, when in England some weeks ago, went to the war office and asked what honorarium accompanied the office of field marshal. The reply is said to have been that it was nothing when the post was held by some one of the royal family. Tongues will wag, even on the Riviera, where rumor has it that the same personage received the cold shoulder from his brother, the king, on giving his views about the conduct of the war, and also from his mother, on an earlier visit, when the duchess was with him, and the queen mother, desirous as she was of seeing her son, did not care to extend the same welcome to his wife.

As long ago as 1906, Gen. Serrigny, now on the retired list, published a book on war and economic movement, and in 1909 one on the economic and social consequences of the next war. In them he predicted much of what happened in 1914 and later. Now he has just brought out a work on "Germany Facing Total War," in which he figures that Hitler will have a hard job to get the immense supplies of iron and petroleum necessary to carry out his modest plans.

State Women Voters to Have '40 Conclave

By Betty Browning.

Now that the National League of Women Voters has decided on its course of action for the next two years, the Illinois League of Women Voters in turn will adopt a program at its 20th anniversary convention this week at the Hotel Shoreland. "Blueprints for a Better Illinois" will be the theme of this three day meeting, which will open Wednesday.

Mrs. David L. Shillinglaw. [Root Photo.]

The measures approved by the national organization at its biennial convention last week in New York will govern the state league's policies only where national and international affairs are concerned. The state convention will make independent decisions on problems of state and local government, altho measures bracketed for state action by the National League naturally will be kept in mind as recommendations.

Dwight H. Green and Harry B. Hershey, respectively Republican and Democratic candidates for governor, are to address the convention following a banquet Thursday evening. "Concrete Plans for Illinois" will be their subject.

• • •

The "blueprint" motif will begin with a luncheon meeting Wednesday noon, when the state's financial foundations will be surveyed. Simeon Leland, acting chairman of the department of economics at the University of Chicago, will discuss "getting the money," and Albert Lepawsky, director of the federation of tax administrators, "spending the money."

Achievements of local leagues will be featured at a dinner meeting Wednesday evening on "Satisfactory Samples." Mrs. William M. Bryant, president of the Cook County league, Mrs. Carl Milam of Evanston, Mrs. J. Sigurd Johnson of Highland Park, Mrs. Cyrus E. Palmer of Champaign, Mrs. Carl Wiegman of Maywood, and Mrs. Robert J. Phillips of the North Du Page County league will tell of their work in the field of local government.

Mrs. Ruric N. Smith, president of the Oklahoma League of Women Voters, and a national director, will describe similar activities by other local leagues thruout the country.

The opening business session of the convention will follow the dinner. Executive and department meetings, a tour of the Jane Addams housing project, and tea at the public administration clearing house will be other events of the day.

• • •

Thursday's business sessions will be interrupted at a luncheon at which Miss Edith Rockwood will speak on "Building Buttresses: Better Welfare Administration." Miss Rockwood was the first executive secretary of the Illinois League of Women Voters, and now is a specialist in child welfare for the United States children's bureau. A tour of the University of Chicago, a tea at Ida Noyes hall, and the banquet are other events on Thursday's schedule.

At a final luncheon session Friday at International house, Mrs. Louise Leonard Wright, the national chairman of government and foreign policy, will discuss "Beyond Our Boundaries."

Mrs. David L. Shillinglaw of Chicago has planned this program with the assistance of Mrs. Walter T. Fisher, Mrs. Robert C. McNamara, Mrs. Jacob Viner, and the league's six state department chairmen, Mrs. Clifton M. Utley, Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde, Mrs. Maurice A. Pollak, Miss Ellen M. Yockey, Mrs. Jasper S. King, and Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer.

• • •

Legislation to make Illinois eligible to obtain federal aid for dependent children, and city manager enabling legislation will be among the most important measures on the program to be submitted to the convention by these same department heads. Both of these measures have had previous league support, and the league now is coöperating in circulating a petition for a public policy referendum on city manager enabling legislation.

The league also will vote on the integration plan proposed at the national convention last week as a means of coördinating the finances and fund raising activities of national, state, and local leagues. This integration plan is an outgrowth of the expansion campaign conducted by the league thruout the country in the last year, and ultimately would result in the state leagues' assuming the responsibility for all contributions made by residents in their states.

• • •

Another consequence of the expansion campaign was the adoption of a national budget of $82,750, the largest budget since 1929, representing an increase of more than $18,000 over last year's total. The state leagues doubled their contributions of the previous year to help meet this budget, and $10,000 was drawn from a reserve fund built up thru the expansion campaign.

Mrs. George G. Bogert, president of the Illinois league, pledged $4,550 from her state, and agreed to propose an additional contribution of $3,950 at the state convention.

The proposed integration plan actually would affect Illinois less than most states, for it always has been one of the national organization's most generous supporters, thru special contributions as well as thru the state organization. Mrs. William G. Hibbard of Winnetka for six years has headed the national league's finance committee, thru which most of the special contributions have been made.

• • •

Another Winnetkan, Mrs. Thomas Fisher, the national league's treasurer, submitted to the national convention a plan to establish a standard for contributions by state leagues whereby not less than 25 per cent, nor more than 40 per cent, of its total state budget shall be paid by a state league to the national league.

Mrs. Fisher suggested this plan as chairman of a special finance committee appointed by the 1938 convention. The plan, which also calls for a greatly strengthened finance committee, was submitted to the national board. It will be considered at the next council meeting, and will be brought before the 1942 convention.

PREPARING FOR LAKE FOREST FLOWER SHOW

Mrs. Clymer S. Bowen, like every other amateur gardener in Lake Forest, is tending her flowers carefully just now so as to be ready for the Lake Forest Garden club's annual flower show on May 18 and 19. The show will be held at Mill Road farm thru the courtesy of the University of Chicago, which now owns the estate, formerly the home of Albert D. Lasker. The show will be open from 11 to 6 o'clock both days and tickets may be obtained at the gate. One dollar for adults and 50 cents for children. Mrs. William A. P. Pullman and Mrs. Phelps Kelley are cochairmen of the committee in charge.

Onions, Beets Steal Pasadena Flower Exhibit

By Ruth Billheimer.

When vegetables steal the show at an exhibition of flowers it's something to talk about!

PASADENA, CAL. It actually happened at the annual spring flower show here last week-end. The Diggers—a band of society matrons who royally deserve their title, for they get down on their hands and knees and dig in their own gardens—got down on hands and knees at the Fannie E. Morrison horticultural center and put in the cleverest vegetable and flower garden you ever saw!

Chicago society will be interested to know that Mrs. Edgar Bassett Washburn [Belle Marion Story], once of that city, is president of the club. Mrs. Carleton B. Swift [Lila Leonard], also an ex-Chicagoan, is treasurer. Mrs. Edward Whitney Bodman [Julia Barry] is in charge of the dispensary committee—which is the reason, actually, that the Diggers exist. They have designed and executed a patio garden at the Huntington Memorial hospital's dispensary, and many are the little heart throbs that come from the gardenless individuals who pause there to rest their bodies and their eyes.

• • •

Clever murals done in white on mulberry stucco walls that surround the court were painted by the former Chicago artist, Alson Clark, whose works adorn many public buildings in southern California, and whose studio on the brink of Arroyo Seco is one of the most interesting haunts in Pasadena.

The Diggers have actually set out every blade of green in the patio; have watched and tended it with scientific and loving care. A man is hired only to water and do the heavy work.

At their last meeting the women held an auction of plants and flowers they had grown themselves.

• • •

But back to the vegetables. Diggers were assigned the semicircular bed at the base of the Hillside garden at the flower show, which was the joint project of all the garden clubs. They set out alternating rows of onions and beets in a fan and scalloped it with huge red cabbages and petunias. At the back, for height, were purple and cerise gladiolas.

• • •

Indoors in the flower arrangement room, fascinating as always, there were the inevitable and lovely arrangements of Mrs. Edwin M. Sherman, a former Chicagoan, and her old Egyptian copper water jar, filled with tawny roses, snaps, Gerber daisies, and bronze foliage, was a first prize winner in its class. Her other exhibits had unusual containers, too. She arranged white flowers and silvery green leaves in an old piece of milk glass from a Maine Shaker village, and upon a pewter plate from Blue Hill, Me., she placed pink quartz from Oxford county, Me., and bleeding hearts. Billie Eilersgaard, granddaughter of the William A. Magies of Chicago and Pasadena, won firsts for a potted plant entry and an original flower arrangement.

The flower show this spring became unexpectedly a lovely tribute and memorial to Dr. Philip Schuyler Doane, vice president of the Pasadena flower show, one of its founders and its president for the first three years. His passing was a shock to the city and came Saturday as the display of floral beauty was at its height.

Edith Kaprall to Wed Dr. Maurice R. Falstein

Mr. and Mrs. Herman J. Kaprall of 4822 North Ridgeway avenue announce the engagement of their daughter, Edith, to Dr. Maurice R. Falstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Falstein of 3222 Carmen avenue. Her fiancé attended Northwestern university and the University of Chicago, and was graduated from the University of Illinois.

Society World Saying Aloha to Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

Palm Beach is saying aloha to the world of society. Now commences

PALM BEACH, FLA. the summer hibernation of this gay resort, tho numerous colonists are still here.

The Henry H. Windsors of Winnetka are staying until May 15, and are filling in the time with cruises aboard their yacht, Apache. The Elmer Riches are busy fishing and so is James E. Baum. Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Lyons never tire of angling, and the Oscar Johnsons are others who are nearly always out cruising and fishing.

As an aftermath of the social fishing season, taxidermists are doing a land office business. Mounting fish has become one of the major industries in this community. Its permanence is guaranteed by the inordinate pride of the fishermen which, thru the ages, has never suffered a depression. While all manner of the finny tribe are mounted, sailfish seem to lead in popularity, with tarpon and dolphin as runnersup. The marlin, a hefty cousin of the sailfish, is also a rare catch, and it, too, is sure to be mounted.

• • •

According to taxidermists, a most important part of the mounting process is the skinning of the fish. Great care must be taken that the skin is not broken. The customer is asked whether he wants his fish posed in a straight position or in a graceful curve. The charge is made by the foot. Something like $12.00 a foot is charged for the straight and narrow mounting and $15.00 for the curved.

The model is carved on balsa wood and the hide of the fish, properly cured, is stretched over it. If it is a sailfish, the beautiful sail is spread out and dried. No matter how severely the sail may be torn, a skilful workman can repair it so the rents will never be seen.

Anglers know the sailfish begins to lose its magnificent color the minute it leaves the water. By the time the hide is cured, it is completely bereft of color and is as drab and uninteresting to behold as the point of view of a pessimist. But it is in this condition that the hide is stretched over the model. The sail and the sword are adjusted and the fish is treated to a coat of silver leaf, after which the colors are sprayed on. Finishing touches are put on by hand. The sail is painted the same intense blue-black that it was when the fish was skimming around in the Gulf stream. Into the empty eye socket is fitted a handsome glass orb, thru which the fish gazes reproachfully at its boastful captor. There are many houses in Palm Beach where the den or library has been built especially as a background for a mounted sailfish.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Henderson of New York, popular with the Chicago colony, are remaining until mid-May at their ocean front estate, Land's End. It was here that the Little World's Fair for Finnish Relief was held in March. As a reminder of that event, the huge panoramic painting of Helsinki square is still intact and is the object of admiration by passing motorists. Moreover, on the site of the fair, the Hendersons are raising a field of succotash.

At least grains of corn and beans from the bingo games have fallen on fertile ground and are producing bumper crops.

The downstairs cafeteria of the Bath and Tennis club will remain open until the middle of the month. Many informal parties are held there daily.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Dean will remain here for some time. Mrs. Dean is Fanny Ward, known as the perennial flapper. It is said that war conditions are causing the former actress considerable worry. She derives her income from England where remittances are said to be held up.

South Honors Chicago Artist and Sculptor

By Eleanor Jewett.

Two Chicago artists are receiving recognition in the south this month. Frederick C. Hibbard, Chicago sculptor, has finished a stunning portrait statue of Benjamin R. Tillman which was dedicated May 1 on the statehouse grounds of Columbia, S. C. Benjamin Tillman died in 1918. He was governor of the state for four years before going to Washington to serve South Carolina as senator.

In connection with this memorial statue by Frederick Hibbard it is interesting to remember that tho it has become fairly fashionable to scoff at the "frock coat and pants" statue, yet when it was put to the vote some 20 years ago all thru the country as to what was the outstanding art work of major importance in the United States, giving consideration to all expressions—painting, sculpture, architecture, etc.—the statue of Abraham Lincoln by St. Gaudens which stands at the south end of Lincoln park got 80 per cent of the votes. That statue is a "frock coat and pants" statue. But how much more than that it is! The figure and face seem to embody the spirit of Lincoln and wear his loneliness, his dignity, and his greatness.

One of Chicago's citizens, Benjamin Franklin Ferguson, who traveled a great deal in Europe and conceived a great admiration for the generous distribution of sculpture in various forms, equestrian statues, portrait statues, imaginative figures, fountains and plaques in foreign cities, gave Chicago a gift as noted in the programs at the dedication of the Thomas memorial and the Marquette memorial.

"According to the provisions of his will, Benjamin Franklin Ferguson, an old and respected business man of Chicago, made a bequest to be known as the B. F. Ferguson Monument fund, the incomeof which is to be expended by the trustees of the Art institute of Chicago in the erection and maintenance of enduring statuary and monuments in the whole or in part of stone, granite or bronze, in the parks, along the boulevards or in other public places, within the city of Chicago, Ill., commemorating worthy men or women of America or important events in American history."

Among the important pieces of sculpture which the Ferguson fund has given Chicago are the Fountain of Time, by Lorado Taft; the lovely Eugene Field monument by Edward McCartan in Lincoln park, near the small animal house; the Pere Marquette monument, by Hermon A. MacNeil, and the Indian Riders, by Mestrovic, which stand on Michigan avenue at the foot of Congress street. The Mestrovic horses were erected in 1928, but since then little has been heard from the fund. According to report, Mr. Ferguson left a million dollars which yielded, before the depression, about $30,000 a year.

It would be interesting to know what impressive sculptures the trustees of the fund have in mind for Chicago. A recent motion toward preventing sculpture in the parks, replacing it by buildings or swimming pools, listed as one reason for the suggested change the cost of upkeep. Without reminding those interested that buildings and swimming pools also demand upkeep and to a far greater extent than does bronze, for example, the Ferguson fund includes "maintenance" in its provision for "enduring statuary and monuments in the whole or in part of stone, granite or bronze."

The other Chicago artist to be honored this month in the south is Nina K. Griffin, the water color painter, who is having a very successful one-man show of her recent work at Columbus, Ga.

Speaking of sculpture, Albin Polasek is completing a superb equestrian memorial to Masaryck; the model may be seen in his studio, Tree Studio building, 4 East Ohio street. If this is given the right setting it should be another great cultural and inspirational asset to Chicago.

And again, speaking of sculpture, do not miss the superb exhibit by Boris Lovet-Lorski at the Tretyakov galleries, 673 North Michigan avenue. Lovet-Lorski works in various stones, a fact that lends a great deal to the charm of his art. He has an admirable flair for the right material for the subject undertaken; how right he is you will note quickly in running thru the portrait heads and imaginative groups. The simplicity and sincerity of his work make it outstanding in a day when a complicated jargon of execution is the pitfall of the average artist.

Jessie Arms Botke and her husband, Cornelius, are in town and will be at the opening reception tomorrow afternoon at the Chicago Galleries association, 215 North Michigan avenue. Mrs. Botke is here in connection with her showing of a group of decorative bird and flower paintings at the galleries. Mattie Lietz and Frank Johnson are the two other exhibitors in this May exhibit that opens tomorrow.

The 19th International Exhibition of Water Colors is current in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. It is a rather uneven show. However, the invited pictures and those from out of town give it a different flavor from the last exhibit hung in those galleries. There is a sufficiency of poor painting present and a fair amount of good—among which might be noted the "Leaving the Paddock, Hialeah," by Randall Davey; "Wild Stampede," by Olive Rush; "Carolina Planting," by A. Lassell Ripley; "Farm in Spring," by John Whorf; "Saugatuck Sketch Class," by Walter J. Sherwood [Mr. Sherwood is an official of the Art institute, a greatly beloved individual and only recently a painter; his picture is clever, amusing, piquant]; "Across the Tracks," by Donald Mills; "Rain," by Irene Bianucci, and "Along the Shore, Port Antonio, Jamaica," by Antimo Beneduce.

Three one-man groups are hung in the exhibit. The water colors by Rainey Bennett, Chicago artist, are many of them loaned by Nelson Rockefeller who commissioned them. Rockefeller, who commissioned them. deal of ground in South America. They are well done, with good design and vivid color—very likable.

Adolf Dehn, whose two charming landscapes of last year are still remembered [they were bought up immediately] and whose skill in etching has won him great fame [can any one who has seen it forget his thumbnail etchings for the New England calendar?], is the other American painter with a one-man show. His group is stunning and remarkably diversified. He fires two telling shots, one at WPA art and one at modern art, and each shot is so successful that it leaves you breathless. He says everything [almost] and his criticisms are bitingly funny. Do not miss "Regional Artist and His Muse" and "Contacting Pablo Picasso." Nor, while you have the chance, miss taking in the beauties of "Duck Shooting," "Spring Awakes," "Approaching Storm," and the various other landscapes. Adolf Dehn is an American painter to be reckoned with.

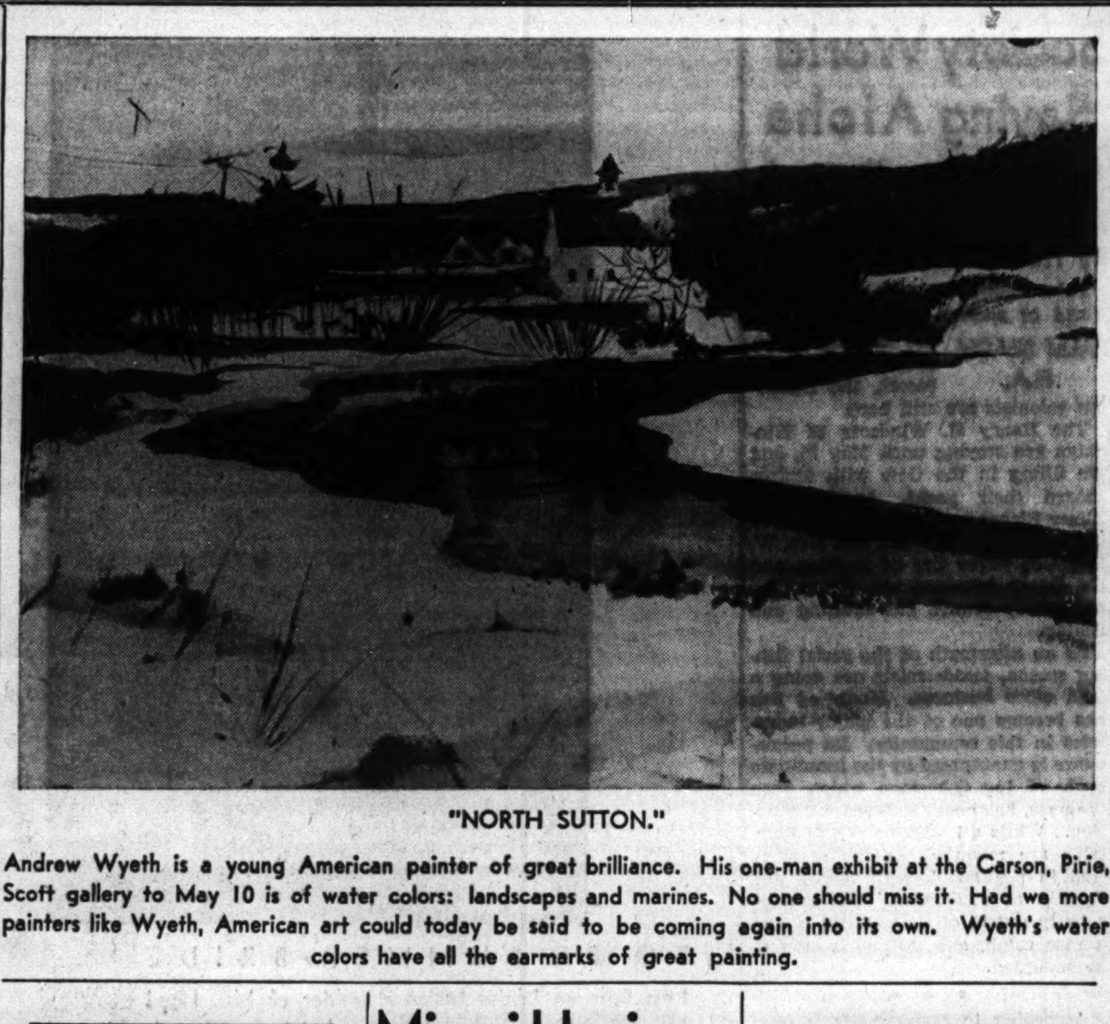
The third one-man group is ultramodern, in fact, by one of the "artists of tomorrow"—Paul Klee, one of the Blue Four, German chiefly, altho Klee is a Swiss. His exhibit is present thru the generous disposition of its several owners; you will get out of it what you bring to it. But do not bring too much.

It is hard to feel that the prizes did not go to names. The Watson F. Blair prize of $600 was given to George Grosz. His "Cape Cod No. 12" comes with the same surprising shock as would the finding of a bed of bluebells in a nettle patch, it is most unlike the usual sardonic caricature over his signature. The Watson F. Blair prize of $400 was given to Reginald Marsh. His "Summer in New York" flaunts a nude woman who is by all odds the most blatantly and coarsely nude nude any Chicago gallery has housed in years.

Both of these awards were made by the committee on painting and sculpture of the Art institute, which is composed of Charles H. Worcester, Chauncey McCormick, Percy B. Eckart, John A. Holabird, Frederic C. Bartlett, Max Epstein, and Walter S. Bewster.

The honorable mentions are more easily understood. They were given to Arthur Briscoe for "Jib Sheets"; Hayley Lever for "Holy City, Ocean Grove, New Jersey"; and Irene Hodes Newman for "Gullahs."

The Annual Spring Salon of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts will be held from May 18 to Aug. 31 in the Third Floor Corridor gallery, Stevens hotel. On the jury were Adam Emory Albright, Robert P. Kilbert, and Jerome J. Klapka.



"NORTH SUTTON."

Andrew Wyeth is a young American painter of great brilliance. His one-man exhibit at the Carson, Pirie, Scott gallery to May 10 is of water colors: landscapes and marines. No one should miss it. Had we more painters like Wyeth, American art could today be said to be coming again into its own. Wyeth's water colors have all the earmarks of great painting.

ENGAGED

Miss Mary Josephine Rach, whose engagement to Dr. Charles Francis Kramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Kramer of Honore street, is announced by her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Emil Arthur Rach of Bennett avenue. Miss Rach is a graduate of the Academy of Our Lady and also attended Mount Mary college and the Chicago Musical college. Dr. Kramer is a graduate of Loyola university and the Loyola School of Medicine. The wedding is planned for December.

Miami Having the Time of Her Life—in Slacks

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

Miami has taken off her jewels. She has exchanged formal wear for slacks, gay blouses and big hats. The season is over. During the annual breathing spell between the winter season and arrival of summer guests she is having the time of her life. Picnic excursions are her favorite outdoor sport. Cosmetics are "parked" at the back of the dressing table drawer and she has gone native in a big way.

Outdoor grills, almost considered necessary patio equipment, are much in use. Mosquitoes later may mar present perfection of days and nights in the open. But not yet. The pater boasts of his skill at grilling anything grillable. Surprisingly, he has developed almost the professional chef's ability. His pride is something to behold.

Pool and ocean are much in use for no one stays indoors. Al fresco service is the order of the day—and night. Gardens are ablaze with a wealth of color unprecedented even in the Miami area. Tho still apologetic about the "severe winter weather," which did a master job of trimming back plant life, it is acknowledged that the floral reward offers compensation.

May breakfasts smothered Wednesday in a foam of bouquets, baskets and corsages, as clubs observed the lovely annual tradition. Lingering Chicagoland visitors were included in many of the groups.

• • •

Hilarious highlight of the week was the Tuesday get-together-to-talk-it-over which assembled members of the Miami Beach Woman's club minstrel troupe. The staid and dignified club, known to hundreds of winter visitors who are privileged to enjoy its hospitality, laid aside dignity last week, and presented a real minstrel show. Club members played all the parts. Mrs. Hugh Larrick directed the show.

Gardenias are in bloom. Gardens are aglow with their waxen bloom and the nights are fragrant with their profusion. Gardenia parties offer opportunity for their lavish use in leis, corsages and wrist bands, to say nothing of the lovely waxen petals which nestle in milady's blonde or raven tresses. On Flagler street the buttonhole which lacks a gardenia is not adorned for proper morning wear among well dressed business men.

Mrs. Milton Lusk, Florida and Massachusetts fisher man par excellence, still is receiving congratulations on winning the grand prize for the biggest fish caught in the recent metropolitan Miami fishing tournament. All the 400 men and women who witnessed the award of the gorgeous prize, fishing tackle [that made mouths water and fishing hands itch], envied her. Men acknowledged, without too much of a grudging heartiness, that a 621 pound fish was quite a fish.

The George M. Patches of Oak Park, who are house guests of their son-in-law and daughter, the John E. Burkes, will go to New Orleans next week to visit Mrs. Patches' sister, Dorothy Dix, recently featured in a "Life Goes to a Party." The Burkes and their guests returned Sunday afternoon from a week-end air cruise to the Bahamas.

Mrs. Leon Perkins of Chicago, house guests at the home of her aunt and uncle, the W. Scott Demings of Indianapolis, was among honor guests of the Frank O. Headleys of Coral Gables, when they entertained with an all day cruise and swimming party at Hollywood Beach hotel.

The George Hasbroucks were hosts last Sunday at a combination farewell party and wedding anniversary observance. The Hasbroucks, members of the Bath and Indian Creek clubs, are known and loved by a wide circle of winter residents. Sunday's picnic was held at the Bath club. The hosts had returned the previous day from a fishing cruise among the Florida Keys aboard the yacht of Mrs. Hasbrouck's brother, William L. Mellon, which has been in the harbor all season. The Mellons left for Philadelphia, Pa., early in the week.

• • •

Chicagoans leaving this week included the Harry L. Vaughns who have spent the winter at their Miami Beach home, and the Harvey Hansens of Golden Beach. The Hansens will attend the graduation of their daughter, Janice Hansen, from Fairmount school in Washington, D. C., later this month. Miss Hansen spent the Easter vacation with her parents here.

Miami's disappointment at losing the National League of American Pen Women's 1940 convention to San Juan, Puerto Rico, somewhat was alleviated by acceptance of an invitation to include a stop here on the schedule. Three hundred women are expected to attend the convention in February.

Mrs. J. Dunraven Young of Chicago was given a Pan-American league citation, and made a member of its honorary order for conspicuous service to Pan-Americanism, at the annual meeting Tuesday. Mrs. Young's citation was in recognition of her work in establishing junior Pan-American leagues thruout the country among high schools and colleges.

• • •

Coral Gables Women's club took all honors for unique club activities with its "Periwinkle Tea," charging an admission price of periwinkle plants, which now surround the clubhouse fountain. Masses of the varicolored blossoms which abound thruout the state will be their reward for many months to come. Plants varied from two inches to two feet in size.

Thirty cruisers with more than 100 members of the Rod and Reel club aboard will leave the club dock on Hibiscus Island at midnight following next Wednesday night's meeting for a fishing cruise to Bimini.

BETROTHED

Miss Harriet Olive Gerber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Gerber of 5640 Sheridan road, whose engagement to Dr. Maurice L. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Levy of the Park Lane h[illegible] announced. Miss Gerber, a graduate of the University School for Girls, is attending Northwestern university. Dr. Lewis is a graduate of Northwestern.

EXHIBITION of 27 ARTISTS in CRYSTAL

at Steuben Glass, Inc. 900 N. Michigan Avenue for the Benefit of Illinois Children's Home and Aid Society

ADMISSION 25c (Wednesdays & Saturdays Free)

Illinois Will Be Represented at U. Women Meeting

Illinois will be well represented at the seventh biennial conference of the American Association of University Women, to be held Friday and Saturday in Battle Creek, Mich. Among the Chicagoans who will attend the meeting are Miss Emeline S. Whitcomb, Dr. Mayme I. Logsdon, Miss Rebecca Robins Mack, Mrs. C. B. Cooper, Miss Josephine T. Allen, Mrs. Paul Mitchell, Miss Margaret S. Morriss, Mrs. Alfred Sawyer, and Miss Mima Maxey. Other states which will participate are Indiana, Ohio, Wisconsin, and Michigan.

A group of delegates and visitors from seven states will be in Lake Forest Friday for a three-day conference of active and alumnæ chapters of Alpha Delta Pi. The Deerpath inn will be the headquarters for the convention, which will close on Sunday with a special jewel-degree ceremony at the Lake Forest college chapel. Mrs. Sidney R. Stanard of Webster Groves, Mo., grand president; Miss Mary Elizabeth McKeand of Rushville, Ind., province president; and Mrs. Richard Palmer of Kenilworth, province vice president, will be among the delegates.

The recently organized exceptional study class of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold a meeting at 10:30 o'clock on Thursday in dining room one of the Stevens hotel. The class, formed to promote a better understanding of exceptional children, is conducted by Dr. Frank G. Bruner, director of special schools of the board of education. At the initial meeting held last month, Mrs. L. L. Mulay was elected chairman, and Mrs. Dorothy Kirsch, secretary.

Robert C. Mechem Married in East to Caroline Haviland

A wedding that took place in South Orange, N. J., yesterday afternoon is of interest to Chicagoans because the bridegroom was Robert Collier Mechem, son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mechem of Lake Forest. The bride was Miss Caroline Haviland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frost Haviland, at whose home in Orange a reception was held following the ceremony in St. Andrew's church.

The bride wore a gown with a bodice made of her great-grandmother's rose point lace and a satin skirt. Her tulle veil was fastened to a cap and coronet of rose point. Mrs. Benjamin A. Smith II. of Gloucester, Mass., the former Barbara Mechem, whose wedding in Lake Forest was of interest recently, acted as matron of honor. John S. Mechem, who is attending the University of Michigan law school, was his brother's best man. Another brother, Richard, Mr. Smith, and the bride's brothers, David and Albert Haviland, ushered. After a wedding trip Mr. Mechem and his bride will be at home in Caldwell, N. J.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd, of New York.

Chicago, March 24, 1892.

Dear Julia: Browsing in the Public Library has been my occupation this afternoon, and I have had such an enjoyable time, I shall go again. The library is housed on the fourth floor of the City Hall, occupying all the rooms on that floor save the Council Chamber. Here it will remain, I suppose, until the completion of the new building, which will rise some time in little Dearborn park, the block on Michigan avenue between Randolph and Washington streets. The cornerstone isn't laid yet, so when it will be erected no one knows, tho it's so badly needed. However, the rooms in the City Hall are quite nice, with a portion of the reference room fenced off with wire netting for the use of lady readers. This enclosure is carpeted and furnished with new chairs and tables. One can read in peace and quiet here.

Attending to the inquiries of patrons of the place I found an attractive, dark-eyed, slender young woman named Miss Caroline Elliott, who gathered at once the material I had come in search of—information on the subject of the condition of women in Rome during the first century B.C. My research was done for Martha Junior's benefit, she, poor child, having a paper to write for the Fortnightly, and having few spare minutes to read in her own or the public library. She knows more, she said ruefully, about the condition of twins after the flood. Small Alec and little Sandra had tipped over the goldfish globe just before I reached the MacLeod residence, and they were being bathed and reclothed, while Martha and I talked of her paper. The twins are mischievous mites, but little darlings.

Caroline Elliott.

I had heard much of Miss Caroline Elliott, head of the reference room, and was glad to meet her personally. Emerson Hough, a newspaper writer in the office of "Field and Stream," was consulting her when I arrived, and he paid tribute to her ability saying that there is no one to whom Chicago writers owe so much as to her.

She is of excellent family, her father being an old and respected resident of Illinois, while her brother Mr. William Sidney Elliott, is assistant state's attorney here in Chicago and a brilliant young man, so Will tells me. The family is outstanding, being descended from John Elliott, apostle to the Indians.

I asked Miss Elliott if she enjoyed her work, and her expressive face lighted up. "I shouldn't want to do anything else," she exclaimed. "How could I, when I meet daily the most intelligent people in Chicago, those who are reading and studying? Then, too, it is stimulating to be asked for information on diverse topics."

What DO you suppose people ask her? She told me some of the questions put to her. "What is the best remedy for fleas on dogs?" "What was the costume of the army nurse during the civil war?" "Where can I get a picture of the Indian tomahawk?" "Has a fly lungs?" and "What is the most valuable painting in the world?" These are a few she remembered.

We laughed at the diversity of the inquiries, but it can't be wondered at, when you know that 500,000 people visit the reference department yearly. The library itself has an annual circulation and consultation of over a million and a half volumes. At the Paris Exposition of 1889, Miss Elliott told me our library received a gold medal, based on its exhibit of an annual report, showing the administration in every detail.

It was with joy I reported to Martha Junior all I had found on the condition of Roman women in the first century B. C. I want to visit Miss Elliott's department soon again, for I have a paper to write for the Chicago Woman's club on sanitation and I am sure I can get help there.

Yours with love,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Foot Notes.

Miss Caroline L. Elliott, chief of the reference department of the Chicago Public Library from 1888 until her retirement in 1937, was the beloved friend of Chicago writers, whom she helped greatly with her wide experience and fine intelligence. Miss Elliott died in Chicago Jan. 14, 1940.

They Keep "When Chicago Was Young" Scrapbooks.

F. C. Merriam, 710 Oakdale avenue, Chicago, began a scrapbook of this column May 8, 1938. It is complete since that date. Mrs. George La Bryn, 3305 Catalpa avenue, has clipped the column for her scrapbook for the last ten years. W. J. Hering, Green Bay, Wis., has every "Dear Julia" letter in his scrapbook, in addition to many pictures of early Chicago.

Four Score and Ten.

On Sunday, April 28, Mrs. Daniel J. Schuyler, 1400 Lake Shore drive, celebrated her 95th birthday. The daughter of Dr. William H. Byford, prominent physician of early Chicago, Mrs. Schulyer is the widow of a well known lawyer, Daniel J. Schuyler. In spite of her years she still retains the grace that caused her to be selected, when she was 17, as the "prettiest girl in Chicago," by Commodore Nutt, P. T. Barnum's dwarf.

How to get more style and value for your money

Is the sweeping shirtwaist hat of the '90s coming in style again? Have you seen the new linen and kidskin bags? Are white mousseline and black lace one of the old-time material combinations now being revived for evening gowns? Have you seen the gabardine suits, dresses and coats which have caught on for sports and country wear? The Chicago Tribune is your best guide to the fashions and values you want because the Tribune prints more women's apparel advertising than any two other Chicago newspapers combined. To get more style and value when you shop, read the advertisments in the various sections of today's Chicago Tribune.

AMERICANS SET OUT TO REDISCOVER AMERICA

Haven of Peace Has Wonders Worth Seeing

By Frederic Babcock.

John T. McCutcheon, who knows about travel and is therefore a travel enthusiast, has drawn a cartoon for today's TRIBUNE. In depicts—in case you haven't already seen it—a typical American family, studying the catalogs and wrapped in dreams of summer vacations.

That would tell the story any spring. This spring is no exception, but in this case the story is somewhat restricted. So many people in the old world have forgotten the art of being good neighbors, and the rash of war is leaving its mark in so many places, that travel this summer will be confined largely to the new world.

• • •

The orient is still open to the tourists, in spite of the undeclared war over there. South America will get its share this summer, and Africa may draw a few. But most Americans will be doing their globe trotting in North America. Canada will be the destination of many thousands, even tho it is a part of an empire now engaged in the hostilities. Alaska, Hawaii, Mexico, the Central American lands, and the Caribbean Islands are still havens of peace. And so are the national parks out west and the recreation areas back east, along with the expositions about to reopen in both New York and San Francisco. The result will be that a good many people who heretofore have rushed off to Europe for their summer holidays will come to learn about wonders much closer to home.

They will discover such places as the world's greatest canyon, the world's greatest collection of geysers and other freaks of nature, and the world's oldest and largest trees. It promises to be quite an education—and a badly needed one.

• • •

Douglas Malcolm, who also knows about travel, last week predicted what will take place this summer.

"Foreign travel—that is, travel outside our hemisphere—of necessity will be limited," he said, "but, with 25 million square miles to roam around in on this side of the globe, no one should feel cooped up."

Mr. Malcolm thereupon proceeded to make a number of forecasts. Here are some of them:

The present travel trend is definitely toward the west . . . the southwest, which includes Mexico . . . to Canada . . . and on up to include Alaska. More special tourist trains will go west this summer than ever before. Western roads expect a 5 to 8 per cent increase in passenger volume over last year, which means their present equipment will be taxed to its limit to carry the passengers.

• • •

The Chicago and North Western, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific jointly will place in operation another streamliner, a nine car all Pullman train between Chicago and San Francisco. The Pullman company is now experimenting with a new type of "coach-sleeper" to promote economy travel. Each car will accommodate 45 passengers instead on 32, and they will sleep three in a tier.

Alaska will exceed all previous records. Already one agency has more reservations in hand for cruise tours there than were received in the entire 1939 season.

The reopening of the expositions in New York and San Francisco will add many thousands to the travel throngs this year. The celebration of the Cuatro centennial of Coronado at the end of May will carry many new visitors to the southwest.

Windjammers and steamboats offer unusual vacations. Windjammers sail out of Camden, Me., with a promise of "two weeks before the mast," and 20 day steamboat cruises from Cincinnati to New Orleans are reviving the romantic "Life on the Mississippi" as recorded by Mark Twain.

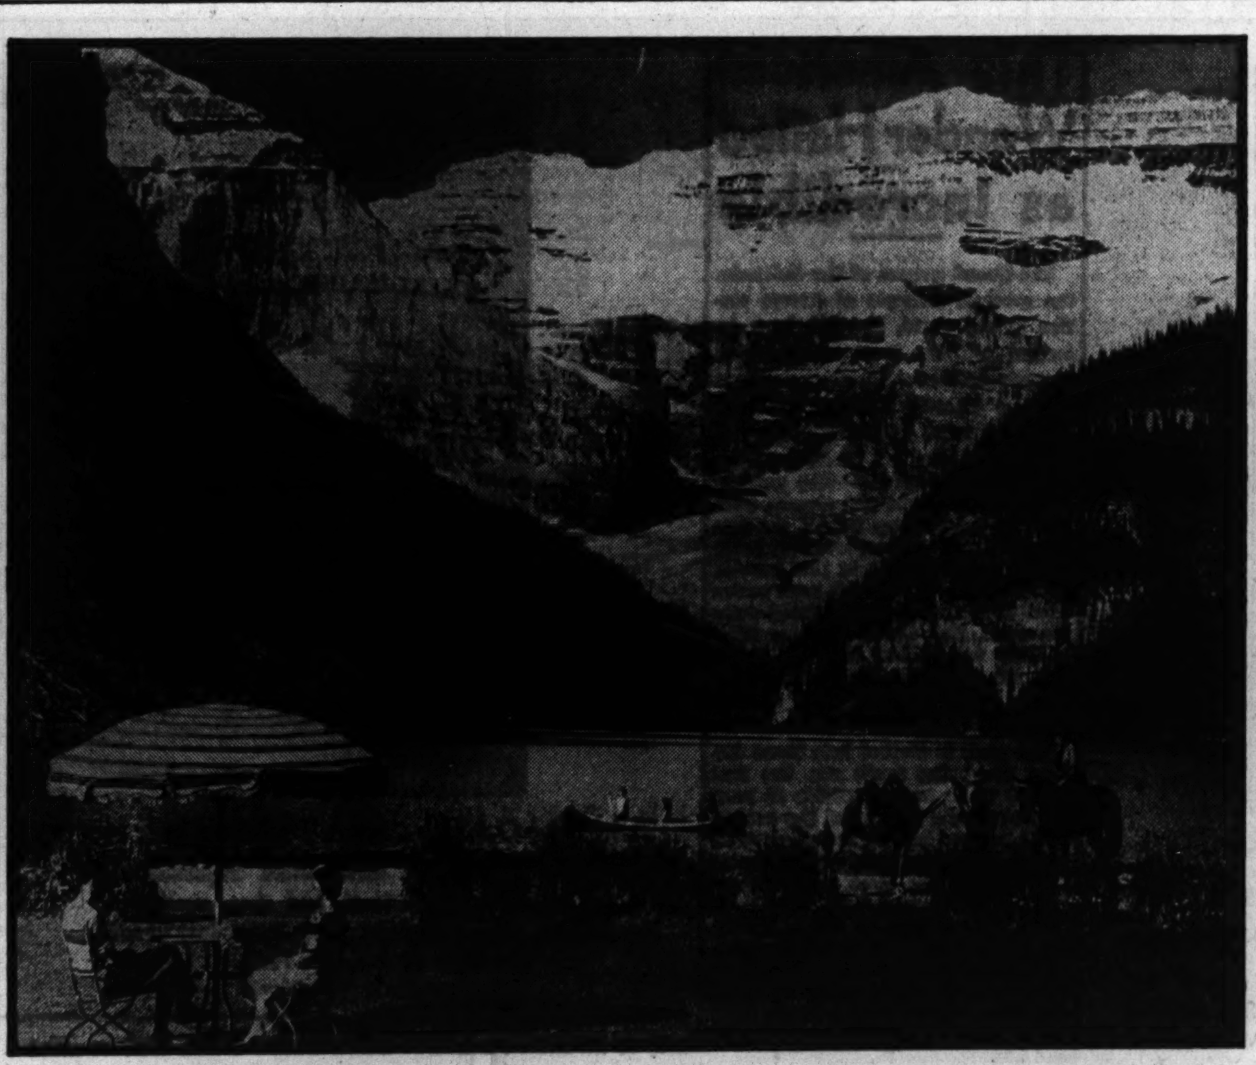
Dude ranches are a big drawing card this year. Eastern versions of the western ranches are even springing up around the seaboard cities. Dude ranches are genuinely American; they have no counterpart in any other part of the world.

Before the summer is out you may be able to fly from New Orleans to Panama in one day, with stops in Yucatan, Guatamala, and Costa Rica. Flights from Seattle to Juneau, Alaska, are in prospect for an early date. This will mean that in 24 flying hours one can journey from New York to Alaska.

South America is relaxing its stringent tourist visa regulations, with Brazil leading the way. Brazil now grants tourist visas without charge and has done away with all the irksome details. Many who otherwise would have gone to Europe will see South America this year. Ships and planes are well filled.

Cruises to the south and to the St. Lawrence are being well booked. The Rotary convention in Havana in June will fill several cruising steamers.

Mexico travel continues at a high level. Special trains will leave from Chicago for Mexico City every week-end thru the summer, and all the regular trains promise to be loaded with tourists.



A CANADIAN LAKE IN A MAGNIFICENT SETTING

The Canadian Rockies—which, like other parts of the dominion, may be reached this summer without passports or other formalities—always have a strong appeal for the American vacationist. One of their attractions is Lake Louise, west of Banff.

Apple Blossoms Are Appearing in Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG, Pa.—Altho rains have delayed blossomings this year in Pennsylvania, it is expected that displays will be more abundant than ever.

While the apple and peach blossoms are found in the counties of Adams, Franklin, Lancaster, Berks, Lehigh, Bedford, Huntingdon, Blair, and other sections, the blossoms of the dogwood, shadbush, and red bud are found in nearly all the mountainous counties.

The finest displays of the apple blossoms are seen in Adams and Franklin counties. The largest number of orchards are expected to be at their best over the week-end of May 11.

Calgary Stampede.

CALGARY, Alta.—The annual Stampede, leading rodeo of the Canadian Rockies, will be held this year from July 8 to 13.

Flying Fish and Talking Birds on Catalina Island

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Fish that fly, birds that talk, and gardens under the sea are a few of the attractions offered by the trip to Santa Catalina Island, a smooth ocean voyage 20 miles across the channel separating the island from the mainland of southern California.

Flying fish, in summer more plentiful in the Catalina channel than on the "road to Mandalay," soar from the water just beyond Los Angeles harbor. The spectacle is enhanced when seen from the small boat that makes nightly excursions along the Catalina shoreline. Attracted by a searchlight on the boat's prow, the sea creatures fly by the hundreds.

Duplicate Alps and South Seas on West Coast

Southern California has nearly every type of scenery found in the world—from the Alps of Switzerland to the sand dunes of Sahara. One can bask in the morning on a South Sea beach, lunch in the brisk atmosphere of Hollywood, and before the night test aquaplane skill on a mile high lake in a forest.

Many of the beaches have municipal fishing piers, and there are dozens of fishing barges anchored at sea.

• • •

Beach life in southern California may be as crowded with activity or as restful as one likes. A single day's program may include fishing at sunrise, a mountain hike, tennis or golf, a swim before luncheon, an afternoon canter, cocktails and bridge, dinner, and dancing until dawn.

Catalina Island—twenty-five miles offshore — has everything from the glass bottomed boats at Avalon [revealing fantastic sea gardens], to wild goat hunting in the mountain wilderness beyond the settlement. Catalina also has still water swimming, deep sea fishing, primitive trails for hiker and equestrian, a yacht harbor, and a casino overlooking Avalon bay. The island is the home of one of the most complete bird farms in the world.

• • •

Golfers find virtually every type of course in southern California — from ocean shore to mountain top. Some are easy, others of championship caliber. There are hundreds of miles of scenic bridle trails and many polo fields.

Altho many changes have taken place in the nearly four centuries since Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo headed for the lee of Point Loma to make the first landing of white men on America's western shores, this region still retains much of the old world flavor of its Spanish beginnings.

High in the Hills.

SUN VALLEY, Idaho.—A 320 acre base camp for fishing and hunting parties who wish to explore the heart of Idaho's primitive area has been contracted for by the Sun Valley management. The camp is situated on the middle fork of the Salmon river, about 20 miles west of Meyer's Cove, and at an altitude of 3,500 feet.

Circle Tours to Two Expositions

As plans for reopening the New York and San Francisco expositions take shape the railroads of this country are preparing for the tourist season with the belief that Mr. and Mrs. America will go traveling in America this year as never before.

The so-called "grand circle" fares will again be in effect, enabling tourists to visit both San Francisco and New York in the course of the round trip. Stopover privileges bring most of the nation's outstanding attractions within the scope of the single journey.

North Carolina's Halifax House Is Opened as Shrine

HALIFAX, N. C.—The Halifax House, completely restored inside and out, wherein was written North Carolina's first state constitution in April, 1776, has been opened as a public shrine.

In this house 139 delegates adopted the "Halifax resolves," first official action by any colony against Great Britain prior to the revolution. From this delegation three members were selected to meet with the Continental congress and later were North Carolina's signers of the Declaration of Independence.

New Mexico Still Clings to Spanish Ways

New Mexico's capital, Santa Fe, still impresses the traveler as partly a foreign city. As much Spanish is spoken as English, the names of the streets are Spanish, and the names of the people are those of the Conquistadores who settled here more than 300 years ago.

The telephone directory in this oldest capital in the United States lists more Bacas than Browns, more Garcias than Jones, more Senas than Smiths. Nine Spanish newspapers are published in the state, and the Santa Fe New Mexican publishes a weekly Spanish edition.

• • •

The New Mexican some time ago carried this advertisment: "Wanted to buy—Osha—Capital Pharmacy." Few outside New Mexico would know what osha is or why the Capital pharmacy wanted to buy it, but in Santa Fe the response was immediate. Osha is a medicinal herb used by the natives as a hot tea for indigestion or made into a syrup with brown sugar cones for cough medicine. It grows in the mountains, where it is gathered by sheep herders and sold to "medicas," the herb women who have a wide practice among the Spanish speaking people.

Grocerterias have enticing shelves displaying other aromatic herbs used for seasoning, such as oregano, sabrosa español, yerba buena, culendro and anis. Here also, as in Mexico, there are many varieties of peppers, from dark red chile which is a staple of New Mexico to tiny lemon-green pepper pods, a safe rule being that the smaller the pod the hotter the flavor. The subtleties of Spanish cooking require an expert mixture of herbs, spices and different gradations of chile.

• • •

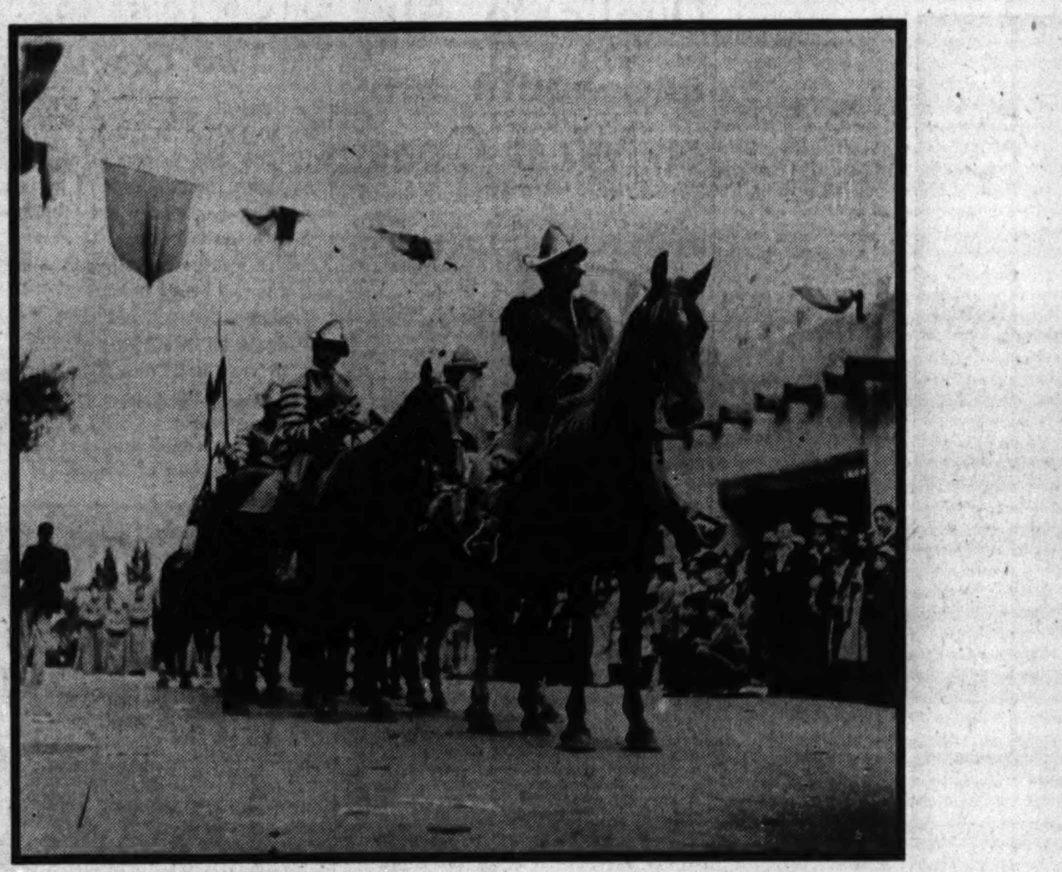
There also are small restaurants advertised by the odor of garlic and savories, offering such items on their menus as albondigas, enchiladas, frijoles fritos, tortillas, tamales, and biscochitos. These are not tourist bait, for few tourists ever find these native cafés. They are patronized by dark skinned youths who play Spanish songs on guitar or mouth organ if they see a pretty girl pass by.

For the tourists there are Spanish dances at the hotels every night where the dancers flash and whirl in tangos, pirouette around a huge Mexican sombrero on the floor, and unfurl Spanish shawls or striped serapes. A Mexican stringed orchestra plays native songs and dance music. At least twice during the evening every one dances the Varsoviliana, for this graceful folk dance is popular with natives and travelers are eager to learn it.

• • •

The quarter century of statehood is only a small portion of the 400 years of New Mexico history. The Palace of the Governors, once the headquarters for Spanish grandees, Indian chiefs, Mexican generals, and American governors, is now a state museum, while the state offices are housed in a more modern capitol.

New Mexico is so preponderantly Spanish in population that Americans are called "Anglos" and the Spanish speaking people "Spanish-Americans." A census by the state planning board in 1935 divided the 400,000 inhabitants of the state as 52 per cent Spanish-American, 40½ per cent Anglo, 7 per cent Indian, and one-half per cent others.



RELIVING THE DAYS OF THE SPANISH CONQUEST

In shiny helmets and brightly colored uniforms the soldiers of Spain enter the ancient city of Santa Fe, N. M., and, with the reading of a proclamation and the hoisting of the Spanish flag, heralded the re-conquest of the southwest. While all this took place in 1692, it is re-enacted annually the first week in September, to start off the Santa Fe fiesta. This year, starting in late spring and lasting thruout the summer, similar historical pageants will be held in thirty cities of New Mexico, Arizona and Texas as part of the Cuarto centennial commemorating Coronado's march.

Deep Sea Fishing Grounds.

Deep sea anglers are heading for Tocopilla, Chile, and Talara, Peru. There it never rains and never blows, and broadbill swordfish and marlin are said to strike more often than at any other grounds in the world.

49 Days of Racing.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Hollywood Turf club, widely known for its scenic landscaping, will open May 30 for 49 days of racing. It is situated at Inglewood, near this city.

This American Wonder Hailed as Incredible

The Grand canyon of the Colorado, the greatest example of stream erosion in the world, has also been described as "the most incredible of nature's spectacles."

Grand Canyon National park incloses 56 miles of the canyon, and comprises a total of 1,009 square miles in northern Arizona. The present boundaries hug the rim closely, with little of the country behind the rim included within the reservation. From rim to rim the width of that portion of the canyon within the park varies from 4 to 18 miles. Measured from the north rim, which averages nearly 1,000 feet higher than the south rim, the chasm is more than a mile deep.

• • •

The park is divided into three distinct parts, the south rim, the first section to be made available to tourist travel; the bottom of the canyon itself, reached only by muleback or on foot from the rims, and the north rim.

Seen from the rims, the Colorado river, which carved the gorge, looks like a narrow band of brown ribbon. On closer view it becomes a turbulent, swift brown stream. Engineers have estimated that every 24 hours the river carries past a given point an average of 1,000,000 tons of sand and silt.

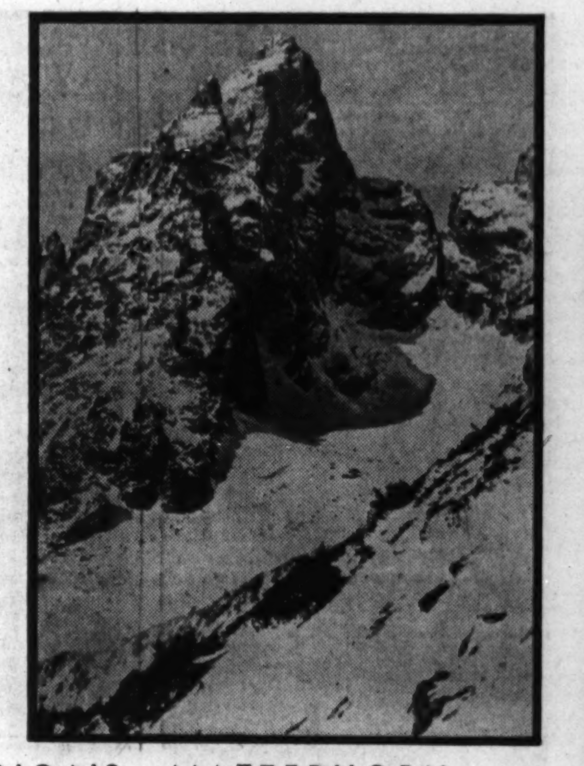
Automobiles make four hour round trips east from Grand Canyon village to Desert View, where a glimpse may be had of the Painted desert.

• • •

A stop is made at Yavapai Point, where in an observation station the story of the canyon is told by means of telescopes focused on features of interest. On this same trip the Wayside Museum of Archeology is visited.

In the museum are many relics of the prehistoric past of the region, explained by the naturalist in attendance; and behind it is an ancient Pueblo Indian ruin, of which a portion has been excavated.

No trip to the canyon is complete without visiting its interior by mule transportation, over the suspension bridge across the Colorado, and on to the ranch on the floor of the gorge. Still more exciting is a flight over the canyon.



AMERICA'S MATTERHORN

Grand Teton peak, in northwestern Wyoming, is 13,766 feet above sea level, and rises, unrelieved by foothills, almost perpendicularly 7,000 feet above the floor of Jackson's Hole.

National Parks' Opening Dates Are Given Here

Bryce Canyon, in Utah, is open from early spring until late fall, but the season for rail tourists is between June 1 and Sept. 20, while lodges are available from late in May to Sept. 30, and the cabin camp is open from May 1 until late October.

Glacier, in Montana, has a limited season, opening June 15 and closing Sept. 15, with the high mountain chalets, camps, and saddle horse trips available from July 1 to Aug. 31. Most of Glacier's roads are open between April 15 and Oct. 15. Motorists arriving before and after the official opening and closing dates in June and September will find satisfactory accommodations near the park.

• • •

The south rim of the Grand Canyon National park, in Arizona, is open all the year; the lodge at the north rim is open May 30 to Sept. 30, with the cafeteria and cabins available from about May 15 to Oct. 31.

Grand Teton, in Wyoming, has a tourist season extending from June 1 to Oct. 15, but for rail tourists the season is shorter, opening on June 20 and closing Sept. 15.

Lassen Volcanic, in California, opened May 1 and will be closed Oct. 31. Lassen Peak Loop highway opens about July 1.

Mesa Verde, in Colorado, is open from May 15 to Oct. 15 for motorists and from June 1 to Oct. 15 for rail tourists, with the lodge open from June 1 until the park closes. Informal accommodations are available between May 15 and May 31.

Mount McKinley, in Alaska, is open from June 10 to Sept. 15.

Yellowstone, in Wyoming, is open from June 1 to Sept. 30, but for tourists by rail the season is from June 15 to Sept. 9. Hotels open June 15 and close Sept. 12. Lodges are open from June 15 to Sept. 8. However, the north and west gates open to motorists May 15, with informal accommodations available from that date until June 20.

• • •

Of the national parks open the entire year some have their summer and winter seasons for the hotels and lodges. The year round parks are:

Acadia, in Maine, with a summer season running from June 15 to Oct. 15.

Carlsbad Caverns, in New Mexico. There are no overnight accommodations in this park, but they may be found in Carlsbad, El Paso, and other nearby points.

Crater Lake, in Oregon, with accommodations available from June 15 to Sept. 30.

Gen. Grant, in California.

Great Smoky Mountains, in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Hawaii, territory of Hawaii.

Hot Spring, in Arkansas; accommodations in city of Hot Springs.

Mammoth Cave, in Kentucky.

Mount Rainier, in Washington, with inn accommodations available during the summer season from June 25 to Aug. 29, and the winter season from late December until late April. While lodge accommodations are available at Longmire and Paradise all year, those at Yakima are open from about June 20 to Oct. 15.

Platt, in Oklahoma, wtih accommodations available at Sulphur City, Okla.

• • •

Rocky Mountain, in Colorado, with a summer season from June 15 to Sept. 20. Winter hotel accommodations may be obtained in the village of Estes Park, Colo., and to a limited extent at several resorts on the east side of the park.

Sequoia, in California.

Shenandoah, in Virginia.

Wind Cave, in South Dakota, with overnight accommodations at Hot Springs, S. D.

Yosemite, in California.

Zion, in Utah, with scheduled rail tourist service from June 1 to Sept. 30, and unscheduled service for the remainder of the year.

Canada Will Open Banff-Jasper Auto Highway on July 1

The official opening of the Banff-Jasper highway in Canada will take place Dominion day, July 1, it is announced by the department of mines and resources, Ottawa. One of the most ambitious of Canada's scenic highway projects, the new road provides a direct link between the great mountain playgrounds of Banff and Jasper National parks in Alberta, shortening the distance between the resorts of Banff and Jasper to 186 miles instead of a 511 mile drive required by previous motor routes. The new highway enables motorists to pass thru a mountain fastness formerly impenetrable except by saddle-horse and pack-train, and opens up regions of unrivaled beauty and scenic grandeur.

Designed to provide safe mountain motoring, the road follows level stretches of valley and climbs or descends mountainsides in smooth, gentle curves. The minimum road width is 18 feet, but the actual travel way is generally wider, especially on curves. The average maximum grade is 8 per cent, and it does not reach 10 per cent at any point. Along the highway facilities provided for the convenience of the traveling public include modern chalets, auto bungalow camps, public campgrounds, and picnic grounds with outdoor fireplaces.

Some of the highlights of a motor drive over this colorful mountain road include Bow lake, Mistaya, and North Saskatchewan river valleys, Sunwapta Pass, Athabaska glacier, Sunwapta falls, and Athabaska lookout. The highway passes within a few hundred feet of Athabaska glacier, the second largest ice tongue to issue from the huge Columbia icefield, the greatest body of ice south of the arctic circle.

In addition to uniting two of Canada's great national parks, the new mountain road connects with the main highway systems of Canada and the United States, and gives motorists from all parts of the continent access to the rugged grandeur of the territory nestling beneath and paralleling the line of the main peaks of the Canadian Rockies.

Park Service Will Permit Buses on the Blue Ridge Parkway

Raleigh, N. C.—Reversing a former ruling the national park service has decided to permit sightseeing buses to traverse the 500 mile Blue Ridge parkway, sometimes referred to as America's first "auto national park."

The boulevard, in reality a narrow, serpentine path, thus will be available to thousands of vacationists who do not own autos or who prefer to have some one else do their driving for them.

Completed links in the parkway already are open in North Carolina and Virginia; additional links will be ready this year. The park service's original ruling forbade any type of commercial vehicle on the road.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem! Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ever since reading Willa Cather's "Death Comes to the Archbishop" I have been planning to visit the cathedral built by the central figure in that novel. Can you tell me where it is? —G. W. E.

It is the Cathedral of San Francisco de Assisi, and it is still to be seen at Santa Fe, N. M. The man under whose authority it was built, and who was immortalized in Miss Cather's best seller, was the late Archbishop John B. Lamy.

When are the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies to have their trip this year? Where will it start? —S. M.

July 26 to 30, starting at Banff.

I have been told that Santa Barbara, Cal., is so "beauty conscious" that even its jail is a pleasant place to live in. Please give details.—D. R.

Santa Barbara's courthouse is built of Moorish tiles, with winding stairways and wrought iron balconies, and is framed in a landscape of palm trees and fountains. The outer walls of the jail are adorned with trailing vines and bracketed flower pots, so that the effect is more like that of a garden than of a house of correction.

How long have the Hawaiian Islands been a part of the United States?—W. T.

Not quite 42 years. They were annexed Aug. 12, 1898. However, they were not given territorial status until June 14, 1900. Therefore, on the coming Flag day, June 14, the territory will celebrate its 40th anniversary.

When does the San Francisco fair reopen? —W. L. J.

May 25.

How much does it cost to get a trout fishing license in Montana? —C. B. F.

Visitors are given a 10 day license for $1.50.

Mt. McKinley Loftiest Peak on Continent

Mount McKinley national park occupies 3,030 square miles in south central Alaska and contains many primitive areas.

Ice capped ranges, rank upon rank, lose themselves in the clouds; immense glaciers grind northward to the sea; foothills, cushioned with thick moss, rise above spruce-filled valleys; while dominating this wilderness loom the two pinnacles of the mountain that gives the park its name—Mount McKinley, loftiest peak on the North American continent, 20,300 feet above sea level, and rising 17,000 feet above timber line.

Not even the Himalayas tower to such heights above their own base. Denali, the Indian name, describes the beauty of this peak—Denali, "home of the sun." The south pinnacle of Mount McKinley is 20,300 feet high; the northern 20,000 feet.

• • •

Climatically the two sides of the Alaska range present marked contrasts. On the inland side the summers are short and comparatively warm; the winters long and cold, with low precipitation. On the Pacific slopes the climate is more equable, with longer, cooler summers and warmer winters. Precipitation is much greater on the seaward side.

Summer in Alaska is a season of enchantment. The sunshine lasts more than eighteen hours a day. June 21, the longest day in the year, is a memorable date. If the visitor climbs to almost any mountain top, he may see the sun rolling along the horizon at midnight. He even may take photographs at this hour.

• • •

Mount McKinley national park is open for visitor from June 10 to Sept. 15, with tent camps for their accommodation. Savage River camp is the base unit. There are also field camps at the head of Savage river, at Toklat river and at Mount Eielson. Almost all visitors go to the park by rail after a sea voyage from a port of the northwest. Because of the ruggedness of the country and the absence of good motor roads, airplanes are widely used in Alaska, and remarkable scenic flights are features from Savage River camp to Mount Eielson, Muldrow glacier and the base of Mount McKinley.

Vegetation in lush variety carpets the earth during the brief, glamorous summer. The park's natural fairways, meadows and mountain slopes boast 175 species. Nor is the scenic beauty of the region the only lure. Wild life abounds. Among the fauna are the Alaska moose, largest member of the deer family, with its tremendous spreading antlers; the Alaska red fox, also largest of its kind, and nowhere excelled in the quality of its fur; the white Alaska mountain sheep, among the handsomest game animals, and the fast disappearing tundra brown bear.

• • •

Snowshoe rabbits, so called because of the thick pads of hair which cover their feet in winter, facilitating their progress over the snow, will be seen in summer wearing brown instead of their winter white. They gather in the evening along the park roads, gregarious and far less shy than rabbits of the continental United States.

The sight of wild animals of previously unfamiliar species at such close range is an exciting experience for tourists. Coveys of ptarmigan often cross the highway so oblivious of traffic that the driver must stop his car to avoid running over them. One season the visitors enjoyed the thrill that comes seldom in a lifetime, when motor travel was halted for hours to permit passage of a herd of 5,000 caribou.

Mount McKinley park has eighty miles of graveled automobile roads. Saddle horse trails lead to such points of special interest as the base of the mountain and across Muldrow glacier.

VIEWING CANADA FROM A CRUISE SHIP

The thickly wooded shores of thb St. Lawrence river have remained almost unchanged since they were first visited by the French explorer, Cartier, centuries ago.

Blossom Festival Full of Events for Michigan Visitors

ST. JOSEPH, Mich.—The blossom festival will be held at the twin cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph May 5 to 12. Daily tours are on the program thru the fruit clad hills of southwestern Michigan, and special attractions are scheduled for each day. The detailed program shows:

Monday, May 6—Queen's day. Selection of the blossom queen from the beauties of 30 Michigan communities at the Liberty theater in Benton Harbor at 8 p. m. The queen will be introduced by Patricia Donnelly of Detroit, Miss America, 1939.

Tuesday, May 7—Coronation of the queen at 8 p. m., Filstrup field, Benton Harbor. Horticultural program under the direction of Elmer A. Beamer, commissioner of agriculture.

Wednesday, May 8—Acrobatic exhibition, 5 p. m., at Benton Harbor airport; 6:30, queen's banquet at Whitcomb hotel, St. Joseph; 8:30 p. m., industrial ball and queen's greeting.

Thursday, May 9, Juvenile day—2 p. m., rural school floral parade, St. Joseph; 7 p. m., juvenile ball and coronation of Bud Princess at Shadowland in St. Joseph; 10 p. m., junior promenade, following the juvenile ball.

Friday, May 10, Fun day—2 p. m., pet parade, Benton Harbor; 8 p. m., mummers' parade from Benton Harbor to St. Joseph, sponsored by Knights of Blossom.

Saturday, May 11, Governor's day—9 a. m., baton twirlers' contest of 100 drum majors at Benton Harbor High school; 1:30 p. m., floral parade from St. Joseph to Benton Harbor; 5 p. m., aerobatic exhibition, Benton Harbor airport; 9 p. m., night of nights ball at Shadowland, St. Joseph.

Sunday, May 12, Blossom Sunday [Mother's day]—10 a. m., blossom services at all churches [queens at Methodist church, St. Joseph]; 5 p. m., aerobatic exhibition, Benton Harbor airport.

400 Private Planes.

The largest number of private planes ever assembled in one place is expected at the Denver Municipal airport when the annual meeting of the National Aeronautic association is held there July 7, 8, and 9. Indications are that the total will be between 400 and 500.

THE VOICE OF THE TRAVELER

Letters regarding travel conditions and experiences are welcomed. Address: Travel Editor, Chicago Tribune.

THE WONDERS OF AMERICA.

Marquette, Mich., May 1.—To the Travel Editor: It is my theory that the traveler should use every kind of conveyance possible in order to get an adequate conception of the things he visits. Mere surface traveling, however much it may save money, is not enough. One should fly. And flying is not such a perilous thing nowadays, with all the safety devices that are being employed for the comfort and well being of passengers.

Nobody has really experienced thrills until he rises in a modern transport plane to ten or more thousand feet above the earth, speeds over hill, mountain, and plain, over lakes and rivers—yes, even over big lakes and oceans. When one is high above mere mundane things, he thinks of God and His creation. The mighty rivers seem like tiny ribbons of silver, way down beneath him. Even the mountain peaks lie underneath as the plane speeds on at 200 miles an hour. One must be without nerves and brain—without those sensibilities that lift him to sublimity, to the madness of ecstasy and exhilaration, if he remain unaffected.

On a trip from Chicago to Cleveland some years ago the stewardess pointed out to me the rich farming country in Ohio that looked for all the world like an immense checkerboard. And she called to my attention an automobile so tiny that I could not have seen its insect-like proportions if she hadn't instructed me just how to detect it.

But the things that stand out in my air travel are the magic effects of sky and cloud and sunlight, in glorious combination. Once, when I was bound to Chicago from New York in the late afternoon, the broken clouds, the blue sky, the setting sun, all conspired to paint a picture that an Angelo might have envied. The sun, shining thru the rapidly thinning clouds, transformed them into silver. And the blue sky between made the whole look like some arctic lake of blue waters, surrounded by great, fluffy banks of silver ice and snow. At other times, when we got into fogs as thick as soup, and we rose and finally got above the cloud layers, it looked just like some tempestuous sea in some far northern clime. For timid souls the beauty of the scene might have been partially spoiled by apprehension about how we should land. But the radio beams, the skill of modern pilots, and all the rest made our landing perfect.

But the railroads have some advantages that planes cannot have. Last summer I went out to Denver, Los Angeles, and San Francisco by rail. I rode on a train that for speed, ultra-modern conveniences, and comfort, could not be beaten. Equally well managed service is present everywhere in the United States. Whether one travels by rail or plane or bus, he will get the best of service.

One locomotive started out with us. But as the grades became steeper we had two engines, puffing in a mighty effort to keep the big train moving. It was an inspiring experience for me, altho the most of the passengers took it as a matter of fact. If I had made this trip a thousand times, I still could not resist the wonders of nature—the mountains heaped up by God's hand, the canyons, scooped by the finger of the Infinite.

I have talked with persons who have visited in foreign countries. And about all many of them remember is some freak café in some remote part of Paris or Cairo or Berlin. Why don't these people spend their money at home—in America, where they can see something? Even tho they cannot properly appreciate the wonders of their country, they will benefit, at least economically.

If you must see Mexico, see the Grand canyon of the Colorado and Pike's peak first. If you must see Europe, first see the beauties of the New England states—their thousand lakes and rivers, their mountains, valleys, and a thousand other attractions. If you must see India, Egypt, Africa, and Asia, see first the southland, with its traditions, its memories, its beautiful scenery.

Yes, America, know thyself first, before being so flippant about your knowledge of other lands!

GAIN EXTRA HOURS FOR RECREATION

DRIVE THE Shorter - - Safer LINCOLN HIGHWAY

Here's to a vacation this year that means more relaxation and more fun for everyone in your party. Short-cut across the heart of the nation on U. S. 30—the famous Lincoln Highway—and avoid the rushing to your destination and then rushing again to get home on time.

From ocean to ocean, this safe, smooth, all-weather road saves you hundreds of miles and hours of driving because U. S. 30 avoids useless twisting and turning—you don't lose valuable time slowly picking your way through metropolitan traffic—nor do you have steep, hazardous hills and mountains. Trail-blazing pioneers first discovered this easy route. Today it's modernized for your comfort, convenience and travel economy.

Go east or west—to the Fairs—to any of the scores of vacationlands this summer. Make things easy for yourself by driving on U. S. 30.

Black Hills

● Sixty-five years ago, amid the magnificent blue-black scenery of the Black Hills and the nearby Bad Lands, a great American "western" was being enacted by gold panners, gun-fighters, pony express riders, the U. S. cavalry and the non-cooperative Sioux. What more exciting vacation, this summer, than to visit the scene of our last great legend—Deadwood, Lead, Rapid City and the haunts of Wild Bill Hickok, Calamity Jane and Sitting Bull? And you can see the Mount Rushmore memorial with its four great figures in granite, visible 60 miles. ● Consult the advertisments in the Travelers' Guide today, or let the Chicago Tribune Travel Bureau help you plan a trip to the Black Hills—or a trip to any other part of the world which may interest you. This department of the Tribune Public Service office can supply you with information about steamship, railroad, bus and plane travel, cost of transportation and accommodations en route for trips and tours anywhere. Indians Leave Rich Heritage to White Men

Americans who lived in prehistoric times left a wealth of archæological treasure, most dramatic of which are the ruins in the southwest. Even the unimaginative are stirred into widened conceptions of human existence by contemplation of those evidences of a race that lived unknown to the old world, centuries before the discovery of America.

From the Indians of the present our race may learn many lessons, one of which is appreciation of the Indian's appraisal of life and its rewards, and of the beauty and dignity of the arts and crafts native to his people. Material possessions are rated as of far less importance in the Indian's philosophy than in the white man's, while his ethical ideal for the work of his hands is naturally high and not easily corruptible by commercialism.

City dwellers may profit from acquaintance with Indian life. Such knowledge may be gained first-hand on a visit to many of our national parks, especially those western parks adjacent or easily accessible to Indian reservations. Adjoining the eastern boundary of Glacier National park, in Montana, is the Blackfeet reservation. Visitors to Glacier find ideal opportunities to observe these native Americans living much as they did before the coming of the white man.

• • •

Less than a century ago this tribe was one of the most powerful in the great plains, its range extending well into the present Canada. The tribesmen were nomads, living in portable tepees and dependent for food, clothing, shelter, even in part for their weapons, on the great herds of bison and antelope then so abundant. The Indians hunted these animals solely for necessities, not for sport; under the Indian code the herds had supplied their needs for centuries. But within one generation of the white man's age the bison was almost extinct.

Today the Blackfeet, reduced in numbers, have reconciled themselves to the white man's civilization. At Glacier National park groups of these tribesmen contribute substantially to the educational programs, giving examples of their tribal dances and chants, dressed in their native garb, and also telling legends of their past.

Comparatively accessible from Yellowstone and Grand Teton National parks, in Wyoming, is the Crow reservation, to which the nearest large community is Billings, Mont., 250 miles distant. To the southeast lies the Shoshone reservation. Absarokas, the native word for Crow, is the name also of one of the ranges of the Yellowstone country. The Crows, like the Blackfeet, their hereditary enemies, were a wandering people and great hunters. They also were noted for their horsemanship.

• • •

Crater Lake National park, in Oregon, abounds in Indian legends, and many of the park's natural features bear Indian names. Not far distant is the reservation of the Klamath Indians, with whom are living representatives of the Modoc, Piute, and Shasta tribes. The Klamaths today are farmers and herdsmen. They have adapted themselves to the customs of the white race to the extent of living in frame houses. The children are learning English.

In Yosemite National park, in California, is a small Indian village of the Yosemite or Grizzly Bear tribe. This village is greatly modified from the ancient pattern of such a community. The tribe itself is now of mixed blood, having intermarried with other Indians as well as with Mexicans, and is numerically insignificant. The beautiful interior valley of California was occupied at the time of the gold rush by a large and peaceful Indian population. Within 30 years of the discovery of gold this Indian population had been cut from 110,000 to 20,000.

One of the Indian tribes now on the increase is the Navajo. "Bedouins of America" they have been called. Their nomadic life, herding sheep and goats; their superb horsemanship, natural comeliness and picturesque costume are reminiscent of the roving Arabic tribes.

• • •

Within the Navajo reservation, not far from Grand Canyon National park, is a tract occupied by the Hopis. These Indians belong to a different group, the Pueblo, generally believed to be descended, at least in part, from the cliff dwellers. The Hopis have been little affected by the white men's civilization and still practice ancient rites and rituals. Of these the best known is the snake dance, climax in an elaborate ceremonial dramatizing prayers to the rain gods. The Hopi snake dance takes place in the latter part of August, and thousands of whites seek the privilege of viewing it. Many visitors include in their itinerary the intertribal Indian ceremonial a few weeks later at Gallup, N. M. Comparable to our county fairs, it brings together representatives from every Indian village for trade and sociability.

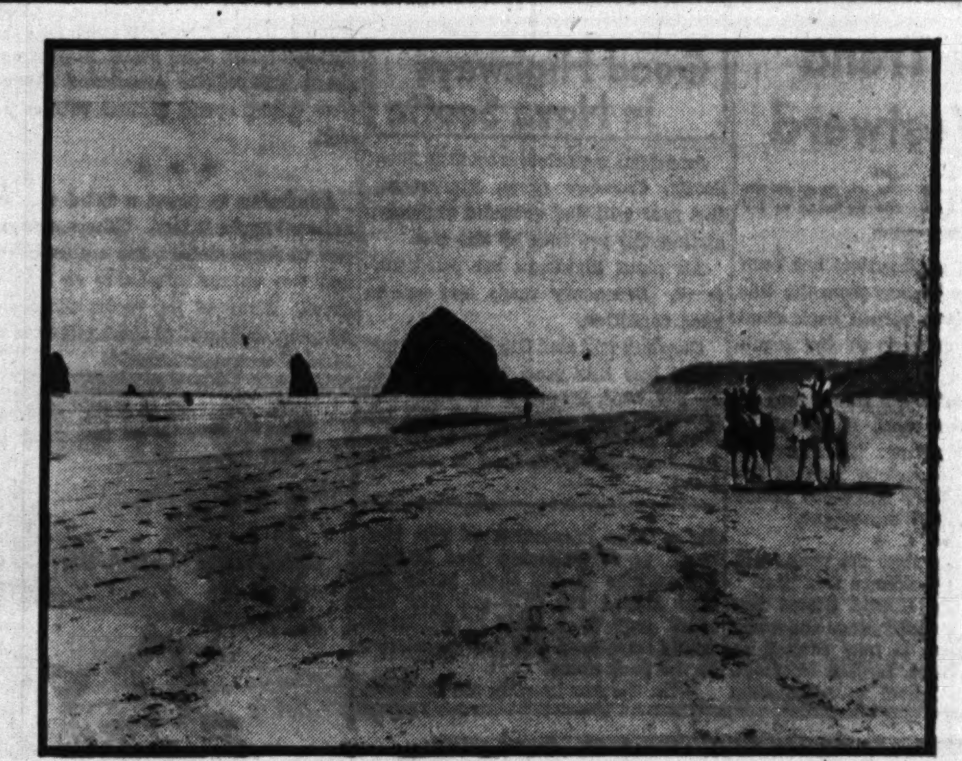
• • •

The Jicarilla Apache reservation and a chain of Pueblo villages lie between Mesa Verde National park, in Colorado, and some of the famous national monuments of New Mexico. Among these settlements are the pueblos of the Rio Grande valley—the Zuni, Laguna, Santa Clara, Jemez, San Ildefonso, and Taos Indians, all sedentary agricultural tribes, lovers of peace and known for their pottery.

To those accustomed to studying antiquities in the old world, a trip to the southwest will be a revelation. One national park, set aside because of its prehistoric ruins, is Mesa Verde, in southwestern Colorado. The Spaniards gave it this name, which means green mesa, or green table, because of its verdant growth of pinon and juniper trees.

Here are found some of the best preserved cliff dwellings in America. They were built by a race believed to have been the ancestors of the present Pueblo Indians, a gentle, peace loving people, in some respects far in advance of their European contemporaries.



IT'S COOL AND UNCROWDED ON THE PACIFIC

Cannon beach, on the Oregon coast, provides vacationists with surf bathing, fishing, clamming, hiking, and horseback riding.

Music Festival Will Be a Part of 'Tulip Time'

HOLLAND, Mich.—On the calendar of springtime there are few more picturesque events than the eight day celebration the Dutchmen hold at tulip blooming time here.

This year the celebration will open Saturday, May 18, with a ceremony in which the Dutch burghers will scrub the main street of the town.

Program innovations include a flood-lighted music festival, featuring the University of Michigan band, and the reproduction of a Dutch cattle "Markt" on downtown streets.

The tulip blooms are on farms just outside the town and along an eight mile circuit of city streets. Several dozen additional buses are scheduled for trips over tulip lanes and to bulb farms.

Initiated 12 years ago by the suggestion of a high school botany teacher, this festival now offers three million tulips and three thousand costumed and wooden-shod Hollanders as its attractions.

Altho the visitors total more than a half million, the fête still is conducted without a carnival atmosphere. "Rides," street booths, and hawkers are absent when the Dutch celebrate.

More Room for Campers.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. — Five hundred additional camping parties will be accommodated in Traverse City State park, three miles east of here on the shores of East bay, when the present expansion program is completed.

They Rise Abruptly.

Travelers making their first visit to Denver often marvel over the fact that the Colorado Rockies rise abruptly from the plains. Some of the peaks reach the height of more than 14,000 feet.

Volcanoes of Hawaii Perform for Travelers

The Hawaiian Islands are becoming a year round playground for American tourists. They are accessible from the mainland by steamship in from four to six days and by regular airplane service.

Hawaii National park occupies two tracts on different islands. The Kilauea-Mauna Loa tract, 219 square miles in extent, is a part of the Island of Hawaii. The Haleakala section consists of 26 square miles on the Island of Maui. Each is named for the volcano which is its outstanding characteristic.

Volcanoes in Hawaii are not fearsome phenomena as in some other parts of the world. When Mauna Loa erupts, usually with a four year periodicity, it is the signal for natives and tourists to flock to the vicinity to witness the spectacle.

The airplane has made it possible to enjoy a round trip from Honolulu to either section of Hawaii National park any day, except Sunday, between breakfast and dinner.

• • •

Visitors are encouraged to remain at these sites long enough to see them leisurely. The distance from the Kilauea area to the summit crater of Mauna Loa and return is approximately 50 miles, and may be made in three days, either riding or hiking. It is customary to leave the hotel at Kilauea on horseback in the morning, riding 16 miles over the lava to a rest house set in a cinder cone, called Puu Ulaula or Red Hill.

Within the Kilauea section there are 39 miles of highways. One of the most important leads from Volcano House hotel, on the rim of the crater to the firepit. The first mile of this trail winds thru rich tropical vegetation, thence along fantastic lava formations. Another favorite itinerary is over the Chain-of-Craters road, where within a seven mile stretch nine craters may be counted on the great Puna rift. More than 120 miles of trails are available in this part of the park.

• • •

Overlooking the Kilauea crater and the Kau desert, stand the museum and lecture hall maintained by the national park service. Not far distant is the volcano observatory, founded in 1912, and now under the direction of Dr. T. A. Jaggar, well known volcanologist. Field trips are made under the guidance of park ranger naturalists, who explain the various formations and the history of the volcanoes.

The Haleakala section of the park is on the Island of Maui, and contains the world's largest dormant volcano. Its longest diameter is seven miles. Here on the rich volcanic soil grows the rare silversword plant, one of the most ephemeral of plants, which the United States government is attempting to save from extinction.

• • •

Contrasting with the volcanic eruptions is the tropical loveliness of the park areas. Flowering trees and plants abound. There are many brilliantly colored birds. Altogether 60 species of songbirds peculiar to Hawaii have been listed.

Humanity in widely divergent strains may be studied in the cosmopolitan city of Honolulu. Here is a melting pot, with mixtures of Polynesian, Malay, Japanese, Chinese, Samoan, Coreans and Americans. The straw huts of the early inhabitants have given place to the abode introduced by the Americans, many of whom are successful planters or retired merchants.

Black Hills Not Black, Nor Hills

The Black hills of South Dakota, site of the colossal Mount Rushmore National memorial, will be visited by thousands of Americans this year either as a vacation destination or en route to or from the western national parks.

Oddly, the Black hills are neither hills nor black. Viewed from a distance, the tree-clad mountains, some of which exceed 7,000 feet elevation, looked black to early day travelers and so they were misnamed.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

TOURS—CRUISES

Dude Ranch: Where East Meets West

Dude ranches are growing as vacation objectives. Along the borders of the rivers in northwestern Wyoming and in Montana; strung out in a line thru the southwest, from Texas thru New Mexico and Arizona into California, where they are designated at "guest ranches"; near Glacier National park in northern Montana, and in scattered other places, the dude ranch is creating a vogue.

Most of the ranches actually have herds of cattle or sheep. Almost all are engaged in their regular activities. The "dudes" may ride spirited horses or sedate ones, depending upon their skill. They will receive western style saddles, with high pommels and wooden stirrups. Should they go out on a pack trip they will have pack horses laden with supplies, and a "cow puncher" or two as guides and cooks.

• • •

The owner endeavors to provide amusement for his guests. In early morning a bugle summons the guests for a ride. After an hour's ride across plains, desert, or mountain trails, a repast may be served by cowboys.

After lunch at the ranch house the usual siesta hour arrives. Later is swimming time, then dinner, and at night the group provides its amusement with cards, radio, or other attractions, for the nearest ranch may be 10 to 40 miles away.

Life on the ranches is generally simple. While the costumes are as colorful as the guests desire, the underlying factor is comfort rather than style. The men employed on the ranches are garbed in jeans, chaparejos, or overalls, with flannel or leather shirt, and while the guests do not emulate such apparel, nonchalance is carefully studied in the costumes of both men and women. Mid-day is often hot, but nights are cool.

• • •

Organized pack trips are frequently made, and the party then sleeps in the open. It is this complete difference in environment which has made a vacation of two weeks, a month, or a summer on a dude ranch one of America's most popular types of vacation.

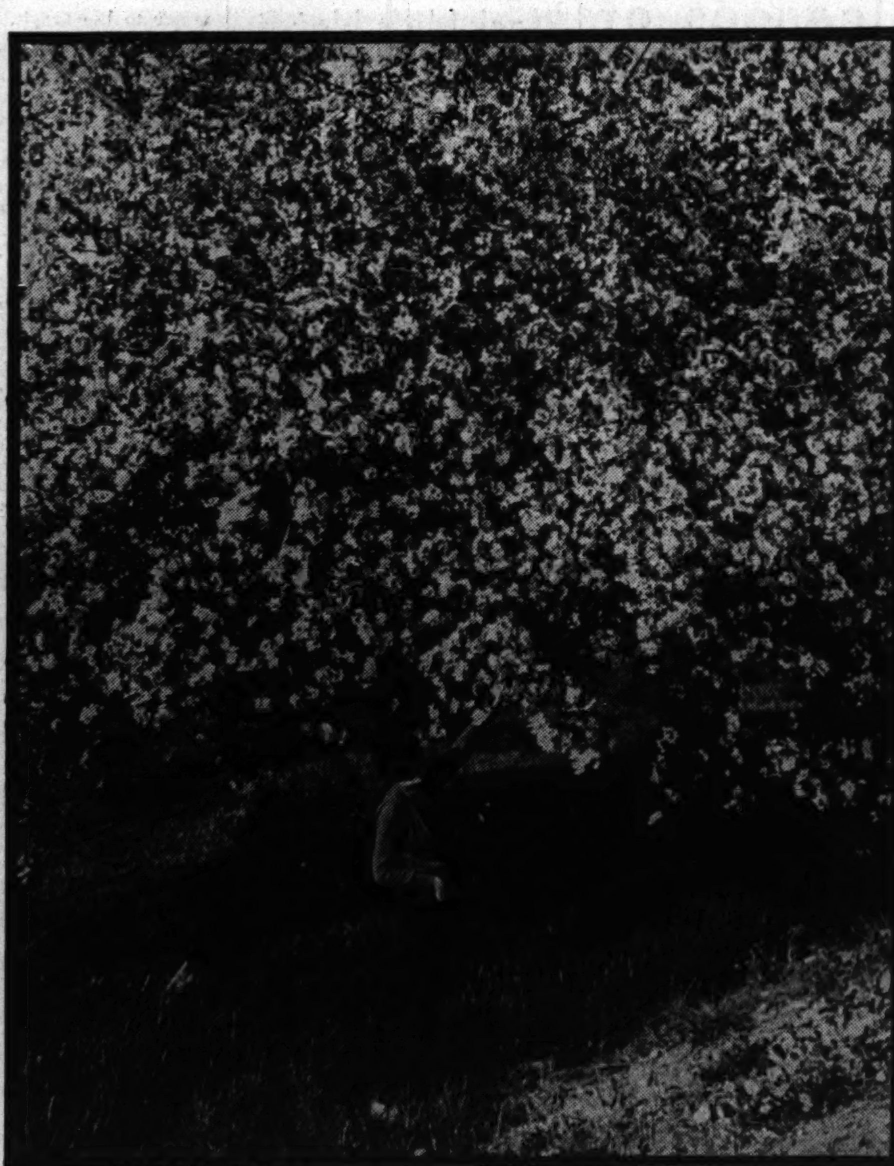
Dude ranching is showing more activity than at any other time for several years. A number of the ranches are booked almost to capacity. Many of the ranchers have added new cabins and equipment. Better swimming pools are being built and younger horses are being provided for those who prefer more active mounts. Buildings are being made ready for use all the year, thus giving the "dudes" an opportunity to stay and enjoy winter sports.

• • •

The popularity of dude ranch vacations may be traced to the American's pioneer spirit and love of the open country, which persists even in the confirmed city dweller.

Cattlemen were quick to realize the value of the mountain regions. Large ranches started, and this was the beginning of the romantic age. Soon some of America's leading families became associated with the ranch industry. They would take a few friends and go west to pass a few months on their ranches. Many of them gave up their eastern connections and themselves established ranches. Soon they were forced into accepting pay from visitors, and in this way they entered into the dude ranch business.

The dude ranch, with its pioneer setting and, in some cases, the same log buildings which have been used for years, affords the kind of relaxation the easterner wants. While the ranches have maintained that glamorous attitude of the pioneer days, they have added a few modern conveniences, such as hot and cold water, comfortable beds, and improved swimming pools.



WHEN HUNDREDS OF ACRES BURST INTO BLOOM

Pink and white apple blossoms are among the Maytime scenic effects in Wisconsin. This scene is in the winding Kickapoo valley near Prairie du Chien.

Rich and Poor Stick to Clubs in Old Havana

HAVANA, Cuba.—For all of his romantic reputation, the average Cuban is essentially a man of regular habits. He will relinquish almost everything except his membership in one of Havana's innumerable clubs.

From the planter golfing at a country club, to the cigar maker playing pelota in the palaces maintained by the workingmen's coöperatives, each has his own club, to which he belongs thruout his lifetime. They form an integral part of the Cuban pattern.

Havana's clubs are surprisingly alike in their physical appearance, however distant may be the poles of their social spheres. Between the two extremes of the austere Yacht club and the huge Spanish regional societies, with their membership of more than 40,000, there are scores of others, all based upon fraternity and hospitality.

Dwarfing all others in size is the Spanish baroque building of the Asturian club, occupying an entire city block fronting on Central park. With a roster of members running from wealthy exporters to waiters and bootblacks, this regional society operates a $3,000,000 hospital, a savings bank, and a school for teaching languages, sciences, medicine, and crafts.

Week-ends find the coral beaches and long concrete piers of the Yacht club thronged with sportsmen. Varadero beach, with its white sand, is the site of the Kawama Beach club, week-end mecca of Havana's social leaders. This organization, approximately 100 miles from Havana, offers accommodations to visiting Americans. Varedero is the scene of the annual championship rowing regattas.

Travel Trend Is Westward This Season

The national park system has been an immense beneficiary from the tide of summer travel turned back from European playgrounds as the result of the war.

All of the parks can be reached by automobile and most of them by train, bus, or airplane. Thousands of travelers in the eastern part of the United States have therefore joined the western tourist movement.

• • •

Indications are that the parks will have a record attendance this year.

Travel in the United States has been growing steadily since the world war and tourism is now ranked as the nation's third largest business. National park travel is responsible for a large proportion of this business. It is estimated that if each person who visited these parks last year stayed for only one day and spent only $5, a total of $75,000,000 would have been put into circulation in the park areas.

With the war keeping tourists away from Europe, the resort areas and transportation lines stand to pick up about $250,000,000 Americans otherwise might spend abroad this summer.

• • •

Admission to about a third of the national parks is free. Others charge one to three dollars for automobiles and two charge admission to scenic caves. Many of the parks are open all year, and most of them offer some form of camping facilities.

Good Highways in Nova Scotia

American motorists who visit Nova Scotia, Canada's ocean playground, this year will find splendid highways girting the province by the sea.

All main highways are hard surfaced. Secondary roads also are in good condition.

Gasoline will cost the American motorist less this year, because of the 10 per cent premium on American currency and also because the imperial gallon [equivalent to about five American quarts] is used in measurement.

Origin of a Name.

Few Americans know how closely Mount Vernon is associated with the Colombian port of Cartagena. In 1740 the South American city, then held by the Spanish, was threatened by an English fleet commanded by Admiral Vernon. The English were repulsed, but an officer named Lawrence Washington, aboard one of the ships, was so impressed by the commanding officer that he named his plantation Mount Vernon in his honor. George Washington inherited this estate and retained the name when his brother died.

THE TRIBUNE TRAVELERS' GUIDE

ESCORTED TOURS

Scenic America Has Everything Old World Has

In this day of fast transportation by train, plane, and bus, nearly every resort area between Chicago and the Pacific coast may be visited, and traversed, in the course of a two weeks' summer vacation. And these areas boast of some of the finest recreation facilities and scenic splendors to be found anywhere.

The United States has, in the 16,678,478 acres of its national parks and monument system, the highest mountain on the continent, the most extensive caverns, the most recently erupting volcano, the oldest living trees. It has wilderness areas where the vacationist may lose himself, and yet find himself in solitudes and beauties unguessed.

• • •

In their national playgrounds the people of this conutry have shaggy buffalo, clownish bears, antlered elk, fleet deer, and Rocky Mountain bighorn. The tourist may enter the homes of prehistoric Indians who lived in cliff caves in the southwest. He may walk across an Indian corn field 1,000 years old. He may see the bones of dinosaurs and the petrified logs of trees buried by inland seas. He may see, in Yellowstone, more freaks of nature than he ever pictured in the wildest flights of his imagination, and, in the Grand canyon of the Colorado, nature's most stupendous handiwork.

The Rocky mountain areas of Colorado and Utah, extending over a territory approximately 300 miles wide by 400 miles long, form one of the most magnificent playgrounds in the world. In few other areas are there such lofty mountain peaks sheltering such beautiful valley and plateaus, such shimmering lakes, such inspiring canyons.

• • •

The natural wonders include Great Salt lake, the world's largest "dead sea"; Pike's peak, the Royal gorge, and the Garden of the Gods. Among the national parks are Rocky mountain and Mesa Verde in Colorado and Bryce canyon and Zion in Utah. Many of the most interesting sections and "sights" are preserved as national monuments.

On the Canadian border is Glacier National park, now a component part of the Waterton-Glacier International Peace park, established to mark the more than 100 years of peace between this country and Canada. Glacier is a land of ruggedly molded mountains bearing in their fastness 60 small glaciers, remnants of the vast ice sheet that once covered all but the highest peaks of the region; of enormous glacier scooped valleys, and precipices thousands of feet deep.

• • •

Mount McKinley National park in Alaska has the highest mountain in North America. In addition, Mount McKinley claims the distinction of rising higher from its base than any other mountain, even those in the Himalayas.

Mount Rainier, in Washington, is one of nature's oddities, a volcano, still steaming altho considered extinct, and snow-covered. Over the summit of the mountain and down its sides is the largest single peak glacier system in the United States. Thru the snow at the summit, steam melts holes, but down its sides pour 28 named glaciers veritable rivers of ice, and there are others still unnamed.

Few persons realize that California's Yosemite park, with its magnificent scenic effects, has an area of no less than 1,176 square miles. It lies on the west slope of the Sierra Nevada mountains about 200 miles due east of San Francisco. The Yosemite valley proper occupies only eight square miles. The park above the rim is less celebrated, principally because it is less known. This lack is due largely to the fact that it was not opened to the public by motor road until 1915. Nearby is Sequoia, home of the big trees.

• • •

Across the Canadian border, in Alberta, are more than 7,000 square miles of national parks.

Jasper, 240 miles west of Edmonton, has become known for the grandeur of its snow-capped peaks and the beauty of its lakes, waterfalls, and mountain streams.

Banff, which is about 80 miles west of Calgary, is also a famous vacation land. Within its boundaries are Banff, with its spectacular golf course, swimming, mountain climbing, tennis, and bridle paths, and Lake Louise, regarded as one of the seven perfect landscapes of the world. From these points trails lead out in all directions to mountain lodges and camp sites.

WHERE CITY FOLK BECOME COWBOYS

Each summer the dude ranches out west are starting points for adventure for thousands of easterners and midwesterners. This picture was taken near Missoula, Mont.

Boundaries Fixed for Mexican Park

MONTERREY, Mexico.—Arriving in Monterrey to settle the boundaries of the newly created national park in the Sierras, Ing. Miguel Quevedo, chief of the Mexican forestry department, set the borders as the Mexico City and Saltillo highways from positions south and west of this city.

The enormous preserve will take in the Laguna de Sanchez, the Horse Tail falls, Huasteca canyon, the Santa Catarina headwaters, and much of its course. The river and lake will be stocked with fish. Deer, rabbits,

Havana Lighting Up for Rotarians

HAVANA, Cuba.—A reënactment of the Carnival Comparsas, a one day card of horse racing arranged for Oriental Park; the Havana race track at Marianao, summer fiestas at the Havana Yacht club, the Havana Country club, and the Jaimonitas club, and other festivities have been arranged as part of the entertainment for the 9,000 delegates, their families and friends who will be here for the annual Rotary International convention the second week in June.

Grandstand seats for nearly 12,000 persons are to be erected in front of Havana's $20,000,000 Capitolio so that the visitors may view the native Comparsas, staged for the first time after the regular carnival season. Groups of Afro-Cuban dancers, each in its distinctive costume, will perform the dances which are being mimicked thruout the United States and other countries.

Mount Rushmore's Faces Stand Out More Clearly Now

The imposing stone faces on Mount Rushmore, in South Dakota's Black hills, will stand out more clearly this summer than at any other time since work on the monument was begun 13 years ago.

Work has progressed so rapidly that only the finishing touches remain. The faces are of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln, and Theodore Roosevelt. They are being carved out of solid granite 6,200 feet above sea level. Gutzon Borglum is the sculptor.

Since the work was started in 1927 more than 1,500,000 persons have visited the Black hills to view the mammoth work of art.

MORE OR LESS PERSONAL

Even tho the war has blighted nearly all things cultural in Europe, France's objects of art are being preserved, and will be placed on view again as soon as the conflict is over.

Ed Knight.

This was related by Ed Knight, advertising manager of the French Line, at a luncheon at the Blackstone hotel Thursday.

In the meanwhile, said Mr. Knight, France is arranging to keep Americans informed of its attractions. The French pavilion at the New York World's Fair will reopen its doors May 11, and Gov. Gen. Marcel Olivier, French high commissioner to the fair, will arrive in America next Thursday to take over his duties.

The Bons Vivants, Chicago society of steamship and travel agents, will have a dinner at Harry's New Yorker tomorrow evening.

Miss Gertrude K. Micon, formerly with the Chicago office of the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd, last week opened a travel bureau at 3222 Roosevelt road.

Promotion of inter-American cultural and commercial relations, and appreciation of Latin American music and art are the objectives of a new radio program originating in Chicago. The series began yesterday and will be heard at 4:30 each Saturday over WEDC.

Illinois Tourists Land in Oregon

Oregon, with its beaches, mountains, lakes, rivers, and forest, is preparing for the greatest number of tourists in its history.

Illinois is a heavy contributor to Oregon's tourist travel, 3,133 cars from this state having registered there last year. Illinois was outranked only by California, Washington, and Idaho.

Modern highways and automobiles have so reduced what once were vast distances that it takes only 40 driving hours from this state to the Pacific northwest.

Among Oregon's scenic gems are Crater Lake National park, Mount Hood, the Columbia River highway, Bonneville dam, the Wallowa mountains, Hell's canyon of the Snake river, fossil beds in which bones of elephants, hippos, and even the "dawn horse" are found, geysers, and the nation's biggest herd of antelope.

Club Circles Facing List of Busy Meetings

While men's fancies traditionally turn to romantic thoughts in spring, this season, to judge from the club news, contrarily inspires the feminine faction to follow lofty pursuits in the form of annual meetings.

The Chicago and North Shore alumnæ of Alpha Chi Omega will have a luncheon at 1 o'clock on Saturday at the Shawnee club in Wilmette. Seniors from the active chapter at Northwestern university will be special guests and will present the song which won them first place in the interfraternity sing last spring. Mrs. Ernest A. Eklund of Glencoe, president of the alumnæ chapter, will preside over the luncheon and business meeting. Mrs. James G. Badger of Wilmette is in charge of arrangements. She will be assisted by Mrs. Benjamin P. Caldwell Jr. of Chicago, Mrs. Ernest A. Potter and Mrs. Henry Clay Champlin III. of Evanston, and Mrs. Lee B. Thomas and Mrs. J. Carney Howell of Glencoe.

• • •

Members of the Women's League of the United Synagogue of America will hold their second annual scholarship brunch at 12 o'clock on Tuesday at the Covenant club. The program will consist of a speech by Rabbi Nachman Arnoff of B'nai Israel of Austin; singing by Miss Delle Palmer, who is an interpreter of Jewish folk songs, and the award to the sisterhood which has won the competitive membership enrollment for the year. Proceeds will go toward the Mrs. Benjamin Davis Scholarship fund. Mrs. Phillip M. Yavitz is president of the Chicago branch of the women's league.

The citizens' committee on the Juvenile court will meet at 12 o'clock on Tuesday in the Red room of the La Salle hotel. The speakers will be Dr. Thomas D. Eliot, Father Ralph Gallagher, Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, and Judge Frank Bicek.

• • •

Representatives from the eighty-odd Congregational churches in the Chicago area, members of the Chicago Congregational Woman's Fellowship, will hold their annual meeting at 10:30 o'clock on Friday morning at the First Congregational church in Evanston. Dr. Hugh Elmer Brown, minister of the church, will speak during the morning, which will be devoted to annual reports and installation of officers. The afternoon program will be composed of special music and a talk by Miss Georgia Harkness, professor of applied theology at the Garrett Biblical institute in Evanston.

Over 500 invitations have been sent to the annual Victory workshop breakfast, which will be held at 12 o'clock Friday noon at the Standard club. The workshop, only organization of its kind in the city, provides vocational training and occupational therapy for adult deaf and hard of hearing. Miss Tracy Copp, regional director, division of vocational rehabilitation, office of education, department of the interior, in Washington, will be the speaker.

• • •

The Chicago Woman's Musical club, of which Mrs. Walter Flandorf is president, will hold its annual spring luncheon at 12:30 o'clock on Thursday in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel. John Nehr, baritone; Louise Sunderman, cellist, and Willis Charkovsky, pianist, will give the program.

Mrs. Walter Flandorf.

Among the special guests will be Mrs. Howard Wells, Dr. Albert Cotsworth, Mrs. Royden Keith, Mrs. Dwight Orcutt, Herman Devries, and John Strong.

Altho "Ye Olde English Faire," an annual event which takes place at the British Old People's home in Hollywood, Ill., will not be held until July 13, the committee is already at work. Its members are sponsoring a card party at 8 o'clock Friday evening at the House of Biggs, 50 East Huron street. J. C. Humpries is chairman of the fair and Mrs. Maud Smith of the card party.

• • •

Mrs. Charles S. Clark will be the special guest and speaker at the annual breakfast of the First Daughters of America at 12 o'clock Saturday in the Wedgewood room of Marshall Field's. Salvatore Mendoza, Mexican Indian tenor, will present a group of songs which will be followed by an Indian ceremony at which six prominent clubwomen will be given recognition.

The Indian Council Fire will sponsor a spring dance and card party Saturday evening at the Chicago Towers club.

On Tuesday the Daughters of the Renaissance will hold their annual meeting at 203 North Wabash avenue, suite 1718.

The Chicago and North Shore alumni of Theta Sigma Phi, national journalism fraternity, will hold their fourth annual Ladies of the Press breakfast at 11:30 o'clock next Sunday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Gladys Perrow will tell of her experiences in Germany under the Nazis.

The second annual scholarship fund dance, sponsored by the Alumni Association of Our Lady of Mount Carmel School, will be held Friday evening at the Belmont hotel. Miss Virginia Casey is one of the chairmen of the arrangements committee for the benefit, which provides a four year scholarship to both a boy and girl student at De Paul academy and Immaculata High school.

At a recent meeting of the Women's Progressive club Mrs. James Johnson was elected president. Other officers are Mrs. Berthe Petersen, first vice president; Mrs. William Schumacher, second vice president; Mrs. Walter Wagner, third vice president; Mrs. Walter Martling, recording secretary; Mrs. George Spohr, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Walter Washburne, treasurer. Mrs. William Dauber, Mrs. E. S. Weaver, Mrs. Frank Beam, Mrs. Basil Wyrick, Mrs. Raymond Kunstman, Mrs. Samuel Hawkins, Mrs. Bruno Roehr, Mrs. A. Siebecker, and Mrs. Harvey Martling are directors.

• • •

The Chicago Woman's Ideal club, whose activities include providing scholarships to deserving girls, maintaining a room in the Martha Washington Home for Crippled Children, assisting the Morgan Park home, the Park Ridge School for Girls, and the Braille Foundation, recently elected officers for the coming year. Mrs. Fredric Wellman is the new president. Mrs. John P. Gately is the first vice president; Mrs. Lane R. Cooper, second vice president; Mrs. Earl E. Clark, recording secretary; Mrs. John H. Parks, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Edwin Hansen, treasurer. The board of managers will be composed of Mrs. William C. Bryan, Mrs. A. W. Carlson, Mrs. E. William Gutgsell, Mrs. Edward Lafeber, Mrs. C. J. La Hodney, Mrs. Harry M. Londelius, Mrs. Ernst W. Seip, and Mrs. Otto W. Windheim.

MARRIED IN MARCH

Mrs. Raymond A. Kirchner was Miss Virginia Nancy Epp before her marriage on March 1. She is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy H. Epp of Evanston and a granddaughter of the late George B. Hische, former editor and part owner of the Masonic Chronicler.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

With the arrival of the first warm, sunny days of spring all the world is drawn toward the outdoors to enjoy the bright, mild days after the confinement of a long winter. That urge comes to rich and poor alike, and this week's mail includes a number of requests from those who need aid of various kinds to help fulfill their longing for fresh air and flowers and sport.

A group of patients in a sanitarium northwest of the city recently sent the following appeal:

"We are a group of fellows in a cottage out here, and we're anxiously awaiting the summer, when we will be permitted to be outdoors. All last year, during the warm months, we had croquet contests, and they helped to spend many long hours in mild sport. This year, however, our set is pretty well demolished and we've been scratching our heads and wondering how we can get another. We finally thought of you, and of the fact that, perhaps, you could aid us in finding another for use this coming summer."

We have a similar request from a group of invalids in another cottage at the same institution, and we hope that our readers can fill both. The address will be given on request.

• • •

Mrs. D.'s letter is self-explanatory:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am ill and unable to be away from home. My only enjoyment this year will be making a flower garden in the back yard. Do you suppose that some of your kind readers would give me a few iris or other roots when they are thinning out their gardens? I shall be very grateful."

• • •

Mrs. W. has written to me in behalf of a young man who has been confined to bed for 13 years, and who never may be able to go outdoors again. He could, however, enjoy the baseball games if some one could provide a small d. c. radio for him. There is another man in the same hospital ward, an invalid for 11 years, and one radio would bring great pleasure to both these patients. Mrs. W. will be glad to call for a radio if one is available.

Mrs. N. writes in a similar vein:

"I wonder if you can get me some cuttings or slips of house plants or roots from the gardens of your readers? I am passionately fond of flowers but cannot afford to buy them, for my husband is on work relief and we both are ill and under a doctor's care at present. I seldom get out anywhere, except to go to the clinic, as I had a serious operation a short time ago. Flowers would give me an interest and an occupation. I would be most grateful for your aid."

Announce Betrothal of Miss Rosemary Gallagher

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Gallagher of Oak Park announce the engagement of their daughter Rosemary Louise to Jay A. McIntosh Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. McIntosh of Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Deborah Club to Open Fund Raising Drive

Hundreds of boys, whose families are on relief, are looking forward impatiently to their summer vacation from school. Already they are planning how they will spend their time outdoors. The streets will, of necessity, be their playground, despite traffic hazards and the risks of broken window panes. Many boys will encounter difficulties this summer, still they plan to the best of their ability.

But they are not alone in their foresightedness, for members of the Deborah Woman's club know better than the youngsters themselves what a summer vacation can mean. On May 14 the club will hold its annual fund raising luncheon at the Standard club so that the 1,500 young members of the Deborah Boys' club may be sent to Camp Wooster for two weeks.

Mrs. Arthur Lindheimer is president of the club, which was founded in 1872, and Mrs. Joseph Wolf is honorary president. Mrs. Charles Martin, Mrs. Helen Sontag, Mrs. Lester Stern, Mrs. Lawrence Lehman, Mrs. Charles Muehlstein, Mrs. Edwin Frieder, Mrs. Samuel Mathes, Mrs. Michael Flicht, Mrs. Harry Stoll, Mrs. James Choyke, Mrs. Albert Ellis, Mrs. Nathan Goldblatt, and Mrs. Louis Suckoff are on the committee.

• • •

Underprivileged girls will be helped by the Maytime frolic which the Jewish Big Sisters will hold on May 19 in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel. Miss Frances Hoffman is chairman of this annual dinner-dance. The purpose of the organization is to help young girls to become well adjusted citizens by offering them understanding and guidance and instilling in them a feeling of self-confidence.

Miss Frances Hoffman.
[Harry Johnson Photo.]

To many ambitious children summer vacation means primarily the resumption of their activities in the Children's Civic theater, sponsored by the Chicago Drama league. For many years youngsters from the ages of 8 to 18 have staged plays at Navy pier and on Saturday they will bring the highlights of their seasons to the Chicago Woman's club theater. The purpose of this gala performance will be to raise funds to establish a scholarship, supplementing the league's allotment for the maintenance of the theater. The program will start at 8:30 o'clock.

• • •

Mrs. Charles H. Stresenreuter is president of the Soma welfare, which will give a card party at 1:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Stevens hotel. Proceeds will be used to furnish braces to dependent crippled children.

Mrs. Charles H. Stresenreuter.

Crippled children also will benefit from the annual Mother's day meeting which the Chicago Club for Crippled Children will hold at 2 o'clock on May 13 in the Palmer House. Dorothy Cornfield will appear on the program with a group of songs. At 12:30 o'clock on May 25 the club will hold its annual luncheon in the Grand ballroom of the Palmer House.

The Cottage for Crippled Children, which is being erected on the grounds of St. Mary of Providence institute, 4242 North Austin avenue, under the sponsorship of the Ladies of Isabella, will be the scene of a gay carnival party this afternoon and evening. Mrs. Emma Huising Wall, supreme grand lady, has planned the affair, which will feature gayly decorated booths, games, and amusements, and a tour of the cottage. Funds will be used to hasten the completion of the building.

Announce Engagement of Miss Jan Cunningham

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cunningham of 2548 North Burling street announce the engagement of their daughter, Jan, to Samuel Odishoo, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Odishoo of 2338 Seminary avenue. The wedding will take place on Aug. 18 at St. Clement's church. Miss Cunningham attended De Paul university, from which Mr. Odishoo was graduated.

An Open Window

By Eleanor Jewett.

I had my window open wide
To see the things that were outside;
I counted robins in a tree
And listened to a blundering bee
That in his heavy flight seemed slow
To find the lilacs just below.
I had my window open wide,
I even put the screen aside,
Nor thought, so keen was I to see,
That outside things could come to me!
And, then! a flurry of bright wing,
A hum, a silence, and a sting!
Oh, why, when May can be so fair
Must there be mischief in the air?

Art Notes

Another "must" exhibit is that at Steuben Glass, Inc., 900 North Michigan avenue. A number of famous men and women painters have contributed designs which were transferred to crystal. On the walls hang the original pictures; in an inner room is the finished crystal, flawless, perfect. On each surface is some one of the designs. The crystal may be a plate, a bowl, a pair of slim vases, a shallow bowl, or a tall, full jar, no matter, each has its design, exquisitely wrought. Among the most beautiful are the pieces bearing the designs of Marie Laurencin, Jean Hugo, Peter Hurd, John Curry, Grant Wood, Noguchi, Chirico, and Dufy—the Dufy, by the way, is amazingly out of character, being entirely without pothooks and middle-deep in solid construction.

The North Shore Art guild is holding its annual spring showing of new works by members at the Club Woman's bureau, Mandel Brothers, to May 18. It is a pleasant, colorful exhibit.

At the Woman's Club of Evanston there is a most attractive exhibit of paintings and drawings by Mrs. Helen Humphreys Lawrence of New York. It will continue to May 12.

Twenty-one paintings by Robert C. Zuppke, head football coach of the University of Illinois and famous semiprofessional painter, will go on exhibition tomorrow at the Colonial Art company in the Palmer House. The exhibit will be on view thru May 11. Zuppke has painted some thousand canvases; his favorite subject is landscape. This is the fifth year his work has been shown in Chicago.

BEAUTY and FASHION

Sketched, the wedding in jersey, because it's different. Wedding gown is plaster white, with long, soul-satisfying train and intricately shirred and draped bodice top, with flattering shirred folds over shoulders. Headdress is shirred wide halo of the jersey, with a misty cloud of white net for veil. ● The bridesmaid dresses also are of jersey, in delicate, flattering pastel. Notice the midriff color contrast cunningly worked with three shades of the jersey. Shirred off-the-face halo headdresses of matching jersey complete the costumes. ● One of the most flattering new gowns is the selection for the mother of the bride, a graciously draped model of crepe in an unusual new shade for the skirt and a matching embroidered sheer top. ● Smart going-away costume for the bride is a crisp outfit of bengaline. Under peplumed jacket is flared dress of the same fabric with blouse top of Appenzell embroidery, matched by the jacket cuffs.

This Season's Bridal Attire Heart-Melting

By REA SEEGER

NO WONDER this spring's crop of brides-to-be is wandering around town in a rosy daze. The bridal collections are enough to make even the hard-hearted career girls soften and meditate on matrimony. Net, lace, gleaming satin, silken crêpes, taffetas, and the frilliest of sheers, stately gowns of jersey, and all the tempting creations in cool, young cottons—all these and more are the problem of the day.

No matter what you crave for atmosphere, the gowns are here. Step right up and select the gown of your dreams while the collections are complete. Bridesmaids' dresses, maid of honor gowns, the important dress for the mother of the bride, and all the bewitching small creations for tiny flower girls may all be assembled in leisurely fashion or with neatness and dispatch.

If you want a wedding gown that expresses your own personality, the bolts of fine fabric for such ethereal creations are plentiful. Everything from the handsome flowered brocades; the sentimental bowknots in satin; thick, clinging silk crêpes; whispering taffeta that also may be used for ruching; trim slipper satins in old ivory or white, with a delicate pink tint in the shadows; white lace, ivory lace, and the liquidly lovely silk jerseys—all are available by the yard.

In the helpful bridal bureaus all over town, one in each shop and store, are crammed by the dozen all imaginable kinds of wedding gowns and bridesmaids' gowns. To the staffs of experienced experts who have coddled temperamental brides and the dozens of doting relatives, as well as eased the difficult way of the bride with a small clothes allowance, no problem is too involved. Short of drifting down the middle aisle for you, these obliging and most understanding counselors think and provide for everything—even the last whiff of smelling salts.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

The artist has told the important fashion facts about each of the four models presented today, so with a few words about the smart paneling, slenderizing lines, and springlike details we'll leave you to contemplate the chic of this quartet of dresses.

No. 2648 is a collarless model with V-neckline, half belt, short puffed sleeves, and interesting skirt paneling. It makes up as well in washable silks as it does in cottons, plain shades preferred to prints.

No. 2795 offers paneling that begins in the bodice, full cape sleeves, a contrasting collar, and smart button arrangement. Employ printed silks and cotton in light colors. This is a slenderizing dress than can go to all kinds of daytime social functions.

No. 2884 is a boon to the plump, short woman who wishes to achieve the illusion of height. A contrasting, wide collar does neckline honors, and more of the ruching that trims it is used on the sleeve cuffs. Buttons are important to the smartness of this figured silk or cotton daytime frock.

No. 2847 uses contrasting materials and tops the dress with a full-cut bolero that has either long or short sleeves. Prints and plain shades unite for the smartness of this ensemble.

Style No. 2648 is designed for size 16 and for 36, 38 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2795 is designed for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 4⅛ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅜ yard of contrasting for collar.

Style No. 2884 is designed for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 4 yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of contrasting.

Style No. 2847 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39 inch material for jacket and skirt; 1⅛ yards of contrasting for bodice.

Clotilde Children's Patterns

The days are just around the proverbial corner when your toddlers will be taken to the beach or sent to frolic on the homestead lawn to absorb their quota of beneficial sun rays. For this healthful pursuit the youngsters must be scantily but comfortably and adequately clad. For years designers have been perfecting the sun suit, and this year's version is about the best ever. We've used it in this pattern, which is delightfully simple to make and requires a minimum of material and time, so that you can fashion a large number of such outfits for your toddlers.

Use inexpensive materials, of course, and "doll" them up with applique. The pattern today includes at no extra cost an applique of a "cute" duck, with instructions on how to apply the design to the sun suit. Four types of stitches may be used, and they're all easy. A toy duck also may be fashioned with this pattern.

Style No. 2724 is designed for sizes 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5. Size 3 requires ¾ yard of 39 inch material for play suit; ⅝ yard for stuffed animal.

Today is the 5th day of the 5th month in a 5-year so there will be plenty of activity which relates to the home, schools, and government. Those born on a 5-date like to be physically active so their vocation must not be in the realm of sedentary work. They mix well with people and have imagination so can succeed in writing advertising or doing publicity work. They rather like to puff things up. Selling is ideally suited to them. The birthday celebrator today may expect to have to use all his adaptability this year in making adjustments. He will have to shoulder responsibility.

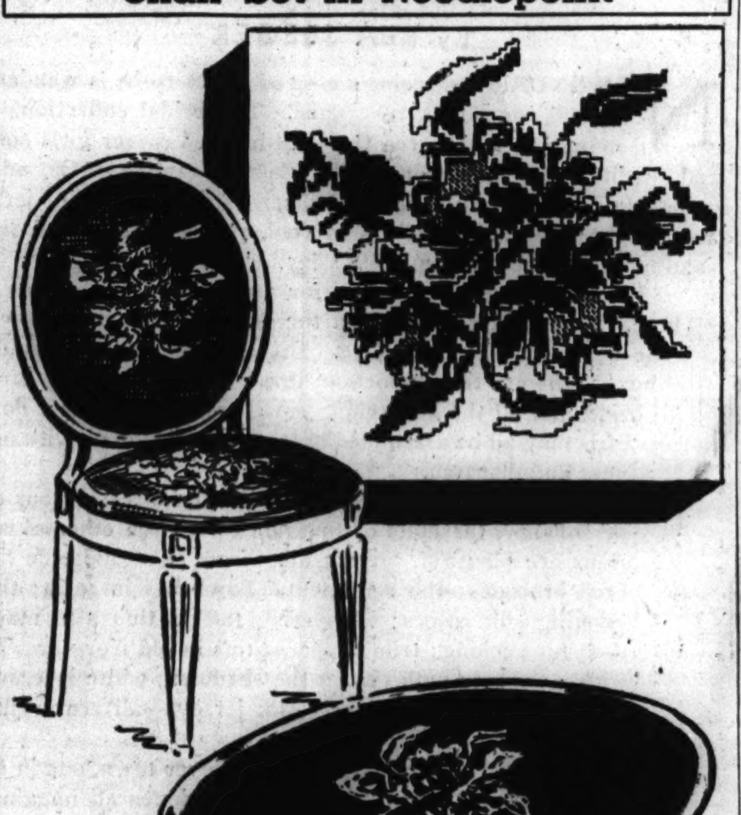
Chair Set in Needlepoint



By Jean McDonald.

Those needlepoint workers who like big jobs may concentrate on making chair seats, chair backs, pillows, or rugs with this lovely floral motif. Two shades of green and three shades of rose are required for the motif, while the background may be harmonious with the color scheme of the room in which it is to be used. The directions are so detailed that even the novice needlepoint worker may follow instructions with ease.

For the needlepoint motif for the chair sets, No. X-451, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed

By Carolyn Ramey.

Yours truly felt kittenish one day and decided to have a frock with bows for trimming. Necessarily, the dress to carry the burden of such frivolity must be utterly simple, so we made our frock just that plain, throwing in a novel shoulder yoke and unusual pockets for good fashion measure. We first wore the dress to a campus tea and it was a social success, drawing approval from even our cattiest rivals! No matter what your social problems, we feel sure you'll like this dress, so are passing it on in the form of today's pattern.

The original is made of flowered washable silk, the background a pale blue, the flowers dark blue, burgundy, and leaf green. With it we wore a navy breton perched on the front of the headline and trimmed it with burgundy ribbon. Our shoes and gloves, too, were navy.

If you like, fashion this dress of a plain color in silk or cotton, and give it long sleeves if you prefer. It's a campus-wise as well as an office-hour frock.

Style No. T-8671 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material for short sleeved dress; 3¾ yards for long sleeved version.

Mother's Day Is Motif of Several Club Occasions

Many of the parties which are scheduled for this week have a special significance, for they have been planned in observation of Mother's day. The Young Women's Service league will hold a Mother's day luncheon at 12:30 o'clock on Tuesday at the Sovereign hotel. Miss Sally Sucherman is chairman of the affair. The program will be offered by Miss Viola Roth Mandel, dramatist; Miss Kitty Shapiro, vocalist, and Miss Dorothy Romain, pianist.

Miss Joy Simon.

Mrs. Ann Bernhard, chairman of the junior activities of the Cook county council of the American Legion auxiliary, has planned a mother's tea, to be held at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Adelard's tearoom, 185 North Wabash avenue.

Mrs. Otto Weiner will be speaker at the annual Mother's day luncheon of the Adolf Kraus Jr. B'nai B'rith, which will be held at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Chez Emile French restaurant. Miss Joy Simon is president of the organization.

The Rose Epstein Katzoff Guild of Rest Haven will have its annual Mother's day party at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Rest Haven, 1919 Prairie avenue. Miss Helen Curtis, soloist, and a group of children will present the program. The regular monthly meeting of the group will be held at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening at the Palmer House.

A musical and tea will be given by the juniors of the Jewish Consumptive Relief Society of Chicago on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Bernard Sack is chairman of the affair, which will start at 1:30 o'clock at the Standard club.

A mothers' and daughters' luncheon and surprise party has been planned by members of the Star auxiliary, Marks Nathan hall. The affair will take place at 12 o'clock on Wednesday at the Covenant club. Mrs. Samuel Holleb is president.

STUBBORN RHEUMATIC PAIN

When Irritated by Exess Uric Acid

Thousands take ALLENRU for the pains caused by the gouty phases of rheumatism, neuritis, lumbago or rheumatic backache when irritated by excess uric acid or similar circulating poisons. Such excess acid and poisons should soon start to leave your body, and thus the terrible agony is often relieved — no opiates.

Ask any live druggist in America for an 8 ounce bottle of ALLENRU—a liquid —costs about 85 cents—save this notice.

These Menus Built Around Bridal Theme

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1940: By The Chicago Tribune.]

June always has rhymed conveniently with honeymoon, or just moon, and therefore has been the subject of much versification, tuneful or otherwise.

And it does seem that the most important things about June are its brides and the gay social events which happen around them. A June bride's social season begins in May, if not much earlier, with a shower or two or three, and is climaxed at the time of the wedding with a breakfast, reception, or other gathering where the food is second in importance only to bride and bridegroom.

• • •

When the parents and friends of the bride-to-be are not blessed with an abundance of worldly goods they may wonder just how to plan for one of these events without straining the pocketbook. It is fortunate that simple menus [and inexpensive ones] are often in the best of taste. There never should be a rich or elaborate menu for an afternoon or evening shower. A morning wedding breakfast [as distinguished from a "breakfast" served at noon] may be plain but pretty, and a reception after a wedding does not require a great deal of food.

MENUS FOR A SHOWER.

I.

Raspberry Sherbet with Thin Marshmallow Sauce Topped with Chopped Toasted Almonds or Pecans
Tiny Butter Cookies or Pastel Frosted Petits Fours

II.

Honeydew Melon Slice à la Mode, Sprinkled with Fresh Raspberries or Strawberries
Coffee

III.

Angel Cake Topped with Whipped Cream and Fresh Berries
Nuts and Mints
Coffee Salted Nuts

MENU FOR A WEDDING RECEPTION.

Apricot-Nut Bread and Cream Cheese Triangle Sandwiches
White Bread and Watercress Finger Sandwiches
Rolled Whole Wheat Honey-Butter Sandwiches
[Creamed Honey and Butter]
Orange Ice
White Layer Wedding Cake
Nuts and Mints
Tea-Punch Coffee

MENU FOR A SIMPLE WEDDING BREAKFAST.

Sherry Fruit Cup

If any reader is interested in more detailed information about party food of this kind, or wishes a recipe for wedding cake, this department will be happy to send it upon receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We have several booklets which might be helpful, too. "Parties for the Bride-to-Be," "Thirst Quenchers," "Taste-Teasing Appetizers," "The New Sandwich Maker," and "Freeze the Salad" all contain recipes for party food. Each of the booklets sells for 5 cents, by mail. Twenty-five cents brings them all, or save 10 cents by picking them up yourself at one of the Tribune public service offices, Tribune Tower and 1 South Dearborn street. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Miss Meade contributes daily to the feature pages of the Chicago Tribune, guiding housewives to the best knowledge of cookery and hostessing. When writing for information, please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Home Owners' Queries

Grand Rapids, Mich.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—What can be used to rid a basement of a plague of fleas?
—George S.

Answer: You can "smother" fleas by sprinkling a couple of pounds of naphthalene on the floor and then closing the cellar tightly for 24 hours if possible. Heavy fumes will not then be blown away by air currents.

Chicago.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—What type of paint should I use on my screens to make it hard for outsiders to see into rooms?
Kenneth M.

Answer: Use a very thin coat of light colored paint or outside of screen.

Have a Fairer Complexion with the Aid of Mercolized Wax Cream

A LIGHTER, lovelier complexion is obscured by the dull, drab, faded outer layer of your skin. Flake off this unsightly cuticle in tiny, invisible particles by using Mercolized Wax Cream, the Skin Bleach and Beautifier, according to directions.

Mercolized Wax Cream, a famous cosmetic for nearly thirty years, has helped thousands of women to realize the beauty possibilities of their complexions. Get a jar now. Start using it tonight to impart a fresher, fairer skin appearance.

USE SAXOLITE ASTRINGENT—for Skin Freshness. As a quick freshener between a hectic day and a gala evening, try tingling Saxolite Astringent. Your skin will feel cooler, fresher, daintier. Saxolite reduces excess surface oil, tightens skin tissue by temporary contraction, and leaves the skin feeling delightfully refreshed. Just dissolve one ounce Saxolite in a half pint witch hazel and use daily.

PHELACTINE DEPILATORY—Takes Hair Off Face. Embarrassing facial hair can be removed quickly and easily with Phelactine Depilatory. Apply it in a few seconds then flick it off and see the hair come out from beneath the surface. Not a cream or powder. Has no offensive odor. Try Phelactine today.

the use being a magazine writer if you get published in a magazine nobody ever heard of. Dr. Leland says he has an article on 'Chaos and Education' in this month's Boston Philistine. I think that is the title. I can't bear reading that comes in a solid block on the page."

I begged the article off of Dr. Leland before he returned it to Mr. Trudsloe. I knew then what mamma meant about the solid page. It wasn't broken up for "he said" and "she said" at all, it being not that kind of writing where "he said" and "she said." It was certainly interesting, tho. I had to use the dictionary three times. Transcendent. Allergic. Curricula.

In the article it seemed that Mr. Trudsloe was of the opinion that methods of education must change with what he called this rapidly changing world. The article, which went on and on, was signed Everett Wayne Trudsloe. Dr. Leland let me keep it over Sunday. I slept with the magazine two nights.

I don't know just how it came about. If I live to be a hundred years I'll never know just how it came about. I must have been dreaming. I must have been crazy. I know it was something, because mamma said to me that Sunday morning: "For goodness' sake, Lora, if I had known you were going to sit home mooning instead of getting to your shampoo, and helping me with these lottery cards, I'd have made you go to Sunday school. I declare, people certainly do have smudgy hands. I can tell what lottery cards Mrs. Holten has used. Here, Lora, help me erase."

On Sunday evenings the ladies of the boarding house took turns having lotto parties in their rooms, and then serving refreshments.

Mrs. Leland's grandson, Harry, and I used to pass the ham sandwiches and cookies and root beer, which mamma would have ready and waiting on an alcove table. Then I would say goodnight to the ladies and gentlemen, draw the portières across my alcove, and go to bed.

Well, this particular Sunday was one of those Sundays when it was mamma's turn to entertain, and if you had threatened to kill me when I got up that morning I couldn't have told you the crazy fool things I was going to do before the day was over.

The only way I can even begin to explain it was that I did wake up a little more excited than usual that morning, because of something that had happened the day before. I had kept waking every little while in the night over it.

It wasn't much and yet—well, it happened this way. I was returning "Vanity Fair," and renewing a flat little volume of poems by somebody named Edith Hoult, which Mr. Trudsloe had recommended. "They are as nostalgic as Schubert songs," he said. "You are sure to enjoy them," and when he handed me the little book his hand stayed right over mine and his eyes looked at me so full of something—so full of something that I felt like he was a knife thrower and I was the board. That was absolutely all, except that when he took away his hand it dragged a little as if—as if it didn't want to go.

A Book of Poems Leads to Adventure

Was it any wonder mamma thought I was mooning around that Sunday morning when she was harping on such things as ham and root beer and lotto and when I had been only half asleep all night from the excitement. I hated to wash my hands, because he had touched them.

How it happened I don't know. I just don't know. Kill me, and I'll go on telling you I don't know.

Mamma had sent me downstairs to ask Mrs. Leland to be sure to have Dr. Leland bring up their card table, because ours had a too short fourth leg, and it made Mrs. Holton nervous to play lotto on a table that wobbled.

I had been rereading the book of poems Mr. Trudsloe lent me. They were full of so many of the things that were in me. Lonesomeness and the wanting of beauty, and the way you can actually hurt when a star shines particularly bright, or you think of a young boy who may some day be a soldier and get shot. One poem began: "In jeweled night, I lie awake and dream." That could have been me. That was me, with the stars shining thru my window and—well, never mind——

Even when I was coming back upstairs from having told Mrs. Leland about the card table I kept thinking how beautiful it was for a man to like poetry. All the men I had ever known, even Uncle Buck and papa, would have looked silly as anything talking poetry.

I guess you keep wondering why I don't come to saying what I did. I did it just as surely as my name is Lora Kirk. Nothing I can do will ever undo it.

Thinking of Mr. Trudsloe as I came up at 11 o'clock that Sunday morning, from asking for the card table, I passed his door and smelled his pipe smoke and heard him moving about his room. Suddenly it came over me that unless I could be in there with him I just couldn't live out having to exist in a world and be everywhere else, all the time, except where he was.

So I knocked at his door and he said to come in and I went.

Suddenly I was just in, and that was all there was to it, and there he stood, at the foot of his bed which wasn't made, with a glass in his hand, drinking water that had been poured from the bottle that usually stood on the window sill, but was now on the table beside him.

Maybe it wasn't romantic, but if it wasn't it was something that no matter how much I die of humiliation will stay with me all my lifetime.

I guess it wasn't romantic at all. He had on what you would call a dressing gown, not a Turkish towel one like Uncle Buck's, but dark red silk tied with a cord and tassel, which he kept pulling tighter and tighter. Without his collar he didn't look like most men, when their necks seem to get so long and stringy. He looked more like a picture of the poet Byron you always see, with his collar open and his hair looking, not short and smooth looking as it did in the library, but more as if the wind were blowing it.

Was he surprised! I knew! He had thought when he said "Come in" that I was Willie coming to do his room, and there was me instead, just a senior who pestered him for books at the library. Did I feel foolish! And yet I wouldn't have given anything not to be standing right there in that room, all mussed up as it was on a Sunday morning.

I hadn't even had a peek at it since Mr. Trudsloe had moved in. I knew, of course, the furnishings. Whenever anybody moved out of Mrs. Leland's, mamma always went in to see if she didn't like that room better than ours, but she always decided to stay in ours. So I knew the furniture, and the wall paper, and the bisque ornaments Mrs. Leland always put into the men's rooms, because the ladies wouldn't have them in theirs.

But I hadn't seen the room since Mr. Trudsloe lived in it. Books, books everywhere, on the mantel, crowding the bisque things to one end. On the window sills, on the back of the chiffonier, and in one corner of the table was a whole stack of brand new volumes by Edith Hoult. I couldn't make out the title, but I could tell by the shape and the color of the cover, red and green, with purple curlicues, that they were the same as my library copy. There were pictures on the wall, too, and lots of framed ones on the dresser, but thru my hot, blurred eyes I could not make them out.

He didn't say anything beyond the kind of surprised "Good morning, Miss Kirk," and put down his tumbler as if the fizz of the water were making him cough.

I stood there. I stood there feeling myself everything that was terrible, and knowing that right away I had to say something that made me feel less the awful fool for being there.

"It's about the poems by Edith Hoult. I love them, Mr. Trudsloe. I want to borrow the book again for another three days. Is it against the rule to borrow the same book three times in a week?"

O, this was awful. This was perfectly awful. As if I didn't know that all I had to do was fill in my slip next day and even if I didn't know I could have waited until tomorrow to ask. O, this was awful!

And he said, just as plainly as if he had been closing a door in my face, "You file your slip as usual at the library tomorrow, Miss Kirk," and kept drawing himself together—that old cord at his waist.

I thought of his hand on mine the day before. I thought of his neck as I saw it soft and white above his dressing gown. I thought of his lips. O, yes, I thought of his lips. Isn't that terrible! Me, standing there thinking of those things, while he stood there waiting for I don't know what. For me to make sense, I guess, and I couldn't make sense, because there wasn't any sense to make.

And then just to try and save the situation, and give me something to hang on to, I began to try and feel pretty. I said to myself, I'm a young girl. The ladies were always telling mamma and papa about my fresh young prettiness. Papa always said: "Handsome is as handsome does," but mamma didn't make any bones about it, and always said: "She is as sweet as she is pretty." I'm a fresh, young, pretty girl, I kept strengthening myself with saying and my only crime is to pay you the compliment of liking you very much, even at the expense of making a fool of myself.

I guess I must have taken a step forward with feeling all that, because he did, too. Not backward, but toward me!

"It isn't—er—conventional for you to be in here, Miss Kirk. I'd rather you weren't," he said, but I knew he didn't rather.

I knew, that all of a sudden, he was thinking it was nice to have me in there. Nice as anything.

I knew, with something in me, that it wasn't quite right for me to be standing there at 11 o'clock in the morning, with him in his dressing gown and the bed not made and his suspenders and vest and coat on the end of the bed. I knew by now that life was like that between men and women, even tho nobody had ever talked to me about it, or me to them. We're a funny family that way. Kind of embarrassed about so many things.

"I know I shouldn't have come, Mr. Trudsloe. But the poetry! I'm so full of it. And knowing some one I can talk to about it is—O, you don't know what it is to never have any one you can talk to about anything like that. The things that one of the poems in the book calls the little sighs and the little cries of the spirit, if you know what I mean."

Mr. Trudsloe Tells Truth About Himself

He did know. You could see that he was that sort of person.

"Your spirit, Lora," he said, "has just begun to flutter upward like a pale little moth—it must never know either sighs or cries."

Wasn't that beautiful! Wasn't that just a beautiful thing to say! Who had I ever known who could or would say a thing like that!

"You see, there are so many things, Mr. Trudsloe, I feel that I don't know I am feeling until something like poetry says it for me. That's why I guess I came—to talk about it with somebody who won't think it's crazy to feel that way. You!"

I knew if I didn't shut up I'd be sounding crazier and crazier, but I wouldn't have shut up if I hadn't gulped—one of those dreadful gulps that mean some sort of a fever is drying the very juices out of you.

He backed, and threw the blanket up over the bed, sort of making it look made.

"How old are you?"

I was taken back at that. It certainly didn't match the poetic thing I had just said. But I answered.

"M-m-m," he said, and looked at me again, the way of the day before, so softly thru his glasses. So softly, that he started me feeling so many strange ways again.

"You go now," he said sort of hoarsely. I can't exactly describe it, but he said it in the lonesomest way, as if he were begging me to go, but didn't want me to go at all. I just couldn't have at that moment, I mean. I couldn't have gone, leaving him standing there asking for what he didn't want, and what I didn't want. An only child like me knows what lonesomeness is better than some do. I guess loneliness is the word for it when you are as old as Mr. Trudsloe. O, how I wanted to help him and touch him, which I did, softly on the back of his hand.

I know he hated himself for showing it, but when I did that it was exactly as if somebody had put a red cigar end against him. I wouldn't say he liked it exactly, but he drew back, well, just drew back, looking the way I felt!

Then his two arms shot forward and he took me, or sort of grabbed me, by my upper arms, and for a moment, O, I'm ashamed to say it, I hoped—I thought he was going to—hug me! He wanted to. I could swear to that. He wanted to. He breathed so hard—he trembled—he looked so, so—O, I don't know just what, but he looked as if his eyes would flow out of his head—that's the way he looked and trembled, and that's the way I looked and trembled, while his breathing beat funny and so close that I—I hoped—I mean, I thought, he was going to kiss me. His breathing was so close—so wonderful—I closed my eyes. I didn't want to, but I felt myself sort of going under, as if his breathing were ether—sweet——

And then as his face got closer and closer to mine—I don't know what happened, because my knees were bending so—I don't know how it happened, but suddenly I felt myself thrown backward, as if he had pushed me with all his might—which he had!

"Get out of here," he said, and did something I'll never forget to my dying day, because it was so sort of desperate and sudden, and it jerked me up as if he had thrown the bottle of mineral water in my face. He snatched a picture off the wall, pulled it so hard that the nail and a piece of plaster came with it. "This is my wife," he said, "and those two with her are my daughters, both older than you. Get out of here. You're a very foolish girl and if you ever come in here again I won't be responsible for what happens. You're a very foolish child, and a beautiful one, and thank God I'm going back to Boston next month, you silly innocent, you. You silly innocent! Get out!

He opened the door, still pushing and pushing, knocking a chair sidewise as he shoved me into the hall—shoving and shoving—and there, coming along from the bathroom, with his hair still wet from where he must have been shampooing it, came papa, just as I was being shoved by Mr. Trudsloe, out of his room.

Papa had not only seen, but he couldn't have helped hearing! You silly innocent. Those words just ran down the hall to meet him. Those words of my humiliation and being made small by some one I had forced myself upon. Words I was ashamed for even my own father to hear, and suddenly, too, I was terribly frightened. Papa and Mr. Trudsloe weren't saying anything. They just stood a moment, me between them, wanting to cry—wanting to die——

"Lora made a little mistake, Mr. Kirk. The matter she came to see me about can't be adjusted until tomorrow, at the library," said Mr. Trudsloe, and went back into his room, closing the door on papa and me standing in the hallway.

Papa Proves Himself an Understanding Man

Harry was having his creosote asthma treatment down in Mrs. Leland's room. I can smell the stuff yet, winding over papa and me as we were left standing there in the narrow darkish hallway, at the top of the stairs outside Mr. Trudsloe's closed door. I can smell it yet, and I can see papa's gray hair still dripping a little at the ends, and his neck looking long and scrawny, the way all men's, except Mr. Trudsloe's, look without a collar.

"Go to your room, Lora," said papa, who had never said anything like that before. It sounded the way people in books are supposed to say a thing like that. Go to my room, as if I had anything except an alcove to go to. He said it softly and yet I had the sense to know he had never said anything like that to me before. Not the go-to-your-room part. But the something that got me to trembling so I held on to the bannister for fear I might fall all the way downstairs.

How it was that mamma wasn't in the room when we got there, but downstairs in the kitchen slicing ham for the lotto party, will always be one of the things that will keep me believing in God, because by rights mamma should have been slicing that ham up in my alcove, that being where she usually did it for her Sunday night parties, until this particular Sunday when she decided it was messy to do that sort of thing in the alcove. I couldn't have stood mamma at that moment! Loving her sometimes even more, I think, than I do papa, I couldn't have stood her.

Even tho up to then I don't think I quite realized the wonderfulness of papa, I would have known that I could stand him at a time like this easier than I could have stood mamma.

He sort of shooed me into our room, the way you would a chicken, and closed the door very carefully behind him. Papa always closed a door that way, turning the handle all the way to save the click. It seemed sort of to give him time to close it that way this time. Time to—I don't know—to think, I guess.

"Papa—I didn't——"

"I know you didn't, daughter. Your mother trusts you. I trust you. We know you will never do anything to betray that trust. Now go over there and wash your face and hands."

I couldn't speak, I was filling up so I wanted to throw myself on my knees and bless papa for not rubbing into me the humiliation that was thru me. I wanted to kiss the ground he walked on, for going over to his chair and opening up his Sunday paper, and beginning to read as if nothing had happened.

I thought to myself, what if I curl right up here and die. O, why don't I curl up here and die! O, why is papa so good to me and why was I ever born! I thought to myself, O God, how can I ever face the world again, or look Mr. Trudsloe in the face, or live. I wanted to die.

I looked at papa. He was trembling, all right, I could see it by his newspaper, and—and I can't exactly explain it, but what hurt me almost more than anything was that he was reading the paper, but he was reading it upside down!

Mamma came in then, carrying a platter of sliced ham, and panting like an engine, from the stairs. I knew I had to go on. I knew, even if the world was upside down like papa's newspaper, I had to go on.

"For goodness' sake, Fred," said mamma, "what have you and Lora been doing while I've been gone? I thought you'd both be dressed by now."

Doing? We had been growing older, papa and I. Dear papa, sitting over there, reading his newspaper upside down.

His breathing was so close——

THE LILAC JADE

An Exciting New Serial by ACHMED ABDULLAH

(Copyright: 1940: By Achmed Abdullah)

INSTALMENT II.

THE outer covering of the silver ornament slipped aside and disclosed a flat, lilac-colored stone, perhaps two inches square and carved with archaic symbols.

"What is it?" demanded Tom.

"Lilac jade."

"I thought all jade was white or green."

"Not all. Of course, lilac jade is rare."

"Worth much?"

"Nothing exorbitant. This piece is small and flawed. The real value—the real secret. . . ."

"Secret?" he echoed.

"You'd think me childish if I told you—superstitious."

"I won't."

"It's father's last gift to me. He was an American merchant in Chinese Turkestan—remember me telling you?—and my mother, a Russian, died shortly after my birth. He had a great many native friends. One was a wandering Buddhist priest from Tibet, a strange, unearthly sort of man. Once—I was a baby at the time—he was very ill, and father took him into our house, nursed and cured him. He made father a present of this jade, and father must have considered it very precious. For he always kept it in his safe.

"When he knew he was dying, he made me get it out. We were alone. He——" she was silent for a moment or two, looking into the past—"he said to me: 'Lois, I'm leaving you very little. Hardly any money. You'll have to sell all our little property to go back to America. But I don't want you to sell this piece of jade—ever. It was given me by a saintly man who had no need for material things, despised them. Yet it means—oh, untold riches—' my father smiled when he said it—'the greatest riches in the world. So keep this jade. Never let it out of your sight. For it is . . .'"

Again she was silent; added:

"He died, the sentence unfinished."

The Message of the Jade: "Untold Riches"

Tom held the stone in his hand, put it against his forehead.

"It feels so cold," he remarked, "so—so clean."

"Always cold and clean—right thru the silver covering." She paused. "You know the rest, Tom. How, shortly after father's death, revolution swept over Chinese Turkestan. How I returned to America and earned my livelihood dancing the dances of Asia, some of which I had learned as a child." She smiled. "The knowledge came in handy. There was nothing else I could do. Dad had no living relatives to whom I could have turned. And his former friends—well—there didn't seem to be any. They barely remembered his name in the little Ohio town where he had been born."

"Been away too long, I guess," commented Tom.

He was fingering the jade and, suddenly, gave a start.

"What's the matter, Tom?" she asked.

"Oh, nothing. . . ."

"Tell me!"

How could he tell her? Why—she'd laugh at him, think him crazy.

For, all at once, he had become conscious of a queer sensation. As if this bit of stone was alive—yes—alive, with a pulsing, throbbing heart. As if from this heart, something was stirring and rising, with the strength of wind and sun and sea and the stars; was trying—yes, yes—to communicate to him its secret, its message—a half forgotten message coming out of the east, as with a great whirring of wings.

"Nothing," he repeated.

She looked at him steadily.

"Why lie to me?" she demanded. "You see—I feel it, too, often, and think—and wonder. 'Untold riches!'—that's what father whispered when he lay dying. And I wish—oh—I wish I could read the symbols, find out what they mean. . . ."

"Well," Tom told her, "there's a way."

"Yes . . .?"

"I was at Harvard with a fellow who's now assistant to the curator of the Tibetan collection in the Metropolitan museum. He's a splendid oriental scholar. Let me show it to him. See what he has to say."

"All right." She stifled a yawn. "You'll have to toddle along. I'm sleepy."

"Not nervous about this burglary?"

"Not a bit. Just sneak thieves. They found nothing—and won't make a second try."

"Going to call in the cops?"

"What's the use? They'll make more fuss than the thieves did."

He rose, picked up hat and coat. She gave a little laugh.

"How like an artist," she said, "like a musician! So forgetful!"

"What have I forgotten?"

"You haven't kissed me! You've never kissed me. Not once. And here we've known each other since the world began—have loved each other since the world began. . . ."

He took her in his arms.

Their first kiss. Their dearest kiss. Other kisses there would be. Deeper, more passionate, more satisfying; yet, in a measure, less satisfying. For this was—their first kiss. Close, tender, promising, hoping, withholding—and they stood there, clinging, so young, lonely yet companionate, choosing each other in all the wide world.

He went to the door; opened it; turned on the threshold.

"Lois!" he called.

"Yes, dear?"

"Isn't it wonderful that we love each other?"

"The most wonderful thing that ever happened. . . ."

Their first kiss. Their dearest kiss . . . close, tender, promising, hoping, withholding.

WHAT HAPPENED LAST WEEK Bradford, an Englishman, and Mehmet, an Asiatic, go to the Bombay club in the heart of New York's night club sector, where the featured dancer is billed as Paravati. From a choice ringside table they watch Paravati's sensuous, pulsating dance of the far east, but it is evident that they are more interested in finding out whether the dancer, whose real name is Lois Winters, is the same girl they knew as a child in Chinese Turkestan, the daughter of Bradford's partner, now dead. She possesses something important to Bradford, and he seems determined to get it. Also at the Bombay club that same night, and seated at a table close to Bradford and Mehmet, is Freeman Ferguson, wealthy automobile manufacturer. His son, Tom, is the violinist in the club's orchestra, and the elder Ferguson is there to persuade his son to give up his musical career and return home. The father sends for his son and inadvertently drops one of his personal calling cards, which Bradford picks up. Tom, however, refuses to give up his career and says that he is in love with Lois. He arranges a backstage talk between Lois and his father, and she confesses that she is in love with his son. He realizes she is no fake and obtains a promise from her not to marry his son until the boy has made good on his own. Tom takes Lois home, and upon their arrival they find her apartment has been ransacked. Lois says she has nothing of value worth stealing—except one thing her father gave her before he died, and which she is wearing in a locket around her neck.

A Bid Is Made for the Precious Stone

On an afternoon, a few days later, as Lois sat in her bedroom, mending a stocking and shaking her dark head over the many runs therein, the telephone bell rang.

"Hello?" she inquired, picking up the instrument.

"May I speak to Miss Winters?"

"You're speaking to her."

"I'm Edward Goveen."

"Who?"

"Edward Goveen—you know—the curio dealer," the voice explained smoothly.

"And . . .?"

"I've heard you brought some important bits of jade from Turkestan, Miss Winters."

"You've heard? Who told you?"

"My business to hear such things." A light laugh. "Trade secret. That's how I earn my living. Anyway, care to sell, Miss Winters? I've a client who——"

"My jade pieces," replied Lois, astonished, "are very ordinary."

"You may be underestimating their value."

"I assure you . . ."

"Couldn't I see your collection, at any rate? Perhaps this afternoon? I'm going to be in the neighborhood."

"It wouldn't be worth your while. Just white and green jade. A couple of snuff bottles. A small vase or two. . . ."

The next moment, she became conscious of a feeling of uneasiness, almost of fear, as the man continued:

"Haven't you a plaque of lilac jade? Good specimens of that particular color are rather rare, you know. And my client is—oh, one of these mad American collectors—and a millionaire. He'll pay most handsomely thru his nose. . . ."

"You've been misinformed. I have no lilac jade," she answered, her heart beating thickly; and she clicked back the receiver and sat there, deep in thought, the stocking slipping snakily to the floor.

Edward Goveen was a famous curio dealer. She knew that. But how had he found out about the lilac jade? From whom? And who wished to buy it . . .?

She shrugged her shoulders and returned resolutely to her mending. The heavens might fall, Edward Goveen might telephone, mysterious strangers might dicker for her jade; but she must have a whole pair of stockings since, contrary to her routine, she was going to a party after tonight's performance.

Recently she had met an interesting couple who had begged and procured an introduction to her from Jim Abrams. For Lois had been shrewd enough to realize that Mr. and Mrs. Allan Harcourt were of the novel social type which, with a great deal of money, spends it beautifully; people of culture, welcoming other people of culture, making their downtown Fifth avenue penthouse a meeting ground for the cream of the musical and theatrical sets, the literary and painters' circles.

Lois and Tom Attend Gathering of Artists

They were art patrons in the real sense of the word; a throwback to the days of the Italian Renaissance; an up to date American reincarnation of the Medicis and Gonzagas and Colonnas. They received artists as friends, not as mountebanks expected to do a high brow vaudeville turn so as to pay for a thin sandwich and a weak cocktail and, by the same token, give ten dollars' worth of entertainment for 55 cents' worth of food. And—valuable to practical Lois Winters—they knew intimately several of the big, newer Broadway producers.

Tom Ferguson was to accompany her to the party—thanks to Mrs. Harcourt, a red haired, keenly alert sort of woman, still under 30, who had said to Lois:

"Bring along a man, my dear. You'll feel less lonely among so many strangers."

So, that night, they went to the party. Lois had no time to talk to Tom alone, to tell him about the queer telephone conversation, as the Harcourts called for them in their car, directly after the performance.

Tom sat next to Allan Harcourt who was driving. Lois was in the back seat with her hostess who admired the younger woman's evening dress — her one and only evening dress, to tell the truth—that showed beneath her wrap; a slim sheath of gold cloth with coppery tints, wound tightly around her beautiful, uncorseted figure. About her throat, as always, she wore the lilac jade, hidden by its silver covering.

"Miss Winters," said Mrs. Harcourt, "we expect Winthrop Meredith tonight."

"The theatrical man who revived 'The Mikado' last season?"

"The same. You know, Allan and I never ask our guests to—oh, to perform. But—if you will forgive me—you belong to something better than a night club. Therefore, if Winthrop Meredith comes, would you?"

"Dance for him? I'd love to! I can't thank you enough for giving me the chance. Tom can play the accompaniment. He arranged some of the native tunes which I learned as a child."

"Tom—who? I didn't catch his other name."

"Tom Ferguson."

"Oh, the musician? Freeman Ferguson's son?"

"Yes."

"Splendid. My brother Bill went to Harvard with him. Bill will be with us tonight."

They reached the penthouse. Gradually, other guests began to arrive, and, half an hour later, the sophisticated angels on the frescoed ceiling

Next Sunday—"Given Your Heart to a Dog to Tear," a Short Story by Alec Waugh

As if from this heart something was stirring and rising with the strength of wind and sun and sea and the stars . . . coming out of the east, as with a great whirring of wings.

"Isn't sister a wonder?" laughed Bill Fanning, Mrs. Harcourt's brother, talking to Tom and Lois. "She certainly knows how to mix her drinks—and her guests."

"Jolly bunch!" agreed Tom, seeing men and women, radical and tory, Jew and Gentile, people of half the layers of the social layer cake, yet each and every one standing for something; talent or genius, great achievement or great aspiration, high deeds or high dreams, glorious present or glorious future—and with a proper leavening of those who, if nothing else, had at least beauty or wit or charm.

"What a cross-section of New York life!" exclaimed Lois.

"Not altogether New York," smiled Mrs. Harcourt, who had come up. "For here," pointing discreetly at a tall, white haired man, "is Winthrop Meredith. Broadway producer, but as Boston as baked beans and scrod. I've told him you're willing to dance, Miss Winters, and he's anxious to see you. When will you . . .?"

"Right now."

"Excellent!"

Paravati Dances as She Never Had Danced Before

And Mrs. Harcourt stepped into the middle of the room and clapped her hands.

"Children," she announced as silence fell and faces turned toward her, "I've a treat for all of us. Miss Winters—Paravati to you—has consented to dance. . . ."

The guests settled themselves to watch, buzzing with speculation, expectation; and Lois walked to the center of the polished floor, kicking off her slippers. Tom, at the piano, had a glimpse of her face, very white, her lips quivering.

How nervous she seemed, he thought.

Then, as his hands touched the keys, as the familiar, minor harmonies stole over her senses, as, a little hampered by her frock, she began to dance, her nervousness left her. She danced as she had never danced before.

"Amazing!" whispered Winthrop Meredith to Mrs. Hancourt. "Absolutely amazing!"

He watched, spellbound; and to him, the theatrical producer who dealt in illusions, came the illusion that here, on top of a supermodern Fifth avenue stone and concrete pile, the ancient, mysterious East was enfolding him, was all about him. Monkey-gods, red and shameless and greedy, seemed to leap and leer among stolid, black stone bulls, knee deep in sharp scented marigold; age-green bronze bells seemed to clamor from unseen temples, calling the worshipers to prostrate themselves before Brahma the Creator, Vishnu the Sustainer, Shiva the Destroyer—to prostrate themselves before Durga the Black-faced, Durga of the Thousand Arms, Durga of the Thousand Names, Durga of the Thousand Cruelties—to prostrate themselves, as Lois danced more slowly, before Krishna, the fluteplaying god, the god of love.

"Absolutely amazing!" repeated Winthrop Meredith; and, later on, when the dance had ceased, had ceased the enthusiastic applause, he sought her out, congratulated her, asked her a few questions about herself, winding up: "Have you a contract with—what's his name—Jim Abrams?"

"Only on a week to week basis. Jim," she laughed, "is shrewd."

"Not shrewd enough."

"Oh. . . .?"

"He's going to lose you—to me."

"You mean it?"

"Nothing but—as my youngest son would put it. I'm going to snap you up before Hollywood has a chance. You see, next season I'm putting on something—well—not exactly musical comedy, nor exactly opera. Call it a blending of the two. Sort of Arabian Nights affair. Jack Avery is working at the libretto now and Jerome Bernstein is busy with the music—altho I don't think he's quite the right man for the dances I've in mind for you. Neither subtle nor savage enough—if you know what I mean." He paused; continued after a while: "Tell me—who wrote the music that tawny-haired kid played for you?"

"The tawny-haired kid himself. I just hummed the tune to him."

"O, composer?"

"And a good one."

"I believe you. Bring him to me next autumn, around September. I'll give him a chance." He smiled as he read the expression in her face. "Like him?" he teased her.

"More than like," was her honest answer.

"Well—it's a sound theatrical business principle to have specialty dancer and specialty composer on good terms. Au revoir, Miss Winters. . . ."

She found Tom; drew him into a corner and breathlessly told him the news.

"Aren't you excited, darling?" she asked.

"So excited I'd like to go on a bat and get as pie-eyed as a hoot owl. Still . . ."

"Yes?"

"Can I do it?"

"What about me?"

"You're tops—and you know your oriental stuff. But I—you see—I want the music to be as real as your dancing. No Tin Pan Alley fake, out of Harlem with a dash of Jerusalem. For half a cent I'd go to the orient. Only," ruefully, "I haven't the half cent."

"Nor would I let you go—without me."

"If we could go together!"

"If we could!"

"Pipe dreams"—he sighed—"but no harm wishing. That's the trouble with people like you and me. We dream and wish. Not like the hard-boiled fellows in dad's factory who're perfectly happy screwing on Nut 77 on whatever bolt or thing the damned thing belongs."

They sat down. He lit a cigaret. "By the way," she began suddenly, "Funny thing happened to me today."

"Another burglar?" he laughed

"No. But another man who imagines I have a valuable possession."

She told him about her telephone conversation with Edward Goveen and Tom commented:

"That's the guy who makes my trusting dad pay such wads of kale for the curios he sells him. Clever old Jew!"

"He isn't a Jew."

"You bet he is."

"But he speaks like an Englishman."

"Not Edward Goveen—nee Ike Govinsky. He has an accent so thick you can cut it with a dull knife."

"Don't be silly, Tom. I heard him."

"So have I heard him, more than once. Been to his swell Fifth avenue lair with dad."

"The man who phoned me," she insisted, "was English."

"Perhaps he was one of Goveen's gentlemanly, frockcoated London clerks."

"He told me he was Goveen himself."

"Sounds fishy to me. And, too, how did he find out about your lilac jade?"

"That's what's bothering me."

"More fish. I guess I'll drop in on him one of these days and get the lowdown."

Not long afterwards, the party broke up. Tom decided that he could afford a taxi, and so he hailed one. She leaned her head against his shoulder. Her hand was in his. Speeding thru the silent streets, each knew a little golden moment of enchantment. They forgot Goveen, forgot the lilac jade, forgot Winthrop Meredith—forgot everything but each other and their unfulfilled young love. They reached her house; stood there on the stoop.

"I love you," he said.

"And I love you."

"How much do you love me?"

"Much, much more than you love me, Tom!"

"No!"

"Yes! Absolutely and definitely yes!"

"You're a damned little liar who ought to be spanked!"

"Who's going to do the spanking?"

"Papa!" he exclaimed.

He raised a threatening hand; and laughing, she ran up the stairs.

She was tired the next morning; was still tired the next night when she gave her performance at the Club Bombay and imagined her dancing was listless, bad.

A Calling Card Is Used to Help Plot

But Jim Abrams did not notice it. Nor did the audience. Nor did the tall, weather beaten, monocled Englishman nor the hawkish Asiatic who had the same table at which they had sat a few evenings earlier.

They were tensely alert, a little excited.

"Think it'll work?" asked Mehmet.

"No reason why it shouldn't." The other smiled. "In the course of a long and fairly profitable life, I've made the discovery that you must never throw away a rich man's visiting card—or a pretty woman's love letter. . . ."

He was silent; exchanged a look with his friend as they saw a Western Union messenger boy pass down the back hall towards the dressing rooms; as, shortly afterwards, Tom Ferguson knocked at Lois Winters' door.

"Come in!"

"Darling," he said, "father's back in town. Just for the day. Sent me word." He showed her a visiting card. "I had a hard time making out what he scribbled on it. Must have written it in the taxi. Anyway, he's taking the night train home for Detroit—it leaves at two in the morning—and asks me to meet him at Grand Central."

"What do you think he wants?"

"Another curtain lecture about making good, I suppose." He consulted his watch. "I'd better be off . . ." Then, suddenly, as a thought struck him: "Say—you'll have to go home alone."

"What can happen to me? Don't be a goof! After all, I was alone when I crossed Central Asia and China after the revolution, Tom."

"That's so," he admitted.

He left, telling her he would telephone later and give her the news; and, not long later, Lois left, too.

It had begun to rain, and she was about to call a taxicab when a man, in evening dress and obviously very much intoxicated, lurched out of the front entrance, passed the Russian-Tartar doorman, saw her, stumbled up to her.

"Hullo, sh-sh-shweetheart . . ." he stammered thickly—"lemme sh-shee you home. . . ." And, with a hiccoughy laugh: "My home jush as sh-shoon as yoursh. . . ."

He took hold of her arm. She tried to yank herself free. His grip was strong.

"Murat!" she cried.

But the latter did not hear; or affected not to hear.

Perhaps he was angry at the many tips he had missed by her refusal to meet the men whom he wanted to introduce; perhaps angry at the salty, blasting Tartar expletives which she—a mere woman—occasionally hurled at his head. Or perhaps—so, at least, Tom suspected later on—he had been well paid for what he did, or, rather, did not do.

At all events, with a muttered "Alahoo akbar!" he disappeared into the building, leaving Lois alone with the stranger.

"Come on, she-shweetie-p-p-pie."

"Let me alone!"

She struck out. He grabbed both her hands.

"P-p-pretty g-gig-girlie . . ." he repeated, his breath hot on her face. He was about to press his lips to hers. But, at that moment, two men, a lean, monocled Briton and a hawkish oriental, came out of the cabaret and stopped when they saw what was happening.

"I say!" the former exclaimed sharply. "What's up?"

"This——" Lois gasped—"this man. . . ."

"Bothering you? I'll attend to him." The Englishman took the drunken man by the collar and swung him around. "Run along, you rotten bounder, before I . . ."

"No h-h-harm meant . . . and what th'hell businesh ish it of yoursh—eh . . .?"

A hard fist to the jaw answered the question. The man fell, picked himself up and was off on a run, muttering curses, while the oriental caught Lois, who was trembling with excitement, in the bend of his arm.

"Get some water," he told his companion.

"Never mind," said Lois. "I'm not thirsty."

The man smiled pleasantly.

"Let me be the doctor, my dear lady." And, to his friend: "Water—with a dash of brandy."

The Englishman reëntered the café. He was gone a short while and came back with a tall glass. She drank; then gave a nervous start as the glass slipped from her hand and shattered on the ground.

"You're worn out," the Englishman said gently. "May we see you home?"

Momentarily she hesitated. But she told herself that these two were doubtless gentlemen. They had done her a service. And she was tired; was, curiously, a little nauseated, dizzy—a bitter taste in her mouth . . .

"Thank you," she replied, and gave her address.

They hailed a taxicab and were presently speeding towards the West Forties.

"I saw you dance," said the Englishman.

"Liked my performance?" she asked drowsily.

"Yes. Tremendously."

He added a few more words of praise, and she listened without answering. His voice—she thought—reminded her of some one—some one . . .

"And your costume——" he went on—"lovely . . ."

Of whom did it remind her? Of what?

And so strange and illogical a thing is the subconscious mind, so queer and strong a tenacity have earliest memories that, as she shut her smarting eyes, she seemed to see, in back of them, etched as on copper, a vivid picture. A picture, floating, incredibly, upon the wings of the Englishman's voice. A picture of the far, far, alien land of her birth . . .

A picture of carved, massive Moslem mosques proud with the faith of their tall minarets proclaiming that Allah is Allah and Mohammed the Prophet of Allah. Of a Buddhist temple clawing at the night, pigeon-blue sky with the gilt, horn-like peak of its roof. Of vague pennants floating above a mandarin's palace that flushed scarlet and gold in the rays of the sun. Of time-riven arches spanning a brown, turbulent river. Of a narrow tangle of crowded, shadowy alleys where Tartars and Chinese, Russians and Burits, and Mongols and Turkomans bickered and chattered and quarreled and laughed. Of bazars lined by tiny booths where the artisans of Central Asia squatted patiently above their old-world crafts. Of a noisy, moiling marketplace and, next to it, the caravanserai where the shaggy-maned, wild-eyed Tartar ponies were jerking at their pegs and the huge, splay-footed, two-humped Bactrian camels were crouched in rows, their broad, leathery lips moving sideways as they chewed great clots of boiled pulse or long, withered strips of knot-grass.

A picture, too, of a little house—her childhood home—buried in a flaunting garden where hibiscus vied with flowering almond and weeping mulberry trees provided a background for stately, 12 foot high Siberian lilies. Of an old Tibetan priest, whom her father was nursing back to health, sitting in this garden, twirling his wooden prayer-wheel, mumbling endlessly: "Om ma-ni pad-me! Hong!—Hail! Jewel in the lotus!"—such an old, old man, with a queer, unearthly face and the sweetest smile in all the world.

A picture, finally, of her father on his deathbed, speaking to her about the piece of lilac jade the Tibetan priest had given him; telling her so anxiously, so eagerly:

"Keep this jade. Never let it out of your sight. For it is . . ."

Darkness Engulfs Her, and Tom Calls in Vain

"Here we are," the Englishman's brisk accents cut into her reverie.

He helped her out of the taxicab and up the stoop. Her head swam. Her knees trembled. Her feet felt like leaden weights.

"Let me see you upstairs," suggested the Englishman. "Here——" to his friend—"take her other arm . . ."

They almost carried her to the top floor. There, at the door of her apartment, a swinging, dense blackness overcame her. She tried to insert the key; could not, was frightened.

"I——" she whispered—"O . . ."

A hand took the key away from her. Her legs tottered. The swinging, dense blackness changed to a flood of red color with broad, interlacing veins, floating before her eyes. An arm caught her as she fell in a faint . . .

Some time later, in Lois' flat, the telephone bell shrilled sharply.

It paused; shrilled; paused, shrilled.

But no one moved toward the impatient instrument. The room was dark. The girl lay on her couch, her eyes closed, silent, supine, one hand flung out as if in mute appeal; while, in a booth of a corner drug store, a tawny-haired young man was arguing frantically with a bored operator.

"But I know some one is there!" he insisted. "I know!"

"Maybe you're dialing the wrong number."

"Please—YOU try!"

She made the connection. She rang again and again.

"The party does not answer."

And there was the click of the returned coin.

LORA MADE A LITTLE MISTAKE

THE LATEST STORY BY FANNIE HURST

(Copyright: 1940: By Fannie Hurst)

"Your mother trusts you. I trust you."

FOREWORD

A high school girl learns her first lesson in love, and thru her own eyes and in the straightforward manner of youth you learn in her own words just how heartbreakingly real that first lesson can be.

I DON'T know how the thing first started to happen to me about Mr. Trudsloe. O, I don't! It didn't begin until after he had been librarian at our West Side branch for quite a long time. But it was before he came to board at Mrs. Leland's that I began to think about him.

I remember that, because then he was stopping in a white stone front on West Morgan street and I used to think as I passed his house: I wonder which room is his.

Then when Miss Bates vacated her room on our floor and went home to Maryville, Mass., in order to be with her mother who was very sick, she must have recommended her room in Mrs. Leland's to him, because she was a librarian, too, in the South Side branch.

It gave me the strangest feeling, right down in the pit of me, when I heard mamma remark to papa that a Mr. Trudsloe, librarian of the West Side branch, was coming to board at Mrs. Leland's. She hoped to goodness he would be permanent, altho she heard he was only exchange librarian, but a man boarder was always preferable to a woman.

I was just about beginning then to know how much I was starting to think about Mr. Trudsloe, chiefly, I think, because of finding myself going to the library for more books than even our senior reading course required.

That sort of thing wasn't like me one single bit, and mamma would have told you so. If I do say it myself, mamma was always remarking about me to the ladies, when they sat and talked in the boarding house, that I wasn't boy crazy, like so many. "I've never had to watch over her the way you do some," mamma would say. "I think it would kill Mr. Kirk if she was the boy crazy kind. That's how my husband dislikes freshness in young girls. He's one for modesty, and I always say that he himself is as pure-minded as a young girl."

The part about me and boys wasn't all the way true, because lots of times, beginning 'way back with Lloyd Graham, in my Sunday school class, I had felt myself stuck on a boy. But the way all of a sudden I began to think about Mr. Trudsloe, who wasn't a boy at all, but had sideburns and wore spectacles, was different. He was what Dr. Leland would have called "a man of the world." He came from Boston and, tho he didn't exactly talk that Boston accent, you could tell he was different. He did leave the "r" out of Harvard, where he had studied to be librarian.

Mamma said that after Miss Bates, and the way you could smell her hair singeing in the mornings when she curled it, having a man in her room, and a gentleman at that, was a relief. I think that's all mamma ever noticed about Mr. Trudsloe, that, and all his books which made her say when the moving men arrived with them and his trunks, "Fui, dust catchers!"

But if mamma didn't notice when Mr. Trudsloe came to West Side branch to take old Miss Daney's place as librarian, I can tell you the girls did. Where before only the few of us who really liked to read patronized the library, you would have thought now that there was a run on the bank the way everybody got interested, not only in required reading but in anything that would give them an excuse for going to the library.

I'll never forget Lucille Coffin, who used to just beg me to give her the gist of a book so she wouldn't have to read it. Lucille, who was the boy crazy kind, just staggered out of that library every night now, loaded with books she left at the corner drug store with the soda clerk, until she called for them again the next day to return them for a new batch.

Mr. Trudsloe Creates a Furor in Library

Even girls like Ellen Delaney suddenly got interested in Smollet and Dryden and "Sartor Resartus," and even Burke's Conciliation Speech. Girls who not only never did required reading if they could get out of it, but never read a book of any kind, outside the novels you could prop up behind your geography in study hour.

With me at least it was different. Long before Mr. Trudsloe's arrival on the scene I was borrowing many books from the library. Maybe not so many as when he came, but Miss Daney used to ask me how I'd liked "Pendennis" or "The Golden Bough" and be pleased when I took home "Bleak House" or "The Newcombes."

When Mr. Trudsloe came I—I just get hot all over when I think—when I think! If it hadn't been for papa, I don't believe—well, I can't even write it without getting hot all over. If it hadn't been for papa never telling mamma and being the way he was about it—I—I think I'd have killed myself.

Of course I admired Mr. Trudsloe. Any girl would have. He was a cultured gentleman and, while we had plenty of nice men teachers, cultured men weren't lying around loose either in or out of Mrs. Leland's. Of course Dr. Leland was considered very smart, but there's just no comparing an old man like him who sat and read books, while his wife ran a boarding house, with Mr. Trudsloe.

I think Mr. Trudsloe must have been about 35 or maybe 40. But you certainly never would have taken him for elderly. His hair was so thick and dark, with a little gray in the sideburns that made him interesting, and he had the slimmest figure, without even a hint of what mamma called a "corporation," and his clothes had a pressed and fitted look to them.

Mamma always said papa was the neatest man she ever knew, and he certainly was always brushing himself when he came home from the factory evenings. But papa was just neat. Mr. Trudsloe had what I guess you would call style. Papa just wore nice gray looking business suits, with white string ties and square toed shoes with leather shoe strings. Mr. Trudsloe wore tan "bull dog" shoes and "pince-nez" on a black ribbon, instead of just rimmed glasses behind his ears, like papa and Mr. Townsend and Dr. Leland. And that voice of his!

Marjorie Wallis said Mr. Trudsloe had the saddest face she had ever seen. I wouldn't exactly call it that, but I did use to wonder what it was showed thru in his face, beside just his kind of amused way of smiling. I think it must have been that sort of look-thru-you expression of his that first got me going to the library for more books than I could possibly read.

But, anyway, there was more reason for me going than most of the girls. I always got A plus in English, wrote the next to best essays in class, and had the reputation for being literary in my tastes.

The first time Mr. Trudsloe ever really looked at me for more than just the passing glance was the result of something literary I asked him. I may as well admit it, even tho it makes me hot all over when I think of it. I asked him something I already knew the answer to! But it was such a literary question, and one I really had thought out for myself when I asked it in school about six months before.

It was about the poet Coleridge and why he had never finished his poem "Cristobel." I already knew the answer, because I had asked it out in class and Miss Fruty, our English teacher, had devoted the remainder of the period to answering it, because she said it was such a good question. I felt cheap even before myself to do a thing like that, but I hated to just have my book handed to me by him and then have to go right away. And so I asked.

Lora Disovers She Knows Real Author

Like a flash he told me to come on the other side of the rail, and sit beside his desk. For a half hour, while the assistant had to handle the after-school crush, and the girls ogled their eyes out, he sat and talked to me about Coleridge, twirling his pencil and drawing little pictures on a pad. He loved Coleridge and described his friendship with Wordsworth, and then he said laughing: "Miss Kirk, I am sure that if the number of people who have written the finish to Coleridge's uncompleted 'Cristobel' were placed end on end, they would reach from here to Honolulu."

I laughed at that, particularly because some of them placed end on end would have to stretch over the Pacific ocean, and he laughed, too, when I said that, and we both laughed, and then stopped short and looked at one another. Nothing to it, of course, besides just stopping short and looking at one another, but it gave me this thought: The things that don't classify are sometimes the things that make life just beautiful, if you know what I mean.

"Yes," he went on, "it would be amusing to classify these end-on-enders [end-on-enders! Was that cute!] into a Society to End All Cristobel Enders [was that cute!]. Some day I'll show you my version which, by the way, was published some years ago in the New England Quarterly."

I might have known! I had never known an author, but he was one. He wrote things that got published. One of the girls had told me he wrote things for magazines, but didn't know just where.

After that, well, there's just no use making any bones about it. Mr. Trudsloe began to fill every single minute of my thoughts. And if you think that is easy to have happen to you, during your heaviest year in high, just see how it feels to give all your thoughts to somebody who doesn't know you exist, unless you happen to appear before him during library hours.

O, I know. I know what you're thinking. It was adolescence. I know what an adolescent is, all right. I looked it up the very first time I heard mamma stop saying the word when I entered the room. Well, if being that, adolescent I mean, means everything that I felt during those months, then it's just the darndest thing to be.

I shivered when I passed him in the hall. I wouldn't eat enough at supper, because his table faced ours, and I didn't want him to think me greedy. I didn't want to be around when he came into the reception hall, and yet I was always maneuvering to be. I couldn't stay away from the West Side library, no matter how much I'd make a resolve not to go daily. And then I always wanted to stay dressed when I came home, instead of putting on something older for around the house.

From the day Mr. Trudsloe moved in to Mrs. Leland's, with more books in his belongings than anything else, I knew his habits to a T. I knew that he read and smoked in bed mornings, because there was always a smell of pipe smoke, before you could hear him moving about, and on winter mornings his light was going before he opened his door, sort of peered up and down the hall and then hurried down it in his bathrobe, with a towel over his shoulder and tooth brush and soap and things in his hand.

I knew what time he came home, and what evenings he went to concerts at the Odeon. I knew that sometimes heavy white envelopes that looked like invitations arrived in his mail, and that a few evenings later he would go out in full dress. I knew the shape of his clothes when the boy from the presser brought them back on hangers and Willie, the chambermaid, carried them up to his room. I knew that he sent his shoes to be half-soled and gave Harry 10 cents for taking them to the cobbler. I knew that he kept a bottle of mineral water on his window sill [I could see it from the back yard] and that he had a typewriter which ticked until mamma said: "I wish to goodness he'd stop that rapping. What's"

Child Harmed by Allowing Him Limelight

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

She was four when she used to climb up in her aunt's lap, drop into her baby talk, act just like a baby, and even have an imitation baby expression on her face, the last being cleverly enough done to be very funny to a grownup with a sense of humor. Partly it was a sort of game, but along about this time she put on quite an act at the table, a charmingly appointed table it was, too. Either she would not touch her food without the entire family coaxing and urging or, if it was fed to her, it would be held in her mouth and swallowed after moments of tense watching by several pairs of eyes, or it might be held—and then exploded outward!

• • •

"Outrageous!" I'm sure will be the spontaneous reaction of many who read this. Yes, I agree with you.

"What she needed was a good sound spanking. She'd do that just once with me!" will be the immediate response of others.

Well, I will admit that it was pretty difficult to remain detached and think scientifically about causes, when that attractive and highly intelligent little girl was wrecking a friendly meal and a prettily equipped luncheon table. As a matter of fact, the child occasionally did get an exasperated spank, but it was so inconsistently administered that it had no meaning for her and no lasting effect. She could get away with just anything.

Especially could she get away with anything, because all her actions were talked about by the four grownups with whom she lived, for she was the apple of their eye. How she ate, how she slept, how naughty she was, what she said, everything was discussed, and in her presence. And each person had a different idea as to how little Jane should be managed, controlled, or not controlled!

• • •

Her aunt was calm, even tempered, patient, and got results, usually, by reasoning. But her mother was overly indulgent for days, then angry and unreasonable about behavior which she overlooked at other times.

Jane's father was kind and jolly and sensible, but he wasn't allowed by his wife to exercise any authority. And Jane's young uncle thought her behavior was a huge joke and laughed at her, or teased her into a tantrum.

Now what was happening to Jane was that she was developing an exaggerated taste for attention. She had been fed it from the beginning, and when it didn't come her way in the ordinary course of events she quite unconsciously obtained it by playing baby, or not eating, or having a tantrum, by doing something which focussed either eyes or conversation upon her.

• • •

All of which was especially a pity because she was an attractive child, and could have been an interesting one if she had been treated as she should have. This became evident when she had any sort of "break" at all, as when it was necessary on two occasions for her to spend a week with her grandmother. Then she was a dear and so attractive.

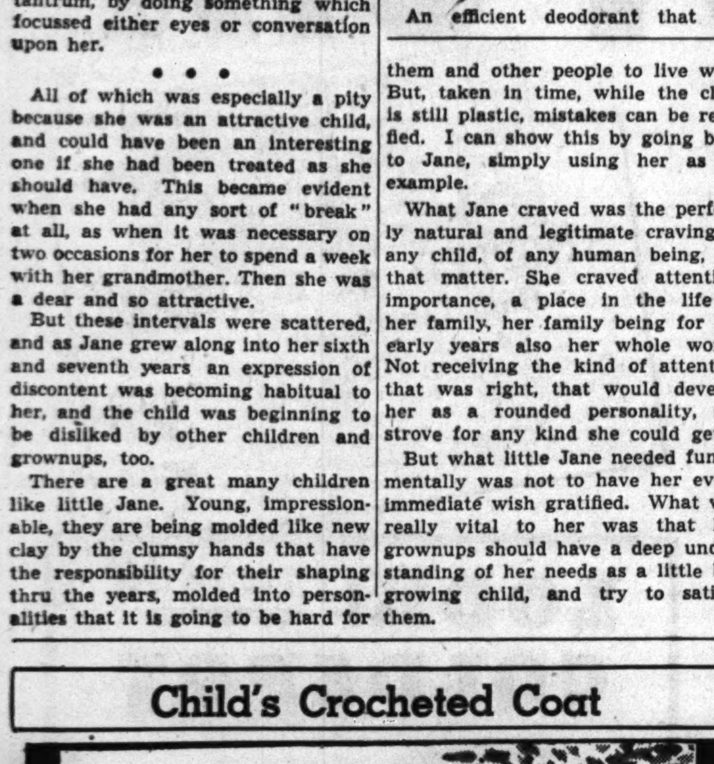
But these intervals were scattered, and as Jane grew along into her sixth and seventh years an expression of discontent was becoming habitual to her, and the child was beginning to be disliked by other children and grownups, too.

There are a great many children like little Jane. Young, impressionable, they are being molded like new clay by the clumsy hands that have the responsibility for their shaping thru the years, molded into personalities that it is going to be hard for them and other people to live with. But, taken in time, while the child is still plastic, mistakes can be rectified. I can show this by going back to Jane, simply using her as an example.

What Jane craved was the perfectly natural and legitimate craving of any child, of any human being, for that matter. She craved attention, importance, a place in the life of her family, her family being for the early years also her whole world. Not receiving the kind of attention that was right, that would develop her as a rounded personality, she strove for any kind she could get.

But what little Jane needed fundamentally was not to have her every immediate wish gratified. What was really vital to her was that her grownups should have a deep understanding of her needs as a little but growing child, and try to satisfy them.

Child's Crocheted Coat



By Ellen Bruce.

A light weight, crocheted summer coat for the youngster of 2 or 3 years will prove an essential and highly attractive addition to her wardrobe. The yoke is done in single crochet and the body of the coat is worked in double crochet, with a band of single crochet around the bottom. Good quality knitting worsted is an ideal choice for this jacket, but a fairly heavy pompadour also may be used.

For instructions in crocheting the coat for the 2 and 3 year old child, No. X-459, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Thru the Looking Glass

The use of an efficient deodorant is a basic rule for exquisite grooming. In a new cream form, an old standby that also is a perspiration check will help you cultivate that important attribute of charm, daintiness.

The appeal of daintiness is recognized by every fastidious person. It's one of the important attributes of charm assiduously cultivated by every woman who values her reputation for beauty and chic. Beauty isn't worth a nickel, and chic is out of the question, if there is the slightest trace of perspiration odor lurking about.

An indelicate body scent is like an enemy lurking in the woods. Treacherously, it's likely to make its appearance without warning and, when it does, you face the danger of giving offense to others if you've skipped taking precautionary measures.

Soap and water are not enough to combat this foe. [It'll throw your most ardent admirer]. They need the additional protection afforded by the use of a preparation made for this purpose.

• • •

An efficient deodorant that has been the standby of many for years, now comes in a new cream form, a cream that is light and fluffy, and about the consistency of a face cream. It spreads over the skin with a velvet touch. It's a mild perspiration check, not greasy, and has a pleasing bouquet fragrance. Used according to directions, as all preparations of this type should be, it will not harm fabrics.

You rub the cream lightly into the skin until it disappears, and it does so in a split second. When dry, wipe the area with a damp cloth. It's usually effective from one to three days, but your own needs should be your guide. You may want to use it once a day and, if so, you may. It's the kind that may be safely applied before and after shaving.

• • •

In using any product designed for this purpose there's always the unknown factor of individual sensitivity to be recognized. The effectiveness varies with the circumstances—nervous perspiration from unusual excitement, exercise, a hot day, or heavier clothing—and with the individual. What one person finds to be the perfect protective, another tags as being ineffective or irritating.

If you do not perspire, you may be unconscious of the fact that you are giving offense. Play safe at all times and use a deodorant as religiously as you brush your teeth. It's the basic rule of exquisite grooming.

Men, please note: You are not immune.

FLORENCE MURDOCH.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

[Have you some household help that lightens labor; is there some comfort you could enjoy; are there ways you've discovered to make the domestic wheels run more smoothly? Address Louise Bargelt, Chicago Tribune. We'd like your ideas!]

Mrs. Marion King, Pittsburgh, Pa.—A group of mothers in our neighborhood, with boys from the ages of eight to twelve, have a plan we think is good for Saturdays when boys of that age are apt to run a bit wild unless their leisure hours are planned. We each contribute a small sum and let a Boy Scout friend take the youngsters on a six hour hike. We plan the trips, take turns preparing the lunch, and find that Saturdays are no longer a "problem." We are going on with the plan this summer vacation, hiring a Scout three days a week instead of one day. We pay him 25 cents an hour for his time, and "every one" is happy.

Jane Frank, Chicago—Now that summer is coming, and the family puppy often takes motor trips with the crowd: Why doesn't some one market a strong hairnet for dogs, to save so much brushing of clothes—and car upholstery?

Carol Moore, Detroit, Mich.—I fasten a square of canvas tightly on my bread board and a tight cloth over my rolling pin. In this way I can hold my flour more evenly and keep my dough from sticking.

Mrs. George Fairchild, Maywood, Ill.—Use a length of chain for coat hangers when airing the family's clothes out of doors. The hook of hanger slips into loop of chain and the hangers don't all slide down together, neither does the chain sag with their weight.

Florence Durham, Chicago—Why won't they design for men's clothes a special fireproof little pocket for cigarette ashes—to be used in emergencies when ash trays aren't available?

Mrs. Leonard Watts, Chicago—In the fall I scout around and get a discarded tennis net which has outlived its usefulness. Such a net is excellent to train sweet peas on, I've learned. Much better than wire which can get hot in the sun, and even burn the vines.

Mrs. James A. Brennan, Chicago—When THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE publishes a map explaining current events, I tack it on wall back of kitchen table. This encourages discussion of an instructive nature among the children and adults. I also paste the diagrams and calendars given by the Graphic Laboratory of Popular Science in a 10 cent scrap book.

Mrs. Jennie S. Nolan, Milwaukee, Wis.—I am often asked how I keep my stuffed tomatoes so perfect in shape. I bake them in buttered muffin tins. When I can get small round green peppers I use the same method.

Mrs. Henry Long, Chicago—I have often thought if pockets for pencils were placed on the back bindings of school books, the children wouldn't have to buy so many pencils, and the parents would save money!

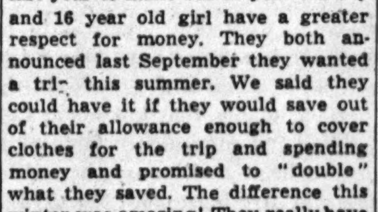
Mrs. Daniel Smith, Springfield, Ill.—My husband and I found a way last year to make our 15 year old boy and 16 year old girl have a greater respect for money. They both announced last September they wanted a trip this summer. We said they could have it if they would save out of their allowance enough to cover clothes for the trip and spending money and promised to "double" what they saved. The difference this winter was amazing! They really have watched their nickels and dimes. Am just passing this on to parents who may be worried, as we were, over children who didn't seem to know the value of money. Needless to say, they saved what's needed this June—and we are keeping our part of the bargain, too.

And now—YOUR idea—please!

Retired School Teacher Is Admitted to the Bar

Miss Alice McFarland, 68 year old retired school teacher of Ridgeville, Md., recently was admitted to the bar. She began studying law a little more than two years ago.

According to the life tables for females compiled by the United States bureau of census, out of every 100,000 women 74 reach the age of 100, and 35 of the 74 die before they reach the age of 101.



Art Galleries Inspire 1940 Bridal Gowns

By Bettina Bedwell.

Either brides are becoming more beautiful, or the designers have fallen heir to Ziegfeld's "glorifying" process, because the altarward women I've seen in the past months have been getting more and more symphonic looking. So I'm warning you girls with sparkling engagement fingers that you can be an unforgettable picture of beauty at your own wedding, if you pick and choose the way the designers want you to. They "shoot the works," and put wedding and bridesmaids' dresses for all kinds and grades of weddings on their program.

Most of the new wedding clothes I've seen are romantic. Many have a peasant flavor about them. A Finnish bridal belt of glittering embroidery, a Swedish gold crown holding a veil, an embroidered rustic blouse on a cotton bride dress, are three instances.

• • •

Portrait wedding gowns are another enchanting item for coming ceremonies. Inspired by Balenciaga are Valesquez gowns that look very much like a portrait of an Infanta, and are made either of satin, brocade, or stiff lace. Spring song brides' dresses in palest tones of pink or blue look as if they had been painted by Botticelli. Heavy, ivory satin dresses, cut princess, with leg o'mutton sleeves and six yard long veils, are the kind of portrait finery seen in a canvas by Boldini. You can just go to your nearest museum and pick out your own portrait dress, if you want to be personal and have a good home dressmaker.

Loveliest of bridal dresses, to my eyes, are slender, classic gowns that recall something from Greek sculpture. They are made of heavy white crêpe, and they go with the simplest of true bridal veils in lace or tulle. These can be very informal if you're going to have a quiet wedding, and you may wear a small flowered hat with such a dress, having a veil no more than shoulder length. The bride who is marrying a second time may wear a gown on this order, choosing palest gray, beige, or perhaps pastel blue for her dress, and wearing a small flower hat.

• • •

An enchanting kind of open air, countryish wedding can be built around the shirtwaist dress and organdy. The bride may wear white organdy with a very full, plaited or circular skirt, and she may wear a wide-brimmed hat instead of a veil, or just a diadem of flowers. Her bridesmaids may wear printed organdy frocks in different shades of the same design, or plain pastel organdy, pink, blue, green, yellow, etc.

Weddings inspired by Scarlett O'Hara's clothes are grand for midsummer. All-cotton weddings, with bride and bridesmaids in piqué, dimity or organdy, with both the bride and bridesmaids wearing full skirts and fitted quaint bodices, and starched petticoats and bonnet coifs. The bridesmaids may carry those foolish little parasols that belles of ante-bellum days used.

• • •

If you want to be a very modern bride and your wedding is informal, you may wear a long-skirted tailleur of stiff silk with one of those draped turbans for a headdress. Such a wedding dress will serve you well after your honeymoon.

Choose a carefully casual jacket ensemble or suit for your going-away costume, and get the most arrantly flattering kind of hat to wear with it. Carry a pastel colored topcoat, or one in vivid red, with your costume.

Make a complete color chart of your wedding beforehand, so that the bride's dress, bridesmaids', mothers' gowns and any page or flower girl clothes make the effect of a variegated bouquet. One-color weddings are too simple, and far less beautiful. The bride's mother may wear a deeper shade of the bride's dress as, for instance, if the bride wears pink, as many will this summer, the mother may wear old rose.

• • •

Beautiful and traditional is the Valesquez wedding dress by Balenciaga, made of very stiff, ice-blue moiré. The lace around the neckline and on the puffed tops of the long sleeves is in the same color and stiffly starched. Tiny pink velvet ribbons hold the shirring of the neck and sleeves. A peasant coif of blue lace holds the very long, blue tulle veil.

Alix designed a classic white crêpe wedding dress draped at the front from a notched shoulder yoke, shirred at the waistline, and falling very full on the skirt-flanking cascading drapery of the material. The headdress is made of white hyacinths in the shape of a diadem, with a bow of silver ribbon over the forehead, and the veil which just covers the nose in front is made of delicate spiderweb white lace.

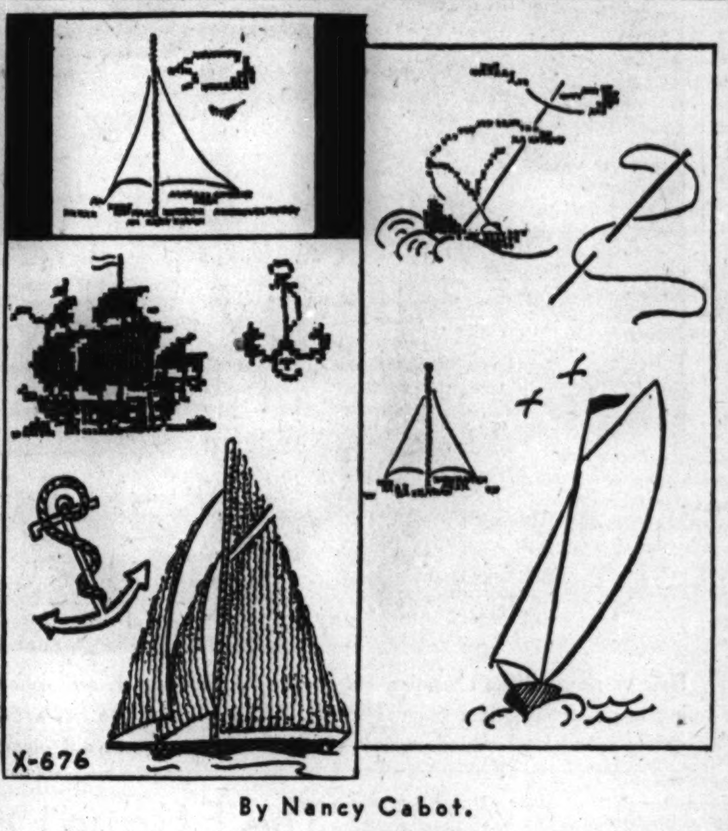
Ships in a Transfer Pattern



By Nancy Cabot.

For those who crave romance and adventure from the fireside, these exciting boats, done in embroidery designs, are all that any one could wish. These motifs done in cross-stitch or outline stitch, or as an appliqué design, may be used on towels, bedspreads, curtains, pillows, and children's clothes. There are 12 ships included in the hot iron transfer pattern, ranging in size from two by two to seven by ten inches.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

For home and apartment dwellers alike: Handsomely rugged iron grilles at your windows, which are real protection against intruders; also insurance against some very youthful family member falling out of a window. These units can cover the full height of a double hung window and will not interfere with storm sash or screen. They afford protection and ventilation the year 'round, and swing out to permit window washing. These grilles may also be used with casement type windows.

If you have a wall board or a plaster wall in any room, and it is showing signs of ageing, a canvas linning cloth manufactured with a tough base can be applied over it. This is one solution for sags and cracks, and then, over this new, firm surfacing, you can paint or paper.

One very new touch: Handsome black metal wall tiles which you can use for the enclosing walls of a built-in tub. Your other bathroom walls can then be treated as you wish, or if you like, these black metal tiles, or metal tiles in other stunning shades, can modernize your entire bathroom walls.

New Washables Bring Summer to the Bedroom

"Clever Tricks in Decoration," a new booklet by Claire Winslow, explains methods of making a large, high ceilinged room seem smaller and a small, difficult-to-decorate one appear larger and more attractive. Price, 3 cents by mail, 2 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Claire Winslow.

Would you like to do over your bedroom, giving it a fresh, spring outfit that would be cool, pretty, and practical? This room is really the easiest in the house to redecorate, for simply by getting new bedspread and draperies you can change its entire aspect.

While it's always nice to give the walls new paper or paint, this is not absolutely necessary. Because the bed is the largest object in the room, its covering sets the keynote for color and style of decoration. Perhaps you've noticed, too, that on entering a room your eyes inevitably go to the windows. They are highly important in the room's decorative scheme and deserve a pleasing treatment.

Many decorators favor the idea of matching draperies and bedspreads. If you make your own it's a simple matter to get enough more of the chintz or printed linen or printed sateen, or whatever, to make a bedspread as well as floor length draperies. And—something a little new and different—try using eyelet embroidered muslin for the curtains under the draperies, and then using it also to make a full flounce for the bed, this flounce to show under the bedspread.

• • •

If you prefer to use ready-made bedspreads this surely is the year to get them. There are any number of needletuft spreads that are as easy to tub as they are to pay for. They come from the Georgia community which has preserved the pioneer American arts of candlewicking, embroidery and chenille, and all three techniques are used in a new summer series.

Favorite motif is the floral nosegay in many variations, often with fluttering ribbons or bow-knots. And always in garden-fresh pastels. For those who prefer an all-white spread or who want to limit their choice to one color there are delightful quilt patterns worked out in candlewicking and embroidery, perfect with maple or mahogany. Favorite tones are colonial blue, a grayed-pink, and a light green.

Other more classic designs in these charming bedspreads are in a shell motif or in spaced bands of chenille or candlewicking, which keep the formal spirit of your winter bedroom while giving it the fresh note it needs for spring and summer.

• • •

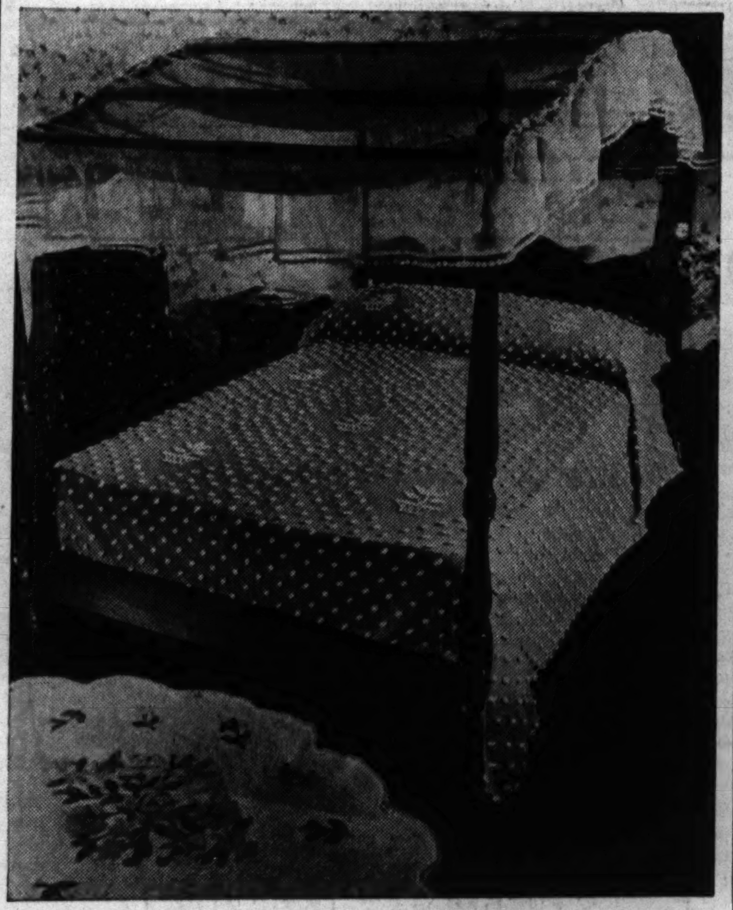
The photograph today shows one of the lovely Georgia-made bedspreads we've been discussing. It's plain to be seen that it gives a light, summery touch to a room. Very new is the colored ground against which the white embroidered flowers and spaced candlewicking stand out clearly.

This number is amazingly inexpensive, and it wears well and launders well, for all you need do is to toss it into the tub. It is shrinkproof and color fast.

It is shown in the picture on a mahogany, four poster, canopy top bed. It may also be used on a maple bed or on a French provincial beechwood bed. It is appropriate for almost any informal setting.

In this line there are also some very handsome shell motif spreads, more expensive than the number pictured. Indeed, there is a wide price range, so a lot of various sized budgets can be accommodated.

The bedspread shown in the photograph is available in Chicago.



New versions of the charming old candlewick bedspreads are appearing in pastel colors for summer rooms. This particular one has a delicately toned background against which the design stands out clearly.

The Etiquet of Monogramming a Timely Topic

"Office Etiquet", a one-page, mimeographed leaflet covering points of behavior for office employes, is ready for those who would like to have a copy. Just enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request, addressed to Helen Bartlett, Etiquet Editor, Chicago Tribune.

By Helen Bartlett.

Monogramming the trousseau linens no longer is the time-taking personal duty of the bride that it once was. It is no longer the rule for young girls, beginning at the tender age of 12 or 13, to begin accumulating their trousseau linens, embroidering, monogramming, crocheting, tatting. Now the problem is in deciding what shall be monogrammed, who shall do it, and what initial shall be used. Since there is a question of etiquet involved, and a choice in the selection of the monogram, there is justification for its being discussed in this column, and particularly at this time.

• • •

A few generations ago it was the custom to begin collecting trousseau linens while one still was a little girl. This still is the custom in some European countries and some provincial communities. True, it was the fashion to marry at a much earlier age, but regardless of that fact every girl had her hope chest filled long before she had any notion whom she might marry.

For the very reason that the trousseau was complete before there had been any proposal of marriage, girls monogrammed their linens with their own maiden initials. After all, there were no other initials to use, since the bridegroom was an unknown quantity. The monogram was composed of the initials of the girl's first, second, and last names.

• • •

Modern young girls are too busy bread winning, going to school and doing a million other interesting things to spend time on buying and hemming tablecloths. And, what's more, fashionable young women want their linens and their lingerie to be as smart and fashionable as they themselves are. Luncheon sets and bits of lace which are kept in storage for 10 or 15 years still might be of excellent quality, altho that is questionable, but they would be 10 or 15 years old and lacking in that distinction of being up to the last minute.

With these new ideas in the selection of the trousseau, the fashion in monogramming also has changed to using the initials of the prospective bride's first name, maiden name and husband's last name.

• • •

Both monograms are correct from an etiquet point of view. We do not mean to say that using the bride's maiden initials is incorrect. It simply lacks the newness and the meaning of the monogram which includes the husband's initials. For this reason we prefer it, and also because the older system seems to be a little uncomplimentary to the bridegroom.

There is this to say about the arrangement of the letters in the monogram. The design determines that. If all the letters are of the same size, then the initials are placed one, two, three in their regular sequence. But if the design of the monogram is one in which the center initial is larger, with a small one at either side, then the important initial, which is the last name, is placed in the center [the large initial] and the first name and maiden name initials to the left and right.

Tennis Dress Is a Proved Success and Really Smart

By Bettina Bedwell

The Riviera and Palm Beach seasons developed the tennis dress to a state of near perfection. One of the most successful models I've had copied for today's Paris pattern. You'll like it for its front view smartness and its back view décolletage. Not illustrated is a bolero you can throw over your bare back when you retreat to the clubhouse terrace for a tinkling drink.

The neckline of this frock is halter style, tied in a huge bow at the back of the neck. This arrangement anchors the dress securely to the shoulders for strenuous games, and yet allows solar rays to attack beneficially your shoulders and your back. The skirt is widely flared for action, and shirring enhances the bodice lines. Buttons in trio arrangement are an important trimming detail, eclipsed only by the novelty pockets in candy sack style.

The original is a spanking white model in pique. You may use white or pastels for this costume, in any washable and opaque material. We stress the opaque aspect of the situation to avoid mistakes. You don't was a see-thru-able fabric, because all you want to wear under an active sports dress is your tennis shorts.

Style No. 5346 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material for dress; 1 yard for bolero.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

HARSH LAXATIVES? Let me tell you about a better way!

Registered Nurses answer typical questions about constipation asked by 218,000 visitors at Saráka World's Fair Exhibit.

IS THERE A REALLY PLEASANT WAY TO RELIEVE CONSTIPATION?

Mrs. M. B. M., Bensonhurst, N. Y.

A. There is, indeed! You need not upset your entire system in order to relieve common constipation—constipation due to insufficient bulk. You see—most of us don't get enough bulk in the foods we eat, so intestinal muscles grow lazy. Saráka supplies bulk that we need to help keep these muscles more normally active—does it pleasantly, gently, without purging.

DO HARSH LAXATIVES ACTUALLY MAKE MATTERS WORSE?

Mr. C. A. S., Philadelphia, Pa.

A. They're apt to. I've seen more than one hospital case that started from such intestinal irritation! But Saráka contains no harsh drugs, no sharp, seed-like particles. That's why it's so safe! Its tiny granules absorb water... e-x-p-a-n-d-i-n-g into a soft, moist, gelatin-like mass. This mixes with the food you have eaten and supplies the lubricating bulk that intestinal muscles can exercise on. Nature does the rest!

WHAT IS "DIFFERENT" ABOUT SARÁKA?

A. Saráka has an important second advantage . . . a gentle stimulus that impels the intestinal muscles to keep waste products moving. Thousands are delighted with the satisfying results it brings. There's no violent purging. No embarrassment. Just a natural type of bowel movement. Get a package from your druggist today.

VISIT CANADA THIS YEAR

Citizens of the United States in large numbers visited Canada last year for holiday recreation, education and business. If you were a visitor, we hope your stay in Canada was a pleasant one and that you will visit our country again. We extend to all who were not among our visitors a cordial invitation to come to Canada this year to see our wonderful country.

To visit Canada you have only to cross the most peaceful International Boundary in all the world. You do not require a passport.

You may move about as freely as you do in your own country. You may leave Canada with the same informality and ease.

Canada is a country of varied scenery and climate. It provides for visitors unsurpassed seashore and inland lake retreats, mountains and great National Parks; and hunting and fishing to delight the sportsmen. In Canada, facilities for travel are good, whether by air, rail, road or water. Accommodation is plentiful.

On behalf of the Canadian people, I invite you to visit us this year.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A Special Shave Cream—It's Not a Soap, Needs No Brush!

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces raw and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams has now developed GLIDER—a special cream for daily shavers. With no soap base, it's a complete departure from ordinary shave creams. No brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich cream. It won't dry on your face. Applied with the fingers, it quickly softens each whisker. A protective layer is formed over which your razor glides. Off comes each hair at the base without scraping. Like a cold cream, yet not greasy, Glider helps keep your skin smooth all day. Glider is the result of 100 years' experience in making fine shaving preparations.

FREE—tube of Glider. Send your name and address today. The J. B. Williams Co., Dept. OG-9, Glastonbury, Conn.

WITH NEW CHAMPION Spark Plugs!

EVERYONE KNOWS that old, worn-out or inferior quality spark plugs, or those that have had 10,000 miles or more service, greatly impair engine performance and economy. But because deterioration is gradual, and hence not always noticed—millions of motorists depend on Change Week to remind them that a new set of Champion Spark Plugs definitely restores lost power, speed, economy and dependability.

Your Champion Spark Plug dealer renders special spark plug service this week. Checking and cleaning will reveal where new spark plugs are necessary to restore lost "pick up and go."

Demand Champions, if new spark plugs are needed, because they make every engine a better performing engine; because they are the spark plugs champions use; because they alone have the leakproof qualities so necessary in today's high compression engines. Pick up and go to your Champion Spark Plug dealer NOW, because you can depend on him to put new "pick up and go" in your car.

"BROMO-SELTZER GIVES ME MORE ALL-ROUND RELIEF," North says

NORTH BRINGS circus fans "the greatest animal act in the world." Here he is inside the training ring at Sarasota, Florida, with Alfred Court, director of this act, which includes lions, tigers, leopards, jaguars, panthers, pumas, bears, Great Danes! The animals came from Europe in 3 ships ... were chased by a submarine ... were seasick, too! Plenty of headaches for everyone concerned, including North!

STREAMLINING THE BIG TOP
North directs circus management ... discusses plans for 1940 streamlined circus with tentmaker Austin Frost. Tents are deep blue and red ... take 15,000 yds. of canvas ... 53 miles of rope!

GARGANTUA THE GREAT
... the great gorilla who peels bananas like a human but can mangle a man's arm in a split second. North gathers such spectacular attractions at cost of great nervous energy.

MORE ALL-ROUND HEADACHE RELIEF!
When his tense life brings on headaches, North takes Bromo-Seltzer. "It not only relieves headaches," he says—"it relaxes nervous tension ... settles upset stomach."

Why BROMO-SELTZER does more for you than a simple pain reliever can

Headaches are symptoms of an upset in your system and if they are frequent—or long drawn out—you should, of course, see your doctor.

Fortunately, however, most headaches are simple ones, caused by temporary upsets. They may be:
1. NERVOUS—caused by fatigue, nervous strain, worry, etc.
2. DIGESTIVE OR MORNING-AFTER—caused by such things as too much to eat or drink.

For these headaches, Bromo-Seltzer does more than simple pain relievers can ... gives relief not only to the pain of the headache, but to the other conditions associated with it. Here's how it helps you:
1. RELIEVES PAIN—eases the "ache" pleasantly, fast.
2. STEADIES NERVES—leaves you calmer, more alert.
3. SETTLES UPSET STOMACH—helps set you right again.

Try this famous remedy—relied on by millions for over 50 years. Follow directions on label. Buy Bromo-Seltzer at any drugstore, soda fountain. Keep it handy at home.

Liked more because it does more for headache BROMO-SELTZER

Islands for War Debts!

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

HERE, ILLUSTRATED by the accompanying maps, is the story of the territorial growth of the United States of America. It is a story that is timely in light of present efforts to acquire additional territory for our country.

Proposals in congress that Great Britain and France transfer to America certain islands and possibly other possessions in the western hemisphere in part payment of their war debts appear neither unusual nor illogical. Since the United States in its process of growing has acquired territory in almost every manner possible—by conquest, by purchase, by annexation, and by arbitration—it would seem wholly reasonable for it to acquire territory in the payment of debts. This clearly is one form of acquisition by purchase. Nor is it out of the ordinary for insular possessions of European nations in this half of the world to change ownership. The islands of the West Indies, for example, have been seized, stolen, swapped, sold, and shuffled around in one way or another so many times since the days of Christopher Columbus that it would require a colossal book indeed to contain their abstracts of title.

The President has characterized as "silly" the proposals in congress to acquire in part payment of war debts certain British and French islands for the purpose of defending the approaches to the Panama canal. Proponents of the idea, however, deem it a sound one. (Continued on page five.)

Next Sunday—"The Drama of Scandinavia," told in story, pictures, and maps

Guns Get Dutch Schultz

Killer Ambushed in Another Drama from 'Gang Rule in New York'

● This is the shocking story of the unholy alliance of crime and politics in New York—the story of a group of gunmen who dominated the controlling political party, whose murders and illicit traffic finally gave them a strangle hold on legitimate businesses until District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey laid them low. These chapters are taken from the book "Gang Rule in New York." In earlier issues the authors have described the careers of Jimmy Hines, Legs Diamond, and Arnold Rothstein.

DUTCH SCHULTZ worked his way up from the status of bartender in a cheap speakeasy and hangout for gangsters to that of one of the most notorious big-time racketeers in America. He was born in the Bronx on Aug. 6, 1902, the son of Herman Flegenheimer, a saloonkeeper and livery stable owner, and Mrs. Emma Neu Flegenheimer, a patient, pious, hard-working woman who did her utmost to train her son for some respectable trade. The Flegenheimers named their boy Arthur.

Young Flegenheimer took kindly neither to education nor to the admonitions of his mother. When he was about 14 Dutch left school after getting part way thru the sixth grade. He became successively a newsboy, an apprentice to a roofer, an apprentice to a printer, and an office boy.

Far better than working, in those early years, Dutch Schultz liked hanging around the old Criterion club, a hoodlum hangout where one of the dominant spirits was one Marcello Poffo, extortionist and bank robber.

As an aid to Poffo, the boy went out in the Bronx with a gun while still in his early years, helping to hold up crap games in which the proprietor had refused to pay Poffo tribute. Three years after he left school, when he was only 17, Dutch was arrested for burglary and was sent to Blackwell's Island for an indeterminate sentence.

Mindful of Poffo's teaching of the virtue of toughness, the boy was an unruly prisoner on the island. The warden sent him to Westhampton farms to be rid of him. The boy escaped. He was free only about 15 hours when caught, and was sent back with an additional two months to serve because of misbehavior. Altogether he served about 15 months. That was the only sentence he ever was to serve, as pronounced by law, altho in his subsequent career he accumulated a record of 13 arrests, including several for homicide and assault with a gun, and was known to be guilty of several murders.

Once out of jail, young Flegenheimer returned to his old cronies, the Bergen gang, and in admiration for his demonstrated toughness they gave him the sobriquet of Dutch Schultz.

From a small retailer, Schultz began to climb into the ranks of the wholesale distributors of needle beer. The biggest of these wholesalers in the Bronx, when Schultz began to operate, were two Irish-American brothers, John and Joe Rock. They were first the envy and then the target of Schultz and his gunmen.

Some of the weapons and discharged cartridges found after the slaying of Dutch Schultz.

John Rock was the wiser of the two brothers. Appraising the Schultz gang with canny accuracy, he retired from the business with a sizable bank roll rather than fight it out for a borough monopoly. His brother, Joe Rock, however, ignored all warnings and even the slaughter of some of his henchmen.

• • •

By the fortunes of war, however, the Schultz mob kidnaped Joe, and what they did to him was a warning to others. They took him into a dive and beat him so badly as to cripple him. They strung him up by his thumbs for that portion of the lesson. Then they placed a strip of gauze that had been smeared with some infectious matter over his eyes, and taped it securely. When they finally tossed him out into the street to be found by passers-by, he was on his way to blindness. That taught him a lesson and he quit the business.

After that deed of savagery was properly advertised, Schultz's fortunes spurted. At about this time, too, he took a hand in industrial rackets, having a piece of a captive labor union in the restaurant industry. Schultz also had a share in a labor union of window cleaners. This was the period when window cleaners who wouldn't pay dues to Schultz's union were dropping from skyscraper windows to the sidewalks below because of tampering with their safety belts.

The one time strong arm boy and burglar was doing splendidly. He reached out and grabbed a piece of a couple of night clubs, and thru his gunmen, pushed his way in 1931 into the Harlem policy racket.

But that year, 1931, was a terrible year for him. Schultz started out on Jan. 24 by having a fight in the Club Abbey with Charles (Chink) Sherman, one of the more prosperous leaders of the narcotics trade. The fight began with a joke about a girl.

Chink Sherman was clubbed with a chair and stabbed seven times with the jagged fragments of a peanut bowl conveniently smashed upon the table. The clubbing was Schultz's work, definitely. The slashing was credited to his henchman, Marty Krompier. Schultz was shot in the shoulder but the wound was not serious. The affair made quite a stir in the newspapers, and the police were forced to go thru the motions of looking for Schultz. They failed to find him. About two months later, when Sherman emerged from his hospital bed, so that it was certain there could be no murder charge, Schultz consented to appear at a police station for questioning but denied any part in the battle. He was turned loose.

In the same year came the uprising against Schultz's rule in Harlem and the Bronx by the Coll brothers, Peter and Vincent, both of whom had been his gunmen. Vincent Coll, known for several years as the Mad Mick, and later as the baby killer, was a maverick gunman like Legs Diamond.

In 1931, the Mad Mick determined to go into business for himself and plotted with fellow gunmen to kidnap Nils T. Granlund, radio and night club entertainer, for the capital with which to set himself up. A stool pigeon gave this plot away to the police and nothing came of it. On June 17, 1931, Big Frenchy De Mange, night club owner, was kidnaped, and his old pal, Owney Madden, paid off. The price for Big Frenchy's return was $35,000. Coll got that money. That signed his death warrant. Beyond that, he already had fallen out with Schultz because in the final days of his employment of the Mad Mick, Schultz put up $10,000 bail to get him out of jail on a charge of violating the Sullivan law. Coll jumped that bail when the case came up for trial and left Schultz a loser by $10,000. The Dutchman showed him that didn't pay. Peter, Coll's brother, was killed.

The Mad Mick went berserk. He and his gang began raiding Schultz's beer drops, in all of which they had worked. Joe Mullens, one of Schultz's gunmen, died in one of those raids, and two of Coll's henchmen later went to the electric chair for that murder, tho convictions in gang murders were rare in the city. It was even-all in the Schultz-Coll warfare, and the Dutchman, who valued his skin, went into hiding temporarily. He joined with a group of other big shot gangsters in putting a price of $50,000 on the Mad Mick's head.

Then an incident occurred which shocked the city into a wave of wrath against all the gangsters. This was a very decisive event in Schultz's life, then, as well as Coll's.

In the early afternoon of July 28, 1931, a solitary lounger was leaning against the front door of the Helmar Social club in an overcrowded Italian tenement section. It was a political clubhouse and a gangsters' hangout—a common merger.

Playing on the sidewalk near the clubhouse door were 5 year old Michael Vengali, his 7 year old brother, Salvatore Vengali, a child of 5 named Samuel Divino, and another of 14 named Florence D'Amello. A boy of 14, Frank Scalesi, had set up a penny lemonade stand on the curb. Lying in a wicker baby carriage, close by, was 3 year old Michael Bevilacqua. It was a peaceful, sunny July afternoon, with sidewalks scorching.

A big open car came into the street and rolled along sluggishly. There were several men in the car, and when the solitary watcher beside the clubhouse door saw them he dropped to the sidewalk and rolled down some steps into a semibasement vestibule. There was the wicked clatter of machine guns firing, and the spatter of bullets striking the outer walls of of the clubhouse. Screams from the windows, and the shouts of men's voices, rose in a crescendo as the big automobile leaped suddenly away and vanished, careening around the next corner. Mothers came rushing out of the tenement doorways picking up their children from the sidewalk. The lone watcher at the club who had rolled in the doorway, picked himself up and walked off without displaying any unseemly haste as would call attention to himself.

When the police arrived they found that little Michael Vengali, aged 5, was dead. The 3 year old Bevilacqua baby was seriously wounded, and the Divino and D'Amello children were nursing minor wounds

• • •

The police first turned their attention to the clubhouse and took due note that Vincent H. Auleta, who had been Democratic candidate for congress in the election of the preceding November, was its president. The vice president was Vincent A. Rao, first cousin of Joie Rao, a gunman later to be more notorious thru the city as the prisoner-boss of the House of Correction on Welfare Island, who lived there in luxury thruout a brief term, handling the distribution of cocaine and heroin, and the kangaroo discipline of more luckless convicts.

The police quickly found gangster witnesses from whom their stool pigeon information could be corroborated. The shooting of the Vengali baby, they alleged, was the work of the Mad Mick, who was gunning either for Joie Rao or Vincent Rao—the police professed to be not at all sure which.

With the police on his trail, Coll lay low for a while in his suite at the Cornish Arms but was rounded up there with other members of his gang. He and one of his closest pals, a Frank Giordano, were indicted for the murder. When they went on trial, Samuel Leibowitz, one of the aces among lawyers for defense in criminal cases in New York, who attained national fame in defending the Scottsboro boys in Alabama, was counsel for Coll. He tore the police case against Coll to pieces. The judge directed a verdict of acquittal. But the whole town yearned for vengeance on both Coll and Schultz, neither one of whom seemed reachable by the processes of legal justice. Coll fell by assassination shortly. Schultz remained and there clung to him opprobrium from the entire affair.

The Dutchman may not have known it, in that summer of 1931, but he had hit the skids. Still at the height of his money-getting career in the beer business, he was at that time reaching for the wealth to be obtained from Harlem's policy lottery. Schultz made a racket of it when his gunmen strong-armed the bankers who conducted this old-time gambling game and took over their business.

His banks, at the peak of their operation, did a gross business of $64,000 a day, which in some hard days dropped as low as $10,000, but averaged more than $25,000 daily. Schultz was the overlord of that business for nearly five years, and he took out of the gross receipts nearly everything after the necessary expenses were paid.

He took it in small sums, like $4,000 a week from a single bank. He took it in large sums, as the day when he notified George Weinberg and Big Harry Schoenhaus that he wanted $150,000 immediately from a safe deposit box in which they had cached a reserve of $300,000 against the exigencies of the business. They brought him the money. How much in all he was taking during this period will never be known, but even after paying between $500 and $1,000 weekly to Jimmy Hines (the Democratic boss) and scattering grands to Dixie Davis, his lawyer, and others, Schultz waxed very fat.

In the underworld of the early 1930s the Dutchman's wealth was estimated in the millions. One published estimate was $7,000,000. Up to the time of his death Schultz could lay his hands, any time he wished, on sums adequate to hire such conspicuous lawyers as former Gov. George S. Silzer of New Jersey, to defend him from federal intervention; to corrupt police and courts; to live in whatever manner he wanted; and to keep on investing his mounting surplus in breweries.

No sum could satisfy him. He was not content to run an honest game in his policy lottery, but had to make it crooked to assure himself of the maximum receipts. For this purpose he Hollywood.

QUITE a few former great names of Hollywood, whose fortunes were wiped out 11 years ago when '29 rang down the curtain on a lot of them, are getting relief from the screen actors' fund, but most of them are too proud for that. As a result you occasionally recognize former stars reading a few lines in pictures, and it is always a thrill to see a Jack Mulhall or a Clara Kimball Young or a Chester Conklin or a Jean Acker (Rudolph Valentino's first wife). No matter how fleetingly they appear in a picture, and no matter how small the part, these old-timers "deliver" just as persuasively as they did in the old days. Talent and personality can't be erased even by old Pa Time.

In the important bit-player ranks can be found Gladys Hulette, who was starred in the first motion picture version of "Alice in Wonderland" for Edison in 1909. She was afterward leading lady for Richard Barthelmess in "Tol'able David," Agnes Ayres, who was Valentino's leading lady in "The Sheik." George Melford, who directed "The Sheik."

Maurice Costello, one of the movies' earliest matinée idols, appeared recently as atmosphere in Jimmy Cagney's "The Roaring Twenties." May McAvoy, who was a popular leading lady at Warners until shortly after talkies came in. Vera Stedman, one of Mack Sennett's famous bathing beauties. Alice Day, once John Barrymore's leading lady. Marian Marsh, another of Barrymore's leading ladies, who made quite a splash because of her striking resemblance to Dolores Costello. Marian recently played a bit in "Grapes of Wrath."

Jim Thorpe, most famous athlete of all time, worked most recently with Ann Sheridan in "Torrid Zone." Grace Cunard, serial queen of the silent days. Hal Goodwin, who was the Mickey Rooney of yesteryear. Henry Otto, who directed "Dante's Inferno" as a silent picture. Raymond Hatton, who a few years ago teamed with Wallace Beery. Paul Panzer, who used to be the cause of most of the "perils" which beset the famous Pauline.

Florence Lawrence, once the reigning queeen of the Biograph lot next to that company's other famous star, Mary Pickford. Stuart Holmes, filmdom's leading villain in the days when William Farnum was the moviegoer's favorite hero and Theda Bara was the slinkiest of sirens. Farnum, too, now plays extras and bits. Monte Blue, once Warners' leading heart-throbber, played last year at his old studio in "Juarez" and "Dodge City," supporting in the latter picture Errol Flynn, the current Warner heart-thumper.

Creighton Hale, popular leading man of the silent era, is now playing in Eddie G. Robinson's "Brother Orchid." Then there is King Baggot, one-time star and director of many long-remembered pictures. Minna Durfee, Fatty Arbuckle's first wife and a famous comedy star in her own right. Jerome Storm, who directed Charles Ray's pictures. Frank Mayo, popular star of the silent screen.

and a well known leading lady. Ethel Clayton, once a $5,000-a-week star. Evelyn Brent, who played one of the leads in "Broadway" and co-starred with George Bancroft in "Underworld:" Mala, who was the star of "Eskimo." Madge Bellamy, who a little over a decade ago was the Lana Turner of her day.

Jean Acker

Creighton Hale

Aileen Pringle, who was a star at Metro along with Garbo, Gilbert, Shearer, Crawford, and others. Tom Moore, one of the famous Moore brothers triumvirate. Alice White, who was once First National's answer to Clara Bow. Florence Turner, once known the world over as "the Vitagraph Girl."

Howard Mitchell, who directed Shirley Mason's pictures. Bill Franey, the former comedy star. Ben Turpin, the famous cross-eyed comedian. Eva Novak, popular silent-day leading lady. Clara Horton, who was Charlie Ray's leading lady. John Ince, who was a famous Metro director, now playing a galley slave in "The Sea Hawk" at Warners. Lloyd Ingram, who was a famous director. Julia Faye, who was a De Mille star and who is always given small rôles in every De Mille picture.

Not every bit player represents thwarted ambition and abandoned hope, tho. There is Bob Milash, one of the oldest extras in motion pictures, who is currently working as a galley slave in "The Sea Hawk" at Warners. Milash worked as an extra in "The Great Train Robbery" and has been contentedly playing extra rôles ever since. He's had opportunities to rise to stardom, and he's turned them down. When Henry King was directing "Tol'able David" he wanted to give Milash one of the leading rôles in the picture. But Milash, who was getting a steady $25 a day working as an extra elsewhere, turned down the part and sent over a friend who was working as a piano player to take the job. Milash's piano-playing friend was Ernest Torrence.

Milash has his own ideas about the stability of success. In a quarter of a century he has had occasion to see stars come and go, and he knows that it's only a short road from stardom to starvation.

Gems of American Eloquence

● American eloquence has played an important part in the history of our country. From a long list of famous speeches The Tribune is selecting gems of American eloquence which are being presented in this, the Graphic Section, every Sunday. The content of these speeches is important both historically and politically. Persons learning to speak in public will find in them helpful lessons. Speakers and writers can learn a great deal from studying their style. This is the forty-eighth of the series.

ONE OF THE most eloquent of modern American statesmen was William E. Borah of Idaho, who died on Jan. 19 of this year after serving 33 years in the United States senate. Many were the masterpieces of oratory delivered by him upon the senate floor, but few were the times in which he rose to such declamatory heights as when he fought the adoption of the treaty of Versailles and the league of nations. It was largely thru him that these were rejected by the American government. Borah was of the irreconcilables—he advocated unqualified rejection of the treaty that was manufactured by the Allied statesmen after the defeat of Germany. In the latter part of November, 1919, as the senate moved to vote on reservations to the treaty, Borah made a speech which today is regarded as his most famous. An excerpt from it follows:

"Sir, since the debate opened months ago those of us who have stood against this proposition have been taunted many times with being little Americans. Leave us the word Americans, keep that in your presumptuous impeachment, and no taunt can disturb us, no gibe discompose our purposes. Call us little Americans if you will, but leave us the consolation and the pride which the term American, however modified, still imparts.

"Take away that term and, tho you should coin in telling phrase your highest eulogy, we would hurl it back as common slander. We have been ridiculed because, forsooth, of our limited vision. Possibly that charge may be true. Who is there here who can judge the future? Time and time alone, unerring and remorseless, will give us each our proper place in the affections of our countrymen and in the esteem and commendation of those who are to come after us.

WILLIAM E. BORAH

"We neither fear nor court her favor. But if our vision has been circumscribed it has at all times within its compass been clear and steady. We have sought nothing save the tranquility of our own people and the honor and independence of our own republic. No foreign flattery, no possible world glory and power, have disturbed our poise.

"If we have erred we have erred out of too much love for those things which from childhood you and we together were taught to revere—yes, to defend even at the cost of limb and life. If we have erred it is because we have placed too high an estimate upon the wisdom of Washington and Jefferson, too exalted an opinion upon the patriotism of the sainted Lincoln. And blame us not, therefore, if we have in our limited vision seemed sometimes bitter and at all times uncompromising, for the things for which we have spoken, fully spoken, the things which we have endeavored to defend, have been the things for which your fathers and our fathers were willing to die."

Surely here are words of weight and power. Any one can tell from the reading of these lines that Borah was no weakling. A master of subtle irony, a magician of potent argument, Borah knew how to strike with words with telling effect. Note how he brings in the memories of Washington, Jefferson, and Lincoln, America's three greatest Presidents, to support in the name of wisdom and patriotism his own stand.

THE CHICAGO THEATER OF THE AIR

THIS IS YOUR SOUVENIR PAGE OF ITS FIRST PRESENTATION:

"BITTERSWEET"

A tuneful operetta by Noel Coward, Broadcast last Thursday by W-G-N and Mutual, Starring Marion Claire and James Melton

(Adapted for W-G-N-Mutual presentation by Noel B. Gerson)

THE STORY Lady Shayne, a woman of about 70, joins a party of young people in London in 1925. They accuse her of leading too gay a life, and so she tells her story. . . .

● The scene is still London, but 50 years earlier. Sarah Millick, betrothed to a pompous young diplomat, Hugh Devon, is studying voice under Carl Linden. Her great beauty and talent are matched by Carl's love for her, and soon she discovers that Carl, not Hugh, is the man she wants to marry. Despite family protests she runs off with Carl—to make their fortune with his violin and her voice.

● The second act is in Vienna, several years later. Carl and Sarah (now called Sari) are entertaining in a café frequented by officers of the Imperial guard, and Sari, to safeguard their jobs, is forced to dance with one Captain August, an arrogant artillery officer. Carl cannot endure this man's actions, and strikes the officer. He is challenged to a duel and dies gallantly. Sari, her love and life shattered, sings their theme, "I'll See You Again."

● The third act is in London 15 years later. Mme. Sari Linden, singing idol of the continent, is introduced by Lord Shayne to his guests and recognized by Hugh Devon as Sarah Millick. Lord Shayne loves Sari and offers her peace and security. After telling him she will always love only Carl, and after singing beautifully for the assembled guests, she accepts Lord Shayne.

● In an epilog the scene is again in 1925. Thrilled by this story, the young people hail Lady Shayne as truly a great woman.

JAMES MELTON, noted radio tenor, has had a remarkable career as the result of a serene, buoyant personality, an amazing capacity for hard work, and a voice of unique quality. Born in 1904 at Moultrie, Ga., Melton made his first public appearance as a church soloist in Citra, Fla. The head of the University of Florida, where Melton began his college career, advised him to make a serious study of music. Melton later matriculated at the University of Georgia, and then at Vanderbilt university in Nashville, where he studied under Gaetano De Luca, the opera singer. At one time he was a saxophone player with a dance band in Nashville. Then he moved to New York as a member of Roxy's famous gang, and later joined the Revelers quartet. A concert tour with George Gershwin and a motion picture contract with Warner Brothers carried him to Hollywood. The result was "Stars Over Broadway." In addition to lead singing rôles with some of the biggest coast-to-coast network shows in the country, Melton has shown himself to be a singer of operatic caliber. His répertoire covers a wide field of French, German, Italian, and English songs. In opera he has sung the leading tenor rôles in such widely acclaimed productions as "Madame Butterfly," "La Traviata," and "Manon."

MARION CLAIRE is a star of opera, screen, and radio. She was born in the north shore suburb of Lake Bluff, Ill. Her mother was a well known pianist. When Marion was 10 years old she made her debut as a violinist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in Ravinia park. The discovery that she was gifted with a beautiful voice changed plans for a college education and it was decided that she should have a five-year period of vocal training abroad. However, Marion's development was so rapid that after only 14 months she was ready for her operatic debut. She made her first operatic appearance as Mimi in "La Bohême" in Rovigo, near Venice. The Chicago Civic Opera offered her a contract and she returned to America after a triumphal season in Italy and in Berlin. In January, 1929, Miss Claire was married to Henry Weber, the musical director of W-G-N and artistic director of the Chicago Opera. A few days after their marriage the couple went to Boston, where Miss Claire sang "Lohengrin" and Mr. Weber conducted. Marion Claire made her film debut in "Make a Wish," with Bobby Breen and Basil Rathbone. In addition to many star rôles in opera Miss Claire has scored notable hits in operettas, including "The Great Waltz" and "Bittersweet."

WILLIAM A. BACHER, one of the foremost American radio producers, studied at the University of Illinois school of dentistry and the New Jersey Law school. He entered the more spectacular field of radio with the Maltine Fairy Stories program for children in 1928. Shows produced by Bacher include the Eno Crime Club series; the National Dairy Trials in 1930—a program in which such famed attorneys as Clarence Darrow, Dudley Field Malone, James M. Beck, and Arthur Garfield Hays "tried" historical characters—and the musical hit shows "Log Cabin," "Show Boat," "Beauty Box," and "Hollywood Hotel." In co-operation with M-G-M Movies, Bacher produced "Good News." Then came the Texaco Star Theater, followed by "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Movie Nights" under the auspices of Twentieth Century-Fox.

HENRY WEBER has behind him 20 years as conductor of world-famous operatic orchestras. At the age of 21 he was well launched as director of the Royal opera at Bremen, Germany. Two years later he took over direction of the Chicago Civic Opera. In 1929 he became the first American to conduct opera in Italy, appearing in Florence. After a period with N. B. C. and as guest conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra he joined W-G-N in 1934. The son of a Chicagoan, Weber was born in Berlin. He studied for 14 years in Vienna, made his debut at Bremen. He married Miss Marion Claire in 1929 and appeared in concert with her for two seasons. His talents include piano, cello, clarinet, and pipe organ. For four years he has been general director of the Chicagoland Music Festival, and is artistic director of the Chicago Opera.

Islands for War Debts!

These foreign nations owe us money. We need more naval bases in West Indian waters. The foreign countries can reduce their debts to us by giving us islands. Why not?

Great Britain owes America roughly five and a half billion dollars. In the hemisphere of the Americas it possesses considerable territory, including the Bahama Islands, Bermuda, the Barbados, Jamaica, the Leeward and the Windward Islands, Trinidad and Tobago, British Honduras, and British Guiana. These are in addition to the vast Dominion of Canada and Britain's oldest crown colony, Newfoundland.

France owes America more than four billion dollars. It is represented territorially in the western world by a number of islands, including Guadeloupe and its dependencies; Martinique, St. Pierre, and Miquelon, and the mainland colony of French Guiana.

There should be nothing sacrosanct in British and French ownership of assorted islands in waters adjacent to America, despite the fact that no nation apparently enjoys giving up territory. Both Great Britain and France have relinquished land titles before in this very part of the world, and little has been done about it. The turbulent history of the West Indian islands supplies proof of this. Let us consider here briefly, in this connection, some of the best known islands of the Caribbean. Cuba, the greatest island of all, for example, has been owned by Spain, by Great Britain, by Spain again, and by the Cuban people themselves, not to mention a short control exercised thru military occupancy by the United States.

• • •

The island of Haiti, whose history is bloodiest of all of the islands in question, has been possessed in turn by the Spaniards, the French, the British, and the islanders themselves, descendants of black slaves introduced there by the white men. Jamaica once was owned by Spain. It was taken by the British 285 years ago. Puerto Rico, now a United States possession, was fought for by Spaniard, Frenchman, and Britisher, but remained Spanish until so recently as 1898. St. Thomas, one of the three Virgin Islands now belonging to the United States, first was owned by Spain. Then the Dutch possessed it for a short while. After that the Danes moved in. They were dispossessed by the British in the early part of the 19th century. The island was restored to Denmark and sold to this country, along with St. John and St. Croix, in 1917. Thirty-two other of the Virgin Islands have been under British control since 1666.

And so runs the history of the many islands that dot the Caribbean—the ocean that washes the shores of the Spanish Main, where pirates of old scuttled ships and buried treasures. Take any island you choose and its history differs only little from that of other islands. Maybe only a little less or a little more bloody. Maybe fewer or more changes of ownership.

Acquisition today of British and French islands in part payment of war debts could not be construed as meaning that America is adopting a policy of imperial expansion—not when it is preparing to hand back the Philippines to the Filipinos. Rather it should be looked upon as part of a measure of self-protection. It is highly essential that the United States retain the Panama canal. More naval bases in the Caribbean would make this job easier.

The motives that have influenced this country in acquiring territory in the past have in some instances involved the question of self-defense. More frequently, however, territory has been acquired to meet the needs of a rapidly increasing population and a fast-growing commerce.

• • •

The United States of America began with the 13 original colonies that had wrested their independence from Great Britain in the Revolutionary war. These were the nucleus of the great American republic. The treaty of peace of 1783, which gave the colonies their independence, also relinquished to them the lands lying between the Alleghanies and the Mississippi river on east and west, and Canada and Spanish Florida on north and south.

Thomas Jefferson . . . his bid for New Orleans led to the Louisiana purchase.

Of these western lands the regions lying north of the Ohio river were organized in 1787 into the Northwest territory, subsequently to be carved into the states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and part of Minnesota. The regions south of the Ohio, except for portions of what are now Mississippi and Alabama (then called Mississippi territory), were organized into a territory in 1790. Five years later Spain abandoned its claims to Mississippi territory, and in 1798 it was organized into United States territory.

The 18th century passed into history with the new American nation stretching from the Atlantic ocean to the Mississippi river. Already it was a sizable country. Spain still owned East Florida, or what is Florida today, and West Florida, a narrow coastal strip extending west to the Mississippi, and the boundaries of Maine and minor areas in the region of Lake of the Woods had not been definitely established. Otherwise, however, the country was practically the same in extent then as the present-day part of it which lies east of the Mississippi.

• • •

The purchase of Louisiana territory in 1803 more than doubled the size of the United States. This territory extended to Canada on the north and to the Rocky mountains on the northwest, embraced the basins of the Missouri, Arkansas, and Red rivers, and included what are now the states of Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Iowa, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, and parts of Minnesota, North Dakota, Colorado, Wyoming, and Montana—in all about a million square miles.

Louisiana territory had been ceded to Spain by France in 1763. Great Britain had not wanted it—had preferred Florida. Otherwise the United States of today most likely would extend westward only as far as the Mississippi river. The Spaniards in New Orleans at first were friendly to American traders who floated their goods down the Mississippi river for reshipment over the seas. Thru what was known as the "right of deposit" the Americans were permitted to store their goods in warehouses of New Orleans and were granted other trade privileges. But in 1802 all such privileges were revoked by Spain, and it looked for a while as tho genuine trouble was brewing between that country and the United States. As negotiations were under way it came to light that Spain secretly had transferred Louisiana territory back to France in 1800.

This gave the United States government an idea. Why not buy New Orleans and possibly West Florida? When President Jefferson's agent sounded out the French government as to the proposed purchase, Napoleon Bonaparte surprised every one by offering to sell all of Louisiana territory. The President and congress had no authority under the constitution to make the purchase. Nevertheless it was the biggest thing they could have done—so they bought this vast stretch of land at a sum finally set at $11,250,000. In addition they agreed to settle all claims of American citizens against France. These totaled $3,750,000, bringing the price up to 15 million dollars.

Be Poised, Not Posed

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate, Inc.)

IT'S MOST heartening to see the growth of interest in poise as a beauty factor. There must be an awakening among women in this connection, or the outstanding salons would not be catering to the need in the big way they are doing.

As one woman said: "The tragedy of all this beautifying that is going on is that the women, in spite of the beautifully dressed hair, the well groomed skin and nails, and all the other manifestations of personal care, are often such jittery creatures that they spoil everything with their nervous and awkward habits."

Perhaps women are beginning to realize this state in themselves, and that's why they are taking to instructions in poise, ease, and grace. Anyway, hallelujahs should be sung for the interest, for poise and ease are not only great physical assets, but nothing supersedes them in charm appeal.

We were talking with a young woman recently who travels the country over discussing charm quotients before women's clubs, business groups, schools, and other organizations. We asked her what in her wide observation claimed women's keenest interest right now, and on what, on the other hand, does she observe women need most direction.

Miss Rose Marie Bordillon answered, "Poise, grace, and ease claim the keenest interest." As for the second question, she volunteered that overcoming the "jitters" that cause so many awkward postures, contorted facial expressions, and stilted conversations was the imminent need. The tie-up is plain either way you look at it. The jitters cause the graceless postures. Poise and control are the things that correct them.

Five postures which Miss Bordillon reported as the commonest offenses against good taste and ease are:

1. The stork posture, or one-foot stander, who always has to lean against something, with one foot on the ground, the other wrapped around it.

2. The frog-leg posture. This is sitting with knees wide-spread like a frog, an ever-so-ugly position to assume. This wide-spread knee habit is frequently carried over into walking and dancing.

3. The rubber-neck, in which the head is dropped to one shoulder, turns out to be a pressing invitation to the ugly "dowager's hump" at the back of the neck.

4. The melted cheese slouch is Miss Bordillon's phrase for that chair slouch which converts the shoulder and body into one long but not graceful curve.

5. The corkscrew pose is that commonly noticed one of sitting with one leg wrapped around the other, to the great detriment of leg beauty and line of body.

The trick, as Miss Bordillon explains, is to learn to walk and sit with thighs together. This automatically pulls in the abdominal muscles and pulls under the derriere muscles. Try it. It really works. In walking, walk with thighs close together so that one knee slightly grazes the other as it passes.

SEE WHAT TENDER, FLAKY CRUST SPRY GIVES THIS CHOCOLATE MERINGUE PIE

CHOCOLATE MERINGUE PIE

3 ounces chocolate, cut in pieces
2½ cups milk
3 tablespoons flour
3 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon butter
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 baked Spry Pie Shell
2 egg whites
4 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Melt chocolate in milk in double boiler and blend with rotary egg beater. Mix flour, cornstarch, sugar and salt. Add to chocolate mixture and cook 15 minutes, stirring constantly. The mixture should be thick and smooth. Pour over slightly beaten egg yolks, return to double boiler, and cook a few minutes longer. Add butter and vanilla. Cool.

Pour filling into baked pie shell. Beat egg whites until stiff. Add sugar gradually, beating constantly. Add vanilla. Pile on filling. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) 20 minutes, or until firm and delicately browned.

(All measurements in these recipes are level)

SPRY PIE SHELL

Use for all one-crust pies

1⅓ cups sifted all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
7 tablespoons Spry
3 tablespoons cold water (about)

Sift flour and salt together. Add ⅓ of Spry and cut in until mixture is as fine as meal. (So easy with triple-creamed Spry and you get such tender crust!) Add remaining Spry and continue cutting until particles are size of a navy bean. Sprinkle water gradually over mixture. With a fork, work lightly together into a dough. Roll dough ⅛-inch thick and prick with fork. Fit into 9-inch pie tin and make fluted rim. Bake in very hot oven (450°F.) 12 to 15 minutes. See what delicate-tasting pastry you get, made with purer Spry. You'll love Spry cakes and fried foods, too. Change to Spry.

I Learn to Fly Blind!

How It Feels to Pilot Ship Entirely by Instruments

By WAYNE THOMIS

IT'S A STRANGE sensation for a "seat-of-the-pants" pilot to commence instrument flying. Gone are the trusty horizon and the ground. All you have in front of your eyes are a lot of instruments. You've got to believe them in order to keep the plane flying at a safe speed and in order to maneuver it precisely as you wish. You slip down into the cockpit and they buckle a hood over the fuselage to make the blindfold complete. You're in darkness.

You fumble for the switches, and there's a sudden glow behind the panel of instruments. You adjust the altimeter to the sea level altitude of the field from which you are flying—for in instrument work you deal solely in sea level figures. Meanwhile your check pilot has started and warmed the engines. You adjust your head phones thru which you will hear radio signals and the check pilot's voice. Then you hear him calling you.

"All okeh?" comes the question.

"All set," you say.

While he taxis to the takeoff runway you watch the tachometer and the compass. The panel jumps and shakes in its rubber mounts and the ball of the turn-and-bank indicator swings from side to side as your pilot fishtails slightly so that he can get a clear look ahead over the engine. Then the plane swings round into the wind, the throttle handle goes forward, and you start the takeoff run. The air speed quickly climbs up to 50, then 60 miles an hour, and you are in the air.

"Hold her at 85 miles an hour and 1,750 revs in the climb," says your instructor, "and try to hold a compass heading of 290 degrees."

And so you begin.

• • •

This whole thing started some time earlier. I had admired the precision and safety with which the air lines operate in rain, snow, and dust and thru light fog. I'd seen the air liners climb thru clouds and fly "on top" when I, as a noninstrument flyer, fought it out underneath. Often I had been forced to land and wait for clearing weather while the air liners skimmed thru without difficulty. I wanted an instrument rating, too.

Also I had remembered how bewildered I was when riding in an air liner to find the pilot making landings down thru cloud. The clock would say that we had arrived at our destination, but the air liner would continue to make gentle turns, straighten out, turn again, and finally would pop out underneath the clouds headed straight for the airport where we were scheduled to land. I wanted to know what the pilots were doing and how they were doing it.

And so one afternoon not so long ago I drove out to Harlem airport at 83d street and Harlem avenue to talk to Dewey Biggs, who operates an instrument and radio range flying school there. I told Dewey I wanted the rating and started with him on what has come to be the most fascinating phase of flying that I ever attempted. In this and a couple of other articles I want to take you along thru the course with me.

Just to keep the record clear, instrument flying is what is more usually known as "blind flying." When you are "on instruments" you sit watching the essential instruments for control of a ship without further reference to ground, horizon, or outside terrain.

These essential instruments are:

1. An air speed indicator—tells the speed of the plane in the air.
2. Turn-and-bank indicator—tells when a turn is made and the rate of the turn. The bank indicator tells whether the plane is skidding, slipping, or turning perfectly.
3. Rate-of-climb indicator—tells in feet per minute the rate of climb or descent.
4. Sensitive altimeter—tells the height of the airplane above sea level.
5. Clock—with sweep second hand (one that covers the entire face of the dial in a minute).
6. Magnetic compass—well damped (or held in check), so that it does not swing too wildly in rough air.

The panel in which these are grouped on Dewey's airplanes is shown in the photograph. They are all delicate instruments and the installation as you see it represents an investment of about $500.

Dewey has two airplanes fully equipped for instrument flying, but the instrument panel in each is identical with the one shown here. One of the airplanes is a Laird biplane with a 220-horsepower Wright engine. It's big and comfortable and stable in the air. He also has a Great Lakes biplane with a 100-horsepower inverted Cirrus motor.

Both are equipped with cockpit hoods. The student sits in the front cockpit, Dewey in the rear. After I first talked to Dewey we went out to the hangar and looked both ships over. He talked in detail about each of the instruments, explaining their purposes and functions. All of them were familiar, but I found, once I began flying under the hood, that I really didn't know them well. But that was to come later.

The two training ships used by Biggs. (Tribune photos.)

"Well," said Dewey finally, "let's begin flying. There are no short cuts to this thing. It's difficult and will mean real study and concentration."

And so we climbed in the Laird and the takeoff I've already described was made.

I took the controls gingerly after Dewey ordered the air speed and course. I played with the throttle, making fine adjustments for a few moments to get the correct revs and air speed. It was necessary to make some adjustments in stick also. About then I became aware of other instruments.

One wing and then the other dropped a little and were brought back to level position as indicated by centering the ball on the bank-and-turn indicator. The ship started to make a left turn, and I corrected with pressure on the right pedal. The turn hand swung over to the right then, and I began riding the rudder, first right and then left, to keep that turn hand centered and the course straight.

"Watch your air speed and compass," came Dewey's voice, as impersonal as he could make it. When I spared a glance from the turn indicator I found the air speed had dropped to 75 miles an hour, and automatically I eased forward the stick to get the nose down a little farther. Then a glance at the compass—"How in the devil——" I thought as I saw that the 290-degree heading on which we started was now 200 degrees. Suddenly I understood the resignation in that phrase of Dewey's, "Try to hold 290 degrees."

Another glance at the air speed. Up to 120 miles an hour. Here, this'll not do. Back on the stick. The air speed falls off to 85, then 80. Forward a bit. Back to 85. There, you've got it settled.

The turn hand shows you're turning to the right now. Okeh, that's the way back to 290 degrees anyhow. Center the hand. The compass, that has been turning, too, steadies down to about 300 degrees. Pretty close, I think, and give a quick glance over the whole panel. Whew! Keeps you busy there a minute getting settled.

Then as I sat back the whole panel seemed to go mad and I had another set of problems to straighten out. I was tense in spite of myself. I horsed the airplane around violently, overcontroling. My climb was a series of zigzags, up, level flight, down even, then up again. Somehow I staggered up to 2,500 feet, when Dewey said: "Level her off here and reduce revs to 1,675. Your air speed should show about 95 miles an hour."

After a little time I realized the ship would do a better job of flying herself than I could, so I began to relax. Then it was a little easier. I began to scan the instrument panel at a glance instead of concentrating on one instrument. That way it's easier to keep the ship level, at its proper speed, and more or less on course.

But about the time I was smoothing out my flying the least bit Dewey introduced a new problem.

"Let's try some time turns," he said. "Try a 30-second turn to the right. That should bring you out on 20 degrees."

Right here I began to find out how essential a clock is, and also to make my first real acquaintance with a compass.

It's a peculiarity of a magnetic compass that on the east and west headings the compass will show true readings so long as a moderate degree of bank is used. For instrument flying the turn indicator is calibrated to show a turn of 3 degrees a second when the hand is "one needle width" from the center mark. Thus a 30-second turn is 30 times 3 degrees, or 90 degrees. At the time Dewey spoke we were flying about 290 degrees.

But on the northern and southern headings the compass is contrary. When you make a turn in the northerly quadrant the compass may stand still or even turn the opposite direction. Then when you stop the turn the compass will slowly swing back to give you a steady reading.

• • •

In the southerly quadrant the compass reverses this process. It turns far ahead of you. If you make a 10-degree change of direction the compass will show that you made a 40-degree change. Only after holding the new heading for a minute or so will it come back to the true heading.

At the time of which I'm writing, however, I didn't know this. And in following directions I made the mistake of watching the compass as well as the clock. The result was a foozled turn. When I finally straightened out I was headed on a course of 50 degrees—some 30 degrees farther right than I intended to be.

Then for an hour Dewey drilled me. We would hold a course for a minute, and then I'd follow directions in making a timed turn. I found that if you make a gentle, steady movement to the required degree of bank and count your seconds carefully, beginning to pull out of the turn in the same gentle fashion just before the count is completed, it is possible to make fairly accurate turns. The gentle maneuvers do not set the compass to spinning. And after holding your new heading for a few moments it's possible to make minute corrections to get yourself flying right on the desired course.

That proficiency didn't come in one hour. It didn't come in ten. But gradually, as the course continued and time and experience were built up, it was possible to make good timed turns. But long before I was making good turns we were into our work with the radio.

"You're just about average lousy," Dewey said after we landed. "You make the same mistakes that every one else makes at first. You're going to find that this stuff requires serious thought. You've got to be thinking ahead of yourself all the time—you'll never be a good instrument pilot until you learn to do this. You've just got to get out and fly until you get it down. The good air line pilots have had hundreds of hours at it—neither you nor any other pilot can expect to be good in 10 or even 20 hours."

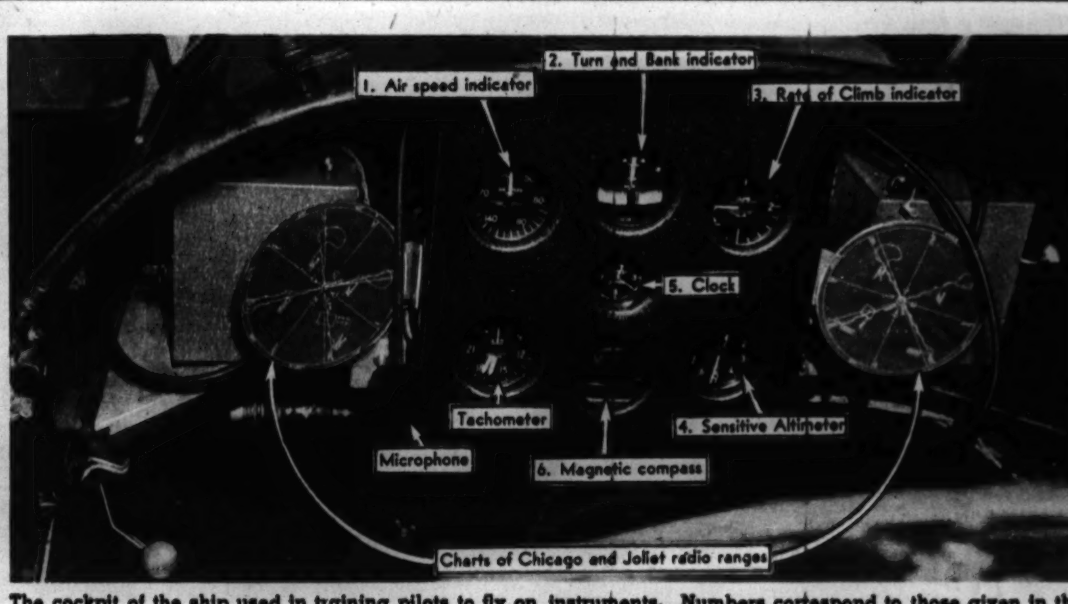
Within another hour or two of practice Dewey said my flying had smoothed out enough so that he would give me some experience in recovering from unusual positions. This is where you begin to unlearn some of the conceptions one gets from contact flying. Some of these are:

1. In contact flying you generally assume that your throttle controls your air speed indicator. More throttle, more speed. But in instrument flying—in order to do it safely—the stick controls air speed. Thus no matter what the throttle setting, the stick is used to maintain a certain minimum speed—85 miles an hour in the climb, 90 in the glide, and about 95 in level flight.

2. The rate of climb is controled by the throttle, since the stick controls the air speed. Thus at 85 miles an hour climb the pilot can control the rate by giving more or less throttle. If he has 300 feet a minute and wants to climb at 500 he increases throttle but holds the air speed the same. If he has 500 feet per minute and wants 300 he reduces power.

3. The turn hand of the turn-and-bank indicator is controled alone by rudder. In contact flying—at least in primary flight—the pilot thinks in terms of bank also in making a turn. In beginning instrument flying he does not think of bank.

4. The ball in the turn-and-bank indicator is controled alone by ailerons. If the ball is over to the right the stick is used to raise the right wing, or rather to bring the ball back to the center. Even when vertical or 70-degree steep turns are made under the hood there is none of the so-called reversal of control.



The cockpit of the ship used in training pilots to fly on instruments. Numbers correspond to those given in the article. Use of the radio range charts will be explained more fully in a subsequent article.

It is often taught in contact flying that when a bank of more than 45 degrees is made the elevators take over some of the rudder functions, and the rudder, lying over on its side, takes over some control of the vertical position of the nose. In other words, to tighten up the turn, back pressure on the stick is required. And to hold up the nose it sometimes is necessary to use a little right rudder or top rudder in a left turn, or vice versa in a right turn.

But none of this applies under the hood, and, in fact, the latest and best contact instruction gets away from this. The rudder controls only the turn hand and the stick the ball. It took lots of time and practice to jam that into my head so thoroly that it became automatic.

At first we did glides, in which the throttle was used to control rate of descent. Then we did climbing turns. Then Dewey would cock the ship up into something like a chandelle and head it over as we reached the peak point. The instruments would go completely crazy. And that, of course, was just what he wanted.

I would kick rudder, try to center the turn hand, bring the ball back to center, and at the same time keep the air speed from playing hide-and-seek all over the dial. Dewey said we invented some new maneuvers during these gyrations. I know that once he pushed the nose down when I persisted in not believing the air speed and was holding us in a nose-high position with the air speed wavering around 75 miles an hour.

Finally we got to the place where even after the most violent maneuvers—a snap roll, in fact—we would get straightened out and flying level after a couple of violent swoops up and mild dives. The trick is to watch that air speed, and keep watching that air speed. As soon as it begins to move—either up or down—do the right thing to keep it within five miles an hour of its proper position.

After the fifth hour Dewey said:

"Now we'll begin working in earnest on the radio end. You've got the best—or worst—of this still ahead of you. This is the stuff that'll test whether you've got a head on you."

Another instalment in this account of an instrument flying course will appear in an early issue.

OLD TUNES IN SWING TIME will be resumed in the Graphic Section in an early issue. Ken Harris' version of "That's Where My Money Goes" is next.

Gang Rule in New York

patched up a deal with one Otto Berman, a lightning calculator, a wizard at figures who, in his career about the race tracks and fight rackets, had accumulated the two nicknames of Havisack and Abbadabba. This Abbadabba was in a position to make a deal with the custodians of the pari-mutuel machines at Big Bill Dwyer's Coney Island track in Cincinnati, O., at Tropical Park, in Miami, Fla., another of Dwyer's tracks, and at the big New Orleans, La., race track, owned by Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans. By splitting a fee of $10,000 a week with some of the track officials, Abbadabba was able to get the final figure of the pari-mutuel betting at each stage of the process in computing the winning three-digit number of Schultz's pay-off in the policy game. He also was able to get on a telephone from the offices of the race tracks to one of Schultz's lieutenants in New York, like George Weinberg or Big Harry Schoenhaus. These two men had a big staff of $15-a-week underlings sorting policy slips every afternoon, and finding out as early as possible the numbers which were most heavily played, and so were liable, if they emerged in the lottery, to cause the most grief to the bankers of the game.

Once Abbadabba learned the grievous figure, he was able, by making a bet at the final moment, to alter the figure of the pari-mutuel machines so that the unlucky number would not pop out to bother Schultz's racketeers with such necessities as pay-offs. The whole policy lottery became a gigantic swindle in which hundreds of thousands of trusting bettors were robbed. That was typical Schultz tactics.

It was as the proprietor of one of the greatest gambling swindles New York has ever seen, as well as a major operator in the beer business, then, that Schultz put Jimmy Hines, the political strong boy, on his pay roll for far more money than $500 to $1,000 a week, concerning which witnesses testified during the trials that led to Hines' conviction.

Schultz and Hines were close allies during the last four years of Schultz's life, with Schultz, the gangster, being the employer, and Hines, the political leader, being the employé.

Schultz was a hard man for his public relations counsel, Dixie Davis, to handle. That he was shrewd enough to perceive what publicity does to an underworld character was evident the day he said he wished he never had adopted the name of Schultz.

"If I'd stuck to Flegenheimer," he said, "I'd never been in trouble like this. Schultz is a short word, and swell for the headlines. You'd-a never stuck Flegenheimer in the headlines, and nobody'd ever heard of me."

Prior to his marriage (to a hat check girl) Dutch Schulz had sported for some time a statuesque blonde named Iva, who had the distinction of being one of very few persons ever to rob him with impunity. Iva fell in love with a minor gangster and not only departed hastily from New York with him to an unknown destination, but took along with her $75,000 in cash that Schultz had left in her keeping. But Schultz's real love was money.

VINCENT COLL

He loved to handle it. He loved to see it in big piles of currency. He loved to know he had it locked away in safe deposit boxes, and he loved to get more. He was essentially a greedy lunatic, and his egomania took on an increasingly homicidal turn, the higher he rose in power and wealth.

• • •

For a while in the early 1930's, Schultz gave his palace guard of plug-uglies a few bad moments. He got acquainted with some Park avenue people at the Embassy club, who flattered his vanity, and he even called at their homes, at their invitation, where he was treated, he thought at first, as a lion. He started going social—even to the extent of dressing up, and trying to correct his own bad grammar and that of some of the mob.

Then suddenly he caught the idea of those Park avenue invitations. He was just a freak, to be put on display there for the aggrandizement of his hosts. Schultz fled. He dropped his good clothing and efforts toward better grammar instantly and thereafter never deviated from the gangster character into which he had made himself.

II.

Schultz by this time was the prisoner of his own large-scale operations. He had to keep the flow of large revenues coming, or go to prison. Barred from New York state, he moved the seat of his operations to New Jersey, and tried from there to reorganize his ventures—particularly the policy racket, which was slipping away from him.

Late in August of 1935 Assistant United States District Attorney W. H. Adams, in the southern New York district, announced that the federal government would go after Schultz on the old charge of income tax fraud. The Dutchman was arrested in Perth Amboy, New Jersey, and almost within an hour of his arrest State Senator John E. Toolan of Middlesex county and James P. Haney showed up as counsel. Ex-Gov. George S. Silzer was brought into the ranks of defense counsel later, and the Dutchman was "sprung" on bail; ready for another long legal joust with Uncle Sam in the courts. He still had plenty of money to finance it, and plenty of high priced lawyers to conduct it.

The realistic guns of gangdom cut short all this bickering.

Toward midnight of Oct. 23, 1935, Schultz was sitting with three of his henchmen in The Palace, a barroom and restaurant of no particular prestige in Newark. They were in a business conference. They had eaten heavily and drunk nothing. The barroom was equipped with booths, but Schultz and his men had taken a table in the open, where they could see the entrance to the saloon.

The henchmen included Lulu Rosenkrantz, Abbadabba Berman, the jovial wizard of the race track fix, who had his uses, but was no man for a gunfight, and Abe Landau, gunman and killer. Abe and Lulu and Schultz, with their backs to the wall, might have been expected to give a good account of themselves in gang warfare, but there is no evidence they did that night. On the table, at which they had been sitting for several hours before the shooting, was a sheaf of papers which seemed to the police who came in later to be a monthly accounting of their business. One of these papers was a long strip of white, taken from an adding machine, and among its figures were the following three: $236,295.95; $313,711.99, and $148,369.39. Other entries in a long list ranged down to $5.67.

Jack Friedman, the bartender, who was a World war veteran of active service, was the only person between Schultz's group and the door when two armed men entered, and Friedman was paying no attention to the diners. There was a sudden fusillade of pistol shots, in which the reports from the big .45's of Lulu and Abe were mingled with the crackling of the visitors' .38s.

• • •

When Friedman's head emerged, at last, from back of the bar where he dropped to the floor as the shooting started, Abbadabba and Lulu were dead on the floor near their table. Abe Landau was gasping his life away on the doorstep at the front of the saloon, which he had reached, tho wounded, in pursuit of the gunmen who got him.

Schultz, sickly white, with his gun dropped out of his hand to the floor from fingers that were limp, was sitting in a chair. His face was twitching, and he was gazing wildly before him with that bewildered expression which comes to men who are hit by heavy slugs, and retain a half-consciousness. When the police arrived Schultz was able to mutter instructions to take him to a hospital, and to say he did not know who shot him.

The police knew him. They moved him quickly. They got him to the Newark City hospital, and there, as he fought the losing fight for life, they first tried to question him, without getting any intelligible response. Then they stationed a police stenographer beside his bed to take down in shorthand the dying man's ravings, which might contain some clew to the identity of his assailants.

These notes of a dying gangster's ravings are unique. Other gangsters have died, and they died raving. But if the police made notes of the thoughts they expressed on their way out, such a record has not come to light in New York. The stenographer's notes are here set down, and parenthetically are inserted the comment and explanation of several persons who knew Schultz well.

"Statement by Arthur Flegenheimer, alias Dutch Schultz, in Newark City hospital, Oct. 24, 4 p. m. to 6 p. m., from stenographic notes made by F. J. Long, stenographer of the Newark police department:

"George, don't make no bull moves. What have you done with him? Oh, mama, mama, mama. O, stop it, stop it, stop it. O, O, O! Sure, mama!"

(Schultz was at this time suffering from the pain of his bullet wound, and he had a fever of 106 degrees. That sentence, "George, don't make no bull moves," undoubtedly referred to George Weinberg, who, after his brother Bo had been murdered, notified Schultz that he wanted to get out of the policy racket, and Schultz intended to kill him rather than let him get away. George Weinberg was far more valuable to Schultz than the ordinary gunman, being the one man in the gang with administrative talents.)

"Has it been in any other papers?" (One of the policemen beside the bed had a newspaper, and Schultz, a glutton for publicity in his closing years, still wanted, when dying, to know what news was written about his last gunfight.)

"John, please, did you buy that hotel? You promised a million, sure! Get out. I wished I knew."

(That John may very well have referred to Johnny Torrio, who by the time Schultz was slain was moving into the position once held by Arnold Rothstein as a banker and financier for underworld enterprises, as well as a large scale real estate operator. Torrio could easily have obtained for Schultz a million dollar loan. It may have been that Schultz and John were in a deal for the acquisition of a hotel, because a big hotel, preferably in the Roaring Forties, was a very handy thing for a gangster to possess, or control, as Waxey Gordon and other top notch gangsters demonstrated. The "get out; I wished I knew," was in answer to a police inquiry, made just as soon as Schultz muttered the name John in his ravings. The police once more asked him who killed him, and Schultz was still, in his semi-consciousness, living by the gangster code, and aware that the police were prying.)

• • •

(At this point Sergt. Luke Conlon of the Newark police started once more to hammer questions at the dying gunman.)

Q.—Who shot you?

A.—The boss himself.

Q.—He did?

A.—Yes, I don't know.

Q.—What did he shoot you for?

A.—I should meet him, boss. Did you hear him meet me? An appointment, appeal stuck.

Q.—Was it the boss that shot you?

A.—Who shot me? No one.

(That was the way it went. Schultz was ascribing the shooting, (apparently, to the boss himself, and then catching himself up short when he realized that the police were listening to him.)

Schultz, police believed, after piecing together what they could from his ravings, and from the circumstances about the crime itself, had made an appointment for some one to meet him and his gunmen in the saloon where he was shot. But the person he was expecting did not come. Instead there were others.

("Did you hear him meet me?—And then he clips me!"—The two phrases were part of Schultz's narrative of protest that what should have been a very peaceful meeting, indeed, turned out to be an encounter with five guns blazing.

(In his own deathbed statement is part of the evidence which has been taken by police and underworld to mean that Schultz was killed by Lulu Rosenkrantz, at the last—by his own bodyguard, rather than by the pair of Italians—and they were most assuredly Italians—who came into the saloon to get him.

(Rosenkrantz, Landau and Berman were killed with .38 bullets. For some reason, the .38 is the pistol used in almost all Italian gangster killings, where a pistol is used. Schultz's two bodyguards carried .45s. Schultz was in the toilet when the Italian gunmen came in—and it is not reasonable to assume that when he heard the shooting he would have come out. He was killed with a single bullet from a .45-caliber pistol.

(As the police reconstruct it, Lulu Rosenkrantz, most trusted of all Schultz's men, had received his mortal wound, and the firing had ceased, when Schultz came out. The dying Lulu either saw a vague, moving figure which he didn't identify, and shot at it successfully before he lapsed into his last sleep, or else he knew the man he was shooting was Schultz himself, and he carried Schultz along with him.)

"My gilt-edged stuff—and those dirty rats have tuned in!" (His business, and the mob opposing him—that was what he was thinking about principally while he was raving.)

"Please, mother, don't tear. Don't rip. This is something that shouldn't be spoken about. Please get me up, my friends. Please, look out, the shooting is a bit wild, and that kind of shooting saved a man's life. No pay rolls; no walls; no coupons. That would be entirely out. Pardon me, I forgot I am plaintiff and not defendant. Why can't he just pull out and give me control? Please, mother, you pick me up now. Do you know me?

(Acme photo.)

A crowd gathers outside a New Jersey chophouse following the gang slaying of Dutch Schultz.

"No, don't you scare me. My friends and I think I do a better job. They are Englishmen and they are a type I don't know who is best, they or us.

"O, sir, get the doll a roofing. You can play jacks, and girls do that with a soft ball and play tricks with it."

(That last reference to "get the doll a roofing," is believed to refer to Mrs. Frances Flegenheimer, the mother of his two children, and Schultz on his deathbed was instructing one of the gangsters who carried his money, such as Big Harry Schoenhaus, to see that she got a home. Nobody did, however. The gangsters about Schultz robbed him of all his accumulated fortune, when his gun was silenced.)

"No, no, and it is no," the statement continued. "It is confused and it says no. A boy has never wept, nor dashed a thousand kim. And you hear me?"

(Those lines—"A boy has never wept, nor dashed a thousand kim," taken just as they stand are meaningless, but pure poetry; two lines of three iambic feet each. How they happened to swim thru Schultz's dazed mind at that time is another of the mysteries he left behind him.

Sergt. Conlon broke into these ravings. "What did the big fellow shoot you for?" he asked.

A.: Him? John? Over a million, five million dollars.

(There has been only one underworld boss, known to the police of New York, as of the year 1935, named John, who could have shot Schultz, or directed the shooting of Schultz, in a quarrel over one million or five million dollars. That man was Johnny Torrio.)

"You want to get well, don't you?" Sergt. Conlon wheedled.

A.: Yes.

Q.: Then lie quiet.

A.: Yes, I will lie quiet.

Q.: Who shot you?

A.: John shot and we will take care of John.

At this point, Schultz's wife, Frances, was brought to the bedside.

Schultz's wife: "This is Frances."

Schultz began to talk again, saying: "Then pull me out. I am half crazy. They won't let me get up. They dyed my shoes. Open those shoes. Give me something. I am so sick. Give me some water, the only thing I want. Open this up and break it so I can touch you. Dannie, please get me in the car."

(Schultz had a hireling named Dannie Dale.)

• • •

Mrs. Schultz left the room and Sergt. Conlon resumed his questioning.

Q.: Who shot you?

A.: I don't know who can have done it. Anybody. Kindly take my shoes off.

Q.: They are off.

A.: No, there is a handcuff on them.

"Look out, mama. Look out for her. You can't beat him. Police, mama, Helen, mother, please take me out. I will settle the indictment. Come on, open the soap duckets; the chimney sweeps. Talk to the sword."

(The "chimney sweeps" were, in Dutch's slang, the Harlem Negroes, whom he had robbed of hundreds of thousands of dollars by his crooked policy game. "Talk to the sword" was one of his threats.)

The stenographer's minutes concluded: "Schultz sank into unconsciousness then. It was 6:40 p. m. He died less than two hours later, without saying anything else."

And so at last, the big, tough killer who made his millions was crying on his deathbed for his mother, wife and sister; raving of heeding parental warnings against Satan; almost, but not quite, informing the police how he happened to be slain in a gang war. Those last words were: "I want to pay. Let them leave me alone."

So they left him alone, and perhaps he has paid.

Fruit Bread for Parties

By MARY MEADE

FRUIT and nut breads are so easy to make and so delicious to eat that cooks take great pleasure in collecting recipes for them. The combination of orange flavoring, dates, and nuts in a loaf of bread is hard to beat. Tea party and bridge luncheon sandwiches made from this kind of bread are pretty to look at as well as delightful to nibble. And such a bread will stay moist and fresh for a week after it has been baked, if you can keep any of it that long.

Try a spread of butter and cream cheese on this orange date bread and serve it some time with a frozen fruit salad. It's bound to make a hit.

ORANGE-DATE-NUT BREAD

(9x4½x2½-inch loaf)

- 2 cups flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- ¾ cup milk
- ½ cup chopped nuts
- ½ cup chopped dates

Sift flour once and measure. Sift three times with salt and baking powder. Cream the butter and sugar until smooth and light. Beat in eggs one at a time. Add orange rind. Add flour mixture alternately with lemon juice and milk, beginning and ending with flour and beating until smooth after each addition. Add chopped nuts and dates. Turn into a greased loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for an hour.

The method of making this bread is the standard method used for butter cakes rather than the "muffin method" by which most quickbreads are made. This is because of the higher-than-usual proportion of sugar and fat. The cake method gives a better texture than the muffin method of mixing would produce.

There are recipes for other tea breads, such as banana, butterscotch, and cocoa breads, in our booklet, "Better Homemade Bread and Rolls," which sells for 23 cents by mail.

The dessert in the picture is a chocolate rennet-custard with a coffee-whipped cream sauce. Making it is as simple as repeating the A-B-C's. First you get together a package of chocolate rennet powder and a pint of milk and follow directions on the package. When it's ready to serve, make this sauce:

COFFEE SAUCE

- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 tablespoon strong, freshly made coffee
- Few grains of salt
- ½ cup sifted confectioners' sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- ¼ cup whipping cream

Cream the butter until soft. Work in coffee, salt, confectioners' sugar, and vanilla and beat until the mixture is perfectly smooth. Whip the cream and fold it in lightly but thoroly. Pipe it in a design on top of the puddings or drop a spoonful over each serving. Shaved blanched pistachio nuts are an attractive garnish.

This recipe will make four or five servings of pudding and sauce.

Dates, orange peel, and nuts give this fine-textured quickbread its attractive appearance and pleasing flavor.

Coffee, confectioners' sugar, and whipped cream can be piped thru a pastry tube to garnish a chocolate pudding.

YOU CAN MAKE THE LIGHTEST CAKE EVER!

Only New "SURE-MIX" CRISCO makes cakes better in these 3 ways!

"Sure-Mix" Crisco does things for cakes no other shortening can do!

How your eyes will shine next time you take a cake from the oven—if you use New "Sure-Mix" Crisco instead of your usual shortening. You can get higher, lighter, tenderer cake than you ever got before!

Yes—New "Sure-Mix" Crisco does things for cakes no home shortening we know of could ever do before. We proved it . . . we made thousands of cakes with various shortenings. Crisco cakes were higher—up to 15% higher, depending on the type of cake. Lighter, too, and so much more tender. Delicious!

NO MORE BATTERS THAT SEPARATE . . . When you mix your cake you can see and feel the difference between "Sure-Mix" Crisco and other shortenings. Your batter never separates or looks "curdled" . . . It's smooth as cream! That is one big reason why Crisco cakes can be higher, lighter and tenderer.

GET FLAKY PASTRY—DIGESTIBLE FRIED FOODS with Crisco. No shortening we know of comes to you purer, fresher, creamier than all-vegetable Crisco.

BLACK-AND-WHITE CAKE

¾ cup Crisco	3 eggs
1½ cups sugar	3 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon salt	3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla	1 cup milk

CHOCOLATE MIXTURE: Blend 1 square chocolate, 2 tablespoons boiling water, 1 tablespoon sugar. Add ¼ teaspoon soda. Cool slightly.

Blend Crisco, sugar, salt, vanilla and eggs. Sift flour with baking powder. Add alternately with milk. (Ever see such a smooth batter? That's due to New Crisco!) Rub three 9-inch layer pans with Crisco; dust with flour. Pour a generous two-thirds of batter in 2 pans. Combine chocolate mixture with remaining batter; pour in third cake pan. Bake in moderate oven (360° F.) 30 to 35 minutes. When cool, put layers together with chocolate layer in the middle. For filling and icing, use—

BITTER CHOCOLATE ICING: Cut 3 squares chocolate into small pieces. Combine with 1½ cups brown sugar—⅛ teaspoon salt—¼ cup water—¼ cup Crisco. Bring to boil; boil 5 minutes. Cool to lukewarm. Beat in gradually about 3 cups confectioners sugar. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla.

QUICKER than the vision of the human eye is the rapierlike thrust of the tongue of a chameleon. But not so fast is this natural weapon with which the little creature captures its prey that its action cannot be stopped by a speedy camera lens.

The accompanying pictures, viewed in their numerical order, show a chameleon capturing a fly. The first and the last pictures are reproductions of photographs taken at one one-thousandth of a second exposure, the other four of photographs taken at twice that speed. Any one who can imagine a second divided into 2,000 parts may readily comprehend the amazing speed of a chameleon's tongue.

1

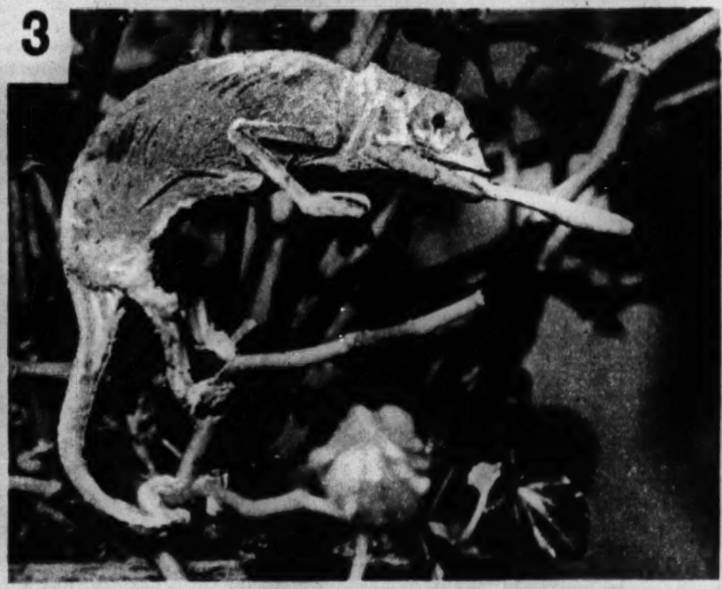
3



This organ, a highly specialized part of the chameleon's anatomy, is relatively large, club-shaped, and provided with a sticky secretion at its tip. The basal portion is narrow and composed of extremely elastic fibers which when the tongue is not in use are telescoped over the elongated copular piece of the hyoid that acts as a support. By filling the apparatus with blood, and by the action of certain muscles, the tongue can be shot out a remarkable distance—a distance equaling the length of the body itself. The elasticity of the basal fibers of the tongue assist in the rapid withdrawal of that organ. It is by means of this extraordinary mechanism, as disclosed in the accompanying pictures, that the chameleon procures its prey. Flies and other insects are deliberately stalked until within range, then out shoots the tongue and the victim is held fast by its sticky tip.

Almost as remarkable as the chameleon's tongue are its eyes, which are large and independently movable—that is, one may be turned in one direction and the other in another. In addition, however, these eyes of the chameleon can, unlike those of other similar creatures, be focused upon one spot, giving the binocular vision necessary for the fine appreciation of distances required in the use of the tongue.

Much has been made of the chameleon's ability to change its color, but in most instances these powers have been grossly exaggerated. The change of color is partly reflex and partly controled by the creature's will. Changes in light intensity, temperature changes, and emotional disturbances produce marked and characteristic changes in the chameleon's color, altho there apparently is little direct response to the changes in the color of the environment, despite the common belief to the contrary. The chameleon's color range is from a delicately light green, yellow, gray, or brown to a dull black, with an almost endless variety of shades in between.

All chameleons are lizards and belong to the reptilia, a zoölogical class including snakes, alligators, and turtles, but all lizards are not chameleons. A great majority of chameleon species are of the genus Chamæleon, altho a few species of dwarf forms are identified with two other genera. True chameleons are found in Africa, Madagascar, southern India, and Ceylon. The specimen shown is from Africa.

There are no true chameleons in America, altho certain lizards of the genus Anolis, which includes the iguanas, frequently are termed chameleons. The tiny creatures that are hawked at carnivals and circuses in this country are examples.

The Pulvex Worming Method (embodied in every package of Pulvex Combination Treatment Worm Capsules) insures your worming your dog properly for those worms . . . even though you've had no worming experience. It is so sure that many breeders of champion dogs say the Pulvex Worming Method is the method the average dog owner should use. Here's why—

Your dog can have Tape, Round (ascarid), Hook or any combination of those worms at the same time. Your dog should, therefore, always be wormed for all those worms whenever you worm him.

Contrary to common belief, no single-type capsule made can expel all those three worms. Two distinct types of capsules must be used. Each package of Pulvex Capsules contains two types of capsules which, when given a few days apart, will expel Tape, Round (ascarid) or Hook Worms—not just one or two kinds of worms.

Avoid worming your pet wrong for those worms. Worm only with Pulvex Capsules. Packaged two ways: for puppies; for dogs. Either type 50c. At drug, pet, dept. stores.

ASK YOUR DEALER TO SHOW YOU THIS PICTURIZED INSTRUCTION SHEET. IT MAKES WORMING EASY!

Ticks, Fleas Soon to Be Problem

Actress Joan Bennett displays her two Afghans. Altho the Afghan is one of the oldest breeds of dogs, it is not common in the United States.

IT WON'T be long until dog owners will have to stock up with a few preparations to combat insects that make life miserable for our pets during the summer. The approach of warm weather in the northern tier of states means that dogs are going to get fleas, and some of them may pick up an annoying assortment of ticks.

During the last few years ticks have been extending their range. They now may be found in parks and wooded areas in or close to the cities. Last year some dog owners living in towns or cities were so puzzled by the small brown parasites which they found on their dogs that they even mailed us "samples" with their letters asking us, "What are they, and how do I get rid of them?" One reader didn't even kill the ticks he sent us. He mailed four of them alive!

A white poodle, Marlene of Piperscroft of Sunstorm, being groomed to go in the show ring. The handler, Walter H. Morris, is brushing a white powder into its coat.

The common flea is a weak little parasite compared to the tough tick, which is hard to remove from the skin of a dog and also difficult to kill. The worst of it is that (so far as we know) there is no preparation that will keep the ticks from your dog, altho there are several available which will kill the insects.

We examine our dogs frequently during warm weather to see if they have ticks. If we find one with its head imbedded in the skin of the animal we apply a little dab of ether and alcohol (50-50 solution) to it, wait a minute or so until the tick is groggy, and then remove it. Last summer we tried out two patented preparations on one of our dogs to see if they would kill good-sized ticks that had thrust their heads into the skin. One was a liquid which was sprayed on. The other was a flea powder containing rotonone—an insecticide which is derived from derris root. Both worked well.

Incidentally, the flea powder with which we have had so much success battling the ticks and the fleas is a dandy to use if you are in country infested with chiggers or red bugs. We tried it out several winters ago when we were in Florida. By dusting it on our socks, trousers, and legs every morning before going hunting we found that it kept the chiggers from moving in on us.

When ticks are found on your dog you shouldn't delay getting into action against them. Some of the ticks may leave the dog and multiply in the house, and then one has a real problem. It also is necessary to clean the dog's kennel with a strong insecticide.

Altho fleas are easier to kill than ticks, the trouble is that a dog constantly reinfests himself when he plays outdoors. This is something that many dog owners do not understand. It's necessary to repeat the treatment frequently during the summer. Here again the kennel must be given a thoro drenching (or dusting) with an insecticide, because it may be a breeding place for fleas.

Whenever you want to give your dog an anti-flea treatment, go over him to look for ticks, give him a combing, or otherwise work on his skin and coat, by all means place him on a high box or a table. He'll stand quieter and you can work on him much easier if he is off the floor.

Nearly all dogs are awed by being placed on a surface that is elevated. They seem to realize that there is a distinct note of business and authority in the air when they are taken from the floor and deposited on a table, for example. (You'll notice that a veterinarian never leans over to examine a dog in a small-animal hospital. He always has the dog on a table about four feet above the floor.)

DOG NOTES

Percy Evans of Helena, Mont., owes his life to the quick and heroic action of his Labrador retriever, Black Diamond. While out hunting pheasants Evans was attacked by a lynx, but the dog attacked the animal, defeated it, and saved his master's life.

The nails of practically all dogs require occasional attention, especially if the pet is kept indoors much of the time and thus has no opportunity to wear down his nails. If dogs are not given a pedicure once or twice a year they often develop sore feet.

Islands for War Debts!

By the time all interest and other expenses had been paid the sum had risen to $27,267,622. Napoleon had sold at the rate of about 4 cents an acre a territory five times greater in extent than continental France. On the verge of war with Great Britain, he had realized that he could not hope to prevent the seizure of Louisiana territory.

• • •

Florida was the next territory to attract the attention of the United States. In 1763 it (both East and West Florida) had been ceded by Spain to Great Britain in exchange for Havana. By the treaty of Paris of 1783 it reverted to Spain. In 1810 the people living in the western part of West Florida, the coastal strip lying west of the Perdido river, revolted, proclaimed their independence from Spain, set up their own government, and petitioned for admission into the United States. These rebels were for the most part Americans. President Madison, acting on the theory that West Florida had been ceded by Spain to France in 1800 and thus was part of the land acquired by the United States thru the Louisiana purchase in 1803, declared the territory under the jurisdiction of the United States. In 1813 that part of West Florida west of the Pearl river was added to Louisiana, and that between the Pearl and the Perdido rivers to Mississippi territory.

In 1818 the belligerent Gen. Andrew Jackson got into difficulties that threatened for a while to lead the United States into a war with Great Britain and Spain. The year before the Indians of Florida had raided into Georgia, Alabama, and Mississippi. Jackson, then at the height of his military fame, was ordered to pursue the marauding aborigines. In doing so he ran the redskins back into Florida and seized Pensacola and other strongholds.

When two British residents of Pensacola objected to Jackson's actions and took sides with the Indians he seized them, ordered one shot and the other hanged. He also hanged four Indian chiefs on Spanish territory. The capitals of the United States, Great Britain, and Spain buzzed with war talk. It appeared that a conflict was certain. But soon the British appeared to have lost interest. Then Spain sprung a surprise by offering to cede to the United States all of Florida if the United States would pay claims of five million dollars which the Spanish government owed American citizens, and abandon its claim (a vague one) to Texas. The offer was accepted. In 1819 Florida became a territory of the United States. The transaction covered both that part of the territory occupied for eight years and that part just relinquished. By just what title the United States finally held West Florida it would be hard to determine.

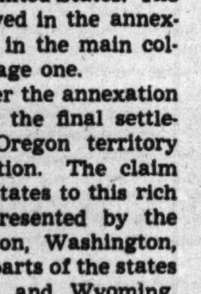
• • •

The year previous to that of the Florida cession an irregular strip of territory in what is now northern Minnesota and North Dakota, a region embracing the basin of the Red river of the north, was ceded to the United States by Great Britain. This was a result of a convention that brought an agreement to fix the boundary between Canada and the United States, between Lake of the Woods and the Rocky mountains, along the 49th parallel of latitude. By the transaction Great Britain obtained an irregular strip of territory north of what now is Montana.

From 1819 to 1842 the United States did not grow territorially. Altho Maine was admitted to the Union as a separate state as early as 1820, its boundary on the north still remained the subject of dispute between the United States and Great Britain. The treaty of 1783 had left the problem badly complicated. The United States claimed land considerably farther north than the present northern boundary of Maine, and the British claimed land far to the south of the present border. In 1838 and 1839 the disputed land between Maine and New Brunswick became the scene of disorders known as the Aroostook war. The people of Maine erected forts on the territory under contention. In March of 1839 Gen. Winfield Scott arranged a truce, and the so-called Webster-Ashburton treaty of 1842 fixed the boundary where it is today. This was the treaty arranged by Daniel Webster and Lord Ashburton. The negotiations leading up to it came to be known as the "battle of the maps." The settlement arrived at not only defined the northern boundary of Maine but erased all other minor border differences as far west as Lake of the Woods. The Webster-Ashburton treaty left only one Anglo-American controversy unadjusted — the question of the northern boundary of Oregon territory.

But before the Oregon question was to be settled the United States added to its domain the vast state of Texas—or rather what was the state of Texas of that time. Texas declared its independence of Mexico in 1836. The following year the United States and several European powers recognized this independence. For a little more than nine years Texas functioned as an independent republic, and then in December, 1845, it was formally admitted as a state into the United States. The territory involved in the annexation is shown in the main colored map on page one.

The year after the annexation of Texas came the final settlement of the Oregon territory boundary question. The claim of the United States to this rich land, now represented by the states of Oregon, Washington, and Idaho and parts of the states of Montana and Wyoming, dated back to as early as 1792, when Capt. Robert Gray discovered and explored the Columbia river. William Clark and Meriwether Lewis in 1805 and 1806 explored a considerable part of the region, and in 1818 the United States and Great Britain agreed upon a joint occupancy of the Oregon territory for 10 years. In 1827 the agreement was renewed for an indefinite term, with the privilege to either of ending it with 12 months' notice. Thereafter for a number of years the Oregon land was the scene of great rivalry between British and American fur trading companies.



WEBSTER

In 1844 the Democratic party of the United States adopted for its slogan "54-40 or fight." This meant that these politicians were determined to have the northern boundary of Oregon territory fixed at 40 minutes north of the 54th parallel of latitude, or else they would plunge the country into war with Great Britain. The party was successful at the polls, and as a result managed to engineer a compromise treaty with Great Britain establishing the boundary between the Oregon country and Canada at its present position.

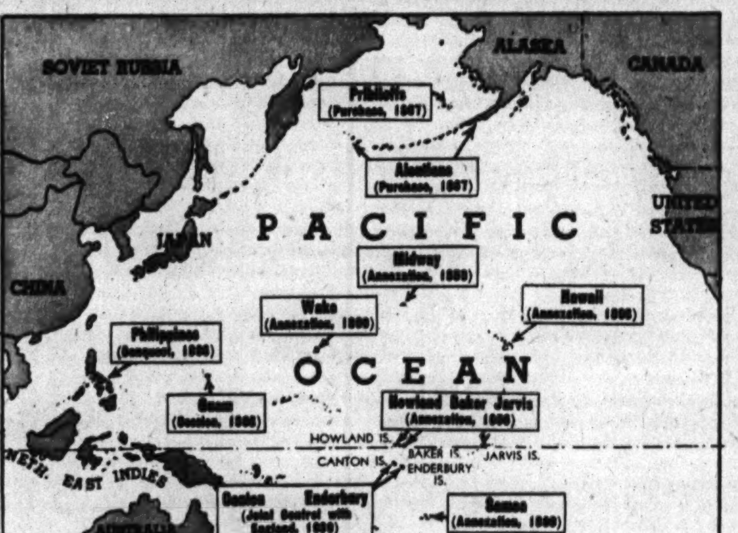
Then came the Mexican war. This was a conflict that from the safe distance of 94 years may be termed clearly one of conquest. The war started in May, 1846. It formally ended with the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, concluded in February, 1848. By the terms of the treaty the United States agreed to pay to Mexico 15 million dollars and settle all claims of American citizens against the government of Mexico. Of the 15 millions, three million was paid at once and the rest was paid at the rate of three million a year, with interest at 6 per cent.

For this relatively insignificant sum the United States got from Mexico all of the country north of the Rio Grande to the point where that river strikes the boundary of New Mexico and north of a line stretching generally westward from that point to a point one league south of San Diego, Cal. Reference to the main map on page one will show that by this cession on the part of Mexico the United States got virtually everything west of the Mississippi not included in the Louisiana purchase and the Oregon settlement. It got a chunk of what is now Texas, nearly all of what are now New Mexico and Arizona, bits of Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, and Wyoming, and all of California, Nevada, and Utah.



Map of the insular possessions of the United States in the Pacific, with dates and manner of acquisition.

The Guadalupe Hidalgo treaty settlement left some uncertainty as to the ownership of Arizona lands south of the Gila river, so Gen. James Gadsden was sent to Mexico City as American minister with the object of buying territory south of the aforesaid river to provide an all-American route for a southern railroad to the Pacific. Gadsden was empowered to buy all the land he could, and if possible obtain a site for a port on the Gulf of California. The most likely site for such a port is shown on the main map on page one. A number of American senators were in favor of the acquisition of a port on the gulf, but the Mexican government would not listen to such a proposition.

In the end Gadsden was able to purchase only a little more than 45,000 square miles contained in a strip extending from Rio Grande del Norte, near El Paso, westward about 500 miles to the Colorado river and the border of Lower California, and from the Gila river to the border as fixed by a treaty negotiated in December, 1853. The United States paid 10 million dollars for the land after whittling the price down first from 20 million and then from 15 million.

The Gadsden purchase virtually completed continental annexations of the United States, except for the purchase from Russia in 1867 of Alaska, with its numerous islands, including the Aleutians and the Pribilofs, for $7,200,000, and the acquisition thru arbitration with Great Britain of the San Juan Islands, between Vancouver Island and the mainland, in 1872. It was the German emperor, acting as arbitrator, who awarded the last-named islands, now playgrounds for Seattle wealthy folk, to the United States.

• • •

By tripartite agreement in 1889 the Samoan Islands in the Pacific were placed under the joint control of the United States, Great Britain, and Germany. Ten years later these islands were divided among the three powers, Tutuila and the harbor of Pago Pago falling to the United States. But before this had transpired America fought a war with Spain and gathered up a lot of territory as a result, and the Hawaiian Islands were annexed.

The annexation of the Hawaiian group was accomplished in July, 1898, after a revolt on the islands of a so-called American party and the landing of United States marines there. The war with Spain was brewing for a long time, its underlying cause being the unfair treatment of the Cubans by the Spaniards. The blowing up of the United States battleship Maine in Havana harbor in February, 1898, was the spark that touched off the conflict.

By the treaty of Paris, signed in December, 1898, Spain ceded outright to the United States the Philippine archipelago, Puerto Rico, and Guam. The United States in return gave Spain 20 million dollars and settled all claims of United States citizens against Spain. By the same treaty Spain relinquished control of Cuba, which the United States governed without sovereignty until May, 1902, when Cuban independence was established.

In 1903 the United States concluded a treaty with Colombia for the site of the Panama canal and the right to construct the canal across the Isthmus of Panama. Before this treaty could be ratified by the Colombian senate, however, Panama revolted and set up a separate republic, which in 1904 granted the American government the use, occupation, and control of a strip of land 10 miles wide for the purposes of the canal. For the use of this Canal Zone the United States paid Panama 10 million dollars outright and agreed to an annual rental of $250,000, beginning after a lapse of nine years.

In March, 1936, the annual rental of the Canal Zone was changed (retroactive to February, 1934) from $250,000 in American money to 430,000 balboas in Panaman money.

Long after the Panama canal was placed in operation the differences between Colombia and the United States over the secession of Panama were adjusted thru the Thompson-Urrutia treaty. This treaty was ratified by the Colombian senate in December, 1921. Among its terms was one indemnifying Colombia for the loss of Panama to the extent of 25 million dollars, payable in five equal annual instalments. Thus did the United States clear its national conscience in the matter.

In addition to all the territorial extensions and possessions named in the foregoing paragraphs, the United States owns the following insular territories: St. Thomas, St. John, and St. Croix of the Virgin Islands; Wake Island, Wilkes Island, and Peale Island of the Wake Island group; the Midway Islands, Howland Island, Jarvis Island, and Baker Island. Beginning in April, 1939, the United States assumed joint control with Great Britain for a period of 50 years of Canton and Enderbury Islands of the Phoenix group. All the insular possessions here mentioned are in the Pacific with the exception of the Virgin Islands, which lie in the Caribbean, east of Puerto Rico.

The three Virgin Islands were purchased from Denmark in 1917 for 25 million dollars. The Wake Islands, altho discovered by a British exploring expedition in 1796 and visited by an American expedition under Charles Wilkes in 1841, were not officially claimed until 1899, a year after Gen. F. V. Greene, en route to the Philippines, hoisted the American flag over them. The Midway Islands were acquired by the United States in 1859. The American ownership of Howland, Jarvis, and Baker Islands dates from 1856, when by an act of congress they were included among guano islands belonging to this country.

Know Your Camera

By ANDREW B. HECHT, Ph. D.
(Managing Editor, Popular Photography Magazine)

Architecture Fascinating Subject

SOME of the most striking photographs ever made show architectural subjects. Far from being lifeless and cold, these pictures can embody as much beauty or drama as any photographic subject.

Whenever you photograph a building the pictorial effect will largely depend upon getting the proper perspective and angle. Unless your subject happens to be the famed leaning tower of Pisa you will want all the vertical lines of the building to appear vertical. To get this effect you must hold your camera straight—meaning that the vertical lines of the building should run parallel with the sides of your camera, and the horizontal lines parallel with the top and bottom.

Deep, dark shadows help give this picture of the Chicago Board of Trade building dramatic effect and interest.

When you look thru the view finder or on the ground glass you will often find that the vertical lines of the building converge. This distortion—desirable in some cases for the sake of special effects—can spoil an otherwise excellent picture.

It is caused by tilting your camera upward. Very often you cannot avoid this, especially when you photograph a building in a narrow street or when other obstacles prevent you from stepping back far enough to include the whole building in the picture without tilting the camera. Wherever circumstances permit you to back up you should do so, even tho the image you get will be smaller. You can easily compensate for this by enlarging the picture.

The best way you can avoid distortion when tilting the camera is to use a camera with a swinging back. This adjustment permits you to tilt the front of the camera upward and still keep the back parallel with your subject. Many so-called view cameras have this adjustment.

Another remedy is to use a wide-angle lens. It covers 120 degrees or more, while the coverage of ordinary lenses is usually around 70 degrees.

Using a telephoto lens enables you to get a large image on your negative from a greater distance.

Try to include a good deal of foreground in your architectural pictures. The amount of foreground and the general perspective of the building is governed by the height from which you take the picture. Five feet from the ground, i. e., at eye level, is the normal point. However, it pays to check the picture as it appears on the ground glass.

It is best to photograph a building from an angle. Try to include both the front and a side, taking the picture from such an angle that the front remains more prominent and occupies a larger part of the picture space.

In your architectural pictures you naturally want to show plenty of depth and detail. Here, as in portraiture or landscape photography, you will have to rely on side lighting. Only shadows can outline the architectural details in such a manner that they become visible in the picture.

To make your picture sharp both in the foreground and background you must stop down your lens. Using a faster type of film, you can still make exposures at high speed and avoid complications due to traffic.

Clouds usually add an interesting touch to architectural subjects. Use a yellow, an orange, or a red filter. The latter darkens the sky considerably and creates dramatic contrasts between buildings and the sky.

Simple, straightforward posing is best when you wish to emphasize the beauty of a gown as displayed by a charming model.

For Whiter Washes with Safety

Nationally Famous Washer Maker

NOW RECOMMENDS OXYDOL

"FOR WHITER WASHES WITH SAFETY-USE OXYDOL" MAKERS OF FAMOUS THOR WASHERS NOW SAY

Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

NO matter what soap you use now in your washer—in your own interest you should be guided by this important news! One after another, leading washing machine makers are changing to new High-Test OXYDOL—as the soap they officially recommend for use in their machines.

For one example, makers of famous Thor washers now say: "For whiter, brighter washes, we urge the use of High-Test Oxydol—in washers old or new."

The Thor people changed to High-Test Oxydol largely because it gives these amazing results, compared to a number of popular soaps we have tested:—

(1) Gets white clothes as much as 9 to 11 shades whiter! Actual Tintometer shades—proved by our laboratory tests.

(2) Cup for cup, gives up to 3 TIMES THE SUDS even in hard water. Rich, energetic suds that last as much as 2 to 3 times longer.

Yet is SAFE for washable colors, fabrics and hands. So safe, that cotton prints given the equivalent of more than a full year's washing in our laboratories came out looking bright as new!

What's more, High-Test Oxydol can be money-saving, too. Penny for penny, it goes so much farther than less economical soaps, it can actually cut laundry soap bills as much as one-fourth!

So why not do as leading washer makers are urging—and try the new High-Test Oxydol? We believe you'll never go back to less efficient soaps again. Get High-Test OXYDOL—at your dealer's tomorrow! Procter & Gamble.

Attention Washing Machine Owners!

WHAT HAVE YOU DEVILS DONE WITH ALLAN?
1. Having over-powered the dacoits in the house, Sir Nayland Smith dashes outside to Allan's aid, but too late! The dacoits have carried the unconscious Allan to a waiting car and are speeding to Fu Manchu.
THIS IS THE 'PATIENT,' DR. KRANTZ—
2. Opening his eyes Allan finds himself in Fu Manchu's torture chamber.
A VERY FINE SPECIMEN—
DO YOU THINK YOU CAN DO IT, DR. KRANTZ?
3. Fu Manchu calls in Prof. Krantz, a plastic surgeon with a criminal record, who looks Allan over with a professional eye.
WHAT DO YOU WANT WITH ME, FU MANCHU?
I ONLY WISH TO BORROW YOUR FACE FOR AWHILE—
4. Jumping to his feet Allan starts swinging wildly with his fists, but the dacoits are too fast for him and he is quickly subdued.

5. Picking up a pair of calipers Prof. Kratz makes several measurements of Allan's face. Walking over to a board he starts modeling a piece of flesh colored sponge rubber.
A PERFECT LIKENESS, DR. KRANTZ—
TRY IT ON—
6. His work finished, the professor calls on Fu Manchu to inspect it. On the board is a perfect likeness of Allan's face in form of a rubber mask. By wearing it, Fu Manchu hopes to be able to escape the police who are rapidly closing in on him.
VERY CLEVER, FU MANCHU—
THE BOMB WILL BE FIRED WHEN THE TELEPHONE BELL RINGS—
7. Before leaving, Fu Manchu attaches a bomb to the telephone, explaining to Allan that when a call comes thru the bomb will explode. The phone number is known only to Fu Manchu and his daughter, Fah Lo Suee.
ALL IS READY WE MUST FLEE—
8. Calling his daughter, Fu Manchu orders her to prepare for the escape. But, meanwhile . . .

Salesmen.

A UNIQUE AD
A Real Salesman Wanted.

In launching a new improved product in the Chicago area, we seek several aggressive, capable salesmen above the average in native ability.

We select men with care, because the position is above the average. We are little concerned about your educational background, contacts, or previous experience. Can you tell an honest, straightforward story enthusiastically and convincingly? Can you inspire and supervise Junior Salesmen in the field, help them close sales, and bring in business instead of alibis? Can you follow orders until ready to give orders and work loyally, intelligently, energetically?

If You Qualify

Drawing account?..................Certainly.
Permanent position?...............Positively.
Substantial earnings?.............Definitely.
Work interesting and dignified?..Absolutely.
Room for advancement?.............Unlimited.

We invite you to come to PARLOR L, HOTEL SHERMAN, Monday, May 6th, at precisely 2 p. m. If you have what it takes, you will land one of the truly important selling jobs that comes once in your life.

NEAR NORTH SIDE

In summer, it's great to get away for week-ends, but when you come back on Monday it helps to know that you have a studio apartment with a porch or balcony overlooking a fountain in the court yard below, or a roof to climb up to where you can still be out in the fresh air. The living room in one of our apts. is 2 stories high, and another 4 room apt. has a living room 37 ft. long, windows at both ends, and a skylight. It's a marvelous room with its fireplace and dining nook, and just outside a little sunny porch and a bit of a roof. All of these are down here where there are so many interesting things you can enjoy and still have a good night's sleep, because they are all just a short walk up Michigan-av. from the loop. We have also some wonderful places for groups of 3 and 4; some are furnished. A special bargain on a 5 room with a beautiful living room and large combination bed and dressing room. Also a little 3 room house, furnished or unfurnished; special bargain for the summer.

YOU, TOO, CAN OWN A SUMMER HOME AT BOHNER'S LAKE
WISCONSIN
59 MILES FROM CHICAGO.
When you buy a summer home be sure it's close enough to be convenient, yet far enough to avoid the crowds . . . be sure it's located in hilly country, not on the flat prairie . . . be sure that the lake is a natural springfed one like BOHNER'S LAKE, not a man-made artificial lake . . . be sure that there is good fishing in the lake [on Bohner's Lake there is a STATE HATCHERY right on the shore]. Come out and see this wonderful summer spot, with its rolling hills, winding roads and deep woods. You'll agree Bohner's Lake is DIFFERENT and lives up to every claim we make.
$695
Buys 4 Room Cottage
on 50x180 Ft. Lot
All you need is a small down payment, $12 month pays for it! Remember this is a brand new carpenter built cottage of sound, substantial construction. 4 big rooms, electricity, inside toilet, etc. Even screens are included at this low price!
Log Cabin, $1,095
Located on a wooded knoll, it has all the rustic beauty of the early pioneers' cabins yet is modern thruout. Built-in bunks. Natural wood-grain walls in living room. Inside toilet, elec., etc. Small down payment—then take 5 years to pay.
DRIVE OUT TODAY!
Come out and see this fine summer spot. You will agree with us that it is truly Nature's Wonderland. Only 50 miles from Chicago. Easy to get to—just drive straight out Milwaukee-av., thru Antioch to Brass Ball Corners, which is Highway 50, or follow Superhighway 41 to Highway 50 and turn left on 50 and follow signs to Bohner's Lake.

Day by Day on the Farm
By BOB BECKER

Farm Life as Drama.

May 4, 1940.

FARM residents who watch winter give way to spring and then follow nature's signposts thru each new season can't help but think of the constantly changing farm scene as a sort of stage, with nature providing the background scenery, the music, and all the actors. It's a sort of continuous feature in which the backdrop changes itself four times a year and the actors make their appearance, leave the stage, and then come back each succeeding year for another performance.

Usually this stage production follows a set pattern each new season, but, like all good dramas it includes the element of surprise in its plot. The snowy, wintry days which surprised every one this week emphasized the way nature seems to enjoy a little trick which considerably alters the usual pattern. But with the thermometer above freezing and a bright sun following the snow the spring season is heading toward a return to its usual schedule.

Flowers Form Backdrop.

Before the snowfall the east woods of the farm had a new carpet of fragile spring beauties to form a backdrop for nature's stage. The whole woodland floor was covered with these pink flowers, which have been forced to close shop during the brief return of winter. But as soon as the spring sun goes to work and melts the snow the spring beauties will be back for their return engagement as the rightful background scenery for this season of the year.

The spring beauties, in their rôle as backdrop, are so profuse and so colorful that they make the actors in this nature production seem unimportant. It's a case of the scenery stealing attention from the performers.

Bloodroots Spring Up.

In one corner of the farm stage, however, we found several intriguing wild flowers which make up for their lack of numbers by their striking appearance and distinctive characteristics. They are called bloodroot flowers, and by poking their heads several inches above the snow they make a respectable showing. The bloodroots remind us of the mandrakes in the way they send their whorled leaves up thru the ground like green bullets. Once out of the ground they open their leaves, then in a few days a single flower stem shoots up and opens its eight-petaled white flower.

The snowfalls undoubtedly provided a surprise for the white throated sparrows, which were just starting their Chicagoland invasion. According to our migration log the white throats arrived here five days later than last spring, but this is easily accounted for by the cool spring weather. We saw our first white throat in the farm woods Wednesday afternoon, indicating that more will be here in a few days. The snowstorm wasn't a welcome sight for them, especially after they had delayed their arrival to escape cool weather.

FRANKLIN 2400.

MR. M. had bought a home on contract. When times got bad and he could not pay taxes and contract payments, the owner hollered. They argued, scrapped, and fought, and finally they started feudin'! Real old fashioned feudin'! Just like the Martins and the Coys—remember?
We were called—made Mr. M. a top loan, our lawyer got back taxes cut—way down—and we paid off everybody.
Now—sweet, blessed peace reigns and "all is quiet on the Northwest side."
We grant top loans on homes up to 30 years old, 2 to 4 apartments, large apartment, store, and factory buildings. Also place FHA loans up to 90% of value. We advance funds to settle back taxes, liens, to redeem property, and to close estates.
If even our top loan won't do, we will negotiate with the mortgagee or bondholder's committee to cut down overly large debts to present day levels. Low rates.

Why Is a Farm Like a Stage?

To Bob Becker, writing of activities and scenes on the Tribune's Du Page county farm, every farm is a stage. What brings him to this conclusion is told in his entertaining article which you will find in the want ad section of today's Chicago Sunday Tribune.

MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

MOPERS RETURN TO HIGHWAYS WITH THE SPRING

BY HAL FOUST.

The mopers have returned to the highways with the arrival of spring weather. Blithely ignorant or selfishly indifferent, these excessively slow drivers constitute a seasonal hazard on the main travel routes.

Last Sunday, a pretty day, these road hogs were numerous. They formed slowly moving barricades to other traffic anxious to reach destinations.

These mopers are not going anywhere. They are in no hurry. Some of them are on the highway solely for the fresh air. Others are riding to view the new green of the countryside. Still others are riding merely for sociability, the shifting scenes serving as an aid to dragging conversations.

Side Roads Recommended.

For such pleasure rides, self-preservation as well as the safety of others would recommend use of the side roads. In the Chicago area there is no lack of secondary roads, lightly traveled, where a driver can tarry with occasional stops to enjoy the scenery—and with no inconvenience, annoyance or jeopardy to other motorists.

Week-ends in the spring and summer exact a high accident toll. The part played by the slow drivers in this score of hits, strikes and errors is understated by statistics.

Law Not Enforced.

On the main routes, slowpokes force the majority of traffic to overtake and to pass. The faster driver who leaves the road and overturns to avoid the moper or collides with another car in avoiding the road hog usually gets the blame in official reports of such accidents. In this respect, the mopers are like the big trucks with their excellent safety statistics.

There's a law against driving so slowly as to impede ordinary use of the road. It is not enforced by the Illinois state police.

Bright Colors, Style Changes Aid Car Sales

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Changes in styling and brighter colors have been in a large measure responsible for the public's rush to buy new automobiles this spring, according to a number of automobile company officials. Next have been the much larger values which most of the 1940 models offer and mechanical improvements.

The public seems to be paying more attention to the appearance of cars, it was said, preferring the brighter hues to the regulation black of preceding years.

One innovation that has caught on this year has been the two-tone color jobs. Perhaps most popular in the two-tone offerings have been two shades of green, the body being finished in a darker shade than the top. Two shades of blue are proving popular as are the grays. A dark red body, with a tan or beige top, is another color combination that has taken hold.

Reds and Blues Are Seen.

In the plain colors reds and blues having a metallic tint are seen on the boulevards in greater numbers than in recent years. In this connection, the large paint manufacturers declare that recent chemical improvements have made it possible to retain lusters longer than formerly.

Another vogue that has been taking greater hold in the last few years has been the convertible. The folding top virtually disappeared with the introduction of the all-steel bodies. But now they are back again called convertibles and usually are at substantially higher prices than th conventional body types. The younger generation has taken to the convertible. In fact, a few have appeared on the boulevards in ancient coupes which have been sawed off along the seat level for al fresco driving.

The 1940 convertibles, however, present a sharp contrast to the earlier cars with folding tops when the driver had to struggle with straps and buckles to get the top in position in the case of a sudden rain. And most of them put on a good performance in rattling.

Just Touch a Button.

Now to put up or lower the tops on many of the convertibles, all that's necessary is to touch a button on the instrument panel and the top rises or lowers as desired. Frames are so sturdy that squeaks and rattles are virtually eliminated.

Convertibles come in two types—the coupe or the sedan—and in many color combinations.

Another special style that is taking the popular fancy is the station wagon. Formerly this type of car was used largely on the estates of a few wealthy persons, taking guests and their baggage to and from country railway stations. Now this type of car is used for every purpose where a large amount of room is required and where rough use is indicated.

Two New Drives Gain Ground.

Practically every manufacturer—including those making the expensive cars—this year is represented by a station wagon. Most cost somewhat more than the conventional models.

Among the mechanical improvements, the "fluid drive" and the "hydramatic drive" of two leading manufacturers appear to be gaining ground steadily. First brought out in this country in the late fall of 1938 on a de luxe model as extra equipment, these drives, which eliminate the necessity for shifting gears, are being seen more and more.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

LESSONS NEEDED.

Chicago, April 22.—What a lot of poor drivers need when they pass a red light or start before the light changes or knock off a fender is a lesson in safe driving from some expert. How many drivers have ever received instructions from experts? They have been taught to drive by some one who knew "how."

Many drivers do not even know the traffic rules. They should be sent to school when they are discovered breaking a law. Having proved their ignorance they should be forced to learn or cease driving an auto. C. P.

HOW DOES THE LAW DRIVE?

Chicago, April 22.—Following is a personal experience of a few days ago.

Date: Monday, April 15, 1940.

Time. 5:15 p. m.—the heaviest rush hour, traffic moving north on Western avenue between North avenue and Lawrence avenue.

Offender: Evanston police squad car No. 21, Illinois license No. M11-321; driven by a gentleman in mufti.

One: At Western and Milwaukee avenues he swerved across the path of the writer's car, making a sudden stop necessary.

Two: Speeds of from 38 to 44 m. p. h. in half mile from Armitage to Fullerton avenues.

Three: Speeds from 45 to 48 m. p. h. between Fullerton avenue and Logan boulevard.

Fourth: In the stretch between Fullerton and Logan boulevard he swung into the southbound street car tracks to pass private car, Illinois license No. 70-848, and to avoid hitting southbound street car had to cut off the above private car very shortly to get back into the northbound street car tracks.

Fifth: Speeds from 45 to 48 m. p. h. between Diversey boulevard and Irving Park boulevard.

Sixth: At Irving Park boulevard he cut off a third private car to get from behind a northbound street car into center automobile line.

I have the greatest admiration for the Evanston police department and its rigid enforcement of traffic rules, but I believe that the police who enforce various laws should be most strict in personally carrying out those rules. W. M.

A PLEA FOR LIVES.

Chicago, April 22.—At 6 o'clock Sunday, April 21, I stood at my window to watch my husband [a 46 year old war veteran burdened with a heavy suitcase] as he waited to board a 67th-71st street car on his way to work.

Suddenly I was horrified to see him forced to leap into the path of the slower moving street car to save himself from the wheels of a Sunday driver going at least 70 miles an hour in order to pass the street car before it came to a stop.

Why must these demons kill children and innocent persons as they do every day by such acts? My husband would wreck his car before he would strike a living thing.

What are a few minutes saved at the expense of a life?

My hope now is that my husband or the motorman noted the license number of this car.

I want to add this to your plea for safer driving. ESTELLE M. LEWIS.

ABOUT SIGNS.

Peoria, Ill., April 18.—Most all state stop signs are set so that the car on the right has the right of way, which is all right in the absence of stop signs or stop and go signals, but it would be much more convenient if these signs were reversed, as the driver of a car could look to his left to see if the thru road was clear. As it is, he has to make the stop and bend to the right to look back on the opposite side of the car to see if it is safe for him to proceed.

I use the Illinois highways a great deal and have for the last thirteen years. I believe these signs were changed about eight years ago. W. G. C.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Studebaker got off to a good start this spring, with sales in the first quarter totaling $20,497,466, the largest for the period since 1929. The increase over the first quarter of last year was 36 per cent. President Paul G. Hoffman attributes a substantial part of the Studebaker gains to the new Champion which was brought out in the spring of 1939. The Champion was not introduced until after about five years of research designed to reduce all nonessential weight. It is being honored this year by being named the pace car for the Memorial day 500 mile Indianapolis race. Ab Jenkins, noted race driver, will be at the wheel as the car leads the parade of racing cars just before they start the run.

The first semester of Packard's master servicemen's educational course in Chicago will be concluded Tuesday evening, R. E. Rosain, general service manager for Packard in Chicago, said yesterday. Of the 124 Packard servicemen and mechanics who will be honored at special exercises, 56 have 10 or more years of Packard service and 11 more than 20 years.

H. Gordon Hersh, sales promotion manager for Pontiac, will be in Chicago tomorrow for a spring merchandising conference with Zone Manager C. G. Riley and the division's seven district managers.

Graham's new "Hollywood" line of cars is now in volume production in the Detroit plant, Sam L. Davis, veteran Chicago dealer and distributor for Graham, said yesterday. The car is built on a 115 inch wheelbase, has a supercharged motor delivering 120 horsepower and weighs only 3,100 pounds. The Hollywood is available in two body types—a five passenger convertible coupé and a four door sedan.

Chrysler's two tone color combinations are proving a popular feature of the 1940 line, officials said yesterday. The combinations available are two shades of green, two shades of blue, two shades of gray and maroon and beige.

The Dodge truck division of the Chrysler corporation has just issued a booklet compiling the combined experiences of Dodge Diesel truck owners in every section of the country. More than 1,000,000 miles of the trucks' operation are represented in the booklet.

Ready for Summer Days

This handsome convertible sedan is the La Salle Special. Its design is adapted from that of the Cadillac Sixty Special, which has exerted an important influence on this year's car styling. Convertible models have been growing in popularity during the last few years, especially among the younger motorists.

Dear Sir:

I have just completed an analysis of advertising costs and results which I think you will find interesting.

During 1939, we sold 68 properties which amounted to $415,000.00 in gross sales. Forty-two of these sales, totaling $241,000.00, were directly traceable to Tribune want ads.

We spent $416.10 in other media with meagre results.

As noted in the table, our Tribune advertising cost is about one-half of 1% - by far the lowest of any sales method we use.

Sales Traceable to	Total Sales	No. of Properties	Cost of Sales	Cost per Property	Percentage Cost
Personal Solicitation	$24,000	4	$1,200.00	$300.00	5%
Good-will	131,500	18	2,976.00	165.00	2¼%
Signs on Bldgs.	15,100	3	150.00	50.00	1%
Other Media	3,000	1	416.10	416.10	13.87%
Tribune Ads	241,400	42	1,394.60	33.20	57/100 of 1%
Totals	$415,000	68	$6,136.70	$90.24(Avg.)	1½%(Avg.)

I am sincere when I tell you it is my belief that it would be difficult for us to stay in business if it were not for a good newspaper like the Chicago Tribune.

Yours very truly,

Royl G. Knight

STUDY OF YEAR'S OPERATIONS SHOWS SUPERIORITY OF WANT ADVERTISING AS A BUSINESS-GETTER FOR REALTORS

Every real estate man determined to make 1940 a more profitable year will find the way marked out for him in the accompanying letter. Every dealer in used cars, household furniture, musical instruments and other widely sold commodities can find in it a success formula which he can supply with equal effect in his own field.

When you make want advertising in the Tribune the mainstay of your promotion, you concentrate your sales efforts in the one medium which will sell property not only at by far the lowest cost of any of the known means of selling real estate, but also in sufficient volume to increase sales and build profits.

You will note from the letter above that while there are methods which produce sales at a low cost per sale, these methods are incapable of producing in sufficient volume to enable the operator to stay in business.

Mr. Knight's experience proves that other forms of advertising not only cost more but are far less productive than Tribune want ads. Tribune want advertising is the one medium which produces a satisfactory volume and at the same time does so at a cost which is lower than that of any other known means.

Every day of the week, the Tribune has more than 1,000,000 circulation. Right in Chicago and suburbs, the Tribune, every day of the week, sells more than 800,000 copies. This is from 335,000 to 500,000 more copies than are sold in metropolitan Chicago by other Chicago newspapers.

Every day of the week, people in all walks of life turn to the Tribune want ad section, attracted by the volume and variety of offers they find there. Presenting more want advertising than all other Chicago newspapers combined, it is the recognized market place in which many generations of Chicagoans have been accustomed to buy, lease and trade.

If you want more sales, ask a Tribune representative to help you plan a consistent schedule of advertising in the Tribune want ad section. Call SUPerior 0100—today.
